PROCEEDINGS AND DEBATES OF THE 108th CONGRESS, SECOND SESSION

Vol. 150

WASHINGTON, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 9, 2004

No. 128

House of Representatives

The House met at noon.

The Reverend Stephen J. Rossetti, President, St. Luke Institute, Silver Spring, Maryland, offered the following prayer:

Good and gracious God, we gather in a time of challenge. We labor long and hard for peace, but continue to be visited by war. We work hard for unity, but continue to be plagued with conflict and division. We strive for charity among sisters and brothers, but experience so much hatred in our world.

Give us the grace to know that it is You who are the source of our unity and our peace, You who are the one God, living and true. It is You who unites us.

Bring peace to our world, peace to our families, and peace to our hearts. Bind us together in harmony across the divisions and aisles of life. Make us one in unity and love.

And when we have finally looked upon the face of unity, the face of charity, and the face of peace, it will be Your beautiful face we have gazed upon.

We make this prayer in God's name. Amen.

THE JOURNAL

The SPEAKER. The Chair has examined the Journal of the last day's proceedings and announces to the House his approval thereof.

Pursuant to clause 1, rule I, the Journal stands approved.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KILDEE) come forward and lead the House in the Pledge of Allegiance.

Mr. KILDEE led the Pledge of Allegiance as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER

The SPEAKER. The Chair will entertain up to 5 1-minute speeches on each side.

PRESIDENT BUSH PROMOTES JOB GROWTH

(Mr. WILSON of South Carolina asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. WILSON of South Carolina. Mr. Speaker, today The New York Times reported that employment had grown for 13 consecutive months. This reflects the impact of President Bush's economic plan for tax cuts to revive the economy by people investing their own money.

President Bush came to office in a recession, and the economy lost 1 million jobs due to the terrorist attacks of September 11. Despite this, the President helped create nearly 2 million new jobs.

The gross domestic product has been growing faster than in 20 years. Productivity has grown faster than in 20 years.

As a former real estate attorney, I am happy to see construction spending the highest ever, over $1 trillion, creating wonderful job opportunities.

In contrast, JOHN KERRY last night proposed tax increases, which sounded like an exclusive group, but in fact, over 80 percent of the Kerry tax increases would be on small businesses which create the most jobs.

All Americans can take pride in our economy that is improving under the leadership of President Bush.

In conclusion, God bless our troops, and we will always remember September 11.

NEW ECONOMIC POLICY FOR AMERICA

(Mr. PALLONE asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute.)

Mr. PALLONE. Mr. Speaker, it is official. President Bush will be the first President since Herbert Hoover to face reelection with fewer people working than when he started.

Yesterday, the Labor Department issued its last update on job creation before the elections. The stock market dropped sharply, reacting to the job report that raised significant doubts about the economy's strength under President Bush.

Most economists agree that Bush's tax cuts failed to stimulate the economy because they overwhelmingly favored very wealthy households. Mr. Speaker, 1.6 million private sector jobs have been lost since President Bush entered office. Economists estimate that the Nation needs to add roughly 150,000 jobs a month to keep pace with the growth in the workforce, and we need to add many more than that to make up for the ground that has been lost under President Bush. Since July, the economy has added only, on the average, 103,000 jobs a month.

Mr. Speaker, clearly, there is a need for a change in economic policy here in Washington, which can only occur with a new President, JOHN KERRY.

PRESIDENT FATED TO STRIKE OUT

(Mr. McDERMOTT asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. McDERMOTT. Mr. Speaker, the President stepped up to the plate last night and, Strike 2, the President swung right through on an easy pitch. It was not a fast ball or a curve or a slider or a sinker. It was ordinary Americans pitching the truth to the President of the United States, and he could not even foul it off. He flat out missed it again.

He has not kept his eye on the ball on the war on terror; he has not kept his eye on the ball on the faltering economy. Everyone saw the pitch last night and everyone saw what the President did with it.

The truth is, a home run pitch right down the middle, and the self-proclaimed steward of the land missed it again. For the third and last night, next week the President steps up to the plate. On November 2, 24 days from now, it will be Strike 3, and the American people will say, "You're out, Mr. President."

MANY DISAPPOINTED WITH PRESIDENT'S USE OF POWER

(Mr. SHERMAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, now Bremer has told us what went wrong in Iraq and why. He said we did not have enough troops and, specifically, we did not have enough troops in the days immediately following the fall of Saddam. This led to violence and looting immediately after that fall and created the sense of lawlessness which is killing our troops today.

The question is, why did we not have enough troops?

We had a plan worked out by our superb military not only to bring 200,000 troops from the south, but to bring 60,000 from the north, the Fourth Infantry Division, et cetera. When the Turkish parliament refused to let those 60,000 troops through Turkey, the President could have gone to the U.N. and got the U.N. resolution the Turkish parliament required. He could have delayed the invasion until those troops could be positioned in the south. He did neither. He was too impatient, too foolhardy with the lives of the Americans. He threw away the plan, threw away the northern half of the plan and moved on with the southern half of the plan.

Mr. Speaker, no wonder so many of us who voted to empower the President are so disappointed in how he used that power.

REPUBLICANS STRIP HATE CRIME PREVENTION PROVISIONS FROM DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION BILL

(Ms. PELOSI asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. PELOSI. Mr. Speaker, later this afternoon we will be voting on the Defense authorization bill, which I strongly support, and I commend the committee for bringing it to the floor. I want to especially acknowledge the great work of our ranking member, the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) for his leadership on the legislation.

I want to particularly acknowledge two things. One is, under the leadership of the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), we had the phased-in elimination of the 2-tier survivor benefit over a period of 3½ years. The gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) and the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) took the lead on that initiative with the Edwards discharge petition. They made it possible for the survivors.

I want to acknowledge the work of the gentleman from Georgia (Mr. MARSHALL), working with the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON) to eliminate the 10-year phase-in of the disabled veterans tax for those with 100 percent VA disability ratings.

However, one area where I was very disappointed, and I condemn the action of the conference committee, for the second time in 4 years, the Republican leadership has unconscionably ignored the will of the House and the Senate and stripped the hate crimes prevention provisions from the bill. The needs of law enforcement, which has repeatedly requested Federal assistance in solving and preventing a wide range of violent hate crimes, have been ignored. The measure enjoyed strong bipartisan support, was endorsed by over 175 law enforcement, civil rights, civic and religious organizations, including the National Sheriffs Association, the International Association of Chiefs of Police, and many others.

That list would have added sexual orientation, gender, and disability to the Federal hate crimes laws, allowing the Federal Government the ability to provide critical assistance to the States. It is very, very unfortunate that it has happened. I want the RECORD to show that this is the second time that this has happened.

Four years ago, there was strong bipartisan support in both Houses supporting adding this to the Defense authorization bill. It was rejected 4 years ago. Once again, the Republican leadership of the House has decided that we will continue to discriminate against those on the basis of their sexual orientation.

Having said that, I plan to support the Defense authorization and, once again, commend our colleagues for bringing it to the floor.

SENATOR KERRY STUMBLES BADLY ON STEM CELLS RE- SEARCH

(Mr. SMITH of New Jersey asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. SMITH of New Jersey. Mr. Speaker, in the debate last night, Senator KERRY stumbled badly when asked a question on the stem cell research debate. He suggested that the only choice was between continuing cryogenically freezing those embryos or their destruction. That is not the only option. Those embryos can be and are being adopted.

A couple of weeks ago, right nearby, in the Capitol here, I met with more than a dozen little children who were once cryogenically frozen embryos who were adopted. Their parents, in their love and compassion, those who had made the contribution and had created these new embryos, allowed those individuals to be adopted; and those kids had names like Michael and Katie. They are not throwaways. No human being is a throwaway.

I hope we will disabuse ourselves, Mr. Speaker, of this false idea that there is such a thing as a "spare" embryo. Every embryo that is not wanted, that is not going to be implanted in the donor mother—these mothers, ought to allow that embryo to be adopted.

PRETTY PATHETIC

(Mr. HOYER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, the Republican-controlled Congress is shambling to the end of one of the lightest workloads in decades without a hint of embarrassment, New York Times, 9/24/04. No budget, no budget enforcement plan. No energy bill. No highway bill. No intelligence reform. No export tax relief. No welfare reform. Eleven of 13 appropriations bills still on the desk. Lost jobs.

The 108th Congress is a do-nothing Congress, contemptuously arrogant and disdainful of long-established political and parliamentary procedures. So said Al Hunt in the New York Times.

Norman Ornstein's much simpler, much more pointed observation about the 108th Congress. "Pretty pathetic," said Norm Ornstein. And the last 24 hours have been a stunning testament to the pathetic product of this 108th do-nothing, do-bad Congress.

(1) IN GENERAL.—The Comptroller General of the United States shall conduct a study to determine the extent to which small business concerns participate in the construction of oil and gas pipelines in the United States.

(2) REPORT.—Not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act, the Comptroller General shall submit to Congress a report that describes results of the study under paragraph (1).

(3) UPDATES.—The Comptroller General shall—

(A) update the study at least once every 5 years until construction of an Alaska natural gas transportation project is completed; and

(B) on completion of each update, submit to Congress a report containing the results of the update.

SEC. 113. ALASKA PIPELINE CONSTRUCTION TRAINING PROGRAM.

(a) PROGRAM.—

(1) ESTABLISHMENT.—The Secretary of Labor (in this section referred to as the “Secretary”) shall make grants to the Alaska Workforce Investment Board—

(A) to recruit and train adult and dislocated workers in Alaska, including Alaska Natives, in the skills required to construct and operate an Alaska gas pipeline system; and

(B) for the design and construction of a training facility to be located in Fairbanks, Alaska, to support an Alaska gas pipeline training program.

(2) COORDINATION WITH EXISTING PROGRAMS.—The training program established with the grants authorized under paragraph (1) shall be consistent with the vision and goals set forth in the State of Alaska Unified Plan, as developed pursuant to the Workforce Investment Act of 1998 (29 U.S.C. 2801 et seq.).

(b) REQUIREMENTS FOR GRANTS.—The Secretary shall make a grant under subsection (a) only if—

(1) the Governor of the State of Alaska requests the grant funds and certifies in writing to the Secretary that there is a reasonable expectation that the construction of the Alaska natural gas pipeline system will commence by the date that is 2 years after the date of the certification; and

(2) the Secretary of Energy concurs in writing to the Secretary with the certification made under paragraph (1) after considering—

(A) the status of necessary Federal and State permits;

SEC. 114. SENSE OF CONGRESS CONCERNING NATURAL GAS DEMAND.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) North American demand for natural gas will increase dramatically over the course of the next several decades;

(2) both the Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline and the Mackenzie Delta Natural Gas project in Canada will be necessary to help meet the increased demand for natural gas in North America;

(3) Federal and State officials should work together with officials in Canada to ensure both projects can move forward in a mutually beneficial fashion;

(4) Federal and State officials should acknowledge that the smaller scope, fewer permitting requirements, and lower cost of the Mackenzie Delta project means it will most likely be completed before the Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline;

(5) natural gas production in the 48 contiguous States and Canada will not be able to meet all domestic demand in the coming decades; and

(6) as a result, natural gas delivered from Alaskan North Slope will not displace or reduce the commercial viability of Canadian natural gas produced from the Mackenzie Delta or production from the 48 contiguous States.

SEC. 115. SENSE OF CONGRESS CONCERNING ALASKAN OWNERSHIP.

It is the sense of Congress that—

(1) Alaska Native Regional Corporations, companies owned and operated by Alaskans, and individual Alaskans should have the opportunity to own shares of the Alaska natural gas pipeline in a way that promotes economic development for the State; and

(2) to facilitate economic development in the State, all project sponsors should negotiate in good faith with any willing Alaskan person that desires to be involved in the project.

SEC. 116. LOAN GUARANTEES.

(a) AUTHORITY.—(1) The Secretary may enter into agreements with 1 or more holders of a certificate of public convenience and necessity issued under section 103(b) of this division or section 9 of the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act of 1976 (15 U.S.C. 719g) to issue Federal guarantee instruments with respect to loans and other debt obligations for a qualified infrastructure project.

(2) Subject to the requirements of this section, the Secretary may also enter into agreements with 1 or more owners of the Canadian portion of a qualified infrastructure project to issue Federal guarantee instruments with respect to loans and other debt obligations for a qualified infrastructure project as though such owner were a holder described in paragraph (1).

(3) The authority of the Secretary to issue Federal guarantee instruments under this section for a qualified infrastructure project shall expire on the date that is 2 years after the date on which the final certificate of public convenience and necessity (including any Canadian certificates of public convenience and necessity) is issued for the project. A final certificate shall be considered to have been issued when all certificates of public convenience and necessity have been issued that are required for the initial transportation of commercially economic quantities of natural gas from Alaska to the continental United States.

(b) CONDITIONS.—(1) The Secretary may issue a Federal guarantee instrument for a qualified infrastructure project only after a certificate of public convenience and necessity under section 103(b) of this division or an amended certificate under section 9 of the Alaska Natural Gas Transportation Act of 1976 (15 U.S.C. 719g) has been issued for the project.

(2) The Secretary may issue a Federal guarantee instrument under this section for a qualified infrastructure project only if the loan or other debt obligation guaranteed by the instrument has been issued by an eligible lender.

(3) The Secretary shall not require as a condition of issuing a Federal guarantee instrument under this section any contractual commitment or other form of credit support of the sponsors (other than equity contribution commitments and completion guarantees), or any throughput or other guarantee from prospective shippers greater than such guarantees as shall be required by the project owners.

(c) LIMITATIONS ON AMOUNTS.—(1) The amount of loans and other debt obligations guaranteed under this section for a qualified infrastructure project shall not exceed 80 percent of the total capital costs of the project, including interest during construction.

(2) The principal amount of loans and other debt obligations guaranteed under this section shall not exceed, in the aggregate, $18,000,000,000, which amount shall be indexed for United States dollar inflation from the date of enactment of this Act, as measured by the Consumer Price Index.

(d) LOAN TERMS AND FEES.—(1) The Secretary may issue Federal guarantee instruments under this section that take into account repayment profiles and grace periods justified by project cash flows and project-specific considerations. The term of any loan guaranteed under this section shall not exceed 30 years.

(2) An eligible lender may assess and collect from the borrower such other fees and costs associated with the application and origination of the loan or other debt obligation as are reasonable and customary for a project finance transaction in the oil and gas sector.

(e) REGULATIONS.—The Secretary may issue regulations to carry out this section.

(f) AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to cover the cost of loan guarantees under this section, as defined by section 502(5) of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990 (2 U.S.C. 661a(5)). Such sums shall remain available until expended.

(g) DEFINITIONS.—In this section:

(1) CONSUMER PRICE INDEX.—The term “Consumer Price Index” means the Consumer Price Index for all-urban consumers, United States city average, as published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, or if such index shall cease to be published, any successor index or reasonable substitute thereof.

(2) ELIGIBLE LENDER.—The term “eligible lender” means any non-Federal qualified institutional buyer (as defined by section 230.144A(a) of title 17, Code of Federal Regulations (or any successor regulation), known as Rule 144A(a) of the Securities and Exchange Commission and issued under the Securities Act of 1933), including—

(A) a qualified retirement plan (as defined in section 4974(c) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 4974(c)) that is a qualified institutional buyer; and

(B) a governmental plan (as defined in section 414(d) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 (26 U.S.C. 414(d)) that is a qualified institutional buyer.

(3) FEDERAL GUARANTEE INSTRUMENT.—The term “Federal guarantee instrument” means any guarantee or other pledge by the Secretary to pledge the full faith and credit of the United States to pay all of the principal and interest on any loan or other debt obligation entered into by a holder of a certificate of public convenience and necessity.

(4) QUALIFIED INFRASTRUCTURE PROJECT.—The term “qualified infrastructure project” means an Alaskan natural gas transportation project consisting of the design, engineering, finance, construction, and completion of pipelines and related transportation and production systems (including gas treatment plants), and appurtenances thereto, that are used to transport natural gas from the Alaska North Slope to the continental United States.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4837) making appropriations for Military Construction, Family Housing, and Base Realignment and Closure for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2005, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House of Representatives and the Senate in explanation of the effect of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report.

This conference report includes, in addition to the Military Construction Appropriations Act, 2005, Division B—Emergency Supplemental Appropriations for Hurricane Disaster Assistance Act, 2005, and Division C—Alaska Natural Gas Pipeline.

DIVISION A—MILITARY CONSTRUCTION
APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2005

ITEMS OF GENERAL INTEREST

Matters Addressed by Only One Committee.—The language and allocations set forth in House Report 108-607 and Senate Report 108-309 should be complied with unless specifically addressed to the contrary in the conference report and statement of the managers. Report language included by the House which is not changed by the report of the Senate or the conference, and Senate report language which is not changed by the conference is approved by the committee of conference. The statement of the managers, while repeating some report language for emphasis, does not intend to negate the language referred to above unless expressly provided herein. In cases where the House or the Senate have directed the submission of a report from the Department of Defense, such report is to be submitted to both the House and the Senate Committees on Appropriations.

Audit Trail Documents.—The conferees direct the Department of Defense to continue the semi-annual submission of audit trail documents, a practice reinstated by the fiscal year 2004 Military Construction Appropriations conference report. The conferees emphasize that the documents shall describe the following: the appropriated amount, the amount formally reprogrammed, the amount of below threshold reprogramming, the current funded level, the contract award date, the contract amount, and the current working estimate, along with explanatory notes as necessary, for each project as budgeted in the Construction Annex, as well as projects funded under Minor Construction and Family Housing Improvements. All of this information shall be described in no more than one line item for each project. The audit trail documents shall reflect projects from the current fiscal year plus the previous four fiscal years.

Notification Requirements for Changes in Scope.—Title 10, Section 2853 of U.S. Code states that “the scope of work for a military construction project or for the construction, improvement, and acquisition of a military family housing project may be reduced by not more than 25 percent from the amount approved for that project, construction, improvement, or acquisition by Congress” subject to certain limitations, one of which is notification of Congressional Committees. It is the understanding of the conferees that the services have interpreted this provision to mean that scope reduction notification is required only when a reduction is made to engineering based attributes such as square footage. The conferees emphasize that scope reduction notification also applies when a reduction of 25 percent or more is taken from the amount appropriated for a project. The conferees also emphasize that scope reductions in excess of 25 percent may not be made until the appropriate Congressional Committees have been notified and a 21-day period has elapsed. The notification is a statutory requirement independent of any reprogramming request and must precede by at least 21 days any request to reprogram funds that are excess to a project due to a scope reduction.

This corrected understanding of the requirement is necessary to ensure transparency in the military construction program and to restore the ability of Congress to exercise proper oversight of appropriated funds for military construction. For example, the Army reduced a barracks project at Camp Hovey, Korea, from $26,000,000 to $17,000,000, a 35 percent reduction and well above the 25 percent threshold. Congress often learns of these scope reductions only when the services submit reprogramming requests to use the savings for other projects. The conferees therefore agree that it is highly necessary to clarify the scope reduction requirement.

The conferees understand that the funding requirements for these storms will far exceed the five-year average of disaster loan-making activity resulting in the necessity for emergency appropriations. The amounts provided will allow the SBA to make approximately $5,500,000,000 of loans to individuals and businesses.

CHAPTER 3

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE—MILITARY

Chapter 3 of the conference agreement recommends $909,400,000 for the Department of Defense in support of specific security, temporary relocation, cleanup, repair, and other related activities taken by the military services and defense activities in preparation for and recovery from Hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne, Tropical Storm Bonnie, and other natural disasters.

Within the total amount provided, $762,800,000 is provided to the operation and maintenance appropriations for cleanup and repair of storm damage. Of this amount, the conferees have provided $662,800,000 directly to the military services and the Defense Health Program to meet the most immediate and urgent needs.

The conferees recommend $100,000,000 for the Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide account, with transfer authority available to the Secretary of Defense to maximize the Department of Defense's capability to allocate funds in the proper amounts and accounts. The Secretary of Defense may transfer these funds to appropriations for military personnel; operation and maintenance; the Defense Health Program; and working capital funds. Fifteen days prior written notification to the congressional defense committees is required before making transfers.

The conferees have provided $140,000,000 in the Procurement, Defense-Wide account with the authority to transfer funds to other accounts. These funds may be transferred to appropriations for operation and maintenance; procurement; and research, development, test and evaluation. Fifteen days prior written notification to the congressional defense committees is required. The conferees have directed five transfers of funds from the Procurement, Defense-Wide account, to other procurement and research and development accounts, to support specific purposes related to recovery from hurricanes, tropical storms and other natural disasters.

CHAPTER 3 REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

The conferees direct the Secretary of Defense during fiscal year 2005 to submit to the congressional defense committees no later than December 1, 2004, a quarterly comprehensive report on the distribution of funds by account and the purposes for which the funds have been used. This report shall detail both actual and projected obligations of appropriations provided in this chapter.

PERSONNEL EVACUATION COSTS

The President requested $12,125,000 to cover costs associated with the evacuation of military dependents during the recent hurricanes. The conferees provide the flexibility to reimburse the Services for fiscal year 2004 military personnel costs from funds provided in Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide, in order to preclude an Anti-deficiency Act violation in the Military Personnel accounts.

DELAWARE AIR NATIONAL GUARD

The conferees are aware of recent storm damage to facilities and equipment at the Air National Guard Headquarters in New Castle, Delaware. The conferees are aware that estimates of damages are still being assessed, and have provided the flexibility from funds made available in Operation and Maintenance, Defense-Wide and Procurement, Defense-Wide to repair facilities and repair or replace aircraft damaged in the tornado.

M-4 RIFLE REQUIREMENTS FOR OIF AND OEF

The conferees strongly encourage the Department of Defense to address current wartime needs for M-4 rifles and direct the Army to provide a report to the congressional defense committees outlining the requirements for M-4 rifles with respect to future Operation Iraqi Freedom and Operation Enduring Freedom deployments. This report should be submitted no later than November 15, 2004.

XM-8 FAMILY OF WEAPONS

The conferees support the Army's plans to begin fielding the XM-8 as the eventual replacement for the M-16 and M-4 families of weapons. Accordingly, the conferees strongly encourage the Department of Defense to accelerate the fielding of the XM-8 family of weapons from funds provided in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for fiscal year 2005 (Public Law 108-287). The conferees direct the Army to provide a report to the congressional defense committees, not later than November 15, 2004, on plans to begin fielding the XM-8 family of weapons.

FORCE PROTECTION UPGRADES FOR EUROPEAN HOSPITALS

The conferees are aware of significant force protection and facility code requirements at Landstuhl Army Medical Center, Naval Hospital Sigonella and Naval Hospital Rota. The conferees recommend and encourage the Department of Defense to fund these urgent upgrades needed to continue providing quality patient protection.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THIS CHAPTER

The conferees include a new general provision which provides that appropriations provided in this chapter are available for obligation until September 30, 2005, unless otherwise so provided.

The conferees include a new general provision which provides that funds appropriated in this chapter, or made available by the transfer of funds in or pursuant to this chapter, for intelligence activities are deemed to be authorized for purposes of section 504 of the National Security Act of 1947.

The conferees include a new general provision which prohibits the use of funds provided in this chapter to finance programs or activities denied by Congress for fiscal years 2004 or 2005 and requires written notification prior to initiating new start programs.

The conferees include a new general provision which amends Section 8007 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2005 (Public Law 108-287), by striking the words "in session".

In the classified annex accompanying Public Law 108-287, the conferees provided certain guidance regarding Section 8090(b) of said Act. The conferees express their intent to further address the issues raised in that annex in subsequent fiscal year 2005 appropriations legislation.

The conferees include a new general provision which provides the Secretary of Defense with $200,000,000 in additional transfer authority, only for funds in this chapter, and only to meet hurricane and other natural disaster-related expenses.

The conferees include a new general provision which amends action 9010(b) of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for a citation change.

The conferees include a new general provision which makes certain technical adjustments, transfers funds, and adjusts restrictions in the Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 2005 (Public Law 108-287). The general provision increases the number of armored passenger vehicles that may be purchased under Other Procurement, Army from 1 to 21; increases the maximum allowable cost from $200,000 to $275,000; and provides that vehicles purchased in excess of one may only be in direct support of force protection requirements. Additionally, it directs the following transfers of funds.

To: "Research, Development, Test and Evaluation, Defense-Wide, 2005/2006", $5,950,000, only for the National Media Exploitation Center for improved data and media capture, transformation and categorization activities;

From: "Operation and Maintenance, Army", $5,950,000.

To: "Procurement, Marine Corps, 2005/2007", $7,000,000, only for purchasing additional force protection x-ray imaging units for deployment to the Iraqi theater of operations.

From: "Operation and Maintenance, Marine Corps", as provided in title IX of Public Law 108-287, $7,000,000.

To: The Department of Veterans Affairs, under the heading, "Medical Services", $500,000 only to allow White River Junction-Fort Ethan Allen Community Based Outpatient Clinic and the Vermont National Guard to purchase Veterans Administration health care services that provide Guardsmen and their family members the utmost in-patient care.

From: "Defense Health Program", Operation and Maintenance, $500,000, from an appropriation in House Report 108-622 for the same purposes.

To: "Operation and Maintenance, Army National Guard", $1,400,000, only for the Construction Transition Program, as described in House Report 108-283.

From: "Operation and Maintenance, Army", $1,400,000.

In addition, this provision amends Section 9014 of Public Law 108-287 to make clear the intent of the conferees this section's authority providing the Secretary of Defense with discretionary authority to present patriotic materials, including a United States flag, to military personnel who participate in Operation Enduring Freedom or Operation Iraqi Freedom.

The conferees include a new general provision which increases the authority provided in section 9007 of Public Law 108-287 for the Commanders' Emergency Response Program (CERP) from $300,000,000 to $500,000,000.

The conferees include a new general provision to make a technical adjustment to section 9006 of Public Law 108-287 to clarify a definition to include the Iraqi Armed Forces.

BILATERAL ECONOMIC ASSISTANCE

FUNDS APPROPRIATED TO THE PRESIDENT

UNITED STATES AGENCY FOR INTERNATIONAL DEVELOPMENT

INTERNATIONAL DISASTER AND FAMINE ASSISTANCE

The conference agreement appropriates $100,000,000 for necessary expenses to respond to the disasters caused by hurricanes and tropical storms in the Caribbean region. Language is included designating funding for emergency and overseas contingency operations.

The funds appropriated by this paragraph are made available notwithstanding section 10 of Public Law 91-672 and section 15 of the State Department Basic Authorities Act of 1956.

CHAPTER 6

DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY

UNITED STATES COAST GUARD

OPERATING EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $33,367,310 for expenses resulting from the recent natural disasters in the southeastern United States, such as Hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne. Funds are available until expended.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE

DISASTER RELIEF

The conferees agree to provide an additional $6,500,000,000 for disaster relief activities associated with declared disasters, such as Hurricanes Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne. Funds are available until expended.

The conferees direct the Emergency Preparedness and Response (EP&R) Directorate to work with Putnam County, Illinois, to ensure the costs for damage caused by the tornado of April 2004, which are not covered by insurance and eligible under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.), are promptly paid; to work with the City of Asheville, North Carolina, to ensure that the costs for damage caused by Hurricane Frances, which are eligible under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.), are promptly paid; and to provide the City of Paso Robles, California, with compensation sufficient to conduct the repairs and retrofitting necessary, as a result of the damage sustained in the 2003 San Simeon earthquake, to bring the Carnegie Library into compliance with current, rather than 1907, state and local building codes and access laws. Furthermore, the conferees agree with the cost estimates and findings in the June 28, 2004 report done by Lotus General Contractors, Inc., with regard to the damages sustained to the main building at Flanson Middle School in the City of Paso Robles, California, as a direct result of the 2003 San Simeon earthquake, and direct EP&R to use that information to calculate the compensation to be provided under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.) to the Paso Robles Joint Unified School District. The conferees also encourage EP&R to work to ensure that the counties of West Virginia receive such assistance as necessary and appropriate to compensate those homeowners and businesses in the federally declared disaster area impacted by the remnants of Hurricane Ivan.

The conferees note the availability of section 404 hazard mitigation grant funding for mitigation projects, including buy-outs of flood-damaged properties, for the states of Nebraska, North Carolina, Maryland, Delaware, and Indiana. The conferees direct EP&R to work with these states to ensure that the counties in those states, which are eligible under the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (42 U.S.C. 5121 et seq.), receive such assistance as necessary and appropriate to compensate homeowners and businesses in the federally declared disaster area. The conferees are also aware that specific communities in Florida have significant amounts of debris as a result of hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan and Jeanne. The Department of Homeland Security's Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) has authority under sections 206.223 and 206.224 of title 44, Code of Federal Regulations and internal guidance to make determinations as to the eligibility of removal of debris from private property. The conferees direct FEMA to use its authority to reimburse local governments for debris removal on privately-owned lands upon finding it is necessary to eliminate an immediate threat to life, public health and safety.

The conferees are aware that funding of activities related to previous federally declared disasters in fiscal years 2003 and 2004 has been temporarily suspended due to the high volume of new federal disasters declared in August and September. This includes disasters outside of the hurricane area and areas where there is a lack of rain. The supplemental appropriations provided are sufficient to not only meet recent disaster needs but also to fully restore funding for ongoing and new projects. The conferees direct EP&R to proceed as quickly as possible to fund all halted or postponed projects, within funds available, and to submit a comprehensive report on the status of any unfunded disaster relief project to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than February 15, 2005.

The Forest Service should notify the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations if the final storm assessments indicate that these funding levels need to be adjusted by more than twenty percent.

CHAPTER 8

DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND HUMAN SERVICES

DEPARTMENTAL MANAGEMENT PUBLIC HEALTH AND SOCIAL SERVICES EMERGENCY FUND

The conference agreement includes a supplemental appropriation of $50,000,000 for the Public Health and Social Services Emergency Fund. This additional amount is for hurricane response and relief to aging Americans, children, families, persons with disabilities, low-income individuals, and the communities in which they live. The conferees understand that uses include, but are not limited to, helping provide nutritional, medical, and social services to affected elderly individuals; providing social services support to communities most affected by Hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne; making available counseling services; helping offset the increase in un-reimbursed health care in affected communities; and addressing storm damage at community health centers in impacted areas.

The conferees request that the Secretary report to the Committees on Appropriations of the House of Representatives and the Senate on disbursement of these funds within 90 days of enactment of this Act. The report should include a table listing the governments and organizations that received grants or other direct assistance from these funds, showing the amount and purpose of each grant or other form of assistance. It should also include a description of any other uses of these funds, such as activities undertaken directly by the Department.

CHAPTER 9

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, NAVY AND MARINE CORPS

The conference agreement provides $138,800,000 for Military Construction, Navy and Marine Corps. These funds are for costs associated with the repair, restoration, or replacement of several facilities damaged or destroyed by Hurricane Ivan at the Pensacola Naval Air Station, Florida. The conference agreement recognizes that replacement of certain facilities may be more advantageous than repair or restoration, but the emergency funds provided are intended to meet capacity that existed before the hurricane, not to meet new requirements. In the event the Secretary of the Navy determines that replacement, rather than repair or restoration, of damaged facilities is warranted, the Secretary is required to provide notification to Congress fourteen days before funds are obligated for the replacement construction project.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION, ARMY RESERVE

The conference agreement provides $8,700,000 for Military Construction, Army Reserve. These funds are for costs associated with rebuilding a reserve center damaged by Hurricane Ivan in Pensacola, Florida.

FAMILY HOUSING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, ARMY

The conference agreement provides $1,200,000 for Family Housing Operation and Maintenance, Army. These funds are for costs associated with housing repairs at facilities damaged by natural disasters.

FAMILY HOUSING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, NAVY AND MARINE CORPS

The conference agreement provides $9,100,000 for Family Housing Operation and Maintenance, Navy and Marine Corps. These funds are for costs associated with housing repairs at facilities damaged by natural disasters.

FAMILY HOUSING OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE, AIR FORCE

The conference agreement provides $11,400,000 for Family Housing Operation and Maintenance, Air Force. These funds are for costs associated with housing repairs at facilities damaged by natural disasters.

BASE REALIGNMENT AND CLOSURE ACCOUNT

The conference agreement provides $50,000 to be deposited into the Department of Defense Base Closure Account 1990. These funds are for costs associated with the repair of a perimeter fence destroyed by Hurricane Ivan at Naval Activity Puerto Rico.

CHAPTER 10

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORTATION
FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION
FACILITIES AND EQUIPMENT
(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

The conferees provide $5,100,000 for FAA "Facilities and equipment", to address expenses resulting from hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne in the southeastern United States. The Administration requested the same amount under FAA "Operations". This funding is consistent with FAA's initial estimates of damage to radars, navigation and communications equipment, air traffic control towers, and other facilities. Funds are designated as an emergency requirement, to be derived from the airport and airway trust fund, and made available until expended.

EMERGENCY ASSISTANCE TO AIRPORTS
(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

The conferees provide $25,000,000 for FAA "Emergency assistance to airports", to reimburse public use airports for unanticipated capital expenses resulting from hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne in the southeastern United States. Funds are designated as an emergency requirement, to be derived from the airport and airway trust fund, and made available until expended. The distribution of these funds is at the discretion of the Administrator of the Federal Aviation Administration.

FEDERAL HIGHWAY ADMINISTRATION
FEDERAL AID HIGHWAYS EMERGENCY RELIEF
PROGRAM
(HIGHWAY TRUST FUND)

The conferees provide $1,202,000,000 to fund emergency expenses resulting from hurricanes Charley, Frances, Gaston, Ivan, and Jeanne, and other eligible activities authorized by 23 U.S.C. 125. Funds are to be derived from the highway trust fund and made available until expended.

The bill provides funding to respond to the backlog of emergency needs arising largely from natural disasters in 2004 and prior years. As requested, the conference agreement exempts expenses for projects related to hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne from the statutory cap of $100,000,000 per disaster, per state, because current estimates indicate that valid needs may exceed that cap. Consistent with the purpose of these funds, the entire amount has been designated as an emergency requirement pursuant to section 402 of S. Con. Res. 95.

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
UNANTICIPATED NEEDS

The conferees provide $70,000,000, as requested, for "Unanticipated Needs", to reimburse the American Red Cross for reimbursement of disaster relief and recovery expenses and emergency services associated with hurricanes Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne. The appropriation designates such expenses as an emergency requirement; stipulates that funds may be disbursed to any authorized federal agency; limits agency administrative costs to 3 percent; and requires the head of the U.S. Government Accountability Office to audit the use of such funds.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT FUND

The agreement provides $150,000,000 for disaster relief, long-term recovery, and mitigation in communities affected by disasters designated by the President between August 31, 2003 and October 1, 2004. The amount has been designated by the President as an emergency requirement.

In allocating these funds, the Department of Housing and Urban Development should work closely with the Federal Emergency Management Agency to ensure that these funds are used solely for disaster relief and are provided to areas facing the greatest need. The conferees direct HUD, prior to the allocation of funds, to provide the Committees on Appropriations with an explanation of the purpose for which funds are requested and how the activity or program was affected by the disaster. In addition, HUD is to continue to provide the Committees with quarterly reports on the use of CDBG funds provided for disaster relief.

Res. 649 (108th Congress) and applicable to the Senate by section 14007 of Public Law 108-287, funds appropriated in this Division are provided in response to a situation which poses a direct threat to life and property, is sudden, is an urgent and compelling need, is unpredictable, and is not permanent in nature.

CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 4837, MILITARY CONSTRUCTION AP-
PROPRIATIONS ACT, 2005

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order at any time to consider the conference report to accompany the bill (H.R. 4837) making appropriations for military construction, family housing, and base realignment and closure for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2005, and for other purposes; that all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration be waived, and that the conference report be considered as read.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the previous order of the House, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 4837) making appropriations for military construction, family housing, and base realignment and closure for the Department of Defense for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2005, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the conference report is considered read.

(For conference report and statement, see immediately prior proceedings of the House of today.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) each will control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material and that I may include tabular material on H.R. 4837.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I consider it a distinct honor to be here today to present H.R. 4837, the fiscal year 2005 Military Construction appropriations bill.

I am grateful to the conferees in both parties in both Houses for acting together in unison to produce an effective piece of legislation that I think we can all be proud of.

It is important to understand that this bill is not about lawmakers in Washington. H.R. 4837 is about people, specifically the soldiers, sailors, Marines, airmen and their families who serve this great country. We must never forget their selfless service. I firmly believe this bill reflects our commitment to their continued sacrifice.

First, I would like to thank the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) for his continued unwavering support. The gentleman truly understands the importance of this bill and has laid a solid foundation on how to construct this successful legislation. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) is a great advocate for our men and women in uniform, and his position is reflected in our final product.

I would also like to commend the ranking member, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), on the subcommittee who has been doing great work. We have worked together for some time now, and it is a pleasure to have an association with him. Both he and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), whom I also salute, give the committee, I think, some real leadership and some dedicated advice and counsel, and I sincerely value the advice and wisdom they have given me. They lend a great deal to military construction matters.

The 2005 Military Construction appropriations bill totals $10 billion and is in full compliance with the subcommittee's 302(b) allocation for both budget authority and outlays. It is both fiscally responsive and responsible, and it is focused on the quality-of-life needs of servicemembers and their families.

Some key funding highlights in this bill include $5.5 billion for military construction; $4.1 billion for family housing; $82 million for chemical demilitarization construction; $246 million for the base realignment and closures account. H.R. 4837 also includes funding for family housing privatization projects. Housing privatization is one of the most critical and successful programs to support military families in years. Few programs rival the effectiveness that privatization has demonstrated; yet Congress instituted a spending cap that placed this program in jeopardy.

Although we worked closely with the authorizers to address this issue earlier this year, the subcommittee was not able to remove the cap through the appropriations process. However, I am proud to say because of the work of so many people that we now have authorization language to eliminate the cap altogether, paving the way to quality housing for military families for years to come. This was the right decision, and it was made for the right reasons; and I believe I can speak for all conferees when I say that we will continue to support family housing privatization initiatives in the future.

In conclusion, this year's Military Construction appropriations bill continues to focus on our country's greatest treasure, that is, the servicemembers and their families who serve our Nation.

By supporting this bill today, you are supporting our men and women in uniform.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Military Construction appropriations bill because it provides vital funding for military housing and training facilities. Also in this bill is much-needed $11 billion in emergency funding for hurricane relief for hard hit families, businesses, farmers, and military installations in the southeastern United States and $2.8 billion in drought relief for farmers throughout the country.

Since others will speak on the hurricane and agriculture relief portions of this bill, I would like, Mr. Speaker, to focus my comments on the underlying Military Construction appropriations. First, I want to commend the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) for his dedicated leadership on behalf of our military troops and families. He always puts the interests of our military above all other interests, and for that he has my deepest personal respect.

I also want to commend the outstanding committee staff led by Carol Murphy, Rob Nabors, Tom Forhan, and my legislative director John Conger. Their work was professional, thorough and fair. And while these dedicated staff seldom receive public recognition, which they deserve, the truth is they have made a positive difference in the lives of our servicemen and -women and their families.

Our best wishes go out to our Democratic committee staffer Tom Forhan who is recuperating from shoulder surgery. We wish him well and thank him for his many years of service to our military.

I am especially proud of the leadership efforts made by members of this committee to pressure this Congress into not leaving home until we had lifted the cap on the public/private military housing program. This innovative program, started during the previous administration and moved forward under this administration, it is providing better housing to tens of thousands of military families while saving American taxpayers billions of dollars. New housing that would have taken 50 years to build under the old system is now being built in 5 years, leveraging the strength and resources of the public and private sectors.

I will never forget at Fort Hood several years ago visiting one of the newest homes under this program and meeting the sergeant and his wife who served our country so nobly for so many years. In talking to the wife she said, it is not only that this is a home I can be so very proud of to raise our children in, but this home is, as my husband is serving his country around the world, this home says to me and my children that our country has not forgotten the sacrifices we too have made on behalf of our Nation.

That is the importance of this program. It is not only about new housing, better housing that is so well deserved by our military families. It is about respect for those families. Unfortunately, this program would have come to a halt this month or next had Congress not lifted the arbitrary and unnecessary cap on it.

This committee made it clear that we would leave no stone unturned until the cap was lifted because it would have been a terrible disservice to our military families to freeze this vital military housing improvement program during a time of war. With the cap being lifted in the Defense authorization bill as a result of pressure placed by this committees, tens of thousands of military families will now have modern housing they can also be proud to call their home. And that happened because of the special efforts of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG); the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the full Committee on Appropriations; the ranking member of the full committee, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY); the gentleman from California (Mr. HUNTER); the gentleman from Missouri (Mr. SKELTON); and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. DICKS). They all deserve our thanks and gratitude for not letting military families be forgotten.

Mr. Speaker, there are numerous high-priority projects in this bill at U.S. military installations here, at home, and throughout the world. I think this committee did an outstanding job on a bipartisan basis of taking limited resources and placing them in the highest priority areas.

I would be remiss, though, if I did not mention one major disappointment about this bill. I think it is sad that a year and a half after the beginning of the Iraqi war, with all the sacrifices being made for our servicemen and -women and their families, this Military Construction bill funds these vital housing and training facilities and day care facilities at a level that is $500 million below what we funded 2 years ago before the Iraqi war began. I simply do not understand a Congress that 2 days ago could find offsets to pay for over $130 billion in tax cuts for corporations and for fishing tackle box manufacturers, a tax cut bill that had a lot of good in it and one that I supported, but I do not understand a Congress that can so easily find offsets to pay for that kind of tax cut for corporations and fishing tackle box manufacturers, cannot find offsets to see that we do not cut real funding for military construction projects during a time of war.

This Congress, the next Congress needs to set its priorities straight; and especially as we fight the war on terrorism, we should not be shortchanging the total funding budget for quality-of-life programs for our military while we can easily pass 100, 200, $300 billion tax cuts for corporations and others that are not making nearly the sacrifices that are being made by our servicemen and -women.

Nevertheless, that funding level was not decided by this subcommittee. That was made at a different pay grade in this Congress. Given the limited resources in this subcommittee's jurisdiction, I think it did the best job it could. It did an excellent job of seeing that high-priority programs were funded, and for that reason I support this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I just wanted to make sure that we did not omit thanks to the staff on both sides who have done tremendous work over the past several months, and I want to list those now. Obviously, Carol Murphy on the majority side and Tom Forhan on the minority side. Tom was in the hospital this week, so he could not be here, but they have been great to work with all year. In addition, let me salute Walter Hearne, Mary Arnold, Eric Elsmo, Jeff Onizuk on my staff, Bernard Chau on my staff, and of course I thank John Conger who has also been a part of this process. So to all of them, thank you very, very much.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS), who obviously has some comments to make.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time, and congratulate him on a wonderful performance on this bill, as well as the ranking member.

I wanted to take just a few seconds here to praise the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the full committee chairman, for the grueling work that he has done to bring to this floor aid for Florida but also the other States who suffered damage from the recent hurricanes.

As late as at least two o'clock this morning, the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) was on the telephone, in the office, with the staff, running from room to room, to make this happen. This was a grueling experience, and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) was a part of that effort, as well as many others, but I just wanted to say thank you to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) for caring for his people.

Now, he legislates for the Nation, and he is the chairman for the full Committee on Appropriations for the whole Nation, but his State was ravaged by these four unprecedented hurricanes, with people living in tents, without electricity and in dire straits, and he cared for his people enough to work around the clock to make this happen. I just wanted to take a second to say thank you to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG).

Mr. KNOLLENBERG. Mr. Speaker, I think that it is very appropriate that we do pay tribute to the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG).

Mr. Speaker, I yield the balance of my time to the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) and ask unanimous consent that he be allowed to yield time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Michigan?

There was no objection.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I might consume.

I certainly would have had liked to have had more time to yield to the gentleman from Kentucky (Chairman ROGERS). I sort of like what he was saying, but I think there are many people who deserve more credit than I on this issue of getting our job done. I appreciate the comments of the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS) and also the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), the chairman of the subcommittee.

They have done an outstanding job. They have produced a Military Construction bill that is really good, especially for the people who serve in our military, and for their quality of life and housing. They have just done an outstanding job, and I cannot say enough good words about the work that they have done.

But I am going to talk about the other part of this bill, and I thank them for allowing the full committee to piggyback on their subcommittee work to include the Hurricane Supplemental Relief Act. I am not going to take a lot of our time. We have discussed this supplemental bill so many times, not only here on the floor and in committee, but in person, in meetings, and on telephone calls.

Just briefly, let me say that last Wednesday when we passed the hurricane supplemental, I had two bills introduced in the House, H.R. 5212, which is the one that we passed, and H.R. 5227, which I had stated was a much better bill. H.R. 5212, as I also said, was a very good bill as far as it went, but it did not go far enough. H.R. 5227 was better. Well, what we are considering today is very, very close to H.R. 5227, which is the better bill, and we are excited about the quality of the legislation and what it does for the people of the State of Florida.

Again, as I have done in the past, I want to compliment all of our leadership who have worked hard to help us make this happen. There were a lot of obstacles to get to where we are today. I have to tell my colleagues, for those that have been to conference and had difficulties, they know what I mean, but for those who have not, just let me say that was not easy. It was a big challenge.

The gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), who oftentimes we have disagreements on the floor on issues procedurally, has been totally cooperative. He has helped us move these bills along, and I want to thank the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) considerably for everything that he has had to endure as we were preparing this legislation.

I want to thank our leadership on both sides of the aisle and in the other body for trying to help smooth the way to get this bill to where it is today, and they have all helped. There were a lot of obstacles as I have said. They all helped.

I want to recognize the Members of the committee, especially the ones from Florida, many of whose districts suffered many of the damages. This delegation of ours, and we have a split delegation, Republican and Democrat, came together to help the people of our State who experienced such tragedy from these four major hurricanes.

I mentioned the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD), he and I went to Florida together and looked at some of the damage from Hurricane Ivan. I went to Florida with the President to view some of the damages with him, and I live in Florida, so I was in Florida during several of these hurricanes. I had to evacuate at one point, which I did, and evacuated almost into the path of the storm. It has been quite an experience.

The President of the United States made a firm commitment to those of us in Florida and neighboring States that were affected seriously by the hurricanes. We negotiated for a week to get the bill we are presenting today. The President of the United States made a promise to the people of Florida. He has kept that promise. He has kept his commitment. This legislation is proof positive that what President Bush promised, he delivered.

I want to say also that the Governor of Florida, Jeb Bush, is almost a Superman in the way that he managed the response to these hurricanes, working not only with Federal officials, but also working with State officials, county officials, city officials, voluntary organizations like the Red Cross, the Salvation Army and so many others; Governor Bush managed this effort and did such a tremendous job.

I want to thank the Florida National Guard under the leadership of General Barnett. The Florida National Guard responded with a fantastic response, and I visited with many of the Guardsmen, as did the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. MILLER). We visited quite a few of the Guardsmen that were working on the recovery and protecting property, and stopping looters. Florida National Guard did an outstanding job.

Our first responders, our police, our firefighters, all did such a tremendous job, and I wish we had a lot more time to pay tribute to all of the people who helped, but especially my delegation, the people that I work with on a daily basis. Both sides of the aisle worked hard. They were committed. They were dedicated, and together, we made sure that this relief package came together today.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time at this point if there are other speakers on the other side.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD), who is a member of the Subcommittee on Military Construction of the Committee on Appropriations, and played a key role not only on the military provisions of this bill but as a representative of the people from Florida and worked very hard on a bipartisan basis on the Florida hurricane relief.

Mr. BOYD. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank my friend, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), for yielding me the time.

I want to start by thanking the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), our chairman, and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), our ranking member, for their work to get to this point. They truly worked in a bipartisan way. There are two components to this bill that we have before us on the floor, Mr. Speaker, and that is, the MILCON portion and also the hurricane supplemental portion. We have heard about both of them, but I just want to make a few brief comments.

First of all, on the MILCON side, the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) did the very best they could with the dollars given them, but my colleagues must know that the dollars are short. Many of the items that the President sent down for the MILCON request are not included in this bill simply because the House leadership did not set aside enough money to fulfill those requests made by the President to prosecute the war.

I must tell my colleagues that there is one item in here, though, that the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) did bring in for a landing, and that is, the housing issue, to privatize the housing cap. I think all of this Nation, and particularly the troops and their families, owe a debt of gratitude to the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) and especially the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) who has bulldogged this issue for so many years now. He has done an absolutely fantastic job.

We heard our chairman, the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) speak on the hurricane side, the hurricane relief. I want to thank the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG), Mr. Speaker, if I could, for the work that he has done. As everybody knows, the request that came down from the White House was insufficient. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) made a commitment to his people that he would get the money, and President Bush has provided it, but he has only provided it at the insistence of the gentleman from Florida (Mr.

YOUNG) who would not quit until he got what he needed.

We needed that money because our beaches were destroyed. The gentleman from Florida (Mr. MILLER) and I and our people lived through those hurricanes. Most of our people lived through them. We had some people who did not live through them. I had six constituents that died in Hurricane Ivan, Mr. Speaker, and this money was much needed to repair our beaches, to repair the transportation systems that were busted.

We have all seen the pictures of I-10, to repair the military facilities. The naval air station in Pensacola had significant damage. So it is imperative that we did this, and we owe a debt of gratitude to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) for getting it here.

I must tell my colleagues, Mr. Speaker, though, that it has been held up because of several issues, but one of those issues was the offset which was going to be required for some of the agricultural funding. Mr. Speaker, that issue has been resolved with a smoke-and-mirrors game as the public will begin to understand as we go on. It is offset by directed scoring, and it is also offset sometime in the future, as many as 10 years out into the future, and it is offset in the farm bill, and we will write a new farm bill before we even get the full offset.

Again, let me close, Mr. Speaker, by thanking again the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) but also the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) for bringing this in for a landing.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. WELDON), from Florida's space center.

Mr. WELDON of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time, and I want to commend the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) for the outstanding work he did on this bill.

I also want to commend the President. The initial submission the President had, there was not enough funds in there to take care of all the beaches that had been damaged in the State, and I forwarded the data to them, and I showed them the extent of the damage. The President's staff recognized that we obviously had a greater need, and they were willing to come along with the chairman.

I think the system worked very, very well. I think the President and his people were very eager to make sure the people in Florida got what they needed, and it is going to take a while for us to recover from this hurricane, but these funds that the chairman has secured and everybody in this body and the other body and the President worked hard on is going to help get Florida back on track and all the other States that were damaged.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Texas

(Mr. STENHOLM) who is so widely respected on a bipartisan basis in this Congress on agriculture.

Mr. STENHOLM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me time.

Mr. Speaker, first, I want to commend the gentleman from Michigan (Chairman KNOLLENBERG) and the gentleman from Texas (Ranking Member EDWARDS) for the work they did on the base bill that we are talking about today, from the standpoint of Dyess Air Force Base in my district, and fire crash station being funded, a refueling vehicle maintenance shop, and then in Goodfellow and at Dyess, the 127 housing units which are extremely important to the troops back home. We appreciate taking care of those needs.

I want to concentrate the remainder of my remarks, though, on the disappointment that I share in the manner in which the leadership of this House has chosen to deal with the emergency funding.

Again, I point out I am for everything that Florida is receiving. They deserve every penny of it. I share the frustrations of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD) in that, seemingly, the leadership of this body, not the chairman of the committee, but the leadership of this body has chosen to do things a little bit differently.

I particularly am sorry to see that the bipartisan legislative process that worked so well between Larry Combest and I on the Committee on Agriculture has been sacrificed for craven political considerations. I think it is highly regrettable the President chose to help Florida producers only, and then the leadership of this body made sure that that was to be the way that we would proceed with this legislation.

We are reopening the farm bill. And I understand the gimmicks that are being used and all today, but those of us that have been around a little while know that when you do some of the things that have been done in this body over the last few days, there will be another year and it will not be good for agriculture in America. Just a reminder. In the early morning hours of this past Wednesday, the leadership of this House told our Nation's producers to forget about assistance for drought. They made it clear there would be no assistance for crops lost to devastating weather. By 10 a.m., however, they finally understood the message that should have been evident long before. As a result, we have a drought assistance package today and we are extending a helping hand to farmers and ranchers outside of Florida.

But make no mistake about it, we are also cutting the farm bill. If the 17 Members on the other side of the aisle, who had been original cosponsors of the good policy, had stayed with their conscience and not bent to the political will of their leadership, we would have had a victory for American agriculture, a victory for the process that is so important to this House that the chairman of the full committee has expressed his own frustrations about. But the leadership of this House had another agenda, and it turned the screws and singled out agriculture.

There are no offsets in this bill for the aid that will go to Florida, but there are offsets of aid that will go to farmers and ranchers in other parts of the country. The message to this House is clear: the folks who provide the Nation's food and fiber who happen to live outside of politically important Florida are in a separate and lower class.

Mr. Speaker, those of us who worked on the 2002 farm bill and those in the agriculture communities know how important it was to build a consensus. We developed a consensus policy that meets the needs of farmers and ranchers, that preserves natural resources and ensures the provision of food for those in need. While we need the drought aid in this package, and I support this package, the cut that will ultimately be made in farm conservation will have dire consequences for the future of this consensus.

Mr. Speaker, it did not have to be this way. We did not have to be here on Saturday afternoon doing what the chairman and the ranking member and this committee have had to do. We did not have to do it this way. But this is another perfectly live, living example of the lack of leadership in this body to allow this House to work its will based on what the Members of this House want done, and not what a small group in a leadership room somewhere in the House determine should be done, and usually for political purposes, not in the best interest of our country.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. FOLEY), a gentleman who played host to at least three hurricanes in his district, and he might have had all four of them. His district suffered a lot of the damage.

Mr. FOLEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman very much for yielding me this time, and Florida cannot thank him enough for his hard work and dedication to our State. On military issues, or just name the range of issues that are covered for this country, and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) has been and is such a great patriot and a wonderful man and we thank him.

There has been a lot of conversation on the floor that they did not do enough, they did not add enough, they did not provide enough, whatever. You know what, people lost their lives in Florida. Some have lost everything they own. So what I would like to do is be thankful, thankful to all the people in this process that have done so much for our State.

My colleague, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD), and others have worked so hard. It is not about politics. The storms are not political. Neither Republicans or Democrats ordered storms to hit Florida. People are suffering now, yet we still get a little backbiting in the room. So I would just like to thank so many people. The President, the Governor, Senator GRAHAM, Senator NELSON. And I know I am not supposed to mention the other body by name, so I retreat from that; but I would at least like to say in a bipartisan fashion that we have worked hard for the people of Florida taking care of our agricultural interests, taking care of our beaches and FEMA, the Red Cross.

Mr. Speaker, I can go on and on with the litany of people that have worked hard. The National Guard was mentioned. They have been down there in 95 and almost 100 degree heat and humidity handing out water and ice and providing MREs and things so people could just have a decent meal.

Storms have a way of bringing people together. Crises have a way of bringing people together. My proudest moment in this House, having served here for 10 years, was after September 11, when both sides of the aisle decided America needed to come first. And in these storms we find oftentimes that is the same integrity that is brought to this magnificent body.

So I want to thank all the people in both Chambers, both sides of the aisle, and recognize, on behalf of Floridians, who are watching us today, who are more interested in putting their lives back together and not necessarily who gets credit. There will be plenty of credit to go around. There will be plenty of opportunities to hand out the laurels and to receive the hardy handshakes to each and every one of us. But for the moment, the people working the hardest are in this room, the two Members who have allowed MilCon to proceed in order with this hurricane relief: the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG).

So while I want to once again thank everyone involved, I especially want to thank these two gentlemen again for their splendid cooperation and integrity. And though we do have fights on policy from time to time, when it is important for the Nation, when it is important for our families, when it is important for our fighting forces, uniquely we come together behind this Flag recognizing our responsibilities are not to our political parties or to our leaders, but they are to our constituents who sent us here.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Washington State (Mr. DICKS), who is a member of the subcommittee and who fought so hard for military family housing.

Mr. DICKS. Mr. Speaker, I thank our ranking Democrat member on the Subcommittee on Military Construction for yielding me this time. I want to congratulate him and the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) for working together in a very spirited effort here to protect and take the cap off the residential construction initiative.

Mr. Speaker, I enjoyed working with the gentleman from Texas a few years ago when we both were working to help our areas at Fort Hood in Texas and Fort Lewis at Tacoma, Washington, start these projects, these residential construction initiatives. I think both of us saw in our own areas just how important these projects could be, how much faster we could get new housing and restore old housing.

To me, this is one of the finest programs that we have ever worked on. It has been worked on in a very bipartisan basis. When the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. HOBSON) was the chairman of the subcommittee, he had great experience and looked into these projects in great detail. So I want to commend everyone here.

I also would like to say regarding my friend, the gentleman from Florida, (Mr. YOUNG), our chairman, what a great job he has done for the people of Florida in this bill. He has worked effectively with everyone. I know how difficult it is to put these things together.

I can remember back in 1980, when we lost 57 people in Washington State when Mt. St. Helens blew up and my former mentor, Senator Magnuson, was chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, we had to get help for our constituents in our State; and I am glad we all came together in support of this effort.

The gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) has been a great chairman of our Committee on Appropriations. I have enjoyed working with him over the years he has been the chairman. I know he is proud of being able to put this bill together in the final days of this Congress and the final days of his chairmanship. So congratulation to him.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I had mentioned the names of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), chairman of our subcommittee and his ranking member, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), and I mentioned my friend, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), ranking member on the full Committee on Appropriations. But the gentleman who just left the well, I would like our colleagues to know, there have been many critical points as we have tried to get this legislation to closure. Last night, we had a number of those critical points and the gentleman from Washington (Mr. DICKS), who just left the well, at one point offered very important help, and I just appreciate the fact that he did. He can claim a lot of responsibility for the fact we are here today.

Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS), chairman of the Subcommittee on Defense on our Committee on Appropriations.

And when I talk about having critical moments last night, it was early this morning, at around 2 a.m., that JERRY and I talked, because we had another very critical problem, an obstacle that had to be overcome. I told him the problem, and he offered a solution. He provided very important help this morning in the conference, and that help was very obvious.

Mr. LEWIS of California. Mr. Speaker, I have little doubt that the people of Florida know just how significant the work that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) has been about all this night on behalf of all of them. To have the chairman of this committee be that responsive at such a critical moment is evidence of the lifelong work of this wonderful man on behalf of his State in this House.

The gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG) and I have had a chance to work with him for all these years on the Committee on Appropriations. It has indeed been a pleasure. I have told anybody who would but listen that the one quality of the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) that I would hope one day to acquire involves his almost incredible patience, his patience in dealing with us especially in times of crises.

At a moment like this, as this very important base measure goes forward, to have him effectively put together the sort of response that we need to have in times of crises for the people of our country is reflective of his leadership. I know that most who have watched his work know just how effective he can be. But at this moment all the people of Florida are aware of that, and he will be here for as long as he wants to be here to continue with that service.

It is our privilege to work with him, and it was my great pleasure to spend a little time with him early this morning trying to deal with a few little difficulties last night. I congratulate our chairman on a job well done.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 10 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking Democrat on the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, in the main, I have no real objections to almost all of the provisions in this bill. I would note with respect to the drought aid for farmers and the disaster relief for States, those two items were like the tail on the dog. Originally they were attached to one appropriation bill, and now they have come back here today and the tail is attached to a different dog. I would like to make a few comments about that, because I do not think much of the process that has been followed.

This drought and disaster package was originally going to be folded into the Homeland Security appropriations bill.

The minority had doubts about that. We had preferred to have that package handled separately so that Homeland Security could be handled separately without any attendant baubles and bells and whistles being attached. But in the interest of time, the majority decided it would be better to fold it into another bill, and we cooperated in that process.

But then some very strange things happened. First of all, an offset was adopted. After much objection being raised by the conservative members of the majority party caucus, a "let's pretend" offset to the drought aid cost was attached to this bill, and that offset does not really offset the money in this bill until 2014. So it is a very interesting "let's pretend" operation.

The gentleman from Florida tried to handle that in a straightforward way, but people who thought they knew better insisted that they go through this Rube Goldberg approach, so we have a "let's pretend" budget savings item in this bill.

There is another problem, because when the decision was made to, as the gentleman from Texas (Mr. STENHOLM) indicated, essentially amend the farm bill in dealing with these issues, then that raised other concerns on the part of other farmers around the country. Because of that, Senator KOHL from my own State had been asking that the problems of dairy farmers be dealt with by extending the milk income support program. The Senate adopted that amendment in conference and presented it to the House conferees. We had the votes for that provision on the House side of the conference, but rather than allow us to have a vote on the issue, the chairman gaveled the conference to a close.

We then saw a Kabuki dance engaged in by the President and various Members of this House. The same day that that conference was being considered, the President said in a speech in my hometown, Wausau, Wisconsin, that he was in support of the content of the Kohl amendment to extend the milk program. Given that fact, the conference had every right to expect that the White House would be supporting what we were trying to do. But when we called down to the White House to ask whether or not they would be sending a letter in support of the amendment that had been presented to us by the Senate, the White House indicated that no support would be forthcoming, no letter would be forthcoming. Nonetheless, we tried to work with the majority, and late Thursday night, I was asked to sign a conference report based on the understanding that certain items would be in the bill and certain items would not be.

One of the items that was supposed to be in that bill was this provision, since we had the votes for it on both sides of the conference. And I signed the conference report.

The next morning when I returned to the Hill, we saw that a different judgment had been reached by the House leadership, and we were told that the Speaker and the majority whip said,

"No way. That provision is not going to be included in this bill."

What we have had, in my view, is the President talking one way in Wisconsin on this subject and his principal political allies are, at the same time, deep-sixing our efforts to try to pass what the President said he supported. When we asked the White House for some help to deal with it, they respectfully said "no."

So now we have a situation in which agriculture, as a sector in the budget, will suffer a long-term problem, because when this program expires, it means that the entire agriculture baseline budget will be $800 million less than it would otherwise be, and that will substantially disadvantage every farm group when the next farm bill is written.

I rise today not to talk about the fact that that individual program is not in this bill, because that really is less important than what this process has done to the House.

What we have seen is this: We remember when the majority leadership held a rollcall open for 3 hours because they did not get the results they wanted on the Medicare bill. They lost the vote so they simply kept the rollcall open until the House reversed its position.

What we saw in this case is, when it was apparent that we had the votes (because we had the support of two members of the Republican Party in this House), when it was seen that we did have the votes for that provision, the conference was simply adjourned and, lo and behold, the subject was then moved to another conference committee, and there we had a situation in which we did not have the votes in that subcommittee.

What that means is, what the leadership has decided is that there is going to be a new way of operating around here. If you go into a committee and you lose a vote, it doesn't matter, you just move the subject to another committee and have the vote in another committee.

It just seems to me that this is a fundamental corruption of the democratic process. It is a fundamental corruption of the legislative process. What it means is that no committee need bother to reach any judgments on anything because if the leadership does not like it, or if the White House does not like it, they will simply reverse the decision regardless of the votes in the committees.

What has happened in my view is that this House has become a wholly owned subsidiary of the White House. What has happened is that this Capitol is really the East Wing of the White House. That is what it has become. No checks, no balances, no separate exercise of judgment or power. I would say that that is the most fundamental corruption of all that can occur in a legislative body.

Mr. Speaker, I wanted to make those points to simply point out my concerns for the way this institution is being run.

I also want to express regret that despite the President's words on the dairy problem when he was in dairy country, it is apparent that the White House had no intention of following through on those words, and I regret that, too. In spite of that, I will vote for this bill because it meets legitimate needs of the country, and I think we have no choice but to do it.

But this is a sorry way to do business. I know the gentleman from Florida is not responsible, but the leadership of this House is, and sooner or later we need to ask whether regular procedures will be returned to the floor of this House and whether or not democracy will once again be honored in this House.

We are trying to impress the people of Iraq that they should have a democratic process. At the same time we see the legislative process, which is supposed to be the defining measure of any democracy, profoundly corrupted by these procedural high jinks, and it does no great credit to the House to allow that to happen.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE SPEAKER PRO TEMPORE

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). The Chair will note that during debate on this bill there have been several improper references to the other body. The Chair must remind all Members that under the rules and precedents of the House, it is not in order to cast reflections on the Senate or its Members, individually or collectively.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 3 minutes to the very distinguished gentleman from Florida (Mr. SHAW). I do know that the gentleman from Florida lived through at least two hurricanes in his own home battered by the storms.

Mr. SHAW. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Wisconsin just delivered a speech of several minutes expressing frustration as to how the House is run. I want to stand today to express appreciation for the expeditious way in which the House, with the full cooperation of the minority and the majority, has brought help to those who are suffering in the States of Florida, Georgia, Alabama and all through the terrible path that these hurricanes have taken. Too seldom do Members in this body get up to say thank you, but on behalf of the residents of Florida and all of those who have been made homeless or have lost substantial property due to the hurricane, I want to express my appreciation for the expeditious way in which this matter has been brought through the House of Representatives.

I especially want to point out and thank my chairman, Congressman BILL YOUNG, whose hand has worked this through in such a marvelous way and the gentleman from Wisconsin, who has given his complete cooperation to the gentleman from Florida in order to see that relief is delivered. It does show the compassion of all of the Members on both sides of the aisle for those who suffer.

On behalf of the people of the State of Florida, thank you.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from California (Mr. FARR), the second ranking member of the Subcommittee on Military Construction.

Mr. FARR. I thank the gentleman from Texas for yielding me this time.

Mr. Speaker, I want to acknowledge that the underlying bill here, the Military Construction Appropriations bill, is really a tremendous improvement for the troops in America. I would like to acknowledge that if it was not for the terrific work of the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) on our side and the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) on the other side, this bill would not be before my colleagues, doing, I think, one of the greatest things we have ever done in Congress, and that is to help the troops with housing.

We had the pleasure of interviewing before the committee, the testifying of soldiers and their spouses. When the question was asked, what is the one thing the Congress can do to help the military most of all, the unanimous response—unanimous—was provide housing. In this bill we provide housing and really quality housing.

In my district, 2,000 homes are being built by the military alongside homes that are selling for $1 million. These houses will be rented to men and women in uniform at affordable prices considerably below what the market is. We have gone on with other work of being able to create through the RCI an LLC so that we can build housing for civilian employees of the military who are mission critical. In areas where housing prices are going out of market, out of reach, this type of program is absolutely essential to maintain the military mission in the United States.

I want to thank the leaders, but especially I want to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), because he is the one that has been championing this more than anybody. He has been dogged about being able to make sure that we can continue building this type of housing wherever it is needed in the United States. For that effort and for his single stick-to-it-iveness on this, we need to give him a great deal of accolades and appreciation from all of us on both sides of the aisle.

Lastly, I would just like to say that I do not know if this is the last appropriations bill we are going to be adopting in Congress, but I would like to thank personally the leadership of the gentleman from Florida who has provided an incredible leadership in the committee to be fair to everyone. We will greatly miss him.

Thank you for your service, Mr. YOUNG.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the distinguished gentlewoman from Florida (Ms. HARRIS), who also experienced the wrath of several hurricanes.

Ms. HARRIS. Mr. Speaker, during the last month and a half, the worst of circumstances have summoned the best of humanity. Responding to the unprecedented devastation of four hurricanes, the people of Florida have shown enormous courage, resilience and fortitude. That is why the expedited process on the conference report for disaster relief is so imperative this morning.

The agriculture industry in central Florida has been devastated. The $2.9 billion in emergency assistance for agriculture producers experiencing crop loss caused by natural disasters is desperately needed. Small businesses in our communities are being significantly impacted by physical damage, by inventory loss and by the lack of impetus to spend. The $929 million in SBA disaster relief loans will help to leverage $5.5 billion in low-interest loans to individuals and businesses.

Rural housing, farm worker housing, waterways, watersheds and community facilities have been torn apart by hurricane damage. The $608 million in agricultural and rural assistance are central components to rebuilding these wonderful communities. In my district, Venice Beach lost 15 feet of sand, threatening municipal properties as well as homes, so the $362 million for the Army Corps of Engineers to address these projects is essential. This disaster package will contribute to the promises made by President Bush to the people of Florida.

I thank the President for his immediate and consistent attention to the needs of Florida families and, in particular, Chairman YOUNG for his extraordinary and continued leadership. As well, I cannot begin to express the gratitude I feel for the professionalism, compassion and dedication of the men and women who have given of their time to help Floridians begin the arduous process of rebuilding their lives.

The rebuilding will take time, but together, we will rebuild a strong and more vibrant State.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 1 minute.

Mr. Speaker, I know we have an omnibus appropriations bill to pass in the lame duck session after the elections, but this could possibly be the gentleman from Florida's (Chairman YOUNG's) last subcommittee bill to oversee as chairman of the full committee. And I just want to take a moment to thank the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) for his tremendous dedicated, thorough, professional, and fair-minded leadership on all of the issues under the jurisdiction of the Committee on Appropriations. And I want to pay a special tribute to his better half. Beverly Young, the gentleman from Florida's (Chairman YOUNG) wife, is the Mother Teresa of America's military families. Day after day, week after week, month after month, year after year, she is out at our military hospitals visiting wounded soldiers and their families. And through her example, she has reminded every Member of this House the importance of always putting the interest of our military families first.

So I want to salute the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) for his leadership in the Committee on Appropriations and overseeing the interests of our Nation and, in particular, the special needs of our servicemen and women and their families and thank Mrs. Young for the example she has set for all of us in this House.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself 30 seconds.

I want to thank the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) for his response. And he is right. My wife is a real angel and commits a large portion of her time to helping soldiers and especially the wounded soldiers, and their families. Her commitment to the quality of life of our military is really special, and it gives me a really great feeling to know the extent that she is involved, and I appreciate the gentleman's calling that to the attention of our colleagues.

I do not want to overlook the fact, as we are talking about hurricane relief, that the underlying bill is an excellent military construction bill that the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) and the gentleman from Michigan (Chairman KNOLLENBERG) have presented.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. PUTNAM), another Floridian who has hosted hurricanes.

Mr. PUTNAM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me this time.

I want to just rise and join any colleagues from Florida and the rest of the Congress in expressing my profound appreciation for the assistance that is on its way to a number of States but particularly Florida. Words are inadequate to describe the deep sense of loss that people have at looking at the devastation when they have a foot of sand in their home or an entire roof missing. But words are also inadequate to describe the profound sense of relief that comes when FEMA and State and local officials are there in a proactive way to provide tarps, to provide water, to provide batteries, to provide hot food; and it is a community effort.

But at the end of the day that community effort is made possible to a great degree in terms of resources by this Federal Government. So the bipartisan effort on the part of dozens and dozens of Members to help those drought-stricken in the Midwest and far West and those Floridians and Alabamans and Georgians and Carolinians who will pass on for generations the stories about Charley, Frances, Ivan, and Jeanne, our heart goes out to them, and we just express that deep sense of appreciation to the hard-working men and women of the government who have been there making that relief happen and the appreciation to our fellow man, to our neighbors, to the American spirit that made the water and ice lines possible, that brought in truckloads of relief from churches and faith groups from all over the country to help their fellow man whom they had never met before. And it is just part of that great community spirit and that sense of what is the strength of America, Mr. Speaker.

But at the end of the day, working out the details is always difficult in a government this large, and we want to certainly tip our hat to the efforts that the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) has put into this. It is a debt of gratitude that we owe that we can never repay and all Floridians and all Americans are certainly grateful for the service he has performed for this Nation.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Mr. Speaker, again, I want to thank the gentleman from Michigan (Chairman KNOLLENBERG) for his leadership on the underlying military construction bill. He did an outstanding job along with his excellent staff. I want to salute the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG) and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) and others who worked so hard, the gentleman from Florida (Mr. BOYD), who worked so hard on a bipartisan basis to provide much-needed, deserved relief to the people of the southeastern United States, to Florida and other States.

I would like to finish with one note. I hope when we meet again next year to provide funding for military construction for our military families' housing and training ranges to help protect our troops, help them win battles and wars and come home safely to the hugs of their loved ones that we will not for the second year or third year in a row fund less for quality of life and military housing and training programs, construction programs, than we had funded before the Iraqi war began. A Congress that can afford trillion dollar tax cuts, a Congress that can pass $137 billion predominately corporate tax cut bill just 2 days ago, less than 48 hours ago, certainly can afford not to short-change the funding that we commit to what should be a top priority, and that is quality of life for our military families.

I am proud of the work this committee did to stretch limited dollars, spend them wisely, efficiently, fairly on the highest-priority programs. But next year, we should not have to say, for the third year in a row, despite all the sacrifices of our military families and the war in Afghanistan and the war in Iraq, we are committing less total funding for them to military construction, much of which goes to quality-of-life programs, than we did before the sacrifices were asked of them in fighting these wars.

So I salute the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG), the leadership of the committee, the subcommittee, everyone who worked so well together on the underlying bill, and for those reasons, I will support this bill.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself the balance of my time.

Again, I want to say this is just a great example of how our government and those of us who represent our respective constituents, can work without political involvements or political influence, and can work together for the best interests of our country. And the underlying bill, is a really great bill for military construction and to provide for quality-of-life for the men and women who serve in our military, and they deserve so much more than they get. And this Congress is going to continue to keep trying to get more for them and let them know how much we appreciate the sacrifices that they make.

The gentleman from Michigan (Chairman KNOLLENBERG) as chairman of this subcommittee, and the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), as the ranking member have done an outstanding job. The gentleman from California (Mr. LEWIS) as chairman of the Defense Subcommittee of the Committee on Appropriations, and the gentleman from Pennsylvania (Mr. MURTHA), ranking minority, have also done a tremendous job for our military forces. And I want to thank everybody in this House for helping us move this hurricane disaster emergency supplemental. This House came together following in the manner that the Florida delegation came together, and we really did something good for people who reside in the State of Florida.

Again, I want to thank the President of the United States for the commitment and the promises that he has made to deliver aid and assistance to Floridians and neighboring States as they recover from these disasters. And I also want to thank the Governor of the State; the Red Cross; the Salvation Army; so many other voluntary organizations; the Florida National Guard, which did an outstanding job; all of our community leaders, the State level, the county level, the city level, and many volunteers; our emergency response leaders, everybody who really came together to help people that needed help in a State where the entire State of Florida, was touched by these disasters. Seldom does a disaster strike an entire State. In this case, during this hurricane season, no section of Florida was spared. Every part of Florida, to one degree or another, was impacted by the hurricanes. And so it is difficult for me to express the gratitude as effectively as I should.

And then there is one person who I guess, people would call a bureaucrat. I want to mention Josh Bolten. Josh Bolten has worked so hard with us, as the Director of OMB, negotiating, re-negotiating, solving problems, creating problems on occasion, but always working together with us. The Director of OMB, who seldom receives praise from anybody in Congress, no matter who the Director is, this OMB Director, as far as I am concerned, is a very special person who really took the time to understand the needs of people who were injured and damaged and affected by tragedies and natural disasters. So to Josh Bolten, the Director of OMB, I express my thanks for the way he represented the President to fulfill our commitments.

Mr. Speaker, I have talked long enough on this issue. Let us vote.

Mr. HEFLEY. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of H.R. 4837, the Fiscal Year 2005 Military Construction Appropriations Act.

As is the usual practice, each project appropriated in this bill was authorized by the recently passed National Defense Authorization Act. In order to achieve this level of coordination, the appropriations and authorizations committees spent the past several weeks working hand-in-hand together to reach matching conference agreements on our respective bills. Working with Chairman KNOLLENBERG and Mr. EDWARDS during this process was a pleasure, and their efforts were essential to our success.

I thank the gentlemen from Michigan and Texas—as well as the tremendous staff at the Military Construction Appropriations Subcommittee—for their extraordinary efforts in producing the conference report before us, and look forward to joining my colleagues in voting “yes” on passage of this conference report.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Pursuant to clause 10 of Rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of Rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

Managers on the Part of the Senate.

JOINT EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

The managers on the part of the House and the Senate at the conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4567), making appropriations for the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2005, and for other purposes, submit the following joint statement to the House and the Senate in explanation of the effects of the action agreed upon by the managers and recommended in the accompanying conference report.

Senate Amendment: The Senate deleted the entire House bill after the enacting clause and inserted the Senate bill. The conference agreement includes a revised bill. Throughout the accompanying explanatory statement, the managers refer to the Committee and the Committees on Appropriations. Unless otherwise noted, in both instances, the managers are referring to the House Subcommittee on Homeland Security and the Senate Subcommittee on Homeland Security.

The language and allocations contained in House Report 108-541 and Senate Report 108-280 should be complied with unless specifically addressed to the contrary in the conference report and statement of managers. The statement of managers, while repeating some report language for emphasis, does not intend to negate the language referred to above unless expressly provided herein. In cases where both the House and Senate reports address a particular issue not specifically addressed in the conference report or joint statement of managers, the conferees have determined that the House report and Senate report are not inconsistent and are to be interpreted accordingly.

In cases where the House or Senate report directs the submission of a report, such report is to be submitted to both the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations. Further, in a number of instances, House Report 108-541 and Senate Report 108-280 direct agencies to report to the Committees by specific dates that have now passed. In those instances, and unless alternative dates are provided in the accompanying explanatory statement, agencies are directed to provide these reports to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than January 10, 2005.

TITLE I—DEPARTMENTAL MANAGEMENT AND OPERATIONS OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY AND EXECUTIVE MANAGEMENT

The conferees agree to provide $85,034,000 instead of $80,227,000 as proposed by the House and $82,206,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funding shall be allocated as follows:

Immediate Office of the Secretary	$2,141,000
Immediate Office of the Deputy Secretary	1,112,000
Office of Security	21,424,000
Chief of Staff	5,240,000
Executive Secretary	3,500,000
Special Assistant to the Secretary/Private Sector	3,781,000
Office for National Capital Region Coordination	688,000
Office of International Affairs	1,200,000
Office of Public Affairs	8,120,000
Office of Legislative Affairs	5,400,000
Office of General Counsel ..	10,821,000
Office for Civil Rights and Civil Liberties	13,000,000
Citizenship and Immigration Services Ombudsman	3,546,000
Homeland Security Advisory Committee	1,287,000
Privacy Office	3,774,000
Total	85,034,000

Reductions have been made to individual offices within the Office of the Secretary and Executive Management because of large numbers of unfilled positions. The conferees believe that full-year funding is not necessary for salaries of employees that are not yet on board.

RECEPTION AND REPRESENTATION

The conferees have provided not to exceed $40,000 for reception and representation expenses for the Office of the Secretary and Executive Management instead of not to exceed $45,000 as proposed by the House and not to exceed $50,000 as proposed by the Senate to be available for allocation within the Department. Separate reception and representation allowances have been provided directly to other departmental agencies.

BUDGET JUSTIFICATIONS

For fiscal year 2006, the conferees direct that the Congressional budget justifications for all departmental offices be submitted in the same level of detail as the detailed table contained in the back of this report. These justifications should include detailed data and explanatory statements in support of each appropriations request, including tables that detail each departmental office's programs, projects, and activities for fiscal years 2005 and 2006. All funding and staffing changes for each individual office must be highlighted and explained, including separate discussions for personnel, compensation, and benefits; travel; training; and other services. The budget justifications should also include a table identifying the last year that authorizing legislation was provided by Congress for each program, project, or activity; the amount of the authorization; and the appropriation in the last year of the authorization.

CLASSIFIED BUDGET JUSTIFICATIONS

Several components of the Department have classified programs that require preparation and submission of a separate classified budget justification document. These classified budget justification documents are to be submitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations at the same time the unclassified budget justifications are transmitted.

OFFICE OF SECURITY

The conferees agree to provide $21,424,000 instead of $21,824,000 as proposed by the House and $21,044,000 as proposed by the Senate. Sufficient funding has been provided within this appropriation for the Office of Security to rapidly process and adjudicate background investigations.

CONSOLIDATION AND CO-LOCATION OF OFFICES

The conferees direct the Department to regularly update the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on office consolidations and co-location plans as discussed in the Senate report. The Department shall notify the Committees at least 10 days prior to any public announcement of any changes to regional or field offices.

DETAILEES

The conferees direct the Department to report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on January 10, 2005, and quarterly thereafter, on the number of detailees in the Department as well as those detailed to other executive and legislative agencies. These quarterly reports shall include the originating agency, salary, length of detail (including beginning and end dates), and purpose of each detail.

GENERAL AVIATION AIRPORTS

The conferees direct the Secretary, in conjunction with the Transportation Security Administration and the Secret Service, to provide a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations by March 1, 2005, on restoring access to Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport (DCA) and other general aviation airports within 15 miles of DCA for security-qualified charter and general aviation operators.

COUNTER MAN-PORTABLE AIR DEFENSE SYSTEMS (MANPADS)

The conferees direct the Secretary to submit a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on the Counter MANPADS program as outlined by Section 530 of the Senate bill. The conferees do not agree to subsections (5) and (6) of the Senate bill. In lieu of these sections, the conferees expect the report to include an assessment of other technologies that have been evaluated by the Department that could be employed on commercial aircraft to address the threat posed by MANPADS.

TRANSPORTATION SECURITY PLAN

The conferees direct the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Transportation, to develop, maintain, and submit to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than March 31, 2005, an integrated strategic transportation security plan. The plan shall identify and evaluate the United States transportation assets that need to be protected, set risk-based priorities for defending the assets identified, select the most practical and cost-effective ways of defending the assets identified, and assign transportation security roles and missions to the relevant federal, State, regional, and local authorities, and to the private sector. The conferees expect that future budget requests will be based on this integrated strategic transportation security plan. Should any part of this plan involve information that is properly classified under criteria established by Executive Order, that information shall be submitted separately in classified form.

DATA-MINING

The conferees are concerned about the Department's possible use or development of data-mining technology. The conferees direct the DHS Privacy Officer, in consultation with the head of each Department of Homeland Security agency that is developing or using data-mining technology, to submit a report no later than 90 days after the end of fiscal year 2005 that provides: (1) a thorough description of the data-mining technology, the plans for use of such technology, the data that will be used, and the target dates for the deployment of the technology; (2) an assessment of the likely impact of the implementation of the technology on privacy and civil liberties; and (3) a thorough discussion of the policies, procedures, and guidelines that are to be developed and applied in the use of such technology for data-mining in order to protect the privacy and due process rights of individuals and to ensure that only accurate information is collected and used.

BUY AMERICAN

The conferees include bill language prohibiting funds from being used in contravention of the applicable provisions of the Buy American Act. The House and Senate Committees on Appropriations expect to be notified when the Department deviates from this direction pursuant to permissible exceptions. The conferees direct the Inspector General to audit the Department's compliance with the Buy American Act and submit the report at the same time the President submits to Congress the budget for fiscal year 2006.

The conferees direct the Secretary to issue a report to the Committees on Appropriations that describes the articles, materials, and supplies acquired by the Department during fiscal year 2005 that were manufactured outside of the United States as well as an itemized list of all waivers granted with respect to such articles, materials, or supplies under the Buy American Act. The report should include a summary of the total funds spent by the Department of Homeland Security on goods manufactured within the United States compared with funds spent on goods manufactured outside of the United States.

OFFICE OF THE UNDER SECRETARY FOR MANAGEMENT

The conferees agree to provide $151,153,000 instead of $129,356,000 as proposed by the House and $175,579,000 as proposed by the Senate. The conferees have provided not to exceed $3,000 for reception and representation expenses instead of not to exceed $5,000 as proposed by the House. The Senate proposed no similar provision. Funding shall be allocated as follows:

Under Secretary for Management	$1,434,000
Business Transformation Office	920,000
Office of Procurement	7,350,000
Office of Human Resources	7,200,000
Office of Administration ...	27,270,000
Immigration Statistics	5,898,000
Headquarters, Renovation and Relocation Expenses	65,081,000
Human resources system ...	36,000,000
Total	151,153,000

The conferees have provided funding for the Offices of the Chief Financial Officer and the Chief Information Officer under separate accounts outside of the Office of the Under Secretary for Management, as proposed by the House. The Senate funded these two offices within the Office of the Under Secretary for Management.

INVESTMENT REVIEW BOARD

Separate funding is not recommended for the Investment Review Board as proposed by the Senate. The House proposed $2,500,000. The conferees believe that the Department should continue to rely on its managers to establish, maintain, and support investment analysis and decision making, and to comply with statutory requirements.

OFFICE OF PROCUREMENT

The conferees agree to provide $7,350,000 for the Office of Procurement within the Under Secretary for Management instead of $7,734,000 as a separate appropriation as proposed by the House and $7,024,000 as proposed by the Senate. Within this funding, the conferees direct the Chief Procurement Officer to hire five additional procurement staff instead of the nine staff proposed by the House.

DHS HEADQUARTERS

The conferees agree to include $65,081,000 for the alteration and improvement of facilities, tenant improvements and relocation costs to consolidate a headquarters operations as proposed by the House and Senate. The Department is directed to submit to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, no later than December 1, 2004, a facilities improvement and housing plan for the Nebraska Avenue Complex, NAC, Washington, DC, including: total cost of renovations and improvements for each Department-occupied building within NAC; by fiscal year, and including all out-year costs, the total cost for site and design, security upgrades and improvements, tenant improvements, and relocation costs; and, by building, a list of tenants including the total number of current and projected tenants. The Department is directed to notify the Committees 15 days prior to the obligation of funds. Such notification shall be consistent with the facilities improvement and housing plan.

HUMAN RESOURCES SYSTEM

The conferees agree to provide $36,000,000 for the human resources system instead of $70,000,000 as proposed by the House and Senate. This funding shall be used for design, implementation, and program oversight of this new system in fiscal year 2005.

CONTRACT STAFFING

The conferees direct the Department to report, no later than November 15, 2004, on the number of contract staff occupying positions budgeted to be filled by federal employees during fiscal year 2004 and projected for fiscal year 2005. This report should include the numbers of contract staff by component, and a plan, with milestones, for reducing its dependence on contract staff. The Department is directed to submit monthly updates on its progress against these milestones to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations.

WORKING CAPITAL FUND

The conferees direct the Department to issue a report by December 1, 2004, to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations that identifies all centralized services, activities, and programs supported through the Working Capital Fund (WCF) in fiscal years 2004 and 2005. This report shall include a brief description of each activity, the basis for the pricing policy, the estimated cost for fiscal years 2004 and 2005, and for any multi-year project, the total cost, scope, and schedule for completion. The report should also provide the total estimated cost of the activity by fiscal year and the estimated date for completion, the number of full-time federal employees funded in each activity, a list of each departmental organization that is allocating funds to the activity, and the funding each organization is providing in fiscal years 2004 and 2005. Finally, the report should identify any cross-cutting initiatives or activities that benefit more than one organization that are not included in the WCF and explain the omission.

The conferees expect all cross-cutting initiatives funded by multiple organizations for which funding has been approved by the Committees to be included in the WCF and the Committees are to be promptly notified of any additions, deletions, or changes that are made to the WCF during the fiscal year. Taxing departmental organizations for cross-cutting initiatives outside the WCF will not be approved by the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations. The conferees expect the Department to comply with reprogramming guidelines in the management of the WCF. The WCF is not to be used to support initiatives for which funding was requested in the budget and not approved when the appropriation was made.

For fiscal year 2006, the same level of detailed information on the WCF is to be provided in the budget justification document submitted for the Departmental Operations account, with the corresponding information contained in the accounts for each organization that is funding the WCF.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF FINANCIAL OFFICER

The conferees agree to provide $13,000,000 as proposed by the House instead of $14,670,000 as proposed by the Senate within the Office of the Under Secretary for Management. The conferees expect the Chief Financial Officer and Chief Information Officer to work closely together on key financial information technology modernization projects, such as the Electronically Managing Enterprise Resources for Government Efficiency and Effectiveness (eMerge 2) system.

MONTHLY REPORTING REQUIREMENTS

The Department is directed to continue submitting to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations a monthly budget execution report showing the status of obligations and costs for all components of the Department. The report should include the total obligational authority appropriated (new budget authority plus unobligated carryover), undistributed obligational authority, amount allotted, current year obligations, unobligated authority, beginning unexpended obligations, year-to-date costs, and ending unexpended obligations. This budget execution information is to be provided at the level of detail shown in the tables displayed at the end of this report for each departmental component and shall be submitted no later than 45 days after the close of each month.

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT OF THE DEPARTMENT

The conferees are concerned with the Department's execution of its financial responsibilities after numerous budgetary and management crises over the 18 months of the Department's existence, notably with the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement and the Transportation Security Administration. The Department and senior agency management are coping with major changes in the organizational environment, resources, and communication networks of new and radically expanding or changing agencies. It is, therefore, to be expected that the Department will experience direct and indirect costs and management problems as it integrates its agencies. The conferees also acknowledge that reconciling different systems and legacy accounting bureaucracies is difficult. Nonetheless, the conferees will not assent to a repeat of recent experience of shifting and multiple, last minute requests for funding relief, particularly when the Department and agencies can neither explain nor even fully understand their own financial condition. Such a level of uncertainty is inexplicable, and adversely affects the Department's ability to fulfill its missions and carry out Administration and Congressional policy.

The conferees direct the Secretary and Department agency heads to devote the resources and managerial energy required to ensure that basic financial control and transparency in accounting are achieved, and avoid the waste and disruption caused by failure to carry out this fundamental management function. The conferees expect that agencies will establish baseline budgets and reconcile their financial records and accounting systems to provide sufficient information to the Department's Chief Financial Officer (CFO) to permit a clear understanding of financial resources available as well as existing and upcoming liabilities. The conferees further direct that the CFO include in the monthly budget execution report an update on the status of steps underway to improve financial management in critical agencies. Finally, the conferees expect that the Secretary and CFO will strive to ensure that required financial audits of the Department's components are conducted in a timely fashion and with full cooperation of agency personnel.

TRANSPORTATION SECURITY ADMINISTRATION REPROGRAMMINGS

The conferees are concerned that the Department of Homeland Security has submitted numerous reprogramming for the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations that TSA cannot fully explain and justify. In fiscal year 2004, three TSA reprogrammings were submitted. For each of these reprogrammings, TSA was unable to provide timely and consistent data to answer specific questions about the need for these actions. For instance, when the Department's reprogramming letter states that "... $42,200,000 will be used to fund screener professional development to increase retention, and to cover higher benefit costs and increased supervision costs", the conferees expect TSA to readily explain the dollars for each of these three items. Similarly, TSA has been unable to provide an accurate annual estimate for a variety of requirements, such as maintenance costs, and salaries and expenses, which has led to repeated reprogramming requests for additional funds to cover these activities throughout the year, at the expense of other TSA or Department programs. This causes the conferees to question the competency of TSA's estimating capabilities. Therefore, the conferees direct that the Department institute financial controls to enable TSA to live within its resource limitations to negate or minimize the need for reprogrammings. If a reprogramming is necessary for fiscal year 2005, it should provide sufficient basic information for it to be properly considered by the Committees and each specific funding increase and decrease should be fully explained and justified.

GRANT AWARDS

The conferees are disappointed with the Department's pace for awarding homeland security grants, including grants for port security, intercity bus security, hazardous materials, pre-disaster mitigation, and funds for urban search and rescue teams. The conferees direct the Department to prepare a report by December 15, 2004, that lays out an expeditious and responsible schedule for making grants and awards for the funds made available by this Act, as well as for any prior year funds that remain available for obligation.

OFFICE OF THE CHIEF INFORMATION OFFICER

The conferees agree to provide $275,270,000 for the Office of the Chief Information Officer (CIO) and Department-Wide Technology Investments. Of this funding, $67,270,000 shall be for salaries and expenses and $208,000,000 for Department-Wide Technology Investments. The House proposed $60,139,000 for the CIO and $211,000,000 for Department-Wide Technology Investments. The Senate proposed $68,396,000 for the CIO and $222,000,000 for Department-Wide Technology Investments. Funding shall be allocated in accordance with the funding recommendations detailed in the following table:

Salaries and Expenses	$67,270,000
Office of the Chief Information Officer	64,270,000
Wireless Program, Salaries and Expenses	3,000,000
Information Technology Services	91,000,000
Enterprise Architecture & Portal Technology ...	13,000,000
Geospatial mapping	8,000,000
Human Resources	21,000,000
EMerge2	49,000,000
Security Activities	31,000,000
Federal terrorist watch list integration	10,000,000
Enterprise Architecture HS IT evaluation program (extra & intra net)	12,000,000

Infrastructure optimization & upgrade	18,000,000
SAFECOM*	—
Total	275,270,000

*Funded under the Science and Technology Directorate.

FINANCIAL INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY MODERNIZATION PROJECTS

The conferees expect the CFO and CIO to work closely together on key financial information technology modernization projects, such as the eMerge 2 system.

GEOSPATIAL INFORMATION MANAGEMENT

The conferees agree to provide $8,000,000 to create a Department-wide Geospatial Information System (E-GIS) capability under the direction of the CIO and direct the Secretary to create the Geospatial Management Office (GMO) within the CIO's office to oversee this activity. The GMO will be responsible for coordinating geospatial information needs, requirements, and other related spatial data activities that support the E-GIS capability defined by the GMO. The GMO will provide clear and concise policy direction across the Department needed for an E-GIS geospatial information capability. The conferees expect the GMO to guide the development and execution of the implementation plan for the geospatial enablement of the Department's mission systems. The CIO's office is directed to report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations by December 1, 2004, on a date by which the GMO will be established and operational and on the outline of the implementation plan.

PROGRAM, PROJECT AND ACTIVITY PLANS

The conferees request the CIO to revise its report of April 20, 2004, on program, project and activity plans as directed within the Senate report. This revision should be submitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than February 8, 2005.

The conferees further direct the CIO to submit to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations by February 8, 2005, a detailed program plan describing the scope, total estimated cost, cost by year, and the schedule for completion, including significant milestones, for each individual project currently underway and funded for fiscal year 2005 for information technology services, security activities, and wireless programs. This report should include the specified subject areas and associated level of detail as directed in the House report.

WIRELESS PUBLIC SAFETY INTEROPERABLE COMMUNICATIONS (SAFECOM)

The conferees agree to provide $11,000,000 for SAFECOM in the Science and Technology Directorate as proposed by the House. The Senate proposed funding of $11,000,000 for SAFECOM under the Department-Wide Technology Investments account.

DEPARTMENT-WIDE TECHNOLOGY INVESTMENTS

The conferees have deleted a separate appropriation for Department-Wide Technology Investments and have included this funding with the Office of the Chief Information Officer.

OFFICE OF INSPECTOR GENERAL

The conferees agree to provide $82,317,000 as proposed by the House and the Senate. Within the amounts provided, the Inspector General should continue to fund its portion of the Department's yearly financial audit at the same level as provided in fiscal year 2004.

The conferees direct the Inspector General to forward copies of all audit reports to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations immediately after they are released and to make the Committees aware of any significant budgetary savings. The Inspector General is directed to withhold from public distribution for 15 days any final audit or investigation requested by the Committees.

TITLE II—SECURITY, ENFORCEMENT, AND INVESTIGATIONS

BORDER AND TRANSPORTATION SECURITY

OFFICE OF THE UNDER SECRETARY FOR BORDER AND TRANSPORTATION SECURITY

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $9,617,000, instead of $10,371,000 as proposed by the House and $8,864,000 as proposed by the Senate. The conferees also provide that not to exceed $3,000 is available for official representation and reception expenses. Neither the House nor the Senate bills contained this provision.

DENT—IAFIS INTEROPERABILITY

The conferees are troubled by the security gap on the nation's borders caused by delays in linking the Automated Biometrics Identification System (IDENT), the fingerprint database managed by Customs and Border Protection (CBP) and US Visitor and Immigrant Status Indicator Technology (US-VISIT), with criminal history data contained in the Federal Bureau of Investigation's Integrated Automated Fingerprint Identification System (IAFIS). The conferees understand that by the end of calendar year 2004, interoperability will exist at airports, seaports, and the largest and busiest Border Patrol stations and land ports of entry. CBP and Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) locations will not be completed until December 31, 2005. With implementation of a new visa tracking system and enrollment of millions of visitors into US-VISIT, it is essential that the Directorate of Border and Transportation Security collaborate with the Federal Bureau of Investigation to ensure that IDENT can retrieve, in real time, biometric information contained in the IAFIS database, and that the IAFIS database can retrieve, in real time, biometric information contained in IDENT.

The conferees direct the Department to fund the full cost to achieve real time interoperability between these systems from the US-VISIT Appropriation, and direct the Under Secretary for Border and Transportation Security (BTS) to report, not later than 90 days after enactment of this Act, on the status of this effort, including steps the Department will take to integrate IAFIS into IDENT, funds needed, and a timetable for full integration. This report should address recommendations in the March, 2004 Department of Justice Inspector General report, which documented the need to integrate existing biometric databases.

CARGO CONTAINER SECURITY

Over the past 3 years, Congress has provided over $200,000,000 for innovative programs designed to ensure safe and secure shipment of containerized goods from their initial point of loading to their final place of delivery in the United States, including Operation Safe Commerce (OSC), the Container Security Initiative (CSI), and the Customs-Trade Partnership Against Terrorism (C-TPAT). The conferees direct the Under Secretary for Border and Transportation Security to report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than February 8, 2005, on the history, implementation, funding, and progress of the Department's cargo container security efforts. The report should identify: (1) steps the Department has taken to enhance shipping container security; (2) resources devoted to this in prior years and proposed to continue this security; (3) results of ongoing projects such as OSC, CSI, and C-TPAT; (4) the Departmental entity responsible for implementing improvements in security systems and approaches; and (5) specific steps each entity will take to implement these changes, with associated schedules for development and issuance of standards, policies, procedures, or regulations. In addition, the report should address the security of in-bond shipments as referenced within the House report.

COORDINATION OF AVIATION AND MARINE OPERATIONS AND PLANNING

The conferees strongly support the rationalization of the air and marine assets and organizations within the Department, and anticipate that the recent decision to transfer the Office of Air and Marine Operations (AMO) from ICE to CBP will serve to improve the ability of the Department and BTS to more effectively conduct their various homeland security, law enforcement, and related missions. With the presence of three significant aviation and maritime assets, facilities, and organizations within the Department, two within BTS, it is essential that those operations be coordinated both to gain the maximum benefits for the Department and related missions and support functions, as well as achieve efficiency and reduce redundancies from shared facilities and services.

It is therefore more important than ever that BTS submit the detailed AMO modernization and recapitalization plan as directed by the conferees in fiscal year 2004, and as indicated in the report submitted to Congress in March, 2004, entitled "Role in Securing the Homeland." That report provided an overview of AMO current missions, priorities, and plans, as well as plans for future acquisitions and operational efforts. However, it did not describe resources and timetables for procurement and organizational change. Although the report said that actual spending plans would be included in the modernization plan to follow, no plan has been submitted. Similarly, the report only provided a total of on-board staff (1,017 of 1,215 positions authorized) not the detailed, multi-year staffing plan requested.

The ongoing review by the Joint Requirements Council and Aviation Management Council of DHS missions, requirements, and opportunities for strategic sourcing appears to have been a factor in the decision to transfer AMO. The conferees direct the Department to advise the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on the status of the Department's review, and submit the final results of the study as soon as they become available.

The conferees expect to be provided the details involved in integrating air and marine operations within BTS, and direct the Under Secretary for Border and Transportation Security, in consultation with the U.S. Interdiction Coordinator, to submit a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than February 15, 2005, on: (1) specific actions taken or planned to rationalize and coordinate air and marine assets and operations within CBP, including organizational structure; (2) plans for modernizing the air and marine assets of CBP, including staffing plans, in the detail specified in House Report 108-280; (3) a cost-benefit analysis of retrofitting the existing P-3 fleet to extend the useful life of these aircraft; and (4) the multiple air and marine missions of CBP, including their relation to Coast Guard operations.

UNITED STATES VISITOR AND IMMIGRANT STATUS INDICATOR TECHNOLOGY

The conferees agree to provide $340,000,000 as proposed by both the House and the Senate. Of these funds, $86,000,000 is available for program management and operations, and $254,000,000 is subject to the requirement for a detailed expenditure plan, as proposed by the House. Funds are available until expended.

The conferees continue to require a detailed expenditure plan and expect it to display detail greater than that provided for fiscal years 2003 and 2004. Such plans must reflect clear cost/benefit analyses associated with the increments being proposed for funding.

CUSTOMS AND BORDER PROTECTION

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

(INCLUDING RESCISSION OF FUNDS)

The conferees agree to provide $4,534,119,000 for Customs and Border Protection (CBP), instead of $4,612,441,000 as proposed by the House and $4,615,960,000 as proposed by the Senate. This includes: $145,159,000 for inspection and detection technology investments, of which $50,000,000 shall be for radiation detection technology, and up to $30,000,000 shall be available for either radiation detection or non-intrusive inspection technology; $1,000,000 for a pilot study to monitor in-bond container shipments; $2,000,000 for the Immigration Security Initiative; $5,000,000 for the CBP Advanced Training Center; $500,000 to continue steel tariff training; $10,000,000 for unmanned aerial vehicles; not less than $131,436,000 for the salaries and expenses for the Office of Air and Marine Operations; and a reduction of $23,000,000 to reflect the transfer of the Charleston training center to the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center. The conferees provide that not to exceed $35,000 shall be for official representation and reception expenses, as opposed to $40,000 proposed by both the House and Senate. The total appropriation includes a reduction of $193,308,000 in base budget shift to Immigration and Customs Enforcement.

The following table specifies funding by budget activity:

Headquarters Management and Administration:
Headquarters Management and Administration:
Border Security Inspections and Trade Facilitation:	$1,172,838,000
Inspections, Trade and Travel Facilitation at Ports of Entry	1,242,800,000

Subtotal, Border Security and Control Between Ports of Entry ... 1,546,962,000

Air and Marine Operations, Salaries and Expenses 131,436,000

Total, Salaries and Expenses: 4,534,119,000

RESCISSION

The conferees rescind $63,010,000 of the funds provided in Public Law 108-11.

STAFFING PLAN AND BORDER STAFFING

The conferees note that CBP has not submitted the staffing plan due December 1, 2003, as directed in the fiscal year 2004 conference agreement, House Report 108-280. The conferees support a comprehensive approach to border security, including both people and technology. The Congress has funded significant increases in hardware and systems investment in a number of areas, as well as additional border staffing, both Border Patrol and inspection personnel. The conferees strongly endorse the CBP approach to border enforcement with its "one face at the border" philosophy.

The conferees therefore direct that the Department submit the pending staffing plan immediately, and submit an updated plan not later than 90 days after enactment of this Act. The plan shall include: actual on-board personnel for fiscal year 2004; projected staffing for fiscal year 2005; positions authorized but vacant; full-time, part-time, and temporary positions funded through direct appropriations; full-time, part-time and temporary fee-funded positions; and staffing, by position, at each port of entry, Border Patrol station, or other border area location. The report should identify any new positions funded under this Act, should be consistent with staffing assumptions included in the CBP construction master plan that was due July, 2004, and should indicate how the CBP staffing allocation methodology factors in the deployment of complementary technology.

VEHICLE MANAGEMENT

The conferees are aware that CBP is conducting a comprehensive review of its vehicle management plan. The conferees strongly support efforts to incorporate the Border Patrol vehicle fleet into this Bureau-wide fleet management plan. The conferees direct CBP to submit a detailed report, no later than February 8, 2005, as specified by the House and Senate reports.

INTEGRATED SURVEILLANCE INFORMATION SYSTEM

The conferees strongly support the use of technology to enhance the security of our nation's borders, particularly in the vast expanses between ports of entry. The Integrated Surveillance Information System (ISIS) is intended to detect border intrusions, interpret surveillance data, and transmit such information in real-time to Border Patrol, CBP, and the Department operations and analysis centers. The conferees are aware of significant gaps in integration of sub-systems that encompass the ISIS, and direct the Under Secretary for BTS to report no later than February 8, 2005, on the status of this effort. The conferees also direct CBP to submit a master plan for nationwide deployment of ISIS and associated surveillance and sensor technology with its fiscal year 2006 budget request, including a five-year capital acquisition plan, as specified in the Senate report. In addition, the conferees direct the Government Accountability Office to undertake a study of ISIS project management, and spending plans for ISIS investment and operations for fiscal years 2006–2010, to assess how well the project management and spending plans account for the different needs and environments of the land and maritime borders, and to assess how CBP investment in ISIS is aligned with the Department's enterprise architecture and technology standards.

ENFORCEMENT OF TRADE REMEDIES LAW

The conferees have ensured that, of the amounts provided within this account, sufficient funds are available to enforce the antidumping authority contained in section 754 of the Tariff Act of 1930 (19 U.S.C. 1675c).

The conferees direct CBP to submit a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations by January 15, 2005, on the status of its implementation of recommendations by the U.S. Treasury Department's Office of the Inspector General report on implementation of the Continued Dumping and Subsidy Offset Act (CDSOA). The report should address: (1) the proper establishment of special accounts; (2) the need to pay claimants within 60 days after the end of the fiscal year (including the need to prepare and send checks in a timely fashion, and to make certain that the addresses to which they are sent are correct); (3) the need to address CBP's failure to collect millions of dollars in unliquidated entries (including the need for CBP to conduct timely liquidations upon receipt of liquidation instructions from the Department of Commerce, and for CBP not to liquidate in situations involving tardy notice of suspension of liquidation); (4) the need to address CBP's failure to collect millions of dollars in open (unpaid) duty bills and interest (including a determination of whether required posting of cash deposits rather than bonds would result in increased collections);

(5) the need to establish standard operating procedures and adequate internal controls for the proper management of the CDSOA program; and (6) the progress and achievements of the CDSOA working group in addressing systemic issues identified in the report, along with any others relevant to proper administration of CDSOA.

In addition, the conferees are aware that CBP intends to transfer administrative responsibility for the CDSOA program to its Office of Finance. The conferees expect CBP to establish an organization that is accessible and responsive and directs CBP to include in the report a detailed description of which offices have responsibility for external relations, litigation, denials, verifications, and payments.

COUNTERDRUG SUPPORT PROGRAM

The Department of Homeland Security should work with the Department of Defense to permit the New Mexico National Guard to continue performing vehicle and cargo inspections in support of CBP and ICE missions, and CBP, in consultation with the Department of Defense, should report no later than March 1, 2005, on what actions are planned.

CBP ADVANCED TRAINING CENTER

The conferees include an increase of $5,000,000 above the fiscal year 2004 level to operate and equip the CBP Advanced Training Center. Although the budget requested funding for the operation of this center in the Federal Law Enforcement Training Center (FLETC) "Salaries and Expenses" account, the conferees expect this to continue to be a CBP facility and that DHS will not use its reorganization authority to effectuate its transfer elsewhere. Pursuant to Public Law 106-246, the training to be conducted at the facility shall be configured in a manner so that it does not duplicate or displace any FLETC training. The conferees expect that training currently being conducted at a FLETC facility shall not be moved to the new CBP training facility.

TEXTILE TRANSHIPMENT ENFORCEMENT

The conferees direct CBP to maintain its efforts at the level authorized by Section 352 of the Trade Act of 2002.

PRE-ARRIVAL PROCESSING

The conferees are aware that the Department is working with government officials and private entities at Northern Border land ports of entry to securely expedite cargo, including such pre-clearance methods as the Pre-Arrival Processing System using barcode technology, and support expansion of such programs.

AIR AND MARINE OPERATIONS, SALARIES AND EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $131,436,000 for the salaries and expenses of AMO, which is to be transferred from ICE to CBP. This reflects salaries and expenses presently funded through the ICE Salaries and Expenses account, and includes an additional $3,000,000 for personnel and operations costs for the National Capital Region Air Branch and Coordination Center. The House provided $5,000,000 for this purpose.

OFFSETTING FEE COLLECTIONS

The conferees continue to be concerned about the accuracy of estimates for fees supporting CBP operations, particularly for the Immigration User Fee. The conferees direct CBP to ensure that fee revenues are used first to fully fund base operations and adjustments, as supported by budget justification materials provided to the Congress, before undertaking any new initiatives. The conferees also direct the Department and CBP to inform the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations in a timely manner of potential short-term operational or programmatic impacts from reduced fee collections.

AUTOMATION MODERNIZATION

The conferees agree to provide $449,909,000, as proposed by both the House and the Senate. Funds are available until expended. This includes funding as requested for the Automated Commercial Environment (ACE), the Integrated Trade Data System (ITDS), and the costs of the legacy Automated Commercial System. This funding includes not less than $321,690,000 for ACE and ITDS, of which $16,190,000 is for ITDS, all of which remains subject to approval of its expenditure plan before it may be obligated.

CBP AUTOMATION MODERNIZATION

The conferees believe that ACE and CBP modernization should be integrated with, if not form the core of, the Department's information system and border security technology, the Container Security Initiative, and Automated Targeting Systems. The conferees direct CBP to address such issues in its quarterly reports on ACE implementation.

AIR AND MARINE INTERDICTION, OPERATIONS, MAINTENANCE, AND PROCUREMENT

The conferees agree to provide $257,535,000, as proposed by the House, instead of $467,535,000 as proposed by the Senate. This had been requested as part of ICE Salaries and Expenses, but the conferees have moved this funding to CBP to reflect the decision by the Secretary of Homeland Security.

TETHERED AEROSTAT RADAR SYSTEM

The conferees are concerned with an apparent lack of consensus about the scope and scale of the Tethered Aerostat Radar System among key stakeholders—AMO, the Department of Defense, the Office of National Drug Control Policy, and the Office of the United States Interdiction Coordinator (USIC). The conferees direct the Under Secretary for Border and Transportation Security, in consultation with USIC, to submit a joint report, no later than February 8, 2005, as specified in the House report.

AIRWING COMMUNICATIONS

The conferees believe that interoperable communications are necessary to ensure that all airwings can communicate with local law enforcement personnel.

CONSTRUCTION

The conferees agree to provide $91,718,000, as proposed by both the House and the Senate. Funds are available until expended.

CONSTRUCTION MASTER PLAN AND SPENDING PLAN

The conferees are disappointed that the updated construction master plan called for in the fiscal year 2004 appropriation has not yet been submitted. The conferees direct the Department to submit that plan as soon as possible, and to submit a detailed spending plan for the fiscal year 2005 construction account no later than February 8, 2005, which includes, but should not be limited to, the following information for each tactical and facility construction project, by sector, type of construction, and facility, for fiscal years 2005–2009: (1) explanation of the purpose of work; (2) total estimated project cost; (3) amount of funding provided by fiscal year; (4) a detailed cost breakout for construction, design, planning, project management; and (5) date each phase of the project began or is scheduled to begin and is to be completed.

IMMIGRATION AND CUSTOMS ENFORCEMENT

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $2,438,494,000, instead of $2,377,006,000 as proposed by the House and $2,513,438,000 as proposed by the Senate. This includes increases of: $11,000,000 for alternatives to detention; $6,000,000 to reduce immigration court backlog; $14,000,000 for the Visa Security Unit and Overseas Operations; $30,000,000 for the Institutional Removal Program; $25,000,000 for benefit fraud enforcement; $5,000,000 for worksite enforcement; $26,500,000 for detention bedspace support; $16,000,000 for compliance teams; $50,000,000 for fugitive operations (including associated detention and removal costs); $6,216,000 for the Guantanamo Migrant Operations Center; and $4,200,000 for the Cyber Crime Center. This reflects the transfer of $131,436,000 for salaries and expenses.

The conferees provide that not to exceed $15,000 shall be for official representation and reception expenses, and that not to exceed $11,216,000 shall be available to reimburse federal agencies for their costs associated with smuggled aliens.

The conferees also include an increase of $193,308,000 to reflect a permanent realignment in base funding for investigations and overseas operations through a shift from CBP. As noted in the section below, the conferees are closely following the continuing review by ICE and the Department of administrative and other mission responsibilities, with the goal of fully mapping the costs and requirements of ICE and other agencies formed as a result of being merged into the new department. The following table specifies funding by budget activity:

Headquarters Management and Administration:
Personnel Compensation and Benefits, services and other costs	$96,202,000
Headquarters Managed IT Investment	120,119,000
Subtotal, Headquarters Management and Administration	216,321,000
Investigations:
Operations	1,055,345,000
Training	15,671,000
Subtotal, Investigations	1,071,016,000
Intelligence:
Headquarters Reporting Center	4,882,000
Operations	55,130,000
Subtotal, Intelligence 60,012,000
Detention and Removal Operations:
Custody Management	504,221,000
Case Management	192,269,000
Fugitive Operations	35,242,000
Institutional Removal Program	33,719,000
Alternatives to Detention	14,202,000
Transportation and Removal Program	311,492,000
Subtotal, Detention and Removal Operations	1,091,145,000
Total, Salaries and Expenses	2,438,494,000

FINANCIAL MANAGEMENT

The conferees are extremely concerned about the financial health of ICE, and whether it has the systems and management in place to support the functioning of the agency. The adverse impact of hiring and spending freezes and uncertainty on the operations of this critical agency and the morale of its personnel cannot be ignored. The Department and ICE must significantly improve management and oversight of financial and administrative systems to prevent a repeat of the dramatic and unanticipated funding difficulties in fiscal years 2004 and expected in 2005. The conferees are disappointed that ICE has been unable to provide comprehensive data for fiscal year 2005 operations prior to the consideration of the conference agreement.

The conferees also expect that structural and management problems will be dealt with immediately and emphatically, and that improved analysis and planning systems will be put in place to give the agency, Department, and Congress a clear and transparent view of ICE's financial status. The conferees direct the Department's Chief Financial Officer and the Assistant Secretary for ICE to submit a detailed report no later than February 8, 2005, to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on the progress of its financial management overhaul. This report should include, but not be limited to, a detailed explanation of: (1) steps ICE is taking to address shortcomings of its present financial management systems; (2) how improved financial oversight will be carried out; (3) how ICE will improve its notification of financial irregularities; and (4) how reform of ICE financial management will be coordinated with the "tri-bureau" and "shared-services" efforts ICE carries out with CBP and U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS).

USE OF IMMIGRATION EXAMINATIONS FEE

The conferees are aware that the Department is studying the possibility of the ICE Office of General Counsel receiving reimbursement from the examinations fee account for the costs of workload related to CIS. The conferees believe that ICE does not currently have the ability to provide a detailed accounting of this potential examinations fee account spending to CIS. It is reasonable for CIS, as the client, to expect that ICE will have in place an adequate system to track attorney time spent on CIS-related cases, and provide that information to CIS in support of the annual bill for services rendered. The Department should ensure that such a tracking system is in place prior to any future proposal to allocate examinations fee funds to ICE.

CYBER CRIMES CENTER

The conferees agree to provide $4,200,000 for additional computer forensic infrastructure, to include content-addressable data storage, information technology services and staff, to expand the ICE Cyber Crime Center to ICE field offices.

CROSS-TRAINING OF ICE SPECIAL AGENTS

The conferees are aware that some ICE special agents have been cross-trained to act as Federal Air Marshals (FAMs) in a "surge capacity", with plans to train more in fiscal year 2005. The conferees believe that this is not an effective use of resources or training, and that it no longer has the full support of either ICE or FAM management. The conferees believe this training program should be discontinued.

INCREASED DETENTION BEDSPACE

The conferees agree to provide $16,500,000 in addition to the level of funding provided in the House and Senate bills, which would support an increase in detention capacity of 500 beds for fiscal year 2005, leading to over 3,300 more removals of deportable aliens than currently planned.

TEXTILE TRANSHIPMENT ENFORCEMENT

The conferees direct ICE to maintain its efforts at the level authorized by Section 352 of the Trade Act of 2002.

OFFSETTING FEE COLLECTIONS

The conferees continue to be concerned about the accuracy of estimates for fees supporting ICE operations, including the collection of fees for the Student and Exchange Visitor Program and the Immigration User Fee. The conferees direct ICE to ensure that fee revenues are used first to fully fund base operations and adjustments, as supported by budget justification materials provided to Congress, before undertaking any new initiatives. The conferees also direct the Department and ICE to inform the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations in a timely manner of potential short-term operational or programmatic impacts from reduced fee collections.

FEDERAL AIR MARSHALS

The conferees agree to provide $662,900,000, as proposed by the House instead of $712,900,000 as proposed by the Senate. Within this total, $593,552,000 is for management and administrative expenses and $69,348,000 is for travel and training. Funding is available for one year as proposed by the Senate.

CROSS-TRAINING OF ICE SPECIAL AGENTS

The conferees are aware that a number of ICE special agents have been cross-trained to serve as FAMs and that plans are in place to continue this training in fiscal year 2005. While ICE has previously described this effort as a means of developing a "surge capacity" to respond to a heightened threat condition, the conferees believe that it has not proven to be an effective use of resources or training, and that it no longer has the full support of either ICE or FAM management. The conferees believe this training program should be discontinued.

REPORTING REQUIREMENT

The conferees direct the Secretary to provide quarterly classified reports to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations; the Senate Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation; and the House Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure on the number of individuals serving as FAMs, the number of FAMs who are women, minorities, or employees of agencies of the United States government other than the Department of Homeland Security; the percentage of domestic and international flights that have FAMs on board; and the rate at which individuals are leaving the Federal Air Marshal service. The first such report is due on January 15, 2005.

IDENTIFICATION

The conferees are concerned about public identification of FAMs and strongly support the rapid development of procedures and policies, such as a credential, that do not expose FAMs when on official travel.

FEDERAL PROTECTIVE SERVICE

The conferees agree to provide $478,000,000, as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

AUTOMATION MODERNIZATION

The conferees agree to provide $39,605,000, as proposed by both the House and the Senate. Funds are available until expended. The conferees also include a provision prohibiting the obligation of funds until the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations receive and approve an expenditure plan, as proposed by the House.

CONSTRUCTION

The conferees agree to provide $26,179,000 as proposed by the House, and as specified by project in the Senate report.

TRANSPORTATION SECURITY ADMINISTRATION

AVIATION SECURITY

The conferees agree to provide $4,323,523,000 instead of $4,270,564,000 as proposed by the House and $4,386,083,000 as proposed by the Senate. Within this total, not to exceed $3,000 is available for official reception and representation expenses as proposed by the House and the Senate. In addition to the amounts appropriated, a mandatory appropriation of $250,000,000 is available to support the Aviation Security Capital Fund. Bill language is also included that reflects the collection of $1,823,000,000 from aviation user fees, as authorized. Funding is provided as follows:

Passenger screening:
Screening pilots (PP5)	$129,654,000
Passenger screeners, PC&B	1,445,486,000
Passenger screeners, training and other	140,614,000
Human resource services	150,000,000
Checkpoint support	123,500,000
Secure flight	34,919,000
Crew vetting	10,000,000
Registered traveler program	15,000,000
Subtotal, Passenger screening	2,049,173,000
Baggage screening:
Baggage screeners, PC&B	848,860,000
Baggage screeners, training and other	203,660,000
Explosive detection systems purchase	180,000,000
Explosive detection systems installation	45,000,000
Maintenance	174,940,000
Subtotal, Baggage screening	1,452,460,000
Security direction and enforcement:
Aviation regulation and other enforcement	230,000,000
Airport management and staff	284,000,000
Airport information technology and other support	242,890,000
Federal flight deck officer program	25,000,000
Air cargo	40,000,000
Flight school checks (non-add, transfer from DOJ)	9,700,000
Subtotal, Security Direction and Enforcement	821,890,000

STAFFING LEVELS

The conferees include bill language that caps the full-time equivalent (FTE) screener workforce to up to 45,000 as proposed by the House. The conferees expect the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) to have no more than 45,000 full-time equivalent screeners by the end of fiscal year 2005. The conferees recognize that TSA may need to realign its workforce throughout the year due to attrition or advances in detection technologies. TSA has the flexibility to hire screeners during the fiscal year at those airports where additional or replacement screeners are necessary to maintain aviation security and customer service. The 45,000 FTE level is therefore to be regarded as a cap and not a staffing mandate.

AVIATION SECURITY COSTS AND FEES

The conferees include bill language, as proposed by the Senate, requiring the Government Accountability Office to conduct audits of air carriers' actual security costs for passenger and property screening incurred in calendar year 2000. Based on the findings of the review, the Secretary shall collect any additional fees from air carriers and make them available for airport security modifications.

PASSENGER AND BAGGAGE SCREENERS PERSONNEL, COMPENSATION AND BENEFITS

The conferees agree to provide $1,445,486,000 for passenger screening and $848,860,000 for baggage screening activities for both Federal screeners as well as any contracts awarded under the opt-out program after November 18, 2004, for all airports other than the five current screening pilots. The conferees agree that TSA needs the flexibility to manage the opt-out program without the need for re-programming actions for each individual contract. In addition to the report required by the House on cost savings resulting from opt-out, the conferees direct TSA to report on the following information regarding the opt-out program: (1) the number and location of each airport applying for participation under the opt-out program; (2) the decision by the Administrator on the application; (3) if an application by an airport is not accepted, the reasons why the application was not approved; and (4) the results of the competitive acquisition for contract screening services at those airports whose applications have been approved. The conferees direct that TSA provide the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations with advance notice 10 days before an announcement is made that an airport has been selected under the opt-out program. At the time the contract is awarded, TSA shall adjust its program, project, and activity line items to account for changes in third party private screening contracts and screener personnel, compensation and benefits to reflect the award of contracts under the opt-out program.

SCREENER COMPLAINTS

The conferees understand that there have been a disproportionate number of complaints against TSA for alleged violations of equal employment opportunity and veterans preference laws as those laws apply to employment of personnel in TSA airport screener positions at the Louis Armstrong New Orleans International Airport. There also appears to be a significant backlog of unresolved complaints. The conferees direct the Administrator to submit a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than March 31, 2005, on the personnel policies of the Department that apply to the employment of TSA airport screeners, particularly with regard to compliance with equal employment opportunity and veterans preference laws. The report should include an assessment of the extent of TSA's compliance with these laws, a discussion of any systemic problems that could have caused the circumstances giving rise to the disproportionate number of complaints, and the efforts being taken by the Administrator to eliminate the backlog of unresolved complaints and to correct any systemic problems at the Louis Armstrong New Orleans International Airport.

CHECKPOINT SUPPORT

The conferees agree to provide $123,500,000 instead of $86,060,000 as proposed by the House and $161,060,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funding may be used for reconfiguration of airport checkpoints to expedite the flow of travelers; purchase, installation, and maintenance of checkpoint equipment; and electronic surveillance of checkpoints.

TSA shall submit a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than February 10, 2005, on the agency's pilot programs to screen passengers and carry-on baggage for explosives, as discussed in the Senate report.

SECURE FLIGHT

The conferees agree to provide $34,919,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $40,000,000 as proposed by the House. Previous year funding remains unobligated for this program that can be applied in fiscal year 2005. In addition, $10,000,000 has been provided under a separate account for crew vetting, as proposed by the House. In the past, this funding was part of the CAPPS II/Secure Flight account.

The conferees note that the Department appears to be moving in the right direction regarding aviation passenger prescreening by proposing to check all watch lists through the new Secure Flight program, as was recommended by the 9/11 Commission. The conferees are concerned, however, that the 90 days allotted by TSA to plan, test, and analyze this new system before it is fully implemented may be insufficient. The conferees encourage TSA to focus first on getting the watchlist checks operational, before undertaking any other efforts. The conferees expect TSA to cooperate fully with the Government Accountability Office in their review of the Secure Flight program.

EXPLOSIVE DETECTION SYSTEMS PURCHASE

The conferees agree to provide $180,000,000 instead of $170,000,000 as proposed by the House and $210,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. The conferees continue to encourage competition among the vendors so that multiple Explosive Detection Systems (EDS) technologies are available to TSA and airports. The conferees are aware of next-generation in-line EDS machines that are currently being tested, certified, and piloted. Within the $180,000,000 provided, the conferees direct that not less than $30,000,000 be used to install these next-generation explosive detection systems, particularly at medium and small airports, to permit more efficient handling of checked bags and reduce dependence on baggage screeners. These next-generation EDS systems are far smaller and less expensive than the current generation of screening units. The conferees believe that the expeditious deployment of these systems is essential for developing in-line solutions that do not require the costly, large-scale redesign and construction of baggage conveyor systems. Furthermore, although these next-generation machines have immediate application to checked-baggage screening, they also have the potential to cost-effectively enhance security at passenger checkpoints, transit stations, and other key facilities.

EXPLOSIVE DETECTION SYSTEMS INSTALLATION

In addition to the statutory allocation of $250,000,000 in the Aviation Security Capital Fund, the conferees agree to provide $45,000,000 to assist the eight airports that have signed Letters of Intent to install explosive detection systems in-line with their baggage systems. The installation of in-line systems to screen checked baggage at our Nation's airports is a critical step in combating the terrorist threat against aviation. The use of in-line EDS is not only more effective than explosive trace detection (ETD) and stand-alone systems, but is considerably less costly to operate. Accordingly, it has been widely recognized that a high priority should be given to the installation of in-line baggage screening systems. Most recently, the 9/11 Commission recognized this need in its recommendations, urging TSA to "expedite the installation" of such systems.

The conferees have included bill language requested by the President that permits the Aviation Security Capital Fund to be used to fund the eight Letters of Intent in fiscal year 2005 with a 75 percent Federal share. Under tight budgetary constraints the conferees do not have sufficient funding to raise these projects to a 90 percent Federal share.

The conferees direct TSA to comprehensively plan for expediting the installation of in-line EDS, including the formulation of detailed budget requirements that will provide for both equipment acquisition and the capital costs of installing such system configurations at airports. Consistent with fiscal year 2004 report language, TSA should submit quarterly reports on its plans for such in-line installations that include: (1) the universe of airports that may benefit from an in-line EDS system or other physical modifications; (2) a list of all airports where TSA has begun working on plans to move EDS machines in-line either through the Boeing contract design phases or directly with the airports; and (3) a list of airports that will be doing EDS enhancements, including moving systems in-line that are not funded via Letters of Intent. Costs associated with each airport's project and a tentative timeline for award and completion should be included. Additionally, the plan should include information reflecting the anticipated cost savings—particularly personnel savings—that will be achieved from the use of in-line checked baggage systems contrasted with reliance on ETD and stand-alone systems. The conferees expect that TSA's planning will be conducted in consultation with aviation stakeholders (including airports, airlines, and EDS manufacturers).

AVIATION REGULATION AND OTHER ENFORCEMENT

The conferees agree to provide $230,000,000 as proposed by the House instead of $227,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. Within this funding, $3,000,000 has been provided to expand the number of canine teams deployed to inspect air cargo. Due to the increasing need for explosive detection capability in the transportation sector, the conferees encourage the Department to conduct a pilot project to assess the cost and performance effectiveness of utilizing private sector providers of explosive detection canines.

AIR CARGO

The conferees agree to provide a total of $115,000,000 for air cargo security. Of this total, $40,000,000 is for 100 additional inspectors and enforcement activities and $75,000,000 is for research and development of technologies to provide more effective and efficient methods of detecting air cargo threats.

Public Law 108-90, the Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act of 2004, provided $85,000,000 to strengthen the oversight of air cargo security and for research and development of technological solutions for inspections of cargo carried on passenger aircraft. Public Law 108-90 also provided statutory language directing the Secretary to develop the best technology for the inspection and screening of air cargo on passenger aircraft at the earliest date possible and for the enhancement of the known shipper program. Given recent Department reports of low obligations for these programs, the conferees are concerned that the Department is not moving with sufficient speed to implement this direction. The conferees direct the Department to act expeditiously to fully obligate and expend the funding provided for air cargo security activities and direct TSA to provide quarterly reports to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations beginning in December, 2004, on the use of all dollars obligated and plans for the use of unobligated balances.

The conferees direct TSA to work more aggressively to strengthen air cargo security. In particular, TSA should strengthen the known shipper program to include regular security checks on all known shippers to assure that they are not compromising security standards. Similarly, TSA is directed to work with the indirect air carriers to assure that they abide by all security directives and information circulars relating to air cargo. TSA shall also validate the indirect air carriers security measures used when they consolidate freight and transport it to passenger and all-cargo aircraft to prevent unauthorized access.

DEPLOYABLE FLIGHT RECORDERS

The ability to rapidly determine whether a security breach caused an aviation accident is critical. Therefore, the conferees direct TSA to work with the Federal Aviation Administration to determine whether it would improve security analysis in aviation accidents if deployable flight incident recorders were required aboard commercial passenger aircraft and to report back to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations within 180 days of enactment of this Act.

MARITIME AND LAND SECURITY

The conferees recommend a total funding level of $75,000,000 for staffing and activities within TSA's maritime and land security program. Of this total, $48,000,000 is a direct appropriation and $27,000,000 is available through offsetting collections. The House proposed $65,000,000 in direct appropriations and $67,000,000 in offsetting collections. The Senate proposed $44,000,000 in direct appropriations and $67,000,000 in offsetting collections. Funding shall be available until September 30, 2006, as proposed by the House instead of September 30, 2005, as proposed by the Senate. The following table specifies funding levels by budget activity:

Credentialing	$5,000,000
Transportation worker identification credential	15,000,000
Hazardous materials truck tracking	2,000,000
Hazardous materials safety	17,000,000
Enterprise staffing	24,000,000
Rail security	12,000,000
Offsetting collections	(27,000,000)

Subtotal, Maritime and Land	48,000,000

MARITIME AND LAND SECURITY GRANTS

While funding has been provided for a variety of maritime and land security grants within the Office of State and Local Government Coordination and Preparedness (SLGCP), as proposed by the Senate, the conferees realize that TSA staff have the subject matter expertise on port, rail, intercity bus, and highway security. The conferees, therefore, direct TSA to work with SLGCP to review grant applications, determine eligibility, and make award determinations for these four grant areas.

The conferees are concerned about the lack of priority-setting in the intercity bus grant program. TSA and SLGCP should clearly identify priorities, including the importance of passenger screening and terminal security. It also is important to focus on the unique structure of the intercity bus industry and the importance of fixed route intercity bus service.

TRANSPORTATION WORKER IDENTIFICATION CREDENTIAL

The conferees agree to provide $15,000,000 instead of $65,000,000 as proposed by the House and $53,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funding has been decreased for this program because of delays in prototyping and evaluating this credential. The conferees direct TSA to report back to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations about the results of prototype testing before moving into the next phase. Of the total funding, $5,000,000 is a direct appropriation that will be used to develop and install necessary hardware and software at those sites producing and personalizing the transportation worker identification credentials. The additional $10,000,000 appropriation will be offset throughout the fiscal year from application fees.

RAIL SECURITY

The conferees agree to provide $12,000,000 instead of $11,000,000 as proposed by the House and $15,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. This level will support the deployment of up to 100 federal rail compliance inspectors and includes $2,000,000 for the deployment of canine explosive detection teams. In addition to funds provided under TSA, the conferees include $150,000,000 for rail security grants under the Office of State and Local Government Coordination and Preparedness, funding within the Science and Technology Directorate to research and design rail security requirements that could strengthen rail security nationwide, and funding within the Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection Directorate to improve the security of rail corridors that carry hazardous materials.

The conferees are aware of promising advances in train control technology that would allow a central operator the ability to remotely control the operation of a freight or passenger train in times of distress. The conferees believe development of such a system would enhance the security of the rail system, and direct TSA to implement projects that demonstrate and advance this technology.

HAZARDOUS MATERIALS TRUCK TRACKING

The conferees have provided $2,000,000 to continue the previously funded program to coordinate tracking and monitoring truck shipments of hazardous materials.

INTELLIGENCE

The conferees agree to provide $14,000,000 as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

The conferees agree to provide $178,000,000 instead of $174,000,000 as proposed by the House and $181,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funding shall be allocated as follows:

Research and development, including Tech Center	$49,000,000
Next-generation explosive detection systems	54,000,000
Air cargo	75,000,000

Subtotal, Research and Development	178,000,000
--	-------------

NEXT-GENERATION EXPLOSIVE DETECTION SYSTEMS

The conferees agree to provide $54,000,000 instead of $50,000,000 as proposed by the House and $57,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. Of this total, $10,000,000 is for the Manhattan II project as proposed by the House.

AIR CARGO

The conferees agree to provide $75,000,000 for air cargo research and development as proposed by both the House and the Senate. Of this total, $20,000,000 shall be used to accelerate the research and development of new technologies to detect explosives in air cargo bound for passenger and all-cargo aircraft, and for the acceleration of the air cargo inspection pilot program to additional locations, including airports experiencing extreme environmental conditions, to ensure equipment durability.

ADMINISTRATION

The conferees agree to provide $519,852,000 instead of $524,852,000 as proposed by the House and $534,852,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funding shall be available until September 30, 2006, as proposed by the House. The following table specifies funding levels by budget activity:

For the fiscal year 2006 budget justification and for reprogrammings pursuant to Section 503 of this Act, the Coast Guard shall use the six budget categories listed above (military pay and allowances, civilian pay and benefits, training and recruiting, operating funds and unit level maintenance, centrally managed accounts, and intermediate and depot level maintenance). However, notwithstanding reprogramming thresholds, the Coast Guard shall notify the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations of changes within program, projects, and activities of the 23 line items listed above as they occur.

BALLAST WATER MANAGEMENT PROGRAM

The conferees agree to provide $4,000,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $4,662,000 as proposed by the House.

AERONAUTICAL MAINTENANCE

The conferees do not agree to language contained in the House report related to fluid outflow collection devices. The Senate had no comparable report language.

WATCH STANDARDS

The conferees agree to provide $9,000,000 for the Coast Guard to come into compliance with its watch standards, which specify that an individual on duty or watch in a Coast Guard Search and Rescue Command Center facility should not work more than 12 hours in a 24-hour period, except in an emergency or unforeseen circumstance. The House provided $13,000,000 for this activity.

FOREIGN VESSEL SECURITY PLANS

The conferees are concerned that the Coast Guard intends to rely on foreign governments to review foreign vessel security plans. The conferees expect the Coast Guard to use its Port State Control Program, a risk-based independent verification process, to ensure that foreign vessel security plans are adhered to and in place. The conferees also expect the Coast Guard to randomly assess the vessel security plans of vessels not identified by the Port State Control Program. The conferees direct the Coast Guard to report no later than March 1, 2005, on the progress of this foreign vessel security oversight process, including the Coast Guard resources required to implement this process.

SECTOR COMMANDS

The conferees direct the Coast Guard to adhere to reporting requirements addressed in the House report 30 days prior to moving any sector commands. As part of these decisions, the Coast Guard is encouraged to recognize the importance of existing Department of Defense capabilities to maximize coordination and eliminate redundancies when forming joint sector command centers with the Navy.

LIQUEFIED NATURAL GAS TERMINALS

The Coast Guard shall submit a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, the Committee on Commerce, Science, and Transportation of the Senate, the Committee on Energy and Commerce of the House of Representatives, and the Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure of the House of Representatives not later than 90 days after the enactment of this Act on opportunities for integrating the process the Coast Guard uses to issue letters of recommendation for proposed liquefied natural gas terminals and the process by which the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission issues permits for such terminals under the National Environmental Policy Act. The report shall also include the advisability of requiring that Coast Guard responsibilities relating to vessel transit, facility security assessment and facility security plans under the Maritime Transportation Security Act be completed for a proposed liquefied natural gas terminal before a final environmental impact statement for such terminal is published under the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission process.

ICEBREAKING STUDY

As discussed in the Senate report and the Coast Guard authorization bill for fiscal year 2005, the conferees require the National Academy of Sciences to study the role of Coast Guard icebreakers.

MARITIME SAFETY AND SECURITY TEAMS

The conferees direct the Coast Guard to adhere to Senate report language on maritime safety and security teams.

ENVIRONMENTAL COMPLIANCE AND RESTORATION

The conferees agree to provide $17,000,000 as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

RESERVE TRAINING

The conferees agree to provide $113,000,000 as proposed by the House instead of $117,000,000 as proposed by the Senate.

ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, AND IMPROVEMENTS

(INCLUDING RESCISSION OF FUNDS)

The conferees agree to provide $982,200,000 instead of $936,550,000 as proposed by the House and $1,062,550,000 as proposed by the Senate. Consistent with prior practice, bill language is included to distribute the total appropriation by separate obligation availabilities. The following table summarizes the recommended level by program, project, and activity:

The conferees agree to bill language proposed by the House that requires the Secretary to annually submit to the Congress, with the budget request, a future years capital investment plan for the Coast Guard that identifies for each capital budget line item: (1) the proposed appropriation included in the budget, (2) the total estimated cost of completion, (3) proposed funding levels for each of the next 5 fiscal years or until the project is completed, (4) an estimated completion date at the projected funding levels, and (5) changes from previous capital investment plans. The Secretary shall also ensure that amounts specified in future capital investment plans are consistent and that any inconsistencies between the capital investment plan and proposed appropriations are identified and justified.

The conferees have also retained long-standing bill language, as proposed by the Senate, that authorizes any proceeds that result from the disposal of surplus real property be applied as offsetting collections and only available for Rescue 21.

DEEPWATER

The conferees require the Secretary to submit to Congress at the time of the fiscal year 2006 budget request a new Deepwater baseline. This new baseline must include revised acquisition timelines for each asset that is necessary to fulfill homeland security functions or multi-agency procurements as identified by the Joint Requirements Council; a timeline and detailed justification for each new asset; a detailed description of the revised mission requirements and impact on the acquisition timeline; and funding levels for each asset the Coast Guard continues to believe is necessary to acquire as proposed by the House. The Senate has no comparable bill language.

LEGACY ASSETS

The conferees direct the Coast Guard to report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, within 30 days of enactment of this Act, on its plan for maintenance of all its legacy assets and the entity responsible, whether contractor or Coast Guard, for such maintenance and estimated costs, including the costs associated with each legacy asset and future funding requests planned by the Coast Guard. The Coast Guard is also directed to submit quarterly reports to the Committees on its actions with respect to this plan, beginning with the submission of the President's budget request for fiscal year 2006.

HH-65 RE-ENGINEING PROJECT

The conferees agree to provide $99,000,000 instead of $75,000,000 as proposed by the House and $115,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. In addition, the conferees direct the Coast Guard to reallocate to the HH-65 re-engining project: (1) the $4,000,000 provided in fiscal year 2003 for the development of a new fuel control system (FADEC), and (2) $5,700,000 provided in fiscal year 2003 for additional 38 LTS-101-850 engines. These funds are no longer needed for the original work because the current HH-65 engine is being replaced entirely by a different manufacturer.

The conferees are aware that the Coast Guard's HH-65 Dolphin helicopters are experiencing an alarming rate of engine failure and that the Commandant would like to re-engine these critical assets within a 24-month period. The conferees commend the Coast Guard for moving quickly to address this critical flight safety issue and direct that all of the funds appropriated for HH-65 re-engining in fiscal year 2005 and past legacy aircraft sustainment funds be used to accelerate the delivery of conversion kits and the re-engining schedule. The conferees believe that taking immediate and definitive action to return the HH-65 fleet to safe and reliable operations is the Coast Guard's highest aviation priority. The additional funding provided above the level requested in the budget shall be used to achieve a 24-month completion schedule. If the Commandant determines that the present re-engining operations of the Coast Guard are not capable of achieving a 24-month completion goal, then he shall contract with a second qualified facility to achieve this objective. The conferees expect any additional funding required to meet this schedule to be included in the President's fiscal year 2006 budget submission.

COVERT SURVEILLANCE AIRCRAFT

The conferees agree to provide $14,000,000 for manned, covert, multi-sensor surveillance aircraft to perform maritime domain awareness missions as proposed by the House.

IDS PATROL BOAT

The conferees agree to provide up to $30,000,000 for the IDS patrol boat in the Deepwater program. As part of Deepwater rebaselining, the Secretary in conjunction with the Coast Guard is directed to provide an analysis of operational patrol boat and other ship hours available over the past five years and over the next ten years under the rebaselined program. The analysis should include the hours contributed by each class of ship or patrol boat (fast response cutter, 110', 123', or a replacement patrol boat); a yearly retirement, conversion, and acquisition schedule (including costs) covering all ships and patrol boats; and a year by year count of the different vessels in the Coast Guard inventory over the timeframe requested. Given the current and future reliance of the Coast Guard on these vessels, it is imperative that the Congress has a clear schedule of current and outyear assets that will provide the requisite operational hours. This report should be provided to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than February 10, 2005.

AIRCRAFT DEPLOYMENTS

The conferees direct the Coast Guard to adhere to Senate report language on support facilities for aircraft deployments.

RESCISSION

The conferees rescind $16,000,000 from funding appropriated in fiscal year 2004 (Public Law 108-90) for Rescue 21 due to contract delays and high unobligated balances.

ALTERATION OF BRIDGES

The conferees agree to provide $15,900,000 instead of $16,400,000 as proposed by the House and $15,400,000 as proposed by the Senate. Within this total, funds shall be allocated as follows:

Florida Avenue Bridge in New Orleans, Louisiana ..	$4,400,000
Chelsea Street Bridge in Chelsea, Massachusetts ..	1,000,000

Canadian Pacific Railroad Bridge in La Crosse, Wisconsin	2,000,000
Fourteen Mile Bridge, Mobile, Alabama	5,500,000
EJ&E Railroad Bridge in Morris, Illinois	1,500,000
Burlington Northern Santa Fe Bridge in Burlington, Iowa	1,500,000
Total	15,900,000

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST AND EVALUATION

The conferees agree to provide $18,500,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $13,500,000 as proposed by the House within the Science and Technology Directorate. The conferees expect the Commandant of the Coast Guard to continue to coordinate with the Under Secretary for Science and Technology on research and development activities.

RETIRED PAY

The conferees agree to provide $1,085,460,000 as proposed by both the House and the Senate.

UNITED STATES SECRET SERVICE

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $1,172,125,000 instead of $1,179,125,000 as proposed by the House and $1,159,125,000 as proposed by the Senate. This includes: not to exceed $25,000 for representation and reception expenses; $5,000,000, to remain available until expended, for Secret Service costs related to National Special Security Events; $34,536,000 to support investigations of electronic crimes; $2,100,000 for forensic support to the National Center for Missing and Exploited Children (NCMEC) as well as a $5,000,000 grant to NCMEC.

Headquarters, management and administration	197,747,000
National Center for Missing and Exploited Children	7,100,000
Subtotal, Administration	204,847,000

Training:

Rowley training center ..	45,051,000
Total, Salaries and Expenses	$1,172,125,000

NATIONAL SPECIAL SECURITY EVENTS (NSSES)

The conferees agree to provide not less than $5,000,000 above the budget request for the Secret Service's unanticipated costs related to NSSES, instead of $10,000,000 as proposed by the House. Funds are available until expended. The Conferees direct the Secret Service to budget for foreseeable costs related to NSSES within its base budget. The Secret Service has the lead security responsibility for these events as authorized by Presidential Decision Directive 62 and 18 USC 3056 (e).

ELECTRONIC CRIMES TASK FORCES (ECTFs)

The conferees agree to provide $34,356,000 instead of $36,356,000 as proposed by the House and $31,356,000 as proposed by the Senate. The $3,000,000 above the budget request is provided for the costs associated with the training and support of new Special Agents assigned to ECTFs. The Secret Service is directed to submit a deployment plan not later than February 8, 2005, to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations, describing the staffing and other resources assigned to each ECTF, as specified in the House report. The Department is encouraged to apply any lapsed salary savings to fund ECTF requirements.

OPERATING EXPENSES

(RESCISSION OF FUNDS)

The conferees rescind $750,279 of the funds provided in Public Law 108-11.

ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, IMPROVEMENTS, AND RELATED EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $3,633,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate. Funds are available until expended.

TITLE III—PREPAREDNESS AND RECOVERYOFFICE OF STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT
COORDINATION AND PREPAREDNESS

The conferees agree with the creation of the Office of State and Local Government Coordination and Preparedness (SLGCP), which merges the Office of State and Local Government Coordination with the Office for Domestic Preparedness (ODP). Administration and oversight of the following programs were moved to SLGCP from legacy agencies:

Emergency Preparedness and Response Directorate.—Metropolitan medical response system, first responder counter-terrorism training assistance, assistance to firefighter grants, emergency management performance grants, state and local all-hazards emergency operations planning, Citizens Corps, interoperable communications equipment, and Community Emergency Response Teams.

Office for Domestic Preparedness.—State domestic preparedness equipment support; law enforcement terrorism prevention; New York equipment replacement; national exercise program (TOPOFF) grants; multi-state anti-terrorism information exchange; terrorism early alert and strategic planning system; State Homeland Security Grant Program; and the Urban Area Security Initiative (UASI) Grant Program including UASI port security grants, UASI mass transit security grants, and UASI radiological defense systems.

Transportation Security Administration.—Port Security Grants, Intercity Bus Security Grants, Operation Safe Commerce, and Trucking Industry Security Grants.

The conferees understand that, while SLGCP will provide a single entry point for grant applications, the subject matter experts of those transferred grants will remain with the original legacy agencies. SLGCP shall continue to include these experts in the review of grant applications, the determination of eligibility, and making award determinations. The conferees agree that no more than 12 personnel from the Transportation Security Administration (TSA) and 51 personnel from the Emergency Preparedness and Response (EP&R) Directorate shall be transferred to SLGCP to assist in the administration of these grants.

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

The conferees agree to provide $3,546,000 instead of $41,432,000 as proposed by the House and $25,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funds are provided for the management and administration expenses of the Office of State and Local Government Coordination. Management and administration expenses for the Office for Domestic Preparedness are provided as a percentage of the formula-based grants, as authorized by Section 1014 of the USA PATRIOT Act. Funding of not to exceed $2,000 is provided for official reception and representation expenses, as proposed by the House.

STATE AND LOCAL PROGRAMS

The conferees agree to provide $3,086,300,000 instead of $3,423,900,000 as proposed by the House and $2,845,081,000 as proposed by the Senate.

Formula-Based Grants:

Formula-Based Grants: ..	$1,100,000,000

Rural Domestic Preparedness Consortium	5,000,000
Subtotal, National Programs	3,086,300,000

Total, State and Local Programs: $3,086,300,000

The conferees view state and local jurisdictions' ability to detect, prevent and respond to a terrorist attack as a high priority. State and local responders are first to arrive on scene when a terrorist attack occurs and must be prepared to protect life and property. This function is inherently non-federal, although federal resources and expertise are needed to manage the crisis, and provide support to state and local assets when an attack overwhelms their resources. For purposes of eligibility for funds under this heading, any county, city, village, town, district, borough, port authority, transit authority, intercity rail provider, commuter rail system, freight rail provider, water district, regional planning commission, council of government, Indian tribe with jurisdiction over Indian country, authorized tribal organization, Alaska Native village, independent authority, special district, or other political subdivision of any state shall constitute a "local unit of government."

FORMULA-BASED GRANTS

The conferees agree to provide $1,100,000,000 instead of $1,250,000,000 as proposed by the House and $970,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. These funds are available to all states for purposes of training, procuring equipment (such as interoperable communications equipment), and conducting exercises, based on each state's approved, updated homeland security strategy. The conferees expect that these funds will be made available to states within 45 days after enactment of this Act, that states will have 45 days to apply after the grant is announced, and that SLGCP will act within 15 days of receipt of an application. The conferees also agree that no less than 80 percent of these funds shall be obligated by the state to local units of government within 60 days of the state receiving funds. None of the funds may be used for construction or overtime, except as provided in this Act. The conferees urge the Department to work with state and local governments to ensure that regional authorities, such as port, transit, or tribal authorities, are given due consideration in the distribution of state formula grants. Not to exceed 3 percent may be used for administrative expenses.

The conferees are pleased with steps taken by the SLGCP to allow states and localities to reallocate State Homeland Security Grant Program funds to address emerging threats identified by credible assessments. The conferees understand that beginning with fiscal year 2004 grant funds, reallocation of funds for this purpose does not require prior approval by SLGCP, provided that reallocation of funds for activities pursued by states and localities are consistent with state homeland security strategies, within the scope of allowable program expenditures, and that such reallocation will be notified to SLGCP through the required, regularly scheduled programmatic report.

LAW ENFORCEMENT TERRORISM PREVENTION GRANTS

The conferees agree to provide $400,000,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $500,000,000 as proposed by the House. The conferees expect that these funds will be made available to states within 45 days after enactment of this Act, that states will have 45 days to apply after the grant is announced, and that SLGCP will act within 15 days of receipt of an application. The conferees also agree that no less than 80 percent of these funds shall be obligated by the state to local units of government within 60 days of the state receiving funds. Not to exceed 3 percent may be used for administrative expenses.

Law enforcement terrorism prevention activities that involve compensation of overtime shall be limited to those specifically related to homeland security, such as providing expanded investigative and intelligence efforts. Funding may not be used to supplant ongoing, routine public safety activities of state and local law enforcement. State applications must certify that all requests for overtime comply with this requirement.

DISCRETIONARY GRANTS

The conferees agree to provide $1,200,000,000 instead of $1,000,000,000 as proposed by the House and $1,328,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. Of these funds, $885,000,000 is made available to the Secretary for discretionary grants to high-threat, high-density urban areas, instead of $900,000,000 as proposed by the House and $875,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. The Secretary shall consider credible threat, presence of critical infrastructure, population, vulnerability, cooperation of multiple jurisdictions in preparing domestic preparedness plans, and the identified needs of public agencies in determining the allocation of these funds. The conferees expect funds to be obligated no later than 60 days after enactment of the Act. The conferees also agree that no less than 80 percent of these funds shall be obligated by the state to local units of government within 60 days of the state receiving funds. Grants may be made to single or multiple jurisdictions in the same urban area. Of the funds made available for grants to high-threat, high-density urban areas, $25,000,000 is for grants to non-profit organizations determined by the Secretary to be at high risk of international terrorist attacks.

The conferees agree that except for rail, transit, and port security grants, the use of grant funds for construction is prohibited. However, for those projects that specifically address enhanced security at critical infrastructure facilities, such as improved perimeter security, minor construction or renovation for necessary guard facilities, fencing, and related efforts, project construction or renovation not exceeding $1,000,000 is allowable, as deemed necessary by the Secretary. The conferees expect SLGCP to continue the practice of reimbursing eligible overtime expenses as designated in ODP Information Bulletin No. 127, dated August 3, 2004.

The conferees are aware that the Department has previously provided technical assistance to urban areas through the Urban Area Security Initiative. The conferees encourage SLGCP to consider urban area technical assistance requirements as part of normal technical assistance requests, which are funded under a separate account.

TRANSPORTATION SECURITY GRANTS

Of the funds provided for Discretionary Grants, $150,000,000 is for port security grants; $150,000,000 is for rail, freight, and transit security grants; $10,000,000 is for intercity bus security grants; and $5,000,000 is for trucking security grants. Despite the consolidation of selected grant award functions within SLGCP, the conferees agree that TSA subject matter experts will remain within TSA and SLGCP shall continue to include these experts in the review of grant applications, the determination of eligibility, and making award determinations.

The conferees are concerned that port security grants made to independent terminal operators are not coordinated at the state, local port authority, or Captain of the Port levels. The conferees direct that SLGCP ensure the coordination of all port security grants with the state, local port authority, and the Captain of the Port, to ensure all vested parties are aware of grant determinations and that the limited resources are maximized.

The conferees are concerned about the lack of priority setting in the intercity bus grant program. It is important for the Department to clearly identify priorities, including the importance of passenger screening and terminal security, and focus on the unique structure of the intercity bus industry and the importance of fixed route service.

TECHNOLOGY TRANSFER PROGRAM

The conferees agree to provide $50,000,000 as proposed by the House. The Senate proposed $50,000,000 under the Law Enforcement Terrorism Prevention Grants. The conferees are aware of the unique needs of jurisdictions in smaller communities that make it more difficult for them to identify, select, procure, practice and become proficient in specialized equipment and technology. The conferees direct SLGCP to develop a technology transfer program to assist smaller communities in acquiring and using commercially available technologies to prevent, deter, and respond to terrorist attacks, as identified in state homeland security strategies. This competitive program shall be a direct assistance program, not a grant program, and SLGCP will provide the equipment and technical assistance directly to the selected jurisdictions. This includes, but is not limited to, interoperable communications technology, defensive protective equipment for first responders, and vulnerability assessment technology appropriate to rural jurisdictions. A key element of this program shall be the provision of appropriate training and technical assistance to ensure effective integration of the technologies into the jurisdictions' response plans. This training should address the specialized equipment related issues found in small and rural communities, and solutions achieved by SLGCP's technology transfer program that address these issues. Of the amount provided, no more than $10,000,000 may be used for commercially available equipment testing and validation to determine appropriateness for inclusion in the technology transfer program.

NATIONAL PROGRAMS

The conferees agree to provide $336,300,000 instead of $275,081,000 as proposed by the Senate. The House proposed $328,900,000 for these programs in separate accounts.

NATIONAL DOMESTIC PREPAREDNESS CONSORTIUM

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $135,000,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $130,000,000 as proposed by the House. Of these funds, $55,000,000 is for the Center for Domestic Preparedness.

NATIONAL EXERCISE PROGRAM

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $52,000,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate.

TECHNICAL ASSISTANCE

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $30,000,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $7,600,000 as proposed by the House. Of these funds, $20,000,000 shall be for the Interoperable Communication Technical Assistance program, as proposed by the Senate. The House contained no similar provision.

The conferees recognize the importance of interoperable communications standards, which are critical to the Department's efforts to improve communications nationally. Therefore, the Science and Technology Directorate shall expedite the development of these standards, and coordinate with SLGCP to ensure that SLGCP's technical assistance program incorporates these standards, as appropriate.

METROPOLITAN MEDICAL RESPONSE SYSTEM

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $30,000,000 instead of $50,000,000 as proposed by the House. The Senate included no similar provision.

DEMONSTRATION TRAINING GRANTS

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $30,000,000 instead of $50,000,000 as proposed by the House and $55,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. The conferees agree that these peer reviewed competitive grants shall be for first responder pilot and demonstration training projects, covering the local, regional, and national levels.

CONTINUING TRAINING GRANTS

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $25,000,000. The conferees agree to create this separate grant program to fund continuing first responder training efforts, instead of funding from a combined competitive training account as proposed by the House. The Senate contained no similar provision.

EVALUATIONS AND ASSESSMENTS

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $14,300,000 as proposed by the House instead of $3,081,000 as proposed by the Senate.

CITIZEN CORPS

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $15,000,000 instead of $20,000,000 as proposed by the House and $30,000,000 as proposed by the Senate.

RURAL DOMESTIC PREPAREDNESS CONSORTIUM

Of the funds provided for National Programs, the conferees agree to provide $5,000,000 for the development of a Rural Domestic Preparedness Consortium, as proposed by the House. The Senate included no similar provision. Training for rural first responders poses unique challenges when compared to their urban counterparts. This new consortium should provide a regional approach to rural first responder awareness level training, develop emerging training, and provide technical assistance in support of rural homeland security requirements. SLGCP is to provide a report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on the creation of this consortium no later than January 15, 2005.

HOMELAND SECURITY PRESIDENTIAL

DIRECTIVE 8

At the urging of both the Congress and the President, the Department is proceeding with a proposed plan to transition first responder grant programs to a risk- and threat-based allocation system. The conferees will monitor this progress so that the Congress can consider such a transition in fiscal year 2006, with the exception of the guaranteed state minimum as prescribed in section 1014 of the USA PATRIOT Act of 2001. In this regard, the conferees direct that SLGCP continue the development of a universal list of first responder preparedness tasks, defined capabilities to accomplish those tasks grouped by the vulnerability of the jurisdiction, and performance metrics for each capability, as defined in the draft National Preparedness Goal. The conferees further direct SLGCP to establish a comprehensive rollout strategy to educate state and local jurisdictions on the finalized National Preparedness Goal. The conferees include bill language requiring SLGCP to provide state and local jurisdictions with nationally accepted preparedness levels of first responder capabilities no later than January 31, 2005; include in the fiscal year 2005 formula-based grant guidance guidelines for the states to adopt national preparedness standards in fiscal year 2006; and issue final guidance on the implementation of the National Preparedness Goal, as required in Homeland Security Presidential Directive 8, no later than March 31, 2005.

FIREFIGHTER ASSISTANCE GRANTS

The conferees agree to provide $715,000,000 instead of $650,000,000 as proposed by the House and $750,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. Of this amount, $65,000,000 shall be for firefighter staffing, as authorized by section 34 of the Federal Fire Prevention and Control Act of 1974, instead of $50,000,000 as proposed by the House. The Senate proposed $100,000,000 for this purpose in a separate account. Not to exceed 5 percent may be used for administrative expenses. Funds are available until September 30, 2006.

The conferees are concerned by the Department's proposed shift in grant focus from all-hazards to placing priority on terrorism, and the proposed deletion of several eligible activities, specifically, wellness and fitness programs, emergency medical services, fire prevention programs, public education programs, and modifications of facilities for health and safety of personnel. The Department should continue the present practice of funding applications according to local priorities and those established by the United States Fire Administration (USFA); reinstate all previously eligible funding areas, continue direct funding of grants to fire departments and the peer review process for determining funding awards; and include the USFA during grant administration. The conferees further direct the Department to continue the practice of allowing the Alaska Village Initiatives to apply for grants on behalf of Alaskan communities, and make $3,000,000 available for implementation of section 205(c) of Public Law 108-129, the United States Fire Administration Reauthorization Act of 2003.

EMERGENCY MANAGEMENT PERFORMANCE GRANTS

The conferees agree to provide $180,000,000 instead of $236,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. The House proposed $170,000,000 under State and Local Programs. Not to exceed 3 percent may be used for administrative expenses.

The conferees agree that Emergency Management Performance Grants (EMPG) are vital to state and local emergency management systems, and therefore do not agree to shift from an all-hazards to a terrorism-specific focus or to limit personnel expenses to 25 percent. The conferees direct the Department to continue funding personnel expenses without a limit and to continue current grant administrative practices, including grant allocation, in a manner identical to fiscal year 2004. Despite the consolidation of selected grant award functions within SLGCP, the conferees agree that EMPG subject matter experts will remain within EP&R and SLGCP shall continue to include these experts in the review of grant applications, determination of eligibility, and making award determinations. Furthermore, the conferees expect the EP&R regional emergency managers' relationship with state and local governments to continue.

COUNTERTERRORISM FUND

The conferees agree to provide $8,000,000 instead of $10,000,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate. Funds are available until expended. The Secretary shall notify the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations 15 days prior to obligation of these funds.

EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE

OFFICE OF THE UNDER SECRETARY FOR EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS AND RESPONSE

The conferees agree to provide $4,211,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate.

The conferees direct the Emergency Preparedness and Response (EP&R) Directorate to continue the practice of making balances from funds appropriated for disaster relief for the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, available to New York State at the request of the Governor of New York in coordination with the Mayor of New York City. Of the amounts available, $4,450,000 shall be for Project Liberty for personnel, families, and retirees of the New York City Fire Department and New York City Police Department, if requested by the Governor of New York.

PREPAREDNESS, MITIGATION, RESPONSE, AND RECOVERY

The conferees agree to provide $239,499,000 instead of $210,499,000 as proposed by the House and $231,499,000 as proposed by the Senate.

URBAN SEARCH AND RESCUE

Of the funds provided for Preparedness, Mitigation, Response, and Recovery, the conferees agree to provide $30,000,000 for Urban Search and Rescue Teams as proposed by the Senate, instead of $7,000,000 as proposed by the House. Not to exceed 3 percent may be used for administrative expenses.

EMERGENCY HOUSING PLAN

Of the funds provided for Preparedness, Mitigation, Response, and Recovery, the conferees agree to provide $2,000,000, as proposed by the House, in support of EP&R's emergency housing plan to evaluate and deploy new housing solutions which can be used in conjunction with traditional response and recovery solutions. These new solutions shall be collapsible so that they may stack for economical shipping and storage, expand during assembly to increase usable space, be sturdy enough to ensure multiple reuse in future deployments, and address both housing and other infrastructure needs. In light of recent natural disasters, the conferees and EP&R believe this evaluation of new housing and infrastructure solutions is very timely. The conferees direct a report on the evaluation and deployment of these new housing solutions be submitted to the House and Senate Appropriations Committees no later than January 14, 2005, and that emergency housing and infrastructure requirements be submitted with the fiscal year 2006 budget request.

NATIONAL INCIDENT MANAGEMENT SYSTEM (NIMS)

Of the funds provided for Preparedness, Mitigation, Response, and Recovery, the conferees agree to provide $15,000,000 instead of $7,000,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate. The conferees expect the Department to implement a program concept for the NIMS Integration Center (NIC) that is anchored in multiple locations serving regional interests. As part of the NIMS mission the conferees strongly encourage the Department to establish regional centers to facilitate the development and deployment of NIMS training, education and publications.

MINORITY EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS DEMONSTRATION PROGRAM

The conferees continue to be concerned with EP&R's slow progress in the implementation of the Minority Emergency Preparedness Demonstration Program. Notwithstanding the draft outline for such a program shared with the Committees earlier this year and the direction of the Committees over the past three years to implement this program, EP&R has not acted. The conferees direct EP&R to develop a pilot program for socio-economically disadvantaged communities and underrepresented members of the population that assesses and analyzes the preparation and response of these communities and individuals to a widespread disaster affecting multiple states and regions. The program should utilize information gathered from organizations such as community based organizations, faith-based institutions, historically black colleges and universities, and private organizations and businesses serving socio-economically disadvantaged communities and underrepresented populations. The Department is directed to implement this pilot program no later than December 1, 2004; if this program is not implemented by December 1, 2004, the Secretary is to provide a written justification to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations as to why this direction is not being followed.

SHOCKOE CREEK

The conferees direct EP&R to conduct an investigation of the Shockoe Creek drain field in Richmond, Virginia, to determine means of preventing future damage in that area from floods and other natural disasters.

OPERATING EXPENSES

(RESCISSION OF FUNDS)

The conferees rescind $5,000,000 of the funds provided by Public Law 108-11.

ADMINISTRATIVE AND REGIONAL OPERATIONS

The conferees agree to provide $202,939,000 instead of $203,939,000 as proposed by the House and $196,939,000 as proposed by the Senate. Within these funds, the conferees agree to provide $6,000,000 for the Document Management Support Program, instead of $7,000,000 as proposed by the House. Funding of not to exceed $3,000 is provided for official reception and representation funds as proposed by the Senate instead of $4,000 as proposed by the House.

PUBLIC HEALTH PROGRAMS

The conferees agree to provide $34,000,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate.

BIODEFENSE COUNTERMEASURES

The conferees agree with the budget estimate to make available in fiscal year 2005, $2,528,000,000 in obligation authority for fiscal years 2005-2008 pursuant to Public Law 108-90.

RADIOLOGICAL EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS PROGRAM

The conferees agree to provide for the receipt and expenditure of fees collected, as authorized by Public Law 105-276, as proposed by both the House and Senate.

DISASTER RELIEF

The conferees agree to provide $2,042,380,000 as proposed by the House instead of $2,221,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. The conferees do not agree to include $70,000,000 in emergency funding for the American Red Cross, as proposed by the Senate. These funds are addressed in the fiscal year 2004 emergency supplemental, as requested by the President on September 14, 2004.

The conferees direct the Under Secretary for Emergency Preparedness and Response to place special emphasis on the recruitment of American Indians, Alaska Natives, Native Hawaiians, and other minorities for positions within Disaster Assistance Employee cadres maintained by EP&R. The Under Secretary shall provide to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations a report no later than 100 days after enactment of this Act which assesses the representation of American Indians, Alaska Natives, Native Hawaiians, and other minorities in the Disaster Assistance Employee cadres. The report should also identify recruitment strategies to increase the representation of such individuals in the cadres.

DISASTER ASSISTANCE DIRECT LOAN PROGRAM ACCOUNT

The conferees agree to provide $567,000 for administrative expenses as proposed by both the House and Senate. Gross obligations for the principal amount of direct loans shall not exceed $25,000,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate.

FLOOD MAP MODERNIZATION FUND

The conferees agree to provide $200,000,000 as proposed by the Senate instead of $150,000,000 as proposed by the House. The conferees do not agree to Senate report language regarding the National Service Provider.

NATIONAL FLOOD INSURANCE FUND
(INCLUDING TRANSFER OF FUNDS)

The conferees agree to provide $33,336,000 for salaries and expenses as proposed by both the House and Senate. The conferees further agree to provide up to $79,257,000 for flood mitigation activities and limitations of $55,000,000 for operating expenses, $562,881,000 for agents' commissions and taxes, and $30,000,000 for interest on Treasury borrowings as proposed by both the House and Senate.

NATIONAL FLOOD MITIGATION FUND

The conferees agree to provide $20,000,000 by transfer from the National Flood Insurance Fund as proposed by the House. The Senate proposed $20,000,000 for flood mitigation by transfer under Mitigation Grant Programs. Funds are available until September 30, 2006.

NATIONAL PRE-DISASTER MITIGATION FUND

The conferees agree to provide $100,000,000 as proposed by the House. The Senate proposed $150,000,000 for pre-disaster mitigation under Mitigation Grant Programs. Not to exceed 3 percent may be used for administrative expenses. Funds are available until expended.

The conferees are concerned by EP&R's slow progress in awarding fiscal year 2003 pre-disaster mitigation grants. These grants were only recently awarded and an excessive unobligated balance remains. The conferees direct EP&R to report no later than February 15, 2005, on any changes it intends to make in future grants, including an expedition and reasonable obligation plan for awarding all unobligated funds. The report shall also describe feedback received from state hazard mitigation officers and an assessment of ways to streamline the application and award process.

EMERGENCY FOOD AND SHELTER

The conferees agree to provide $153,000,000 as proposed by both the House and Senate. Not to exceed 3.5 percent may be used for administrative expenses. Funds are available until expended.

TITLE IV—RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TRAINING, ASSESSMENTS, AND SERVICES

CITIZENSHIP AND IMMIGRATION SERVICES
SALARIES AND EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $160,000,000, as proposed by the House, instead of $140,000,000 as proposed by the Senate. This includes $140,000,000 for backlog elimination, as well as $20,000,000 for the historical records project to convert immigration records into an electronic, digitally-accessible format. The conferees direct that no funding for the historical record project may be obligated until U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services (CIS) submits a detailed expenditure plan to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations for approval. Current estimates of examination fee collections, which constitute the majority of offsetting resources for CIS are $1,571,000,000. The conferees direct that not to exceed $5,000 of these collections shall be for official reception and representation expenses, as proposed by the House.

The following table specifies funding by budget activity, and includes both direct appropriations and estimated collections:

REGIONAL SERVICE CENTERS

The conferees direct the Department to evaluate the distribution of staff and resources among the four CIS regional service centers, and submit a report no later than December 1, 2004, with recommendations to normalize the petition processing times across the regional centers.

BENEFIT FRAUD

The conferees have agreed to the Administration's request to increase the resources available for benefit fraud enforcement by decreasing the funds available to Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) from the examinations fee account, and leaving those resources available to CIS, as proposed in the House report. These resources are to fund the Office of Fraud Detection and National Security (FDNS) Unit, as called for by the Government Accountability Office. The FDNS unit is responsible for developing, implementing, directing, and overseeing the joint CIS-ICE anti-fraud initiative, and conducting law enforcement/background checks on every applicant, beneficiary, and petitioner prior to granting any immigration benefits. CIS is to report by July 1, 2005, to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on the progress in implementing the joint anti-fraud initiative.

The conferees do not provide $2,000,000, as requested, for the transfer of the CBP Advanced Training Facility. At the department's request, the conferees do not include $2,000,000 for the pay for performance demonstration project.

ACQUISITION, CONSTRUCTION, IMPROVEMENTS, AND RELATED EXPENSES

The conferees agree to provide $44,917,000, instead of $37,917,000 as proposed by the House and $42,917,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funds above the budget request include $5,000,000 for renovation and construction needs at the Artesia, New Mexico, training center, as proposed by the Senate, and $2,000,000 for renovation and construction needs at the Charleston, South Carolina, training center.

FACILITIES MASTER PLAN

An updated facilities Master Plan that identifies unfunded training facilities construction and renovation needs has not been submitted to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations. The conferees direct FLETC to submit an updated Master Plan with the fiscal year 2006 budget request.

INFORMATION ANALYSIS AND INFRASTRUCTURE PROTECTION

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

The conferees agree to provide $132,064,000 for management and administration to support 803 full-time equivalent positions as proposed by the House instead of $137,064,000 as proposed by the Senate. This includes $5,864,000 for the Office of the Under Secretary and $126,200,000 for other salaries and expenses. Funding of $35,000,000 for the Homeland Security Operations Center is funded under Assessments and Evaluation as proposed by the House. Within the amounts provided, not to exceed $5,000 is available for official reception and representation expenses as proposed by the House. The Senate proposed $20,000 in the Assessments and Evaluations account.

The conferees agree to provide $22,940,000 for protective security field operations and expect that the deployment of personnel will be executed in accordance with direction provided in the House report.

Critical infrastructure identification and evaluation	77,861,000
National infrastructure simulation and analysis center (NISAC)	20,000,000
Protective actions	191,647,000
Biosurveillance	11,000,000
Cyber security	67,380,000

Total, Assessments and Evaluations	761,644,000
--	-------------

The conferees have included up to $3,000,000 for the Under Secretary of Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection (IAIP) to complete an analysis of whether the Department should require private sector entities to provide IAIP existing information about their security measures and vulnerabilities in order to improve IAIP's ability to evaluate critical infrastructure protections nationwide. The analysis should include all critical infrastructure, including chemical plants, evaluate the costs to the private sector for implementing such a requirement, the benefits of securing the information, and costs to IAIP to implement this requirement. The conferees direct the Government Accountability Office to review the quality of IAIP's analysis and report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations within three months after the analysis is complete.

The conferees have included bill language requiring the Under Secretary for IAIP to provide a quarterly report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on all sole-source contractual agreements. The report shall include a listing of all sole-source contracts entered into, the recipient, the purpose of the contract, and a detailed explanation of why the competitive process was not followed. The conferees direct that the first report be submitted by November 15, 2004, and subsequent reports be submitted no later than 30 days following the completion of each quarter of the fiscal year.

CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE OUTREACH AND PARTNERSHIPS

The conferees agree to provide $106,592,000 instead of $91,592,000 as proposed by the Senate and $71,592,000 as proposed by the House.

The conferees agree to provide $35,000,000 for computer hosting of departmental applications, network connectivity, and critical data storage under the direction of the Department's Chief Information Officer.

CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE IDENTIFICATION AND EVALUATION

The conferees agree to provide $77,861,000 as proposed by the House, instead of $64,730,000 as proposed by the Senate.

NATIONAL INFRASTRUCTURE SIMULATION AND ANALYSIS CENTER

The conferees agree to provide $20,000,000 instead of $16,000,000 as proposed by the House and $23,105,000 as proposed by the Senate.

The conferees direct the Protective Security Division to obligate funds previously made available by Public Law 108-7 for the NISAC at the earliest date possible.

PROTECTIVE ACTIONS

The conferees agree to provide $191,647,000 as proposed by the House instead of $193,673,000 as proposed by the Senate.

NATIONAL ASSET DATABASE

The conferees are aware that the National Asset Database (NADB), an inventory of the nation's critical infrastructure and key resources compiled from federal, state, local, and private sector input, now includes information on approximately 30,000 assets, some 2,000 of which are considered of critical importance. Although IAIP continues to populate and refine the NADB, the Protective Security Division (PSD) has already begun completing Buffer Zone Protection Plans (BZPPs) for the sites it contains. These BZPPs are efforts to reduce vulnerabilities by extending the protected area from the critical infrastructure site out into the community. The conferees strongly support this initiative, and direct PSD to complete BZPPs for all critical assets in the NADB by the end of fiscal year 2005.

RAIL CORRIDOR SECURITY

The conferees are aware that security measures are being implemented to improve the security of the Washington, DC, rail corridor through the cooperative efforts of freight rail operators, local law enforcement and first responders, and the federal government with the objective of reducing the risk of a terrorist attack on rail cars carrying hazardous materials. The conferees direct PSD to use existing resources within Protective Actions to begin applying this concept to other major metropolitan areas.

DEVELOPMENT OF PROTOCOLS, POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

While the conferees are supportive of the efforts of IAIP to implement protective measures using the funds provided within Protective Actions, the conferees are concerned about the lack of written protocols, policies, and procedures governing the use of these funds. The conferees believe that without such guidelines, there exists the potential for duplication of effort between this account and other funding sources, such as grant programs within the Office of State and Local Government Coordination and Preparedness, as well as the possibility that funds could be used in ways that might not be consistent with the overall goals of the Department's critical infrastructure protection efforts. In addition to the funds provided in the Act, the conferees are aware of unobligated balances that remain available for these purposes from prior year appropriations. The conferees direct IAIP to develop appropriate written guidelines for the use of Protective Actions funds for buffer zone protection plans and grants that preserve needed flexibility, while preventing potential duplication or misapplication, and to provide a report regarding this policy to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations no later than November 30, 2004.

CYBER SECURITY

The conferees agree to provide $67,380,000 as proposed by both the House and the Senate. The conferees agree to include $3,500,000 for "live wire" cyber exercises to build upon previous similar terrorist attacks on the Nation's cyber infrastructure to demonstrate the impact of a cyber-based attack on critical infrastructures and to highlight the interdependencies among critical infrastructures and underscore the requirement for enhanced cross-sector cooperation.

The conferees support the National Cyber Security Division's (NCS) efforts to monitor, predict, and prevent cyber attacks, and to minimize the damage and efficiently recover from attacks. The conferees encourage the NCS to identify, assess, and implement preventative measures with organizations providing public health needs.

COMPETITIVE ANALYSIS AND EVALUATION

The conferees agree to provide $4,000,000 instead of $3,868,000 as proposed by the House and $18,868,000 as proposed by the Senate.

HOMELAND SECURITY OPERATIONS CENTER

The conferees agree to provide $35,000,000 as proposed by the House. Funding of $35,000,000 for the Homeland Security Operations Center was proposed by the Senate under the Management and Administration account.

NATIONAL ALERTS

The conferees support the Department's use of the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) all-hazards weather radio system as the foundation for the Homeland Security Advisory System and provide $10,000,000 for fiscal year 2005, the same amount provided in fiscal year 2004. These funds are for the distribution of NOAA radios to schools throughout the country on a priority basis and for satellite, digital broadcast, and other advanced technologies to disseminate vital warning information to ensure that the general public can more effectively be warned about terrorist threats and other emergencies. For fiscal year 2004 and fiscal year 2005 funds, the conferees expect the Department to adhere to Section 102(b)(2) of Public Law 107-296 in purchasing and distributing the NOAA radios to schools as deemed appropriate by the Secretary.

The conferees direct the Secretary to work with the Chairman of the Federal Communications Commission to develop a legislative solution for a universal system for broadcasting national alerts. This will alleviate the need for separate negotiations between the Department and radio broadcasters, television broadcasters, and other telecommunications providers.

SCIENCE AND TECHNOLOGY (S&T)

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

The conferees agree to provide $68,586,000 for management and administration to include 320 full-time equivalent positions as proposed by the House, instead of $42,550,000 as proposed by the Senate. Within the amounts provided, not to exceed $3,000 is available for official reception and representation expenses. The funding includes $6,315,000 for the immediate Office of the Under Secretary and $62,271,000 for other salaries and expenses. The conferees consolidate all salary expenses in one account and the recommendation reflects the salaries and expenses for laboratory facilities, including the National Biodefense Analysis and Countermeasures Center (NBACC), the Plum Island Animal Disease Center and the Environmental Measurements Laboratory previously funded under S&T's program account.

The conferees are concerned about the substantial lack of communication within the management of S&T, which has resulted in misinformation being provided to Congress. The conferees strongly encourage S&T to review their management practices to improve upon internal communications. The conferees believe S&T should move expeditiously to develop a policy regarding the use of national laboratories, and direct S&T to report to the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations on this policy no later than October 15, 2004.

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, ACQUISITION, AND OPERATIONS

The conferees agree to provide $1,046,864,000 instead of $1,063,713,000 as proposed by the House and $1,016,647,000 as proposed by the Senate. Funds are allocated as follows:

	Amount
Biological countermeasures	$362,650,000

TITLE V—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 501. The conferees continue a provision that no part of any appropriation shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly provided.

Section 502. The conferees continue a provision that unexpended balances of prior appropriations may be merged with new appropriations accounts and used for the same purpose, subject to reprogramming guidelines.

Section 503. The conferees continue and modify a provision that provides authority to reprogram appropriations within an account and to transfer not to exceed 5 percent between appropriations accounts with 15-day advance notification of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations. A detailed funding table identifying each Congressional control level for reprogramming purposes is included at the end of this Report. These reprogramming guidelines shall be complied with by all agencies funded by the Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act, 2005.

The conferees expect the Department to submit reprogramming requests on a timely basis, and to provide complete explanations of the reallocations proposed, including detailed justifications of the increases and offsets, and any specific impact the proposed changes will have on the budget request for the following fiscal year and future-year appropriations requirements. Each request submitted to the House and Senate Committees should include a detailed table showing the proposed revisions at the account, program, project, and activity level to the funding and staffing (full-time equivalent position) levels for the current fiscal year and to the levels requested in the President's budget for the following fiscal year.

The conferees expect the Department to manage its programs and activities within the levels appropriated. The conferees are concerned with the number of reprogramming proposals submitted for consideration by the Department and remind the Department that reprogramming or transfer requests should be submitted only in the case of an unforeseeable emergency, or a situation that could not have been predicted when formulating the budget request for the current fiscal year. Further, the conferees note that when the Department submits a reprogramming or transfer request to the Committees on Appropriations and does not receive identical responses from the House and Senate, it is the responsibility of the Department to reconcile the House and Senate differences before proceeding, and if reconciliation is not possible, to consider the reprogramming or transfer request unapproved.

The conferees would also like to clarify that this section applies to the Department's Working Capital Fund and that no funds may be obligated from the Working Capital Fund to fund programs, projects, or activities for which appropriations have been specifically rejected by the Congress, to initiate new programs or activities, or to augment the funds or personnel for any program, project, or activity above the levels appropriated by this Act.

The Department is not to propose a reprogramming or transfer of funds after June 30th unless there are exceptional or extraordinary circumstances such that lives or property are placed in imminent danger.

Section 504. The conferees continue a provision that not to exceed 50 percent of unobligated balances remaining at the end of fiscal year 2005 from appropriations made for salaries and expenses shall remain available through fiscal year 2006 subject to reprogramming guidelines.

Section 506. The conferees continue a provision that directs FLETC to establish an accrediting body to establish standards for assessing federal law enforcement training programs, facilities, and instructors.

Section 507. The conferees continue and modify a provision that requires notification of the House and Senate Committees on Appropriations 3 business days before any grant allocation, discretionary grant award, discretionary contract award, or letter of intent totaling $1,000,000 or more is announced by the Department.

Section 509. The conferees modify and continue a provision that FLETC shall schedule basic and/or advanced law enforcement training at all four training facilities under its control to ensure that these training centers are operated at the highest capacity.

Section 511. The conferees continue and make permanent a provision that none of the funds may be used to require airport sponsors to provide building modifications, utilities and expenses, or space to the TSA without cost for services related to aviation security.

Section 512. The conferees continue a provision that none of the funds may be used in contravention of the Buy American Act.

Section 513. The conferees continue and modify a provision that directs the Department to research, develop, and procure certified systems to inspect and screen air cargo on passenger aircraft at the earliest date possible, to enhance the known shipper program, and to triple the percentage of cargo inspected on passenger aircraft. TSA shall require cargo screened on passenger aircraft to meet the tripling threshold as measured by the average percentage of cargo inspected per day, per airline, per airport. The current minimum per flight shall also be maintained.

Section 514. The conferees include a new provision that directs the Commandant of the Coast Guard to provide to Congress a list of approved but unfunded priorities each year at the time that the President's budget is submitted, as proposed by the House.

The conferees direct that this authority be used to expeditiously process background investigations, including updates and reinvestigations, as necessary.

Section 522. The conferees continue and modify a provision that prohibits the use of funds for deployment or implementation of CAPPs II, Secure Flight, or other follow on/successor programs until certain conditions are met.

Section 523. The conferees include a new provision that amends the Homeland Security Act to clarify the provision on contracting with foreign entities, as proposed by the House and Senate.

Section 524. The conferees include a new provision that directs that none of the funds may be used to amend the oath of allegiance required by section 337 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1448), as proposed by the House and the Senate.

Section 525. The conferees include a new provision setting the fiscal year 2004 overtime limitation at $30,000 for Customs and Border Protection (CBP), as proposed by the Senate. The conferees modify the Senate language to eliminate reductions to CBP's salaries and expenses appropriation.

Section 526. The conferees include a new provision regarding notifications.

Section 527. The conferees include a new provision regarding competitive sourcing, as proposed by the House. The Senate bill contained a similar provision.

Section 528. CONFERENCE REPORT ON H.R. 4567, DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY APPROPRIATIONS ACT, 2005

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that it be in order at any time to consider a conference report to accompany H.R. 4567; that the conference report be considered as read; and that all points of order against the conference report and against its consideration be waived.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, might I inquire of the gentleman from Kentucky if the conference report we have today as it relates to Homeland Security, his word was, 2 days ago, titles I through V absent VI, I guess we were talking about, is it identical as to what our agreement was of several days ago?

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABO. I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, the conference report that is being filed is precisely as it was when we left conference.

Mr. SABO. So, Mr. Speaker, there have been no changes or additions or deletions?

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Correct.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABO. I yield to the gentleman from Wisconsin.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding to me.

So let me be explicit. Does that mean that there is no change whatsoever from the decision made in the conference when the conference approved A-76?

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman yield?

Mr. SABO. I yield to the gentleman from Kentucky.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is correct.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman would continue to yield under his reservation, I at this point do not plan to object, but under the reservation of the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO), I just want to make one point. I referred earlier to what is happening in this House, when we see decisions made by subcommittees routinely overturned when somebody does not like them. I do not want to object, because this bill is a serious matter involving homeland security, but I must note that we are cooperating procedurally on this side of the aisle, even though this conference was gaveled to an end in a manner which prevented me from being able to get a vote on the matter that I discussed earlier on the previous bill, and in my judgment that was a slap in the face, not just to me, but to every member of the conference on both sides of the aisle who were prepared to support that motion.

I think that when this House routinely allows votes to be reversed, as they were on the Medicare bill weeks ago, or when they allow conference committees to block what is clearly the action of the majority will in the subcommittees, then this House might as well not operate at all. We might as well just wire our respective buttons to our respective party leaders' offices and go get a steak somewhere for the remainder of the year.

Mr. Speaker, I am pleased to hear that the A-76 provision has not been arbitrarily removed. I wish I could say the same thing with respect to the extension of the milk program to which I referred several weeks ago.

Mr. Speaker, I will not object to consideration of the bill.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my reservation of objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, pursuant to the previous order of the House, I call up the conference report on the bill (H.R. 4567) making appropriations for the Department of Homeland Security for the fiscal year ending September 30, 2005, and for other purposes, and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the title of the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to the order of the House of today, the conference report is considered read.

(For conference report and statement, see immediately prior proceedings of the House of today.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS) and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO) will each control 30 minutes.

The Chair recognizes the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS).

GENERAL LEAVE

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that all Members may have 5 legislative days within which to revise and extend their remarks and include extraneous material on the conference report to accompany H.R. 4567, and that I may include tabular material.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Kentucky?

There was no objection.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, my intention is to be brief, and I hope that the debate today is brief because of the hour and the day of the week and the day of the session.

Mr. Speaker, I am very pleased to present to the body the second-ever conference report for the Department of Homeland Security. This agreement provides $32 billion for the Department. That is $1.1 billion above the current level and $496 million over the President's request. These amounts exclude the $2 billion supplemental provided in September for Hurricanes Charlie and Francis, as well as the $6.5 billion in supplemental funding formally included in as part of this bill for Ivan and Jeanne. Including these funds, the Department will receive $38.5 billion in fiscal year 2005.

Mr. Speaker, I would be remiss if I did not mention my concerns over attempts to add extraneous matters to this bill. I appreciate the desire by some people to attach legislative riders to appropriations bills. After all, appropriations bills are must-do legislation. However, these attempts, and in particular the actions taken by the other body to add extraneous matter, have led to unnecessary delays in the consideration of this bill that funds important homeland security programs.

My colleagues might be interested to know that FEMA is running out of money. Despite the $2 billion given to FEMA just 4 weeks ago, the pot is almost empty, practically drained dry. There is an unprecedented amount of work to be done in the country because of Hurricanes Charlie, Francis, Ivan and Jeanne, and, simply put, without some very creative accounting, FEMA would be out of money today.

I am pleased that the Military Construction conference agreement includes emergency funds to help Florida, especially, recover from the devastation of the recent hurricanes, providing an additional $5.6 billion for those efforts.

Mr. Speaker, in just one year, the Department of Homeland Security has made tremendous progress. More work obviously needs to be done, but the Department, I think, is clearly on the right track, identifying our vulnerabilities, matching them to threats and putting out guidance on ways to protect our homeland. The conference agreement builds upon the successes of the past year and includes initiatives to move us closer to our goals of prevention, preparedness and response.

In the interests of time, Mr. Speaker, I would like to highlight just a few of the items included in the proposed agreement, items I know are of interest to all of the Members.

First, there is $4 billion in the bill for our first responders. The agreement strikes a balance between funding high-risk communities and providing support for States and localities to achieve and maintain minimum levels of preparedness.

The bill includes $1.1 billion for the basic formula grants and $1.2 billion to improve security in our urban and most populated areas.

There is $9.8 billion in the bill for border protection and related activities, including $145 million for new inspection and detection technologies. There is $340 million for the U.S. Visit Program, and there is $1.1 billion for detention and removal operations on our borders. The conferees provide $26.5 million in new funding to provide 750 additional beds for detainees, permit removal of 5,000 additional deportable aliens, and reduce the risk that such aliens will be released into our communities while they await deportation.

This funding will also advance our efforts to create smart borders that keep terrorists out without stemming the flow of free commerce or legitimate travel into and from the country.

Thirdly, the conference agreement supports security for all modes of transportation, including $5.1 billion for the Transportation Security Administration, with $673 million for our Federal air marshals program. There is $118 million in the bill for air cargo screening, which we hear so much about. This money will support the hiring of 100 new air cargo inspectors, the development of new cargo screening technology and the expansion of canine enforcement teams. The bill also requires TSA to triple the number of cargo inspections on passenger aircraft.

Let me repeat that, Mr. Speaker, in case someone may have questioned what I said. This bill requires the Transportation Security Administration to triple the number of cargo inspections on passenger planes.

The agreement also funds several initiatives for rail security, including $150 million for grants to high threat rail systems, hiring and deploying rail security inspectors and canine teams to screen for explosives and furthering intelligence-related activities.

Also, Mr. Speaker, there is $1.1 billion for science and technology, targeting the research and development of technologies to detect biohazards and nuclear detection technology for cargo. We also continue to fully fund R&D for anti-missile devices aimed at commercial aircraft.

Finally, there is $894 million for the information analysis and infrastructure protection. That is a mouthful, but it is to complete an inventory of critical infrastructure in the country, enhance current communications between Federal, State and local homeland security personnel, interoperability, if you will, and to assist local communities as they put protective measures in place to protect our hometowns.

Mr. Speaker, the important work of the Department of Homeland Security cannot be emphasized enough. I believe this conference agreement builds on the progress of the past year and substantially furthers the protection of our homeland. I urge my colleagues to support it.

Mr. Speaker, the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee will soon bid farewell to our Congressional Fellow, Lt. Ben Nicholson, who has served the Committee on Appropriations over the past three years in two different Subcommittees.

Lt. Ben Nicholson has been detailed to the Committee from the United States Coast Guard since 2001. He served initially with the Transportation Subcommittee; spent a year helping establish the new Transportation-Treasury Subcommittee; and this year came to work with the Homeland Security Subcommittee. Mr. Speaker, the Appropriations Committee had never had a detailee from the Coast Guard. Lt. Ben Nicholson was a pathbreaker for the service in that role, and he performed admirably. He did everything we asked of him, with pinpoint accuracy and usually ahead of time. I would also add that he served the Committee during interesting times, perhaps more interesting than he imagined when he accepted the job. Eight months after he began, the 9/11 terrorist attacks occurred. Immediately after that, the anthrax attacks occurred. He assisted the Committee in overseeing the establishment of the Transportation Security Administration, including key analysis, which demonstrated the overstaffing of screening personnel in smaller airports. He made sure that shipbuilding loans for the Maritime Administration were contingent upon management improvements in the contracting and oversight process. And he properly evaluated, and helped us provide for, critical facility repairs at MARAD's James River Reserve Fleet, which was devastated by Hurricane Isabel last year. Ben's maritime experience and background were simply invaluable to our Committee.

On the Homeland Subcommittee, we have benefited from the experience Lt. Nicholson gained as a Coast Guard Officer, in particular his insights into the operations of a complex military organization that is combined with a large domestic agency. He has superb analytical skills that have been critical in our review of a $32 billion budget request and in developing complex spreadsheets that synthesize funding issues into easily understood documents we have used in hearings, closed briefings, in Full Committee, and on the floor. His infectious energy, his focus, and superb analytic and technical skills have also helped keep the momentum for this bill moving forward. His high standards of professionalism and thoroughness are beyond reproach, and his contributions have been highly valued.

Through all of this, Ben maintained the decorum and professionalism that we have all come to expect from our military officer corps, and he has represented the Coast Guard with the highest integrity and competence. Lt. Nicholson has served me, this Subcommittee, the Transportation-Treasury Subcommittee, and the House well. We are sorry to see him leave, and will miss him as our colleague—but are glad to count him as a friend. Each of us on the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee wish Ben all the best as he moves forward in his career, where we anticipate seeing great things of him in the coming years.

I am grateful for his contributions.

Mr. Speaker, the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee will soon bid farewell to our Congressional Fellow, Brian Dunlop, who has served the Committee on Appropriations over the past 2 years in two different Subcommittees.

Mr. Dunlop will soon be leaving to resume duties as a senior Special Agent for the U.S. Secret Service. Special Agent Dunlop came to the former Treasury-Postal Subcommittee during the summer of 2002, and has proven himself indispensable to the smooth functioning of the Committee during the intense period surrounding the planning for, and inauguration of, the new Homeland Security Department and the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee. His strong understanding of organizational dynamics, of operational issues and real-world, real-time considerations for building a successful new Department contributed significantly to the success of this subcommittee. Brian brought to the appropriations process clear, thoughtful analysis and mature judgment developed in his successful career in criminal investigation and protective operations. He has clearly mastered the technical issues and folkways of the appropriations process and he undoubtedly has as good a working knowledge of the nooks and crannies of the Department of Homeland Security as anyone working there.

Special Agent Dunlop has provided insight into sensitive law enforcement and security matters involved in setting up and overseeing DHS in its capacity as the newest member of the Intelligence Community. In this capacity, he facilitated the work of this Subcommittee by developing detailed analyses, preparing classified briefings, writing easy to understand fact-sheets and briefing packages on extremely technical issues; and developing and implementing complicated oversight travel for the Subcommittee. Brian has also been the "go to" man when the Subcommittee required answers on crosscutting law enforcement issues, such as coordinating the security efforts of multiple agencies during high threat periods; as well as developing consistency in professional standards, training, and gun use policies throughout DHS.

Brian was instrumental in evaluating the need to deploy Infrastructure Protection personnel to states and localities, whose responsibility will be to work with the public and private sector to implement security measures to protect critical infrastructure. His analysis and recommendations will have lasting effects, as protective security advisors will now be on site in every state in order to better secure our nation's infrastructure.

Throughout his service here, Brian has shown unqualified professionalism, perception, and the great combination of a keen sense of humor, a cool head, and a modesty rarely seen on Capitol Hill. Special Agent Dunlop has served me, this Subcommittee, and the House well. We are sorry to see him leave, and will miss him as our colleague—but are glad to count him as a friend. Each of us on the Homeland Security Appropriations Subcommittee wish Brian all the best as he moves forward in his career, where we anticipate seeing great things of him in the coming years.

I am grateful for his contributions.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, first let me congratulate the chairman on his work in presenting this bill to us and thank all the staff, both on the minority and majority, for their work in putting this bill together. This is a complicated bill and involved lots of hard work and many, many hours. I and all the Members appreciate the work they do for us.

I will vote for this bill, but not with a great deal of excitement. One thing one can say for this bill is that it represents a very significant improvement on the President's budget. I find it rare that any of the budgets that come from the President that relate to homeland security reflect much of what I hear in the popular media and in the popular discussion by the President and other members of the administration. Their proposals rarely reflect a point of view that homeland security is one of the highest priorities of our country.

Clearly, we made some improvements, and we have spent billions of dollars. My own judgment, however, is that the Department is much better on press releases than they are on accomplishments. Maybe they have an impossible task in terms of putting 22 different agencies into one agency in this period of time, but I still find that agency loaded with confusion, loaded with management problems, spending an incredible amount of time putting the basics together, shuffling boxes, trying to find out where money is, where money is not, all-of-a-sudden hiring freezes because somebody did not keep track of money. The basics are not there. So I think they have lots of work yet to do to focus their attention really on solving what is a significant problem in this country.

I have expressed at various times some of my specific concerns where I think they are significantly underfunding homeland security in the country, and I will not repeat those today. Let me just, however, raise one concern.

We clearly are moving backwards in funding first responders in this country.

Our total funding for first responders in this bill is less than it was last year. That simply does not make sense. There are some very specific programs that are being cut. One that I find very important is the Metropolitan Medical Response System, a program that predated the Department of Homeland Security, and it is being cut by around $20 million, close to a 40 percent cut. That simply does not make sense.

But for all the Members, I think they should be particularly concerned over what is happening with the formula-based grants program in this bill, and then further complicated by the Intelligence bill that we passed yesterday in the House and the bill that passed the Senate. Currently, the formula-based grants which flow to the States on the basis of population and for which they made plans on how they should be expended is $1.690 billion. That program is being reduced by close to $600 million in this bill, to $1.1 billion, a deep cut in formula funds that flow to the States, who it is going to hurt; and at the same time, we are upping the Urban Area Security Initiative by close to $200 million. But we are fundamentally taking money away from smaller States and from rural areas to fund the increase in the Urban Area Initiative Grant program.

Then, that is further complicated by the bill that passed the House yesterday; and it is my understanding the bill that passed the Senate. They would further reduce the formula grant back to only a basic guarantee to the States, a minimal amount, and leave everything else at the discretion of the Secretary. How the Secretary intends to distribute that fund, we do not know. We have asked and they have no answers.

So I would just suggest to all, to all of my colleagues who come from more rural areas, come from smaller-sized States, they are facing a disproportionate cut in local first responder funding in this bill in either the House or Senate Intelligence bills passed, and they will face an even deeper cut in the funding for local first responders, and I just simply think that is wrong.

Mr. Speaker, I reserve the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

We would not be here at this point in time without the gentleman whom I yield to next. This full chairman of our committee has been marvelous in this bill in helping us through. I believe this is the last of the appropriations bills that this full committee chairman will, in effect, manage before this body; and I know that he is enormously pleased with the passage, or soon to be passed, I am sure, of the MILCON bill that includes aid for his home State.

Mr. Speaker, we all owe a great debt of gratitude to this great public servant who has put up with all sorts of devilishness during the development of this bill, among others.

So I yield such time as he may consume to the honorable gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG), the chairman of the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time, and I take this time to say that these are the last appropriations matters that we will deal with prior to the election. But I want the Members to know that when we come back in November, we and our counterparts in the Senate will have worked during the break to try to provide for the rest of the appropriations bills, that have not been completed in an omnibus package that we hope will be able to conclude the business of the 108th Congress.

As we prepare to do that, I want to thank the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS), the chairman of this Subcommittee on Homeland Security, and the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO), the ranking member.

This is an extremely important piece of legislation. They have done a really great job. I can tell my colleagues that there have been many, many obstacles, and they have worked really hard around those obstacles, and they have produced a good product.

But none of this could have happened, and none of what we just did earlier on the Military Construction bill or the hurricane supplemental, without tremendous staff. When it is all said and done, and the Members have their debates and their arguments and have made decisions, there is an awful lot of staff work that has to be done to help make that happen, and then to produce the product that we write and consider on the floor.

I want to mention specifically the staff director and the clerk of the Committee on Appropriations, Jim Dyer; the full committee staff just across the hall from here, John Blazey, Dale Oak, Therese McAuliffe and John Scofield, and the others who work in the front office, Diann Kane, Sandy Farrow, John Howard and Jane Porter. Martin Delgado also had a big part of this supplemental on agricultural issues. Rich Efford was very heavily involved and responsible for much of the success in our transportation areas. Debbie Weatherly worked on Interior, and Kevin Cook on Energy and Water.

Others who have been important to the emergency supplemental, include Kevin Roper on Defense; Tim Peterson on VA-HUD; Carol Murphy on military construction and whose bill became the vehicle for the hurricane supplemental. And Michelle Mrdeza on homeland security, Mike Ringler on commerce and justice, John Shank on foreign operations, and Craig Higgins on Labor-HHS, all have been important on the supplemental. Additionally, all of the staff of our subcommittees and Rob Nabors, who is the chief clerk for the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), and I am sure that the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY) will supply the list of all of his staff have been important to this work. We would like to recognize all of them because they have done a really great job.

This is a good bill. After we vote on this Homeland Security bill, and when we vote on the Military Construction bill and the hurricane supplemental, I hope that then everyone will leave here in a relaxed mood and have a very safe journey home to do whatever it is they are going to do to campaign for reelection. I thank all of you for the support that you have given us. I really appreciate it.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Let me just say as a member of the Committee on Appropriations, I think there is no one on that committee that all of the Members have greater respect for than the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG). He amazes me to the degree that he keeps his calm and cool. While all of us scurry about with great excitement and angst, the person who stands there calmly and coolly and keeps our committee functioning is the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG). I have just incredible respect and admiration for the work that the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) has done these last 6 years as Chair of the committee. All of us have disagreements on policies and issues, but the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) has made it a pleasant committee to serve on, and I think all Members just thank the gentleman from Florida, deeply.

Mr. Speaker, I yield 5 minutes to the gentleman from Texas (Mr. TURNER).

Mr. TURNER of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman for yielding me this time.

I want to commend the gentleman from Kentucky (Chairman ROGERS) and the gentleman from Minnesota (Ranking Member SABO), the gentleman from Florida (Chairman YOUNG), and the gentleman from Wisconsin (Ranking Member OBEY) for their work on producing this conference report. I am pleased that the report contains more funding than was requested by the President.

However, it is clear that this conference report does not contain the level of resources needed to ensure that the Department of Homeland Security, our Border Patrol agents, our airport security workers, our port directors, and our first responders urgently need in order to make America safe.

This failure has occurred despite vigorous efforts to strengthen the bill. The ranking member of the House Committee on Appropriations, the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), and the ranking member of the Senate committee, Senator BYRD, attempted to add $2 billion to the conference report for critical homeland security needs; but, regrettably, they were defeated on a 9 to 8 vote.

We are at war against al Qaeda. Osama bin Laden declared one year after 9/11 that his goal is to kill 4 million Americans. Business as usual is not an option. Our terrorist enemies are not waiting. We must do all we can as fast as we can to protect this country.

The administration tells us regularly that al Qaeda may attack us anywhere, any time, and admits that we are not as safe as we must be. The bipartisan 9/11 Commission issued that same warning.

Faced with the reality of an imminent threat of another terrorist attack, the President requested only a 4.6 percent increase, about $1 billion, in our homeland security funding for this fiscal year. We spend that much in Iraq every week. In last night's debate, the President declared that he has tripled homeland security funding since 9/11. That $20 billion increase, however, is only 2 cents out of every dollar of Federal discretionary spending.

The gap between the rhetoric of protecting the homeland and the reality of protecting the homeland is wide indeed.

The fiscal policies and priorities of the President and the Republican leadership are a record of wrong choices while America is at war. While the President expresses pride in spending $20 billion more on homeland security last year than we spent in the year of 9/11, the President's tax cuts gave the top 1 percent of American taxpayers, those making over $1 million, four times that amount of tax cuts, all the while America is at war.

The reckless fiscal policy that has been pursued by the Republican leadership has resulted in our government borrowing $422 billion last year alone. This is half of all of the money we appropriated to fund the entire government last year.

For the first time in American history, we have sent young men and women into war while passing the burden of paying for it to the next generation.

The fact is, Mr. Speaker, we have not taken strong enough action in the wake of 9/11 to make our country safe from terrorist attack. Here are a few examples: America is not safe when we fail to install sufficient numbers of radiation detection monitors at all of our ports of entry. America is not safe when we fail to screen 100 percent of the cargo that travels on passenger planes. America is not safe when over 24,000 illegal immigrants from countries other than Mexico are caught, but released into our communities because the Department of Homeland Security lacks funding for detention space.

America is not safe when we screen only 5 percent of the 7 million cargo containers that enter our country each year for weapons of mass destruction. America is not safe when the government has only enough anthrax vaccine in our stockpile to inoculate 500 people. America is not safe when our Nation's first responders lack the equipment they need to talk to one another in the event of an emergency. America is not safe when the Department of Homeland Security's own Inspector General concludes that 3 years after 9/11 we still lack an integrated, comprehensive terrorist watch list. And America is not safe when our border inspectors and our police officers do not have access to the full range of information held by our government on terrorist suspects.

We all know that it is only a matter of time before al Qaeda strikes us again. Can we say in all honesty that we have made America as safe as we need to be if we increase our investment in protecting the American people here at home by no more than what we spend in 1 week in Iraq?

It is all about choices, and there can be no doubt that the American people will hold us accountable for the choices we make.

We are at war against al Qaeda. Usama Bin Laden declared 1 year after 9/11 that his goal is to kill 4 million Americans. "Business as usual" is not an option. Our terrorist enemies are not waiting. We must do all we can—as fast as we can—to protect our country.

The administration tells us regularly that al Qaeda may attack us anywhere, anytime—and admits we are not as safe as we must be. The bipartisan 9/11 Commission issued the same warning.

Faced with the reality of imminent threat of another terrorist attack, the President requested only a 4.6 percent increase—about $1 billion—in homeland security funding for this fiscal year—we spend that much in Iraq every week. In last night's debate, the President declared that he has tripled homeland security funding since 9/11. That $20 billion increase, however, is only 2 cents out of every dollar in fiscal discretionary spending.

The gap between the rhetoric of protecting the homeland and the reality of a real commitment to protect the homeland is wide indeed.

The fiscal policies and priorities of the President and the Republican leadership are a record of the wrong choices while America is at war.

While the President expresses pride in spending $20 billion more on homeland security last year than in the year of 9/11, the President's tax cuts gave the top 1 percent of American taxpayers—those making more than $1 million a year—four times that amount—all while America is at war.

This reckless fiscal policy has resulted in our government borrowing $422 billion last year alone—this is over one-half of all the money we appropriated last year to fund our entire government.

For the first time in American history, we have sent young men and women into war while passing the burden of paying for it on to their generation.

The fact is, Mr. Speaker, we have not taken strong action in the wake of 9/11 to make our country safe from terrorist attack. Let me give you some examples:

America is not safe when we secured less nuclear material in Russia and around the world in the two years after 9/11 than in the two years before 9/11.

America is not safe when we fail to install radiation detection monitors at all ports of entry and other critical sites.

America is not safe when we fail to screen 100 percent of the cargo that travels on passenger planes.

America is not safe when over 24,000 illegal immigrants from countries other than Mexico are caught but released into our communities because the Department of Homeland Security lacks detention space. Two years ago, on its website, al Qaeda took note of our porous borders.

America is not safe when we screen only 5 percent of the 7 million cargo containers that enter our country each year for weapons of mass destruction.

America is not safe when 120,000 hours of terrorist-related wiretap information lies untranslated at the FBI.

America is not safe when the government has only enough anthrax vaccine in our stockpile to inoculate 500 people.

America is not safe when we fail to aggressively deal with the threat of biological weapons by pursuing a "Manhattan Project" to shorten the time between the discovery of a "bug" and the development of a drug or vaccine to counter it.

America is not safe when cities like Chicago and New York have only 1 health care worker vaccinated for smallpox for every 40,000 people, and some States have only a couple of dozen health care workers vaccinated against smallpox to enable them to respond to a smallpox attack.

America is not safe when our Nation's first responders lack the ability and the equipment they need to talk to one another during an emergency.

America is not safe when the Department of Homeland Security's own Inspector General has concluded that 3 years after 9/11 we still lack an integrated, comprehensive terrorist watch list.

America is not safe when our border inspectors and police officers do not have access to the full range of information held by our government on terrorist suspects.

America is not safe when we fail to protect the thousands of chemical plants that could serve as "pre-positioned toxic weapons of mass destruction" if hit with explosives by terrorists.

America is not safe when we fail to prevent the rise of future terrorists by supporting the voices of moderation in the Arab and Muslim world through economic, educational, and cultural partnerships.

America is not safe when we fail to keep our focus on Usama bin Ladin and al Qaeda—the enemy responsible for the attacks of 9/11.

We can provide the resources necessary to improve our military counterterrorism capabilities, invest in smart, effective homeland security measures, and win the hearts and minds of people in the Arab and Muslim worlds—we can win the war against our terrorist enemies. But—it will require the right choices and the right priorities.

We all know that it is not a matter of "if" but "when" al Qaeda will strike again.

Can we say that we have made America safe when we increase our investment in protecting the security of the American people by no more than what we spend in one week in Iraq? It's all about choices, and there can be no doubt that the American people will hold us accountable for the choices we make.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield such time as he may consume to the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG).

Mr. YOUNG of Florida. Mr. Speaker, I recognized earlier the Committee staff. But after thinking about it, there is one staffer that I really need to make special mention of, and that is Mr. Doug Gregory who is very important to everything that I do here. He is very loyal, he is very smart, he is very faithful, he is very industrious; and I depend on him for an awful lot. He is very special, and he has been a very important member of my staff for 36 years, and this is Douglas Gregory of my district in St. Petersburg, and a professional member of the appropriations staff.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield 2 minutes to the gentleman from New York (Mr. SWEENEY) who is a very valuable member of our subcommittee.

Mr. SWEENEY. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me time.

I realize we all are on our way out of town, and it is important we get moving, so I will be very brief and I will attempt not to be too provocative. But I urge the membership to strongly support this piece of legislation for a couple of very important reasons.

One, as the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS) pointed out, FEMA money is running out and, as well, if we think about that in terms of what we need to do to make sure that we continue the momentum towards developing a safer, more secure homeland security, this bill needs to get done before we break for the election.

I recognize that there are a lot of tough choices here. I recognize that there are a lot of disagreements over where exactly we ought to be prioritizing the expenditures here, but I view this as an evolving, accommodating balance.

I want to salute the chairman of the subcommittee for his great work here. We have had our disagreements, but the chairman has always been there, and he has moved this bill substantially towards a system that I think can evolve into a system that allows the Federal Government to respond to the threats where they most exist.

We can bemoan what is left to be done, but this bill actually goes out and begins to take and continues to take substantial strides towards getting us to the place we need to be. We need to recognize that either structurally or technically or, frankly, politically in this town we may not be ready to do all the things we need to do, but this bill moves us way along the line. I want to salute the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) for that, as well the ranking member on the subcommittee.

We do not agree on the first responders money as well, but this bill does important things. And as one who comes from New York, a place that was attacked, this bill needs to get passed so that New York can continue to do the great work it does to protect this Nation and that city.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield 4 minutes to the gentleman from Wisconsin (Mr. OBEY), the ranking member of the House Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I would simply make two points. I recognize that this bill is some $800 million above the amount that was requested originally by the President, and for that, I congratulate the subcommittee; but if anyone in this House thinks that this is an adequate response to the threat that faces us, they are smoking something that is not legal.

The fact is that we have immense homeland security needs that are not being met. And the fact is also that despite his public protestations to the contrary, the President for 3 years in a row has strenuously resisted adequate funding for homeland security. Starting with the first meeting that I had with him in the White House after 9/11 when, before the gentleman from Florida (Mr. YOUNG) or I could even get a word out of our mouths explaining to him what some of the additions were that we thought needed to be provided, before we could even get a word out of our mouths, the President said, I just want you to know that if you appropriate one dollar more than I have asked for I will veto the bill.

So much for an open mind.

I really believe that with respect to adequate funding levels for homeland security that the President's conduct itself is a security risk, because we have immense needs that are not being met. This Congress on a bipartisan basis has consistently tried to meet those needs, and we have been consistently reined in by a White House which, as the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS) indicated, by a White House that thinks it is much more important to provide four times as much money to people who make a million bucks by way of tax cuts than to provide larger increases for homeland security funding.

Now, reasonable people can disagree, but those are my views, and I hope that we are not proven to be right by future events.

I just want to make one other point. I referred earlier to an important matter which was not included in this bill despite the fact that the Senate conferees voted by majority vote to include it and despite the fact that we had a majority of House conferees who favored that same provision.

I do not mind losing. I lose every day. There is nothing wrong with losing, and I can certainly accept that provided that the process that is used to determine the outcome is fair. But when it is not fair, as it was not in this case, when the process is not fair, then it leaves one to want to oppose the basic bill that is before us.

I am not going to do that because these matters are too important; but I do want to suggest that sometime, somewhere, it would be nice if committee judgments were allowed to stand rather than having the House leadership insist that they be overturned because they were not consistent with the dictates of that House leadership.

I thank the gentleman for yielding me time, and I reluctantly urge support for this bill. Again, I recognize the committee has tried to meet its responsibilities, but we are being hemmed in by a President who prefers to put money in the pockets of millionaires before putting adequate resources into the budgets that would provide greater port security, airport security and all the rest.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield 1 minute to the gentleman from Iowa (Mr. LATHAM), a very hard-working member of our subcommittee.

Mr. LATHAM. Mr. Speaker, I thank the chairman for yielding me time. I will be very, very brief.

I would only like to congratulate our great chairman, the gentleman from Kentucky (Mr. ROGERS), and our ranking member, the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO) on a very difficult bill that is one that we cannot fail on. We have to be successful as far as our homeland security.

I would also like to acknowledge the great work of the staff that has done a very good job and worked very, very hard on this bill.

I rise in support of this conference agreement and urge my colleagues to do the same. I want to commend Chairman ROGERS, Mr. SABO and the subcommittee staff for their work in putting this homeland security bill together.

The process of structuring this appropriations bill to address the operational needs of the 22 agencies and departments under the Homeland Security Department has, once again, been a difficult one. I suspect it will be difficult again next year, in part, because we are funding a mission that has many dimensions, and for which there are few absolutes.

As I have watched and participated in this process, I have come to the conclusion that our approach to funding homeland security has been measured and judicious. We have not thrown good money after bad, but rather made difficult choices.

There are some in this House who want to put more money in this bureau or that agency. Some of those Members are well-intentioned, while others simply want to create a political issue by forcing Members to make a choice between spending more money on the one hand, or appearing to be less than responsible on homeland security issues on the other. This is a false choice. In the future, we would do ourselves a favor by avoiding the temptation to politicize the funding of this important function.

I hope that as we go forward in the FY-06 cycle, we will recognize that there is much room for honest debate on the subject of homeland security funding. However, none of our constituents is served well by gaming this funding debate, and certainly the mission of protecting the homeland is not served well by this approach.

As we go forward in the area of homeland security, we will continue to make progress in sorting out priorities. We will continue to benefit from the ideas and knowledge of State and local officials from our districts around the country, and from the innovations of DHS officials. That collective wisdom will serve us well.

The process we went through this year for homeland security represented an improvement over last year. Going forward, we will improve over this year. I think because, once again, we carried out our duty to appropriate these funds in a measured way, we will improve on the FY-06 process.

Again, I want to commend the chairman and the ranking minority member, Mr. SABO, and urge the Members to support this conference report.

Mr. SABO. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield myself such time as I may consume.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot close this debate without thanking some people. My colleague on the other side of the aisle has been marvelous to work with. He is demanding about the facts, but he is agreeable in working with us on the bill. I want to thank the gentleman from Minnesota (Mr. SABO) especially for his great work on this subcommittee, as he does in other parts of the Congress.

Mr. Speaker, the Speaker of this House was very, very instrumental as late as the early hours of this morning in trying to remove snags that might prevent this bill from being placed on the floor, and I have to publicly compliment the Speaker and thank him for taking the personal interest that he did in helping us to move the passage of the bill to the floor. I can say the same for the majority leader.

We had a tough snag that the other body had placed in the way of this bill's coming to the floor, and as late as 2 o'clock this morning, the Speaker of the House and your majority leader, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. DELAY) were up there working in their offices on the telephones to make this day possible. I have to publicly compliment them on doing a great job to help us.

Mr. Speaker, finally, let me say thanks to this great staff. We would not be here without them. They do the hard work. They are up all night doing the tedious work. My chief of staff, Michelle Mrdeza, has just been terrific in making this day possible and making the subcommittee work. As did Stephanie Gupta and Jeff Ashford and Tom McLemore and Terry Tyborowski and Kelly Wade, and Brian Dunlop and Ben Nicholson. These last two, Brian from the Secret Service, a fellow with us, and Ben Nicholson, a fellow from the Coast Guard, have been with us all this year and they will be rotating off this assignment now. I want to publicly thank them especially for their service with us on this subcommittee.

I want to thank my chief of staff, Will Smith, and Beverly Pheto of the minority staff, who has been especially helpful. We would not be here without them, Mr. Speaker, and I think we should publicly thank them for the great work they do.

In closing, Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the Members for being understanding of the difficulties in putting this bill together. We are trying to fund some 53,000 units of local public safety, as well as all the other myriad of things that go into funding this 22-agency new department in its second year. I want to thank the Members for being understanding and supportive and helpful in making that possible.

Mr. GREEN of Wisconsin. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to express my great disappointment that members have chosen not to include a two-year extension of the Milk Income Loss Contract Program in the Department of Homeland Security appropriations bill the House passed today.

At the same time, however, I want to inject a bit of hope into the discussion, and also correct some misstatements that have been made—on the floor and elsewhere—about this issue.

We still have time to extend the MILC Program. I, of course, would support doing it today—but we will again have the opportunity to do so in coming months. And it is my hope that other members of this body will see how crucial this program is to farmers and for maintaining our Nation's great dairy tradition—and pass this very important extension.

Some members have stood on this floor and, for blatantly partisan political purposes, blamed the failure to extend the MILC Program on the president. But these critics have two key problems.

First, they have a credibility problem. Some of the loudest critics actually voted against the legislation creating the MILC Program in the first place and have even authored their own legislation that would effectively end the MILC Program. And now they're angry that the program is not being extended? Their feigned anger strains credulity.

Second, they have a truth problem. It is this president who signed MILC Program into law. And it is this president who stood in Wisconsin and pledged his staunch support for the MILC Program. The president is not member of this body and did not make the decision not to include the MILC extension in this bill. Any effort to convince people otherwise should be interpreted for exactly what it is—a cynical partisan ploy designed to affect the election in the key swing state of Wisconsin.

Ms. MCCARTHY of Missouri. Mr. Speaker, I commend members and staff of the Appropriations Committee for their hard work on the FY05 Department of Homeland Security Appropriations Act. Securing the resources we need for this country's long term war on terrorism is a formidable task, but one we must accomplish in a bipartisan manner. I support the appropriations bill before us today, yet I am concerned by the levels of funding for first responders, interoperability and port security. These are programs upon which the American people depend to protect our communities.

As the Ranking Member of the Intelligence and Counterterrorism Subcommittee of the Select Committee on Homeland Security, I support the funding needed by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS) to provide accurate and timely intelligence assessments. Unfortunately, this bill cuts funds for the first responder programs.

First Responders must have the resources they need to do their jobs. I represent the Kansas City, Missouri area, and my firefighters, police and emergency workers tell me that they have trouble communicating with each other because of incompatible equipment. This problem affects first responders throughout the country and is unacceptable.

Missouri has the seventh largest highway system in the nation and the second and third largest railroad terminals in the nation. Port and transportation security is crucial to our Nation's economy. Six million cargo containers enter U.S. ports every year, but only about 5 percent of these containers are ever screened. This appropriations bill fails to adequately fund port security.

Appropriations Committee Ranking Member DAVID OBEY attempted to counter these shortfalls with an amendment to H.R. 4567 that would have created a $3 billion contingent emergency fund for homeland security. Even though this emergency funding would be contingent upon the President requesting it, the amendment was rejected by Republicans on the House Rules Committee. We owe it to the American people to make sure that our nation is secure.

Ms. ROYBAL-ALLARD. Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the Homeland Security Appropriations conference report.

I would like to begin by commending Homeland Security Subcommittee Chairman HAL ROGERS and Appropriations Committee Chairman BILL YOUNG for their efforts to address our Nation's security needs with the unrealistic budget limits that were forced upon them.

I also thank Chairmen ROGERS and YOUNG for including in the Homeland Security conference report several items I requested to address issues of concern I raised during subcommittee hearings with representatives of the Department of Homeland Security. Included in this final conference report, for example, are the following items:

Security Training—Congress has done much to address the security of our aviation system since the events of September 2001. However, I was concerned that Congress had not adequately addressed the issue of security training for flight attendants, potentially the last line of defense in the aircraft cabin. The bill directs the FAA to issue regulations for basic security training for flight attendants.

Port Security Grants—Another of my concerns was that resources currently dedicated to port security are too often diverted to private shippers at the ports while the port authority received minimal if any funds. This bill states the committee's belief that port security grants, for the 55 ports of national significance, should be based on findings contained within port vulnerability assessments. This means that limited resources for port grants will be used where they are needed most.

Security Assessments—In addition, I was concerned that critical security assessments had not been completed. This bill establishes a deadline for the completion of security assessments for the top 1700 critical infrastructure elements and key assets identified by the Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection Directorate. This deadline will help ensure security assessments on such items as monuments, landmarks, power plants, highways, and food and water sources will be completed by the Department.

Independent Districts—Many of the districts that operate bridges and highways are independent authorities, and as such, their eligibility to apply for certain homeland security grants had been in question. The bill clarifies the eligibility of independent districts, such as bridge authorities, to compete for homeland security grants.

Immigration Officers—The bill also includes language I drafted to prevent the Department of Homeland Security from moving forward with the unnecessary and potentially dangerous privatization of key immigration officers at the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services. These officers are responsible for handling classified information used to prevent fraud and the exploitation of our immigration laws. I am pleased that this inherently governmental work will continue to remain the responsibility of trained and experienced federal employees directly accountable to the Department and not to the bottom line of a private company. And I take the opportunity to thank the ranking member, DAVID OBEY, and ranking member MARTIN SABO of the Homeland Security Subcommittee for their efforts to keep this language in the bill.

In addition, the bill addresses two issues of importance to urban communities such as my own.

First, funding for the Urban Area Security Initiative (UASI) grant program to protect high threat urban areas was more than doubled for a total of $1.3 billion. These additional resources are critical to our Nation's large urban areas which face a higher terrorist threat than other parts of the country.

Second, state and local emergency managers will benefit significantly from an increase of $56 million for Emergency Management Performance Grants. In California, emergency managers use these grants to develop plans to help prepare our residents for disasters such as earthquakes, fires, floods, or terrorist attacks. Although Congress has called this grant program "the backbone of the Nation's emergency management system" it has been drastically underfunded for years, and this funding increase is certainly a step in the right direction.

However, Mr. Speaker, despite the fact that this Homeland Security Appropriations conference report resolves several of the issues I raised in hearings and increases funding levels in certain accounts, I remain seriously concerned that this bill as a whole underfunds important homeland security initiatives and programs.

I am disturbed that the measure retains the current formula for state-wide grants that continues to underfund the homeland security needs of my home state, California. Over the past several years, the Department of Homeland Security has distributed 60 percent of these formula grants on a per capita basis that does not consider critical infrastructure, vulnerabilities, or the actual risk of terrorist attacks. For example, although California is the most populous state with the most areas deemed at high risk of terrorist attack, it actually receives far less funding on a per capita basis than any other state. In a time of heightened national security and limited local resources, we need to ensure that federal resources are targeted where they will be most productive in fighting the war on terror.

I am also concerned by the deep budget cuts this bill makes to the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services. This bureau is charged with processing work authorization and citizenship applications for immigrants in our country. This bill includes only $160 million to reduce the backlog of these unprocessed documents, a decrease of nearly $75 million from fiscal year 2004. These funding cuts simply do not make sense given that during the last 3 years, the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services the last 3 years, the Bureau of Citizenship and Immigration Services has fallen far short of meeting its six month goal for processing citizenship applications. In fact, the backlog of these applications has grown from three million to more than six million nationally. These backlogs send the wrong message to our nation's immigrants who are eager to become full participants in our society, but must wait years before their citizenship applications can be reviewed and processed. I am hopeful that next year the President's budget will request enough funds to realistically address the Bureau's huge case backlog.

And lastly, it is disappointing that the bill reduces to 75 percent the federal contribution given to airports to install state-of-the-art in-line baggage screening equipment. Previously, certain airports had signed letter of intent (LOI) agreements committing the federal government to pay 90 percent of these costs. Reducing the federal contribution creates an additional burden for our communities and their airports. I regret that Congress will not honor our original commitment to pay 90 percent of the costs.

Unfortunately, fully addressing these and other critical national security concerns requires resources that Republican congressional leaders simply do not provide in this bill.

Nevertheless, Mr. Speaker, I will support this conference report to provide the resources, although limited, to help make our country safer.

Mr. HOYER. Mr. Speaker, this conference report provides critical funding for our Nation's first responders, for the defense of our borders and our ports, and enhances our transportation and infrastructure security.

While I believe we continue to have critical, unmet homeland security needs, and have supported repeated democratic efforts to increase the funding in this bill, Chairman ROGERS and Mr. SABO have done an admirable job with their allocation, and I support this agreement.

I am particularly pleased with the $65 million for the Staffing for Adequate Fire and Emergency Response Firefighters—or SAFER—Program, and I was proud to have worked with CURT WELDON to pass an amendment this summer to provide initial SAFER funding.

This conference agreement's $65 million in new hiring grants will help bring fire departments to adequate staffing levels and improve the safety of our firefighters and the communities they serve.

The agreement also contains $650 million for the Fire Grant Program, and while we do not maintain the $750 million provided the last 2 years, this is a $150 million increase over the presidents request—an increase that is vital to our firefighters, too many of whom risk their lives on a daily basis to protect our homes and our families without the modern equipment and advanced training they deserve.

Thanks to the equipment, vehicles and improved training provided by fire grants, more than 15,000 departments across America are now better trained and equipped to respond to fires, automobile accidents, natural disasters, or acts of terrorism.

We have an obligation to provide our firefighters with the necessary resources to improve their safety as they risk their lives in our defense every day, and funding for the SAFER and Fire Grant Programs helps us make good on that obligation.

Mr. KIND. Mr. Speaker, I rise in favor of this important bill, but with great disappointment in President Bush's failure to take affirmative action to support the two-year extension of the Milk Income Loss Compensation (MILC) program to help Wisconsin's dairy farmers survive when milk prices plummet.

Two days ago, President Bush came to Wisconsin to proclaim his support for extending the MILC program for our hardworking family dairy farmers. Today, that provision was stripped by the Republican leadership in Congress from the last bill the House will consider until after the November election.

The Milk Income Loss Contract Program, was established by the 2002 Farm bill, and is the first national dairy program to transcend the usual regional tension that have arisen over past safety net proposals. The MILC provides a basic level of direct support to all dairy operations, regardless of the end use of the farmers' milk, by providing assistance only on the first 2.4 million pounds of production annually roughly equivalent to production of a 130 cow operation.

As a result, nearly 86 percent of all dairy farms in the country, and nearly 90 percent in the Upper Midwest, are fully eligible for assistance under this limit. This counter-cyclical program has provided Wisconsin's struggling dairy farmers with $413 million in crucial assistance since its inception. Unfortunately, this national safety net for dairy farmers will expire in 2005 if we do not act quickly to extend it.

Mr. Speaker, it is disappointing to have the President say one thing while campaigning in Wisconsin and then do absolutely nothing to get the job done. All it would have required was a one-minute phone call with House Speaker HASTERT asking him to extend this program for an additional 2 years and it would have been signed into law.

Mr. ROGERS of Kentucky. Mr. Speaker, I yield back the balance of my time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. HASTINGS of Washington). Without objection, the previous question is ordered on the conference report.

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the conference report.

Pursuant to clause 10 of rule XX, the yeas and nays are ordered.

Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, further proceedings on this question will be postponed.

PROVIDING FOR AN ADJOURNMENT OF THE TWO HOUSES

Mr. DELAY. Mr. Speaker, I offer a privileged concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 518) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The Clerk read the concurrent resolution, as follows:

H. CON. RES. 518

sultation with the Minority Leader of the House and the Minority Leader of the Senate, shall notify the Members of the House and the Senate, respectively, to reassemble at such place and time as they may designate whenever, in their opinion, the public interest shall warrant it.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on the concurrent resolution.

The question was taken; and the Speaker pro tempore announced that the yeas appeared to have it.

Mr. OBEY. Mr. Speaker, I object to the vote on the ground that a quorum is not present and make the point of order that a quorum is not present.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Evidently a quorum is not present.

The Sergeant at Arms will notify absent Members.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Pursuant to clause 8 of rule XX, this 15-minute vote on the adjournment resolution will be followed by 5-minute votes on the conference report to accompany H.R. 4200, by the yeas and nays; the conference report to accompany H.R. 4837, by the yeas and nays; and the conference report to accompany H.R. 4567, by the yeas and nays.

CONGRATULATING HOUSTON
ASTROS ON WINNING BERTH IN NATIONAL LEAGUE PLAYOFFS

(Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend her remarks.)

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, there are some times on the floor that we cannot help but celebrate our hometown heroes. Let me simply, among the many heroes that we have and certainly those fighting for us around the world, be able to acknowledge our great team in Houston, the Houston Astros, the 2004 National League wild card winners.

We are delighted that in early September the Astros won 12 straight games to pull even in the race for the National League wild card. Yet somehow they still had another gear left in them and they became baseball's hottest team down the stretch. We congratulate Drayton McLane and all of his stars. We are glad that our friend Roger came on home.

The Astros won their final seven games of the regular season and nine of their last 10 to overcome Chicago and San Francisco in the race for the wild card.

From August 14 to the end of the regular season, the Astros had a Major League best 36-10 record. The Astros currently have an amazing 18-game home winning streak, the longest such streak in baseball in the last 10 years. While this streak is extraordinary, it is not hard to see why the Astros do well at home. This year, the Astros had a franchise record for attendance with over 3 million fans coming to watch baseball in the beautiful Minute Maid Park in my own 18th congressional district. Clearly, the great fans of Houston are excited. Go Astros today, Saturday, and tomorrow. And we are looking forward to the World Series, maybe not in Houston but certainly our Astros playing the game. We are happy. Congratulations to the Houston Astros.

I rise today to honor my hometown baseball team, the Houston Astros, the 2004 National League Wild Card winners. Since 1975 the Astros have been a part of the heart and soul of the Houston community. There have been many great players in the history of the Astros. Hall of fame players like the early greats Nelly Fox and Eddie Mathews who made baseball our national pastime. Players like the great Joe Morgan who finished as one of the best second basemen of all time. Of course we all know about the legendary Nolan Ryan, baseball's all time strikeout king. Among these Astros greats is my good friend Enos Cabell who played third base over eight seasons with the Astros. At six foot five inches tall they aptly called him "Big E" and today he is a successful businessman in the city of Houston. With all this great history for the Astros franchise it would be hard to take the team to a new level, but this current squad of players has done it.

When this current team entered Spring Training there were great hopes that this Astros team would be amongst the best in our history. With the addition of hometown star pitchers Andy Petite and Roger Clemens there was no reason to believe that the Astros couldn't compete for a championship. This team never gave up; they never looked at the standings and thought their hopes and that of their fans were futile. No, instead this team took one game at a time and slowly built up momentum. First there was a four-game winning streak to get the Astros back to a .500 record. Then in early September, the Astros won 12 straight games to pull even in the race for the National League Wild Card. Yet, somehow they still had another gear left in them and they became baseball's hottest team down the stretch. The Astros won the final seven games of the regular season and nine of their last 10 to overcome Chicago and San Francisco in the race for the Wild Card. From Aug. 14 to the end of the regular season, the Astros had a major league-best 36-10 record. The Astros currently have an amazing 18-game home winning streak, the longest such streak in baseball in the last 10 years. While this streak is extraordinary, it's not hard to see why the Astros do so well at home. This year the Astros set a franchise record for attendance with over 3 million fans coming to watch baseball in beautiful Minute Maid Park. Clearly, the great fans of Houston are the tenth man on the field, the ones who have cheered our Astros on to victory.

I am so proud of this year's team because of how they overcame adversity this year. Despite the high expectations and the early season troubles this team never got down on itself, like true Texans they lifted themselves up off the dirt and played to their potential. Much of the credit for this year's success should go to Astros owner Drayton McLane who assembled this current team and has been such a great franchise owner in Houston for many years. Also, the work of Astros Manager Phil Garner to resurrect this team will go down in baseball legend. He came in to a very difficult situation, one in which most others are content to mediocrity, but instead he decided to lead. His calming influence and superior baseball knowledge gave the players the confidence to go out on the field and succeed day in and day out.

For the last decade the heart and soul of the Astros franchise has been Jeff Bagwell and Craig Biggio and this year is no different. Both players have been perennial All-Stars and have won numerous awards over their long careers, but their leadership in the clubhouse is what makes them such great Astros, there is no doubt that one day both of their uniforms will be retired in Minute Maid Park. I also want to recognize the great Roger Clemens, who undoubtedly will go down as one of the greatest pitchers of all time. He has been many things over his illustrious career, he started out as Boston Red Sox, then a Toronto Blue Jay, and then as a New York Yankee, but no matter what uniform he was wearing his heart was always in Houston. This year he postponed his retirement to help his hometown Astros try to win a World Series, with an astounding 18-4 record this year he has clearly helped pitch the Astros into the playoffs. This Astros season, especially their comeback from the bottom of the division has been a total team effort.

This inspiring team is now in the National League Division Series against the Atlanta Braves. They have already managed to take one of two games from the Braves in this best of five series and gain the home field advantage. With all due respect to my colleagues from Atlanta, I have to say that I am confident the Astros can finish off the Braves at home in Houston this weekend. Because the one advantage this team has that fewer others can claim is that if their backs are against the wall in these playoffs you know this team will never quit. It is that inspiring spirit that has many of us Houstonians dreaming of a World Series Championship.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take my Special Order at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from California?

There was no objection.

SMART SECURITY AND THE "BACKDOOR DRAFT"

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from California (Ms. WOOLSEY) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Ms. WOOLSEY. Mr. Speaker, I am sad to say that the military draft is alive and well in the United States of America. But, this time, it is the Bush administration's shameful behind-the-scenes version: a "backdoor draft," specifically targeting soldiers who have already served and poor young men and women from rural areas who enlisted because the military helped them pay for a college education they would not have been able to get otherwise.

Since the war in Iraq began, the Bush administration has done everything in its power to cajole and deceive soldiers into serving longer than they want or longer than they agreed to.

Depending on members of the Army Reserve and National Guard, who almost always serve the country only here at home in the United States, to serve in Iraq was just the tip of the iceberg. This administration has also started the shameful policy of issuing "stop loss" orders, which allowed the military to break its contractual obligations to a service member in order to keep that soldier in the military for longer than he or she has agreed. They have resorted to the shameful policy of recruiting the "ready reserve," a group of retired soldiers, who, after completing their years of service, agreed to serve their country should a national emergency arise.

I have got news for the President. Our invasion of a country that never threatened us, did not have weapons of mass destruction or even a weapons of mass destruction program, and did not have links to al Qaeda, does not qualify as a national emergency.

These shameful Bush administration policies all add up to a "backdoor draft," a means for the administration to dishonestly and dishonorably force soldiers who have already served their country to be serving now or to force soldiers to serve 6 or even 12 months longer than they agreed to. In fact, many soldiers have been manipulated into extending their contracts with the Army. They have been warned that if they do not reenlist on time, their brigade could be shipped to Iraq or Afghanistan.

Mr. Speaker, at the same time that President Bush and his fellow Republicans have pursued an all-too-real "backdoor draft," just this week, the House Republican leadership placed on the schedule under the suspension calendar a controversial bill to reimplement the draft. The suspension calendar, of course, and we all know this, is reserved for noncontroversial legislation. The reimplementation of the draft is hardly noncontroversial, and surely, it should be subject to hearings and expert testimony.

The administration must assess the military's recruitment and retention rates, the military's manpower needs, and the extent to which our troops are overextended in the field. The American people deserve better than this.

Our troops who will still be in Iraq after we leave here today should not be left with the message that Congress did not have the time to discuss in detail what must be done to help them in the field.

There has to be a better way, Mr. Speaker. A better way than voting one way and acting another, especially when American lives are at stake. We need new policies that will make America stronger at home and more respected around the world. That is why I have introduced H. Con. Res. 392, a SMART Security Platform for the 21st Century. SMART stands for Sensible Multilateral American Response to Terrorism. We would not be in Iraq if we had pursued a SMART Security strategy in the first place.

SMART Security treats war as an absolute last resort. It fights terrorism with stronger intelligence and multilateral partnerships, and it controls the spread of weapons of mass destruction with aggressive diplomacy, strong regional security arrangements, and vigorous inspection regimes. SMART Security means respecting our Nation's servicemen and women by respecting their service contracts and then providing them with the care and the benefits they deserve once they have returned home. It does not mean tricking our brave soldiers into serving for longer than they expected or agreed to. SMART Security is tough, pragmatic, and safe, and it is the right choice to keep America truly secure.

JUDICIAL ACTIVISM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. FRANKS) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRANKS of Arizona. Mr. Speaker, there have been many external threats to this Republic across the years. Recently, we have been highly focused on the war on terrorism and diminishing global nuclear threats. We have always been able to face such external threats successfully because our country has had a strong internal foundation.

But, today, it is critically important to sound a past-due warning about the internal threat to this republic. We are going to awaken to the fact that our own courts, in spite of their sacred duty and charge to defend the United States Constitution, have now become the greatest threat to its survival. The rule of law itself and the underpinnings that hold this Nation together are now at stake.

This undermining of our Constitution did not develop overnight. One hundred and eighty-four years ago, Thomas Jefferson wrote: "The object of my great fear is the federal judiciary. That body, like gravity, ever acting, with noiseless foot, and unalarming advance, gaining ground step by step, and holding what it gains, is engulfing insidiously the special governments into the jaws of that which feeds them."

Only 3½ decades after Thomas Jefferson wrote these ominous words, United States Supreme Court ruled in it their Dred Scott decision that "all blacks, slaves as well as free, were not and could never become citizens of the United States." The Supreme Court said that blacks "had no rights which the white man was bound to respect; and that the negro might justly and lawfully be reduced to slavery for his benefit."

Mr. Speaker, we can all see the sickness and evil in that twisted reasoning today. It is a sickness and an evil that precipitated the worst loss of American life in any war in the history of this Nation, 600,000 dead soldiers: husbands, fathers, sons, and brothers.

In the face of these historical realities, it is astonishing today that we do not seem to collectively recognize the dangers represented by an unrestrained judiciary, especially since many of the great conflicts in our society's recent history have been precipitated by arrogant court decisions imposed by an unjust court and imposing an unjust mandate on the entire Nation.

Not so long ago, our courts mandated racial segregation in our public schools. That was the so-called "separate but equal doctrine." And people died on the streets reversing that obscene ruling.

American courts have now declared that protecting viable unborn children from the hideous act of partial birth abortion is "unconstitutional." The courts are now beginning to attack the very foundation and makeup of our country and any civil society, that being marriage and the family itself.

They have said it is "unconstitutional" to protect a 9-year-old girl from Internet pornography or for her to pray a certain prayer in school or for her to voluntarily say her Pledge of Allegiance to the flag of the United States using the words "under God."

Mr. Speaker, are these the causes that our American heroes lying out in Arlington National Cemetery died for? And I am just wondering when those who still have breath say will enough is enough.

As we seek to protect America from the external threats that we face like terrorism, we would do well to remember that it is not the water on the outside of the ship that sinks it. It is the water on the inside. And, Mr. Speaker, I submit that there is water on the inside of this ship.

When courts forcefully interject false and unconstitutional notions that go against justice, natural law and common sense, without allowing the issue to go through the legislative process of debate and consensus, it abrogates the miracle of America and abridges the freedom of the people to govern themselves.

Daniel Webster's admonition to all of us is so very appropriate. He said, "Hold on, my friends, to the Constitution and to the Republic for which it stands, for miracles do not cluster and what has happened once in 6,000 years may never happen again. So hold on to the Constitution, for if the American Constitution should fall, there will be anarchy throughout the world."

Mr. Speaker, the commitment to true justice in the heart of this Congress and in the heart of the one who occupies the Oval Office are now the only two remaining barriers which prevent judicial oligarchy and the subsequent fall of the American Constitution.

May those of us in this Congress find the courage to assume our constitutional power to prevent the judicial destruction of the United States Constitution.

And, Mr. Speaker, may God give the people of this Nation the insight and soundness of mind to maintain the presidency of the United States in the hands of George W. Bush, who will protect America and the world from such an irrelevant revocable tragedy. God bless America.

ORDER OF BUSINESS

Ms. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to take my Special Order at this time.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Is there objection to the request of the gentleman from Texas?

There was no objection.

ELECTIONS IN AFGHANISTAN

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

Mr. JACKSON-LEE of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I join with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY), my co-chair, to salute the people of Afghanistan for this historic time in their Nation's destiny.

I am the cochair with the gentleman from Ohio (Mr. NEY) of the U.S.-Afghan Caucus. Again I would like to congratulate the government and the people of Afghanistan, who are in the midst of a historical turning point. Leading up to the elections going on today, there has been great progress made in the registration process.

Of an estimated 10 million eligible voters, over 9 million voters, over 40 percent of whom are women, have registered for the country's first presidential election. Saturday, today, this process is ongoing. I applaud the high percentage of registered voters and the diversity of the 24 candidates for presidency. It shows that democracy is in fact working, and these candidates symbolize for the Afghan people the pluralism and open electoral process.

I hope the warlords understand that it is through the ballot box and not the bullet process that we will find democracy and peace in Afghanistan.

I am pleased with President Karzai's choice for his two running mates, Mr.

Karim Khalili and Mr. Ahmad Zia Massoud. Mr. Massoud is the brother of the late Ahmed Shah Massoud, the renowned commander of the Northern Alliance, an organization that includes members of the Tajik ethnic group and other communities. Both of the nominees are individuals of high standing and integrity and are committed to the process of reform and the disarmament of private militias.

Afghanistan will not survive as long as the private militia run rampant without control, threatening and terrorizing those farmers and others who are seeking peace, economic prosperity, education and democracy.

I commend President Karzai's brave stand against the warlords and his committed leadership in liberating Afghanistan from private militias and the rule of the gun. These warlords and militia threaten to destabilize constitutional governance, impede economic development, and facilitate narcotrafficking. Their disarmament must continue to be a major priority of the new Afghan administration.

Mr. Speaker, we have a challenge and a job to do as well. We must provide the funding, but also the resources, the compromise, the collaborative peace-keeping troops. We must be able to work together.

President Karzai and the people of Afghanistan have come a long way since the fall of the Taliban. They deserve praise and continued support from the United States and NATO.

Let us hopefully find an opportunity for collaborative work for peace in Iraq. But we should never forget Afghanistan and the brave soldiers who have stood on behalf of the United States and many coalition fighters to ensure democracy in Afghanistan; never forget the people and their challenge, their journey, their fight as well.

I hope with this election there will be increased human rights for the people of Afghanistan and the women will be further empowered as well. I hope that the march toward education for all children will continue. Good luck to Afghanistan and its people in the journey toward full democracy.

Mr. Speaker, as co-chair of the U.S.-Afghan Caucus, I would like to congratulate the government and the people of Afghanistan are in the midst of a historical turning point. Leading up to the elections this Saturday, October 9th, there has been great progress made in the registration process. Of an estimated 10 million eligible voters, over 9 million voters—more than 40 percent of whom are women—have registered for the country's first Presidential election. I applaud the high percentage of registered voters and the diversity of the 24 candidates for the Presidency, symbolizing the commitment of the Afghan people to pluralism and an open electoral process.

These warlords and militias threaten to destabilize constitutional governance, impede economic development, and facilitate narco-trafficking. Their disarmament must continue to be a major priority of the new Afghan Administration.

President Karzai and the people of Afghanistan have come a long way since the fall of the Taliban. They deserve praise and continued support from the United States and NATO to ensure that there is adequate security for the upcoming elections to be free, fair, and broadly inclusive.

I hope with this election there will be increased human rights for the people of Afghanistan and the women will be further empowered, as well, the education for all children will continue.

Good luck in the journey toward full democracy.

The SPEAKER pro tempore (Mr. PEARCE). Under a previous order of the House, the gentlewoman from the District of Columbia (Ms. NORTON) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Ms. NORTON addressed the House. Her remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Washington (Mr. McDERMOTT) is recognized for 5 minutes.

(Mr. McDERMOTT addressed the House. His remarks will appear hereafter in the Extensions of Remarks.)

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from Oregon (Mr. BLUMENAUER) is recognized for 5 minutes.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under a previous order of the House, the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. PALLONE) is recognized for 5 minutes.

REMEMBERING THOSE DEFENDING AMERICA'S FREEDOM

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Under the Speaker's announced policy of January 7, 2003, the gentleman from Arizona (Mr. HAYWORTH) is recognized for 60 minutes as the designee of the majority leader.

Mr. HAYWORTH. Mr. Speaker, as we prepare to head back to our respective districts and likewise as we prepare to engage in the exercise that typifies this constitutional Republic, where our government operates only through the consent of the governed, I believe it incumbent upon Members of this House and, indeed, Mr. Speaker every citizen of these United States, to pause and remember, and, yes, in this case to hear from one of those young Americans defending our freedom in Iraq.

Recently on the pages of the Arizona Republic there appeared a letter from Captain Scott Moore. Captain Moore, with the United States Army, lives in Sholo, Arizona. His civilian job is that of a high school history teacher in White River on one of our tribal reservations in rural Arizona. How appropriate it is that Captain Moore, through his letter, teaches all of us about the nature of the men and women serving this country and reminds us of the special gift it is to be an American.

This letter was written February 1. It was composed in a military plane headed for Kuwait. Captain Moore writes:

"If you were with me, you could tell this plane I am on is heading to a combat zone. All the passengers are dressed in desert camouflage uniforms and carrying weapons. I have an M-16 and a 9 millimeter Beretta, which will be in my possession until I go home in about a year from now.

"As I sit on this plane taking us to war, I cannot help but think about who is with me. No African Americans are going to war, no Asian Americans are going to war, no Mexican Americans are going to war, no Native Americans are going to war, no Hispanic Americans are going to war, no Arab Americans are going to war, no Anglo Americans are going to war. Only Americans who happen to have different ethnic backgrounds are going to war with me.

"I assume Americans from different religions, such as Catholics, Protestants, Jews, Muslims, et cetera, are going to war together on this plane. We don't really know who practices what religion, and don't really care. Only Americans are going to war.

"Americans from all over the United States are going to war together on this plane. They are from different States, from urban cities to rural towns. Once we left the United States, this didn't matter anymore. We were from only one place, and that was the United States of America.

"Americans from all walks of life are going to war together on this plane: doctors, custodians, teachers, police officers, store owners, engineers, the unemployed, college students, post office employees, restaurant workers, retail sales workers, veterinarians and countless other people with different civilian jobs are going to war together. These citizen soldiers left their civilian jobs and are now all American soldiers fulfilling their commitment to the Army Reserves and the United States.

"Americans going to war on this plane are grandparents, parents, daughters, sons, single parents, granddaughters, grandsons, nephews, nieces, cousins, boyfriends, girlfriends, wives, husbands and fiancées. Americans going to war on this plane are ages 18 to 59. Americans going to war on this plane are rich and poor. We have soldiers who were unemployed before getting activated for military service. We also have soldiers who were making six-digit salaries and just took quite a pay cut going to war on this plane.

"Americans on this plane joined the Army Reserves for different reasons. All are volunteers. Some joined primarily for college funds. Far many more joined out of a sense of duty and loyalty to their country.

"Many people in this unit were not originally in the unit when it initially got alerted. Only when they knew the unit was going to Iraq did they join. Some joined to be with friends in the unit, some to do their duty, some out of guilt of not being in Iraq with friends already there. Some joined for very specific reasons. One joined the day after September 11, 2001. Another was excited to hear news reports that al Qaeda is showing up in Iraq. He has special plans for those people.

"The very best of America is on this plane heading to war. I feel humble and not good enough to be with them."

So writes Captain Scott Moore, serving now with the United States Army in Iraq.

Mr. Speaker, Captain Moore need not feel unworthy. Indeed, the reader of this letter cannot help but be humbled by the quality of those in our all-volunteer force willing to step forward. And whether it is in Afghanistan or Iraq or elsewhere around the world or here within the boundaries and borders of the United States of America, we have been blessed by this all-volunteer force.

Indeed, Mr. Speaker, it was I who felt incredibly humbled in the spring of this year visiting with our troops in Iraq and Kuwait. Indeed, just about 6 weeks to 2 months after this letter was initially written by Captain Moore, I had occasion to travel with a congressional delegation led by the gentleman from Michigan (Mr. KNOLLENBERG), who just managed the conference report for Military Construction. The ranking member, the gentleman from Texas (Mr. EDWARDS), joined us, along with others.

Our travels took us first to Baghdad and then north to Mosul, and then to the growing nerve and supply center known as Balad, where the Iraqi Olympic team during Saddam's reign of terror trained, and, indeed, members of that team had terror and torture perpetrated on them by the now departed sons of Saddam, Odai and Qusai.

So many instances in that trip resonate in this letter. I can recall climbing aboard a Blackhawk helicopter flying over Mosul, flying over a large hydroelectric dam utilized for power to the northern portion of Iraq and viewing the infrastructure there, but climbing into the helicopter and having the help of one young soldier. And when I pled lack of familiarity with the harnessing and the procedures, the young soldier said, "That's okay, sir. That is what we are here for."

"That is what we're here for."

President Bush at our National Cathedral on our Day of National Remembrance for those Americans and others who perished on the date we now know in that historical shorthand as 9/11, President Bush said, "This war was started by others, but it will end at a time and a place of our choosing."

Perhaps our Commander in Chief did not realize exactly how prophetic those words have become, because in a free society we celebrate the fact that different Americans can have different points of view. We rejoice in that divergence of opinion.

But it is worth noting the consequences of following certain policies that have been advocated as people make their choices as to who should serve in public office. I am disturbed that the Democratic nominee for the Presidency has yet to express a consistent, clear, concise response to carrying out the mission in Iraq and elsewhere in the ongoing war on terror.

Indeed, there have been so many different responses.

Mr. Speaker, I cannot help but believe that the electorate is somewhat confused. We heard the Democratic nominee a few days ago say he was committed to staying the course in Iraq, yet even as he called it the wrong war at the wrong place and the wrong time.

Mr. Speaker, it is more accurate to describe the military action in Afghanistan and in Iraq not as a singular or specific war, but as battle campaigns in an ongoing war against Islamo fascism and the terror that has been utilized by Islamo fascists and unleashed on liberty-loving peoples throughout this world.

Accordingly, I celebrate in a bipartisan fashion with my friend, the gentlewoman from Texas (Ms. JACKSON-LEE); we do not agree on much, but as I heard her comments celebrating what transpired today in Afghanistan when the citizens of that Nation went to the polls and expressed their preference for leaders and for government and for governance. When we realize that now, in Afghanistan and in Iraq, young children are going to schools, including little girls, many for the first time, having the opportunity to learn reading, writing, arithmetic, and oh, yes, for the first time to learn without a message of hatred for others in the world or an endorsement of the twisted cult and political morphing and hijacking of a faith best described as Islamo fascism.

Instead of an endorsement of Islamo fascism, little boys and little girls now in Afghanistan and in Iraq are going to schools opened by the same soldiers who we have seen perform their duties so valiantly and work actually to rebuild two societies even as insurgent conflicts continue.

We are reminded that not only were elections held today in Afghanistan where close to 10 million Afghans, according to the latest reports I saw, 10 million Afghans were willing to come forward and vote, despite remnants of the Taliban and other terrorist groups who would try to abridge, who would try to terrorize, who would try to tear down the elections process. Yet, the Afghans lined up to vote.

Mr. Speaker, I am reminded that just a few short days ago, if memory serves, just 2 weeks ago, the Prime Minister of Iraq, Prime Minister Allawi stood here at the podium behind me and addressed a joint session of this Congress and spoke of the challenges confronting his homeland, but pledged to this Congress and to the people of the United States that the sacrifice in blood and treasure of the American people will not be in vain, that there will be a free Iraq, and that there will be elections in January of next year.

Consider the source making this bold, clean assertion. Perhaps my colleagues do not know the story of the Iraqi Prime Minister. Perhaps you are unfamiliar with the fact that now, at least 2 decades, perhaps close to a quarter of a century ago, Saddam's secret police tracked then-private-citizen, or perhaps more accurately, political-refugee Allawi to London, and Saddam's agents of death, wielding axes, went in to kill him. He fought off that attack in the most literal sense. Prime Minister Allawi is a survivor.

So often, because of just the sheer volume of information and news that come across anchor desks and through the Internet to your home and through so many sources, sometimes we fail to pause to understand the unique nature of those who stand with us.

Mr. Speaker, we should make no mistake, for we also need to understand the evil nature of those who fight against us. We have heard of the Jordanian al Zarkawi wreaking havoc within the boundaries of Iraq, beheading in barbarous, indescribably cruel and evil fashion American citizens and others. But the irony seems to be this: As horrible as this monster is, in an intercepted communication which first appeared in the American press, in The New York Times, of all publications, in an intercepted communication to other allies in terror, Zarkawi outlined what is exactly at stake. He outlined to other evil agents of terror, if Iraq is able to elect a free government, if boys and girls are able to go to school and learn without the prejudice of Islamo fascism and without the heel of the jackboot upon their throat, and without the continued threat of mass graves, that freedom in Iraq would be a crushing, mortal blow to the forces of terror and Islamo fascism around the world.

Now, Mr. Speaker, if one of our sworn enemies understands what is at stake, I would ask the American people to likewise understand that dynamic. Here is the irony: Our sworn enemy, in communications not intended for our ears, in intercepted correspondence, clearly and succinctly put the stakes of our action and the possible consequences for his evil movement out for us to understand. It was not his intent, but that is the result.

Mr. Speaker, while we all rejoice in the fact that we are free to agree to disagree, while people of goodwill can disagree, while indeed we will make manifest those different opinions through different choices at the ballot box on the first Tuesday following the first Monday in November, Mr. Speaker, I would simply ask the American people, whether Republican or Democrat or Independent or Libertarian or vegetarian, whatever your political label, whatever your partisan stripe, as Americans who were brutally and viciously attacked on 9/11, as Americans who now in this post-9/11 world understand that there are those who will harm the most innocent among us, as Americans who just read of reports emanating from Iraq where our forces had uncovered intelligence, where Islamo Fascists and forces of terror had the layout and the architectural plans and the schedules of certain schools in the United States, bringing to mind the horror of what transpired in Russia and what in that culture and society was a day of great joy, the first day of school in that society, that turned to such evil carnage.

We are confronted by people who are not out to win debating points, who are not out to win friends among us, but indeed, Mr. Speaker, if there is a new phrase I could coin, I would say that those forces of evil are actively engaged in plotting and planning Americide, where our only crime is to be Americans in their eyes, and the malignant, malingerling, accompanying aspect of this wretchedly despicable and evil behavior is the fact that these same Islamo Fascists care not if they kill fellow Muslims, care not if they kill noncombatants and women and children, indeed, care not if their carnage continues unabated, such is their twisted, malignant outlook.

The choice remains for us here at the dawn of the 21st century. The choice is a stark one, and it is very simple. Either we take the fight to the terrorists where they live, where they grow up, where their homes are located; or we sit back, we hope for the best through nuance and timidity and the alluring siren song of complacency, if we do not bother them, they will not bother us. If we follow that doctrine, I fear for my country and for its survival.

No. It is simple. The reason we are in Iraq, the reason we are in Afghanistan, the reason we must be prepared to fight Islamo fascism around the world is because it is far better to take on the terrorists on the streets of Tikrit, Iraq, than on the streets of Tucson, Arizona. It is far better to deal with the terror movements and the insurgency on the streets of Baghdad than on the streets of Baltimore. It is far better to confront these agents of evil in Sadr City than in Syracuse, New York.

The key to our national security and defense is not found in a fantastic fantasy of hope that these agents of evil will ever listen to reason. It is instead found in the solemn promise and commitment to this Nation, a commitment embodied so valiantly in our all-volunteer force, a commitment embodied in the letter of Captain Scott Moore of Sholo, Arizona, a high school history teacher in White River, on one of our Native American reservations who is, himself, along with his colleagues in arms, making history, building a free Iraq. Moving forward, he eventually strikes a blow for peace by picking up the implements of war.

Mr. Speaker, our President again made the statements so clearly and compellingly, in the days following 9/11: "This conflict was started by others but it will end at a time and place of our choosing."

No one wants war. General MacArthur, our supreme allied commander in the Pacific theater in World War II said, "The soldier least of all wants war for it is the soldier who literally has the most to lose."

His counterpart in the European theater, the supreme allied commander, General Dwight David Eisenhower, who remarked that when he came ashore a few days following D-Day on Omaha Beach, it was impossible to take a step without treading upon dead and decaying human flesh. Eisenhower, even in victory, seared by that experience described war as a cross of iron upon which hangs all humanity. But as horrible as war is, the constant threat of terror, the scourge of those who in barbaric fashion would murder the innocent, cannot be left unchecked nor unanswered.

We must renew our commitment at this time, in this place, and through our expressions of conferring power. Again, as I mentioned earlier, the unique aspect of governance in our constitutional Republic is that this government only operates, only derives its power from the consent of the governed. And as the people make their decisions, Mr. Speaker, I would appeal to all Americans regardless of partisan label, political stripe or philosophy to see this thing through. It will take many different forms. It will take many different approaches. It may, in fact, Mr. Speaker, take us many years.

I mentioned earlier the observations of our great wartime military leaders, Generals Eisenhower and MacArthur. I am also reminded of our British cousin with whom we formed the grand alliance during World War II, Prime Minister Churchill, who in the other body addressed the American people in 1941 or in early 1942, the date escapes me, but who essentially said, as allies we are in for a time of great tribulation and sacrifice.

There is no way to sugar-coat or put aside the sacrifices of war. There is no way to explain away the sacrifice of the lives of men and women. There is no way to articulate the thanks we owe to so many brave wounded with whom I have had the privilege to meet at Walter Reed Medical Center and at other locations.

But we dare not in this new century fail to understand that the horror of war cannot obscure the even greater horror of inaction, the even greater horror of appeasement, the even greater horror of capitulation through inaction, the even greater horror of a lack of resolve. For in the final analysis, Mr. Speaker, the most basic responsibility of government is to protect the citizens of this Nation, as our founders said it, to provide for the common defense. And we best provide that defense and that national security with offense, with offensive operations, with taking the fight to those who would hope to bring the fight to our shores.

Mr. Speaker, I mentioned earlier my visit to the war theater on the anniversary of the outbreak of the conflict. I saw many Arizonans there. I was greeted in Baghdad by a former Arizonan, General Steve Sergeant, former commander at Luke Air Force Base in the west valley at Balad. I saw my old friend Cornell Ronny Cox who I first got to know when he was a high school football coach for an opposing team in my youth, who at the time I saw him in Balad earned the informal title the "Mayor of Balad," dealing with civil administration and so many other things.

I have met many other Arizonans along the way, but in Mosul I saw another young Arizonan who typified what is best with America. This young man calls the Navajo Reservation in northwest Arizona his home. This young man happens to be the grandson of former Arizona State Senator Jack Jackson. And it was interesting as I sat in the mess hall with Munoz of Tempe and Pignato of Tucson, they said to me, Whatever you do, Congressman, do not leave until you meet Adahy. Sergeant Adahy, the young Navajo was working in the garage, but he was not performing the standard maintenance of vehicles that we often associate with the grease pits in the garage. No. Adahy was there building what was eponymously named the Adahy Special.

You have heard about the challenges that our forces faced as they tried to deal with their different vehicles and initially a lack of armor; and this Congress provided supplemental funds not only for personal body armor but also for retrofitting armor on vehicles. Indeed, one of the companies supplying that armor likewise is located in Arizona. But our friend, Adahy, was not waiting, was not waiting for that armor to come up the supply line.

He was doing what so many Americans have done before. He was displaying good old fashioned Yankee ingenuity, finding scrap iron, taking the welding torch, working in his own way to build what they call Adahy Specials, putting armor on the vehicles to protect his fellow soldiers.

What Sergeant Adahy was doing that day we have seen so often in our all volunteer force. The unique thing about our men and women in uniform, whether they hail from the Navajo Nation in northwest Arizona or from the plains of Kansas or from the streets of New York City, our fighting forces are composed of seemingly ordinary men and women who are capable of extraordinary things. And we give thanks for their service. To those who have sacrificed, we will remember that sacrifice, and we dare not fail to see this through. Because as we learned on that beautiful fall day just 3 years ago, there are those perfectly happy to kill Americans just because we are Americans.

So let us remember the sacrifices of those who serve. Let us remember the words of Captain Moore of Arizona. Let us remember the actions of Sergeant Adahy and so many others who are taking the fight to the insurgents and the agents of terror over there so that we do not confront them here.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE

A message from the Senate by Mr. Monahan, one of its clerks, announced that the Senate has passed without amendment bills of the House of the following titles:

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Dr. Barry C. Black, offered the following prayer:

O God, our protector, mountains melt in Your presence and islands shout for joy. We praise You because Your ways are just and true. You know our hearts and minds like an open book. Thank You for the security we have in You. When all around us seems destined for disaster, You alone remain our rock and refuge.

Lead our national and international leaders on the right road and give them strength for the journey. Keep them safe as You provide them with the patience to wait for Your harvest. Save them from the plots of evil and from the enemies of freedom. Give them the courage to speak for justice.

Give us the grace to love and pray even for those who hurt and wrong us. We pray this in Your holy Name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

The PRESIDENT pro tempore led the Pledge of Allegiance, as follows:

I pledge allegiance to the Flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands, one nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

RECOGNITION OF THE MAJORITY LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The majority leader is recognized.

SCHEDULE

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, good morning to everyone on this pleasant Saturday morning.

Today the Senate convenes for a rare weekend session. I believe it reflects our commitment to completing the very important business that has a direct impact on Americans. That is why we are here. We have important business before us and we will complete that business.

This morning, we will have the concluding remarks and amendments to the Senate intelligence and homeland security reform resolution under last night's order. At 11:15, we will begin the series of rollcall votes, which will conclude our action on this resolution. There will be anywhere from three to five votes, depending on the number of amendments that have been worked out. The final vote in the sequence will be on a sense-of-the-Senate resolution on agricultural disasters.

Today, we will also consider any available conference reports that arrive from the House, and that includes appropriation measures, as well as the Department of Defense authorization.

We also have an agreement that the cloture vote on the FSC JOBS conference report will occur at 1 p.m. on Sunday. I hope that cloture is invoked and, once invoked, on the JOBS legislation, we can move expeditiously toward passage of that conference report.

With that said, although we have made great progress toward finishing the remaining items on our agenda, there is still work to do. Individual members will ultimately determine how long the Senate will remain to complete our business. As I have stated repeatedly, we will stay in session until our work is done. I ask those individual Members to give consideration to the business we have before us and to our commitment on completing this business, and that they give every consideration to scheduling in that regard.

We are here through the weekend to work toward our goal, and I will continue to work with Senators to see if we can expedite our schedule for finishing.

RECOGNITION OF THE DEMOCRATIC LEADER

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Democratic leader is recognized.

COMPLETING THE SENATE'S WORK

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I also concur with the majority leader. I think today is going to be a very important day, because we will now have completed the first phase of the Senate's work in response to the 9/11 Commission recommendations. I have said this now on several occasions, but I think it bears repeating—it would not have happened were it not for the great effort made by the Senator from Kentucky and the Senator from Nevada, our two assistant leaders. I congratulate them and I appreciate their excellent work.

The majority leader also noted an interest and absolute necessity of finishing work on the foreign sales credit bill. I will be supporting cloture as well. I know there are all kinds of conflicting views about how many votes, what kind of votes, and what time the vote should be on Sunday. I know it is an inconvenience to a lot of Senators and we will try to accommodate those concerns as best we can. I think a Sunday vote—at least one—is unavoidable. I apologize to those who are inconvenienced. I don't think we have any choice given our circumstances. I also hope we can finish homeland security. As the majority leader has said on several occasions, it is important that we finish the homeland security bill. We cannot leave, as he has noted several times, without finishing that. It sends a terrible message to the country if we are not in a position to complete our work. I know the conferees are almost finished. So I hope we can complete our work over the course of the next several days.

We will work with the majority in making sure these unfinished items are completed, even though we cannot say at this point how much more time it is going to take to do so. I appreciate the majority leader's determination to finish our work before we leave. We will work with him to do that.

RESERVATION OF LEADER TIME

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the leadership time is reserved.

INTELLIGENCE COMMITTEE REORGANIZATION

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the Senate will resume consideration of S. Res. 445, which the clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 445) to eliminate certain restrictions on service of a Senator on the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence.

Pending:

McConnell/Reid/Frist/Daschle Amendment No. 3981, in the nature of a substitute.

Bingaman (for Domenici) Amendment No. 4040 (to Amendment No. 3981), to transfer jurisdiction over organization and management of United States nuclear export policy to the Committee on Energy and Natural Resources.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Under the previous order, the time until 11:15 a.m. shall be equally divided between the managers, with 30 minutes under the control of the Senator from Iowa, Mr. HARKIN. Who yields time?

The majority leader is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4035, AS MODIFIED

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask for the consideration of the modified version of my amendment No. 4035, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Tennessee [Mr. FRIST] proposes an amendment numbered 4035, as modified.

The amendment is as follows:

At the end of section 201, insert the following:

(i) PUBLIC DISCLOSURE.—Section 8 of S. Res. 400 is amended—

(1) in subsection (b)—

(A) in paragraph (1), by striking “shall notify the President of such vote” and inserting “shall—

“(A) first, notify the Majority Leader and Minority Leader of the Senate of such vote; and

“(B) second, consult with the Majority Leader and Minority Leader before notifying the President of such vote.”;

(B) in paragraph (2), by striking “transmitted to the President” and inserting “transmitted to the Majority Leader and the Minority Leader and the President”; and

(C) by amending paragraph (3) to read as follows:

“(3) If the President, personally, in writing, notifies the Majority Leader and Minority Leader of the Senate and the select Committee of his objections to the disclosure of such information as provided in paragraph (2), the Majority Leader and Minority Leader jointly or the select Committee, by majority vote, may refer the question of the disclosure of such information to the Senate for consideration.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, this amendment has been cleared on both sides. I urge its adoption.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The amendment (No. 4035), as modified, was agreed to.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who seeks recognition?

The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we have a number of amendments that are still outstanding. We disposed of the Frist amendment this morning, and we still have COLLINS, NICKLES, HUTCHISON, BINGAMAN, and ROCKEFELLER that are in order. I don't know if they are going to offer all of those amendments, but we have 1 hour and 5 minutes until we start voting. Everyone should understand, as I understand the order entered, a half hour over the next 65 minutes is for Senator HARKIN. So we have 35 minutes to debate these amendments. If they are not debated, we will start voting on them.

I think it would be unfortunate if people had to act on amendments without hearing something from someone. I hope they will either withdraw the amendments or present them. It puts Senator MCCONNELL and me in an awkward position when the amendments are in order and nobody is here to offer them. It is not fair to the Senate that there is not someone who lets us know whether they are going to be withdrawn or be offered, because some of the subject matter of the amendments is not very clear, as least to this Senator.

I have been told the Rockefeller amendment is not going to be offered.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, floor staff also informs me that the Collins amendment will not be offered.

As Senator REID indicated, we hope to hear from others who are on the list as to what their intentions might be. If they want to offer their amendment, now would be a good time to come and explain it.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Does the Senator need to withdraw that amendment?

Mr. REID. The Collins amendment is withdrawn?

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. It is the Chair's understanding that it will not be offered. I do not know if it is pending.

Mr. MCCONNELL. It is not pending.

Mr. REID. It is not pending, so I ask that it be deleted from our list because it is on the list of amendments that was entered into last night. So we still have the Nickles, Hutchison, and Bingaman amendments.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I have been informed that Senator NICKLES does intend to offer his amendment.

AMENDMENT NO. 4027 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3981, AND AMENDMENT NO. 4041 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4027, EN BLOC

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 4027 by Senator NICKLES and also a second-degree amendment by Senator NICKLES, No. 4041. As I indicated, Senator NICKLES will be here to debate that amendment later.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will report.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MCCONNELL], for Mr. NICKLES, for himself, and Mr. CONRAD proposes an amendment numbered 4027.

The Senator from Kentucky [Mr. MCCONNELL], for Mr. NICKLES, for himself, and Mr. CONRAD proposes an amendment numbered 4041 to amendment No. 4027.

The amendments are as follows:

AMENDMENT NO. 4027

(Purpose: To vest sole jurisdiction over the Federal budget process in the Committee on the Budget)

At the end of Section 101, insert the following:

“(e) JURISDICTION OF BUDGET COMMITTEE.—Notwithstanding paragraph (b)(3) of this section, the Committee on the Budget shall have exclusive jurisdiction over measures affecting the congressional budget process, including:

(1) the functions, duties, and powers of the Budget Committee;

(2) the functions, duties, and powers of the Congressional Budget Office;

(3) the process by which Congress annually establishes the appropriate levels of budget authority, outlays, revenues, deficits of surpluses, and public debt—including subdivisions thereof—and including the establishment of mandatory ceilings on spending and appropriations, a floor on revenues, timetables for congressional action on concurrent resolutions, on the reporting of authorization bills, and on the enactment of appropriation bills, and enforcement mechanisms for budgetary limits and timetables;

(4) the limiting of backdoor spending devices;

(5) the timetables for Presidential submission of appropriations and authorization requests;

(6) the definitions of what constitutes impoundment—such as “rescissions” and “deferrals”;

(7) the process and determination by which impoundments must be reported to and considered by Congress;

(8) the mechanisms to insure Executive compliance with the provisions of the Impoundment Control Act, title X—such as GAO review and lawsuits; and

(9) the provisions which affect the content or determination of amounts included in or excluded from the congressional budget or the calculation of such amounts, including the definition of terms provided by the Budget Act.”

AMENDMENT NO. 4041 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4027

(Purpose: To vest sole jurisdiction over the Federal budget process in the Committee on the Budget, and to give the Committee on the Budget joint jurisdiction with the Governmental Affairs Committee over the process of reviewing, holding hearings, and voting on persons, nominated by the President to fill the positions of Director and Deputy Director for Budget within the Office of Management and Budget)

Strike all after the first word, and insert the following:

JURISDICTION OF BUDGET COMMITTEE.—Notwithstanding paragraph (b)(3) of this section, and except as otherwise provided in the Congressional Budget Act of 1974, the Committee on the Budget shall have exclusive jurisdiction over measures affecting the congressional budget process, which are:

(1) the functions, duties, and powers of the Budget Committee;

(2) the functions, duties, and powers of the Congressional Budget Office;

(3) the process by which Congress annually establishes the appropriate levels of budget authority, outlays, revenues, deficits or surpluses, and public debt—including subdivisions thereof—and including the establishment of mandatory ceilings on spending and appropriations, a floor on revenues, timetables for congressional action on concurrent resolutions, on the reporting of authorization bills, and on the enactment of appropriation bills, and enforcement mechanisms for budgetary limits and timetables;

(4) the limiting of backdoor spending devices;

(5) the timetables for Presidential submission of appropriations and authorization requests;

(6) the definitions of what constitutes impoundment—such as “rescissions” and “deferrals”;

(7) the process and determination by which impoundments must be reported to and considered by Congress;

(8) the mechanisms to insure Executive compliance with the provisions of the Impoundment Control Act, title X—such as GAO review and lawsuits; and

(9) the provisions which affect the content or determination of amounts included in or excluded from the congressional budget or the calculation of such amounts, including the definition of terms provided by the Budget Act.

(f) OMB Nominees.—The Committee on the Budget and the Governmental Affairs Committee shall have joint jurisdiction over the nominations of persons nominated by the President to fill the positions of Director and Deputy Director for Budget within the Office of Management and Budget, and if one committee votes to order reported such a nomination, the other must report within 30 calendar days session, or be automatically discharged.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Who yields time?

Mr. McCONNELL. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I say to the Senator from Iowa, we have a few amendments that may be offered. I am concerned that the offerors will have no time at all to explain their amendments prior to the votes at 11:15. I am wondering if the Senator from Iowa would object if we have Senators who want to offer amendments on our list, which they are entitled to do, prior to the vote at 11:15, how we could accommodate them and give them an opportunity to explain what the amendment was about.

Mr. HARKIN. I do not mind. I thought I had half an hour under the rule. I do not care when I take my half hour. I can take it now or I will take it whenever. It does not make any difference to me.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, his half hour is unrelated to the underlying bill.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. That is correct, and the time of the quorum has not been charged against the Senator from Iowa. He has 30 minutes.

Mr. HARKIN. I do not have to take it now if the Senator wants to do something else.

The PRESIDENT pro tempore. The Senator is recognized for his 30 minutes.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I understand I have a half hour of time yielded to me. I may have to yield it to another Senator, but I will take some time right now.

NATURAL DISASTER RELIEF

Mr. President, the resolution I have offered is very straightforward. It simply reiterates the policy that this Senate and this Congress has endorsed repeatedly over the decades. It basically is that agricultural disaster assistance should be designated as emergency spending and not taken out of other farm programs. This is the way we have done this going back 50 years or more. In fact, I have looked and I have only found one instance in the last 50 years where we have offset, as they say, disaster assistance with some other money from the same program.

That was 2 years ago and that was corrected right away. We are now about to do the same thing.

Mr. President, one of the few uncertainties about agriculture is the uncertainty of the weather. And that is true whether it is farming or ranching, growing orchard crops or growing any other type of agricultural production. Even when a farmer has used his best practices, taken prudent steps to produce a crop, severe weather events can destroy years of work and threaten their livelihood.

Let me just quote from the USDA Web site:

Natural disaster is a constant threat to America's farmers and ranchers. From drought to flood, freeze, tornadoes, or other calamity, natural events can severely hurt even the best run agricultural operation.

We have responded to these disasters through emergency legislation in the past because we believed it was essential to respond to natural disasters to lessen the financial hardship involved. We do have programs in place such as crop insurance, loans, and so forth. However, major disasters can easily overwhelm these programs, and that is why Congress has consistently responded to natural disasters by providing emergency assistance. This emergency assistance usually covers crop losses, forages—that is hay and things like that—pasture losses for livestock producers, funding for tree assistance programs, and again there is some misconception that this disaster money makes the producer whole, puts the producer where he would be if the disaster never happened. That is just not true.

Let me give you an example. It is only available, first of all, if you have over 35 percent loss of your expected production. So if you have a loss under 35 percent, you don't get anything anyway. But let's take an example of a Kansas farmer who, in a normal year, produces 100 bushels of grain sorghum per acre. Now he only harvests 80 bushels. Well, if the grain sorghum is worth $2.30 a bushel, that farmer will have an income shortfall of $46 an acre, but he will not be eligible for any disaster assistance because he only had a 20-percent loss, so he gets nothing. If the yield is only 50 percent, that means he has a 50-percent loss. His income shortfall is $115 an acre. Now the farmer is eligible for disaster assistance for 15 bushels of that loss—at a low payment rate. So, again, it is only a small fraction of what he gets. He loses $115, and receives only about $20. So some people think disaster assistance puts you back where you were if you were whole. No, it does not. It basically just kind of keeps you going, and that is about it.

Now, you will hear a lot of reference to drought relief or a drought bill or drought emergency assistance. Well, that is a misconception. It has been a misconception all along. While that may be the most common problem, disaster legislation covers the whole range of weather-related losses. The bill language covers losses “due to damaging weather or related conditions.”

In addition to drought, the regulations that carry out disaster assistance include hurricanes, hail, floods, fires, freezes, tornadoes, mud slides, pest infestation, and other calamities—in short, just about anything Mother Nature can throw agriculture's way. It doesn't matter what weather event causes the loss. It doesn't matter if it is part of a hurricane that has a name or just a plain old ordinary storm that strikes the Midwest. It doesn't matter whether the crop loss happens in a catastrophic afternoon storm or whether it is the result of a drought that lasts 9 or 10 or 12 months. We have always included those in disaster assistance and treated them alike. That is what we passed in the Senate a few weeks ago. We passed an amendment unanimously on a voice vote to cover all types of weather-related disaster losses across the country and treated them the same.

That is basically what my resolution says. The White House and the House of Representatives decided to take a different approach. President Bush sent Congress the disaster assistance proposal that included agricultural disaster payments only for losses caused by hurricanes and left out assistance for a whole range of other disaster losses across the country. Furthermore, this hurricane disaster assistance would be designated emergency spending, meaning that it would not be taken away from other programs. The President was adamant that if Congress is going to respond to any other disasters across the country, then the cost has to be offset from the farm bill, and that is what the House measure did. It is interesting, the States included in the House hurricane package are Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, South Carolina, North Carolina, Georgia, Virginia, and Pennsylvania. So if you are a farmer in those States and you have a hurricane-related loss, your losses are covered without offsets. You get the emergency spending measure assistance. Here is the interesting wrinkle, Mr. President, in the President's package. If you are a farmer in one of those hurricane States that I just mentioned, but your loss was not from the hurricane—let's say you had a hailstorm. Let's say you had high wind damage from a severe storm in May. Let's say you had a pest infestation or something like that. Guess what. You get no assistance. In the House, in what the President proposed, if you suffer loss from a hurricane, your payments are under emergency spending. But if you are in a hurricane State and you have another disaster caused by a hailstorm, well, then the cost of your assistance comes out of the farm bill.

What kind of nonsense is that?

A sugarcane farmer, God bless him, in Florida lost his crop because of the hurricane. That farmer gets compensated out of the emergency package. Let's say you are a corn farmer in Ohio and your crop was knocked down by a tornado. Guess what. You are not in. Whatever assistance you get has to come out of the farm bill. So why is it, why is it that if you got hit by a hurricane, you are treated one way; if you get hit by a tornado or a hailstorm or a fire or a drought, you are treated another way. It absolutely makes no sense. So, again, we draw these artificial lines. The President has drawn them. Why discriminate against certain farmers? If you are a farmer and you lose your crop, as I said, to a tornado or high winds in Ohio or Wisconsin or Iowa or Minnesota or Missouri, well, guess what. They are going to take it out of one pocket and put it into your other pocket. But if you are a farmer down in Florida, they don't take it out of your pocket. The whole country, all of us, help pay for those disasters as we have done for the last 50 years.

Now the President wants to take the money out of the Conservation Security Program. That program covers the entire United States of America. Why would you want to take money out of a State such as Pennsylvania that uses conservation money or Ohio or Wisconsin or Minnesota or Iowa or Missouri, taking money out of those States to send to Texas or Oklahoma or Wyoming or Colorado to help the farmers who had a drought? That doesn't make sense. It seems if you are going to have a disaster assistance package, the whole country ought to pay for it, all of it. When you have an earthquake in Alaska, do we take the money out of one State, just one State, and pay for that—or two States—or do we just take it out of a State that maybe—we take it out of California because they have an earthquake and we send it to Alaska? No.

The entire United States of America, all of our people contribute to make sure that anyone who is hurt by an earthquake in Alaska or California or a flood in Iowa gets compensated and gets help. We had a flood in Iowa in 1993 that devastated our State. We didn't take money out of South Dakota or we didn't take out of Missouri or another State, out of what they get. The whole country came to our assistance.

As I said, I feel sorry for the people who have been hit by hurricanes, and we should help them, but we ought to do it on a national basis and not try to take it out of one pocket, one part to help another. That is not right. It is not right to discriminate against farmers.

One last thing I will say before I yield the floor. We don't take away a community's Federal funds for highways or housing or hospitals to fund civil disaster assistance. In other words, if we have a civil disaster, why should we take the money out of the highway money? If we are going to help Florida out, why don't we take it out of Florida's highway money? Take it out of their housing money? Take it out of their hospital money to pay for their civil disaster? We don't do that. So why should we do it in agriculture, on farmers? Why should we take it out of the farmers' pockets to pay for a disaster? Why don't we take the money out of the highway money going to Florida to pay for the hurricane? Take it out of their hospital money? Take it out of their housing money? We don't do that. We don't do it because it is not the right thing to do. We should not take it from the farm bill either.

I realize those of us who represent farmers and farm States, we get hit often because they say farmers get this and that. I want to point out, as I have pointed out time and time again, since we passed the farm bill in 2002 and the President signed it in May of 2002, we have saved the taxpayers of this country over $15 billion in less commodity program spending. I think that is a pretty healthy contribution by our farmers and our ranchers to help reduce the deficit of this country. Now they want to take more money out of agriculture to pay for a disaster. It is wrong. That is why I have offered this resolution which basically says:

It is the sense of the Senate that the 108th Congress should provide the necessary funds to make disaster assistance available for all customarily eligible agricultural producers as emergency spending and not funded by cuts to the farmer.

It is very simple and straightforward. Madam President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. SNOWE). THE SENATOR HAS 16 MINUTES REMAINING.

Mr. HARKIN. Madam President, I don't know if anyone wants any time. I will be glad to yield to my friend from North Dakota.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Madam President, I rise today to support the ranking member on the Senate Agriculture Committee in what he is saying. I am in my 18th year in the Senate. Only once before in that entire time have we taken money from other farmers to provide the funds to cover a natural disaster for others. That is just wrong. That is not the way we have operated. We have always dealt with natural disasters through emergency funding because none of us can know who is going to get hit by a natural disaster. None of us can know who is going to have a hurricane or a drought or a freeze.

In my State we have had three of the four. We didn't have hurricanes. We don't get hurricanes in North Dakota. But we have had drought in the southwestern part of the State. I have just taken a drought tour, and it looks like a moonscape. Nothing is growing. It is disastrous. The corn crop is about a foot high. There are no ears in the corn crop.

I go to the northern part of my State, and it is flooded. It is unbelievable. We have a lake in north central North Dakota called Devils Lake. That lake has risen 25 feet in the last 7 years. That lake is now 2½ times the size of the District of Columbia, and it has risen 25 vertical feet, taking up hundreds of thousands of acres.

We, as a Federal Government, have already had to buy out the entire town of Church's Ferry. We have had other towns that are on the brink of being swallowed up. We have spent tens of millions of dollars protecting the town of Devils Lake. We have moved over 600 structures.

All across the northern tier of North Dakota, something very unusual is happening. We have had extraordinarily wet conditions over a prolonged period. The result is 2 million acres they could not even plant this year—2 million acres. That is bigger than the size of the State of Delaware—land that couldn't be planted.

The land that could be planted is now so wet they can't drive the equipment in to harvest the crop. So you drive by the road and it looks like a fabulous crop, like there is a tremendous barley crop out there. It looks like 90- to 100-bushel barley. But you can't get into the land to take it off because the ground is soaked.

I was just at a farmer's home and he pointed up to the top of the rafters in his barn. He said: Senator, that is where the water is going to be 6 months from now, according to the State water commission, because the whole area is flooding.

In the midst of that we had a freeze in early August. Drought, flood, freeze—I have lived in North Dakota all my life, and I have never seen such a collection of natural disasters. So while I have great sympathy for the people of Florida and Southeastern United States who have suffered hurricanes, and I am prepared with my vote to help them, we would expect the same in return. They are not the only ones who have been hurt. I have tens of thousands of farm families who are wondering now, Is Washington going to help or is Washington going to turn its back?

We have not been on the news. The networks haven't been out there covering this drought. They have not covered this flooding because this is a slow-motion disaster. This is not the kind of thing that makes good television, as the water rises in North Dakota. That doesn't make good television. It is a slow-motion disaster, but it is a disaster nonetheless. People's lives are being devastated.

Always before we have had emergency funding—with one exception in the 18 years I have been here. Always before, when an area suffered natural disasters, we have voted emergency funding to give them some help.

Let me make clear to my colleagues—I have heard some say: If you would have had preventive planning, you wouldn't have any losses because you didn't have to plant the crop. That is not the way it works. You still have your land payment, you still have all your management expenses, and in most cases people put on fertilizer in anticipation of being able to plant. This idea that they don't have expenses is just wrong.

Then I have heard they will get more help than what they have lost. That is just wrong. People have said: They have crop insurance. Crop insurance will make them whole. No.

Crop insurance will not come anywhere close to making them whole; nowhere close. First of all, you have to have a 35-percent loss before you get anything. Then you only get a percentage of your loss over 35 percent. That is not going to make people anywhere close to whole—nowhere close. Even if you take disaster assistance and crop insurance, you are nowhere close to whole. You still have significant losses. That is the fact of the matter.

The disaster assistance we pass in the Senate is desperately needed, and it should not be taken away from other farmers in order to pay for it. We shouldn't take from what they need in order to try to provide assistance for those who have suffered natural disasters. That is not right. It is not fair. It has not been done before, with one exception in the 18 years I have been in the Senate. I had my staff go back and research the whole history. We have never done things that way with one exception.

We should not go down this path of turning our back on people who have suffered natural disasters, whether it is a hurricane, whether it is a flood, whether it is a drought, whether it is a freeze, or some horrific outbreak of disease. We need to stand ready to reach out with a helping hand.

I thank the ranking member from the State of Iowa, Senator HARKIN, for standing up, fighting back and being very clear about what is at stake here; and to our leader, Senator DASCHLE. The truth is without Senator DASCHLE as our leader, we wouldn't have a prayer of getting the assistance our area desperately needs. That is a fact.

Mr. DASCHLE. Madam President, I thank the distinguished Senator from North Dakota for his very kind words. There are a number of people who deserve great credit, beginning, of course, with our distinguished ranking member on the Senate Agriculture Committee. He has been the most forceful, the most passionate, the most articulate voice for agriculture and I am proud to call him my leader.

He and I were in the room when we wrote this a couple of years ago. I remember so vividly. It was in the room across the hall. This legislation wouldn't even exist were it not for what Senator HARKIN did in the room across the hall as we negotiated these issues and got the commitment from this administration and from our Republican friends that this conservation program would be fully funded. We got a commitment. Almost before the ink was dry, that commitment withered away. It disappeared.

I can understand the frustration of the distinguished Senator, the anger and the disappointment that after being given the commitment over and over again it was virtually the last thing we decided. Only because he held out as aggressively as he did, we finally said yes. OK. If this means getting the farm bill, we will agree to this and we will commit to funding. I was there in the room. I heard it myself, and here we are.

This isn't the first time. This is now the second time he has had to come to the floor.

I know a lot of Senators are inconvenienced, but I must say nobody is more inconvenienced by the doubletalk and the lack of commitment and the willingness to keep their word than our ranchers and farmers who are so desperate for the help Senator CONRAD and Senator HARKIN have so eloquently described.

Senator JOHNSON and I have the same situation in South Dakota. I talked to a rancher in the southwest near Edgemont. He broke down in tears, telling me that he is now going to be forced to sell his herd—a herd he has had all of his life. He said, I have never seen anything like this. His lips curled and he choked up. I felt so sorry for him. He said, But I am not alone. I am at the end of my career.

I worry about those young farmers and ranchers who are just getting started. What are they going to do?

This assistance is critical. But the double standard is so outrageous that I can understand why Member after Member representing farmer and rancher after farmer and rancher is coming to the floor to express their outrage and indignation.

You talk about heroes. I thank my colleague from South Dakota for making the effort he did so gallantly. Senator JOHNSON offered an amendment to say let's treat this disaster assistance the way we are treating all other disaster assistance. I understand it is about $11 billion. Let us treat it exactly the same. He made a passionate defense of that argument and lost on a 6-to-5 vote, as I understand it. It was a party-line vote.

Mr. JOHNSON. Madam President, may I direct a question to my colleague?

Mr. DASCHLE. I would be happy to yield for a question from the Senator from South Dakota.

Mr. JOHNSON. I want to report to the body that I have just come from the Military Construction Subcommittee conference markup. Oddly enough, military construction—the way things work around here—is now the vehicle for bringing up disaster relief to Florida and on the Northern Plains. We were able to obtain nearly a $3 billion drought relief package on that bill, thanks to Senator DASCHLE in large part, and Senator HARKIN, of course, with his leadership. But I don't believe it would be on the floor at all were it not for Senator DASCHLE's leadership.

That drought relief passed with a unanimous bipartisan vote in the Senate earlier this year. Yet when it came back to the Military Construction Subcommittee as part of this disaster aid we are adding, it had this very convoluted offset that is stretched out for over 10 years.

I have to ask the leader, Senator DASCHLE, who has been through this and has championed agriculture for so many years as an extraordinary representative and as a leader on rural and agricultural issues, if there is any logic the leader can discern why disaster relief for hurricane victims is emergency funding, and disaster relief as it turns out now for farmers and ranchers suffering from drought is cannibalized out of the agriculture budget for the rest of the decade. What logic is there to that? What fairness is there to that kind of approach to this disaster relief bill that is now likely to pass? We are grateful for disaster relief, but this uneven treatment between farmers and hurricane victims strikes me as sadly peculiar and an unfortunate precedent that rural people will suffer from for years to come.

I would be interested in any response, given the great experience and leadership Senator DASCHLE has afforded rural America for all of these years, whether he sees any logic to this kind of separate treatment of farmers versus others in America today.

Mr. DASCHLE. I thank my dear friend from South Dakota for his question and for his kind words.

I simply say there is no logical conclusion one can draw from this except that there are those in the administration and apparently here in Congress who believe farmers and ranchers ought to be subject to a double standard; that they aren't as poor as other victims and the other people who have experienced disasters of other kinds.

For some reason, this administration has minimized the losses in agriculture almost from the beginning. As the Senator so well knows, because he was right in the middle of the fight 2 years ago, we tried to persuade the administration to help farmers and ranchers with $6 billion disaster assistance. That was actually passed here on the Senate floor. They sat on it. They stalled it. They did everything they could to prevent it. Ultimately, all we got before the end of the year was about $1 billion—$5 billion less. It is no surprise. This isn't something new for this administration or some of our colleagues in the Congress.

This is yet another illustration and pattern of demonstration of how minimally they are prepared to support agriculture and our farmers and ranchers. It is a double standard. It is a shell game. They are telling farmers and ranchers we are going to take money out of your right-hand pocket and put it in your left-hand pocket, and we want you to feel good about it. There is no net additional revenue to be provided to agriculture as a result of this disaster relief. We are simply taking it out of their right pocket and putting it in their left pocket.

I can't imagine—and Senator CONRAD and others have noted how a rancher or a farmer could be anything but offended—that somebody would insist farmers and ranchers pay for their own grass and drought assistance, disaster assistance and flood assistance, when at the very same time, simultaneously, we are providing meaningful new assistance to the victims of hurricanes, which we all support.

The double standard, the shell game, the extraordinary intransigence on the part of those who are opposing the Johnson amendment and opposing our efforts to make farmers and ranchers whole is inexplicable. There is no logic. I appreciate very much his words.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. HARKIN. How much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 8 minutes.

Mr. HARKIN. We all need leaders to organize us, to inspire us, to get us moving in the right direction. Our distinguished leader, Senator DASCHLE from South Dakota, was kind enough to say good things about me with regard to the Agriculture bill, but we would never have gotten it together had it not been for his leadership. We, on this side of the aisle, all rely on his inspiration and his leadership, pulling us together. Nowhere is that more evident than our fight for farmers and ranchers and people who live in small towns and communities all over America.

I thank my good friend and my leader from South Dakota for what he has done for the people who live in the little towns such as my home town, Cummings, IA, with 150 people, for the farmers and ranchers of Iowa, South Dakota, and all over this country. Senator DASCHLE has been their voice and their leader, as he has been our leader. I daresay we wouldn't have half of the things we have for agriculture today had it not been for Senator DASCHLE, in making sure we had a good farm bill 2 years ago.

As Members can tell today, his passion is still there. I thank the good farmers and ranchers and rural people of South Dakota for having him here and having him as our leader.

Madam President, I ask that an editorial from the Des Moines Register of October 9 be printed at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 1.)

Mr. HARKIN. I will read one sentence from the editorial:

"The reality of the situation is that there will be no disaster money before we go home unless we provide budget offsets," said the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Rep. BOB GOODLATTE, R-Va.

Easy for him to say; farmers in his State are covered by the hurricane disaster assistance package. He doesn't have to worry about whether it is emergency money.

What kind of selfishness is that around here? If you are from a State where you get the hurricane disaster assistance, to heck with everybody else?

The Des Moines Register editorial said:

Cutting farm programs to pay for the assistance would amount to taking money from growers in the Midwest and giving it to producers in drought-stricken areas of Montana, the Dakotas and other Plains states.

I want to help those farmers. They should be helped. But as Senator DASCHLE said, they should not take it out of one pocket and put it in another.

I also ask that a letter from a number of different farm groups opposing the using of farm bill conservation money for disaster assistance be printed in the RECORD following my remarks. This is in opposition to the President's position.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 2.)

Mr. HARKIN. I ask that a letter from a number of conservation groups be printed in the RECORD at the conclusion of my remarks, asking that money not be taken out of the conservation title.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(See exhibit 3.)

Mr. HARKIN. I ask unanimous consent that at the conclusion of my remarks a letter to a number of Representatives on the House side from a number of conservation groups also be printed at the conclusion of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. Lastly, I have heard the argument that drought is long term; there is some kind of climate change, but for the western part of the United States, which has had droughts for the last 4 or 5 years, we cannot continue to give disaster money if it is going to be a drought one year after another.

Guess what. Florida sits in hurricane alley. They have had hurricanes going back for 100 years. Guess what. Hurricanes are going to hit Florida next year and the year after and the year after. Should we say we cannot give disaster money to Florida because this is a long-term type thing? That is what I heard about drought assistance because we have had it for 5 years. Because we have been hit by 5 years of drought, that is long term and therefore we cannot help you?

Maybe we ought to take a look at hurricane alley. Maybe they shouldn't get help because they will get hit by another hurricane next year or the year after. We don't get hit by hurricanes in Iowa. They do not bother us. But we get hit by things such as tornados and hail damage and drought and, yes, floods.

Lastly, this bill, in helping the drought-stricken farmers—and my friend from North Dakota knows this very well—it only covers 1 year. We have had a drought for 4, 5, or 6 years. Farmers who suffered crop losses in both 2003 and 2004 will get to pick 1 year, either 2003 or 2004, you pick one, that is all the disaster assistance you get. It does not cover 7 years; it covers 1 year.

I wanted to clear this up. I hear rumors and misconceptions around here. I wanted to make the record clear that, yes, we have had some problems—such as tornados. Oklahoma gets hit by tornados, and Kansas and Nebraska and Iowa. We have had a lot. We will next summer because we are in tornado alley. Does that mean if a tornado strikes we should not get any disaster money because we get hit by tornados every year? No. Neither should the farmers in the Dakotas or Montana or places that have a drought right now, nor should they be penalized because they have been hit by some dry weather for a few years.

[From the Des Moines Register, Oct. 9, 2004]

MIDWEST FARMERS MAY LOSE OUT WITH DISASTER AID

WASHINGTON, DC.—Farmers hit by a succession of crop losses hoped an election year would bring some extra cash from the government.

However, House Republicans are pushing for cuts in farm programs to pay for a $3 billion package of farm-disaster assistance, and agriculture groups may drop their support for the aid.

Cutting farm programs to pay for the assistance would amount to taking money from growers in the Midwest and giving it to producers in drought-stricken areas of Montana, the Dakotas and other Plains states. The prime target for the cuts is the popular Conservation Security Program written by Sen. TOM HARKIN.

"If disaster assistance comes out of the farm bill, then we oppose disaster assistance," said Mary Kay Thatcher, a lobbyist for the American Farm Bureau Federation.

Democrats accused Republicans of hypocrisy. The White House is pushing Congress to pass special emergency assistance for Florida hurricane victims, including farmers there, without demanding spending cuts. Florida is a key state in the presidential race. "It is not right to treat farmers in one part of this country different than farmers in another," Harkin said.

The House passed legislation earlier in the week that would pay for the drought assistance by capping the cost of the Conservation Security Program.

"The reality of the situation is that there will be no disaster money before we go home unless we provide budget offsets," said the chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, Rep. Bob Goodlatte, R-Va. Friday, lawmakers were looking into trimming things other than the Conservation Security Program because of technical problems with targeting the conservation payments, congressional aides said. Harkin, a Democrat, pledged to slow some must-pass bills unless Republicans backed off making the cuts. Friday afternoon, he blocked the Senate from considering amendments to an intelligence-reform bill.

The Senate passed a version of the drought aid paid for by adding to the federal budget deficit. Farmers could get payments for losses in either 2003 or 2004.

Iowa farmers would likely receive about $200 million to $250 million in disaster payments, primarily to cover damage to soybean fields, according to Harkin's staff. The Iowa Farm Bureau has estimated damage from the 2003 drought at $750 million.

The Conservation Security Program is designed to reward farmers for practices that prevent soil erosion and other environmental problems.

Some 2,188 farms, including 290 in Iowa, were signed up for the program this year. Enrollment was limited to 18 watersheds, or river drainage areas. The National Corn Growers Association never endorsed the disaster aid package, partly out of concern that it mean reductions in other farm spending, said Jon Doggett, a lobbyist for the group.

Hon. ROBERT BYRD,
Ranking Member, Committee on Appropriations and Subcommittee on Homeland Security, U.S. Senate, Washington, DC

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN AND RANKING MEMBER: The House and Senate have approved virtually identical legislation to provide vitally important financial assistance to assist farmers and ranchers who have suffered devastating crop losses due to hurricanes and drought. Importantly, the provisions approved by the House and Senate allow producers to choose to receive assistance for either 2003 or 2004 crop losses. And, since the legislation is similar to previous disaster programs, USDA should be able to deliver the assistance in a timely and cost efficient manner.

We understand that the free-standing legislation passed by the House on October 6 may serve as the House position in the conference on FY05 funding for Homeland Security. We are concerned that the House provision providing assistance for agricultural losses includes a funding offset, which reduces funding for a conservation program authorized in the 2002 farm bill. The Senate passed provision, which is included in the Homeland Security bill does not include an off-set. As you know, farm and commodity organizations have consistently opposed opening the farm bill, which is carefully balanced and has provided important, predictable financial stability for farmers, ranchers and rural Americans. While the House passed provision includes an off-set for a portion of the agriculture assistance, the other assistance was approved with an emergency designation and the House overwhelmingly rejected an amendment that would have offset the entire bill.

The purpose of this letter is to respectfully urge the conferees to retain the disaster assistance provisions as part of the Homeland Security funding but to eliminate the requirement that a portion of the funds for agricultural disaster assistance be off-set by a reduction in conservation programs or any other programs authorized by the 2002 farm bill. We believe the delivery of much needed assistance to farmers and ranchers suffering losses due to drought, hurricanes and other adverse weather is critically important to those who have suffered devastating losses, but we also believe preservation of the provisions of the 2002 farm law is important to all farmers and ranchers. We would also note that expenditures under the 2002 farm bill have been substantially less than that projected at the time of passage. Unfortunately budget rules do not allow use of those funds for other purposes, but we believe this should be a favorable factor in the consideration of our request.

As always, thank you for your consideration of our views and your leadership on matters critical to the U.S. agricultural community.

We fully support a disaster assistance package that is appropriately designated by Congress as emergency spending.

Conservation funding was critical to securing passage of the 2002 Farm Bill. These conservation programs have become win-win solutions for landowners and wildlife, while at the same time guard against economic impacts from droughts and floods. Each of the programs is oversubscribed, with farmer demand continuing to outpace available funding.

We strongly oppose the use of conservation program spending as an offset for disaster assistance. If you have questions about this issue, please contact Barton James (Ducks Unlimited) at (202) 347-1530.

Thank you very much for your time and consideration of this matter.

DEAR APPROPRIATIONS CONFEREES: As you conference the fiscal year 2005 Homeland Security appropriations bill and consider the Senate-passed agricultural disaster package, we urge you to reject any attempt to offset the costs of the disaster package with cuts to the 2002 Farm Bill's conservation assistance programs.

Conservation funding was critical to securing passage of the 2002 Farm Bill. Conservation programs in the 2002 Farm Bill provide farmers and ranchers with important financial assistance while addressing the nation's urgent natural resource and environmental needs. These programs guard against heightened natural resource and economic impacts from droughts and floods, and thus the long-term costs of weather related disasters, by improving soil and water quality and conservation. Each of the programs is oversubscribed, with farmer demand continuing to outpace available funding.

We strongly oppose the use of conservation program spending as an offset for the disaster package. In our view, it is unfair to single out agricultural disasters for offsets and unwise to single out conservation as the potential offset.

Thank you for considering our views.

Mr. HARKIN. How much time is remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 1 minute 40 seconds.

Mr. HARKIN. Whatever time I have remaining I would be glad to yield.

Mr. DORGAN. Let me, in the few moments remaining, thank the Senator from Iowa. Yesterday, someone asked him what he was doing, and he said: I am supporting my farmers.

The fact is, farmers in his State, our State and others, have been hit by weather-related disasters. You ought not treat farmers in different parts of the country in different ways. If you are going to provide disaster assistance to people in one part of the country, those farmers who have been hit with weather-related disasters in other parts of the country deserve to be helped as well.

This is a case of the Government saying to farmers during a tough period, you are not alone; we are here to help you. This is not a case of farmers begging to be helped. It is a case, for example, in our part of the country, where torrential rains wiped out the opportunity for farmers to even plant a crop on 1.7 million acres. Think of that. There were 1.7 million acres that could not be planted. These are farmers that will lose their farms if we do not offer some help.

The Senator from Iowa has been doing something very simple and powerful in the Senate. He is standing up for family farmers.

My colleague from North Dakota, Senator CONRAD, myself, and others are insistent we provide disaster relief and do so in the right way.

What is being done in the conferences, back and forth, the ping-ponging of inadequate proposals, proposals that are unusual, is not fair.

I commend the Senator from Iowa for being unwilling to sit by idly, silently, and allowing this to happen. I stand with him, as does my colleague, Senator CONRAD, and many others.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Nevada.

Mr. REID. On behalf of Senator BINGAMAN, I ask permission to withdraw from the list the Bingaman-Domenici amendment as listed.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I yield 5 minutes to the distinguished Senator from Ohio.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

AMENDMENT NO. 4027

Mr. VOINOVICH. Madam President, later on today we will be discussing an amendment submitted by Senator NICKLES. The amendment's alleged purpose is to clarify the shared jurisdiction of the congressional budget process between Governmental Affairs and the budget situation that grew out of the Budget Committee and the modern budget process of 1974.

Senate committees rarely share jurisdiction, and joint referral of legislation is accomplished by unanimous consent. Today, anything that deals with the budget either coming out of the Governmental Affairs Committee or coming out of Budget has to be referred to the Governmental Affairs Committee and within 30 days some action has to be taken so there is a joint referral.

This amendment would eliminate that and say that all of the budgetary process is within the jurisdiction only of the Budget Committee and would also require that instead of the nominations for the Director of the Office of Management and Budget and the deputy director being the sole jurisdiction of the Governmental Affairs Committee, that would be a joint jurisdiction. In other words, the Presidential appointee to Director of Budget and Management, Deputy Director, and other people, would have to come to the Governmental Affairs Committee and also go to the Budget Committee for their approval.

I think one of the things we are trying to do here is to streamline that whole process, that we have too many people who are being, frankly, nominated, and too much advice and consent.

One of the things in an amendment to the Homeland Security Act that we were able to get done was the provision that says we are going to ask the administration to come back with recommendations on how they can reduce the number of people who are sent to the Senate for advice and consent to streamline the process.

This amendment would make this Presidential appointment process in regard to the Director of Budget and Management and the Deputy Director much more complicated than it is today. I would also argue—with due respect to the expertise that is on the Budget Committee—that this process has not been looked at since 1974.

As a member of the Governmental Affairs Committee and the oversight of Government management in the Federal workforce, I have been concerned that we have not looked at that process since 1974—that we have discussed the feasibility of going to a 2-year budget. There are many things, in my opinion, that this body should be doing, and if it were solely within the jurisdiction of the Budget Committee, it might not get done. The Governmental Affairs Committee looks at the big picture.

I would also argue that too often in the Office of Budget and Management, there is no "M" in OMB. I am pleased to say that this administration has undertaken some very aggressive management responsibilities. I, quite frankly, think they would not have undertaken those management responsibilities had it not been for the fact that they had to be confirmed by the Governmental Affairs Committee of the U.S. Senate.

I know the relationships that I have built personally with the Director of the Office of Budget and Management; Sean O'Keefe, who was the Deputy Director, and now Director Josh Bolten, have really accrued to the benefit of our country in terms of improving the management of Government.

So what I am trying to say is the budget process is important not only to the Budget Committee but the budget process is important to the entire country and to the operation of Government because it has such a large impact on the whole operation of Government.

I respect the chairman of the Budget Committee, but as one who has been concerned about modernizing our procedures, I believe this would not promote what is in the best interest of the Senate or, for that matter, our country.

I ask unanimous consent to have printed in the RECORD the human capital changes that have occurred since 1999 that have come out of the Governmental Affairs Committee.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATOR GEORGE V. VOINOVICH, OHIO—AN AGENDA TO REFORM THE FEDERAL WORKFORCE: ACCOMPLISHMENTS

Senator Voinovich has made identifying and developing solutions to the federal government's strategic human capital challenges his highest priority for his Subcommittee on Oversight of Government Management. He has held 15 hearings on the subject, spoken at numerous public conferences, and was a key participant in the Harvard University John F. Kennedy School of Government Executive Sessions on the Future of the Public Service in 2001-2002. He has brought together the best minds in academia, government and the private sector to address these issues and developed a forward-looking legislative agenda. Taken together, the legislation he has sponsored and cosponsored represents the most significant governmentwide changes to the federal civil service system since passage of the Civil Service Reform Act of 1978.

Legislation sponsored by Senator Voinovich enacted into law:

Department of Defense Civilian Workforce Reshaping Authority as part of the FY 2001 Defense Authorization, became law on October 30, 2000.

Several major provisions of S. 2651, the Federal Workforce Improvement Act of 2002, were included in the Homeland Security Act of 2002, Public Law 107-296, November 25, 2002. Its most important provisions: agency chief human capital officers (at the 24 largest federal agencies); an interagency chief human capital officers council (codifying the Human Resources Management Council); an OPM-designed set of systems, including metrics, for assessing agency human capital management; inclusion of agency human capital strategic planning in annual performance plans and program performance reports required by GPRA; reform of the competitive service hiring process (use of a category ranking system instead of the Rule of Three); permanent extension, revision, and expansion of voluntary separation incentive pay and voluntary early retirement ("buyouts" and "early-outs");

S. 926, the Federal Employee Student Loan Assistance Act, Public Law 108-123, November 11, 2003. The law raises to $10,000 and $60,000, respectively, the annual and aggregate limits of student loan repayment federal agencies may offer employees as incentives.

S. 1683, the Federal Law Enforcement Pay and Benefits Parity Act of 2003, Public Law 108-196, December 19, 2003. The law required OPM to conduct a study of federal law enforcement compensation and classification to inform reform efforts. It was submitted to Congress on July 16, 2004.

S. 610, NASA Workforce Flexibility Act of 2004, Public Law 108-201, February 24, 2004. The law provides new personnel flexibilities to the National Aeronautics and Space Administration to recruit and retain a technology savvy workforce for NASA's high-tech mission.

H.R. 2751, GAO Human Capital Reform Act of 2004, Public Law 108-271, July 7, 2004. H.R. 2751 was the House companion to Senator Voinovich's bill S. 1522, which passed the Senate on November 24, 2003. It provides several new personnel flexibilities to the new U.S. Government Accountability Office.

Legislation cosponsored by Senator Voinovich enacted into law:

The Homeland Security Act of 2002, Public Law 107-296, November 25, 2002, allowed the new department to design a new personnel system for its 170,000 employees to meet its mission needs.

The National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2004, Public Law 108-136, November 24, 2003, includes the National Security Personnel System (NSPS). Senator Voinovich had a role in drafting the Senate version of NSPS, S. 1166. NSPS will provide significant personnel flexibilities to the Department of Defense similar to those at the Department of Homeland Security. In addition, this Act contains a provision that alleviates pay compression in the Senior Executive Service. Senator Voinovich had introduced a separate bill, S. 768, to accomplish this.

Legislation sponsored by Senator Voinovich currently under Congressional consideration:

S. 129, Federal Workforce Flexibility Act of 2003, was passed by the Senate on April 8, 2004, and it contains additional governmentwide human capital reforms. The House Committee on Government Reform considered and reported S. 129 to the full House on June 24, 2004. Senator Voinovich understands that the bill should pass the House the week of October 4th and return to the Senate for final passage.

Mr. VOINOVICH. I would like to emphasize for my colleagues how important it is that this jurisdiction in terms of the Director of Budget and Management and the Deputy Director remains in the Governmental Affairs Committee.

I would like to make one other point; that point is, the jurisdiction of our committee has been stripped out for the last couple of days. So I just urge my colleagues—I am going to ask for a vote. I think it is important to the management of our country.

I appreciate the opportunity to speak and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CHAFEE). The Senator's time has expired.

The Senator from Nevada is recognized.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, for my friend to say the jurisdiction of the committee has been stripped out in the last few days, he should come in contact with reality. It simply is not true. How many times people come and say that does not make it true. The governmental affairs/homeland security committee is going to be one of most powerful committees in the Congress. Last year, as I understand, they had about 900 bills referred to them. This next year, it will probably be 3,000 bills referred to them. They have jurisdiction over wide-ranging matters. A few little things have been taken from Governmental Affairs, but they have been given a truckload of stuff.

I yield 5 minutes to the Senator from North Dakota.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, first of all, I thank the Senator in Nevada for his comments. He is exactly right. For anybody to suggest Governmental Affairs has had their jurisdiction reduced here, I mean, come on. Governmental Affairs has had their jurisdiction dramatically increased.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, the amendment I am offering today with my ranking member, Senator CONRAD, would consolidate jurisdiction for the congressional budget process within the Senate Committee on the Budget and establish shared jurisdiction with the new Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs over the nomination and confirmation of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget. The amendment would preserve the Government Affairs Committee's jurisdiction over management and accounting measures.

Under current Senate rules, jurisdiction over budget process matters is shared with the Committee on Governmental Affairs, a situation that grew out of the creation of the Budget Committee and the modern budget process in 1974.

This shared jurisdiction is unique in the Senate, where committees rarely share jurisdiction, and where joint referral of legislation is only accomplished by unanimous consent.

Since 1977, the Budget and Governmental Affairs Committees have received joint referral for legislation affecting the budget process pursuant to a unanimous-consent agreement. Under that UC, if one committee acts on a bill the other committee must act within 30 days or be automatically discharged. Our amendment would supercede this consent agreement.

We all know the Federal budget process is very complicated. The expertise on this subject clearly resides in the Budget Committee, and Senator CONRAD and I believe that is where these issues should be addressed.

Over the years, the Governmental Affairs Committee has done little work on the budget process. Although the current jurisdictional situation has not necessarily created significant problems, we believe it is simply unnecessary to have two committees involved in these issues.

The Governmental Affairs Committee has a very broad and expansive jurisdiction which the resolution being considered would expand even further to matters of homeland security.

Senator CONRAD and I believe consolidating jurisdiction over budget process issues within the Budget Committee would eliminate confusion and guarantee that this work is performed by those with the expertise.

I encourage my colleagues to support our amendment.

Mr. CONRAD. Mr. President, I rise today to speak on behalf of the amendment from the chairman of the Budget Committee, Senator NICKLES.

Mr. President, the Senator from Ohio just got it wrong, what the amendment of the Senator who is the chairman of the Budget Committee does. We do not take the jurisdiction of Governmental Affairs on management issues at all, not at all. That is not what the amendment does.

What the amendment does do is end the duplication of the jurisdiction of the committees on budget process issues. I would submit to my colleagues, it does not make any sense any longer, after 30 years, for Governmental Affairs and Budget to have joint jurisdiction on budget process issues.

The reason they have that joint jurisdiction is because Governmental Affairs wrote the Budget Act. There was no Budget Committee, so at that time they had expertise that the Budget Committee simply did not have, so they were included on jurisdiction on budget process issues.

Well, 30 years have passed. The expertise on these issues is on the Budget Committee. It makes no sense in any management sense to have joint jurisdiction on budget process issues—not on the management issues. The management issues are retained by Governmental Affairs, as they should be. But budget process issues, as the chairman of the Budget Committee has suggested in his amendment, ought to be the jurisdiction of the Budget Committee.

Second, it makes no earthly sense for the nominee to be the Budget Director only to go before the Governmental Affairs Committee. That is what happens now. I think my colleagues would be stunned—I must say, I was very surprised, serving on the Budget Committee—that the Director of the Budget does not come before the Budget Committee. What sense does that make?

The amendment of the chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, Senator NICKLES of Oklahoma, does not expand the jurisdiction of the Senate Budget Committee. It simply eliminates the overlap in jurisdiction between the two committees on the narrow issue of budget process issues.

The expertise on budget process issues, on pay-go, on discretionary caps, on oversight of budget agreements, does not reside with the Committee on Governmental Affairs; it resides in the Budget Committee. We ought to clean up this overlap that has existed for 30 years that started for a good reason—because the Committee on Governmental Affairs wrote the Budget Act because there was no Budget Committee. But now there is a Budget Committee. It has been in existence 30 years. It ought to have jurisdiction over budget process issues. That just makes common sense.

Who could possibly defend the notion that a Budget Director should not come before the Budget Committee for confirmation? It makes no earthly sense.

The amendment of the Senator from Oklahoma is entirely reasonable. It is rational. It improves the operations of both committees. It does not take jurisdiction to the Budget Committee; it simply reduces the common jurisdiction that currently exists between Governmental Affairs and the Budget Committee on the narrow issue of budget process.

Mr. VOINOVICH. Will the Senator yield for a question?

Mr. CONRAD. I would be happy to yield after this statement.

And it gives to the Budget Committee the right to hear from the Office of Management and Budget, the man who is named or the woman who is named Budget Director in the confirmation process. That just makes common sense.

I would be happy to yield.

Mr. VOINOVICH. The question I would like to ask is, Has the procedure that we now have in terms of the appointment—and this has been for 30 years—diminished the effectiveness of the Budget Committee, because of the fact that they have not participated in the nomination of the Budget Director?

Mr. CONRAD. I believe the answer simply has to be yes. It makes no earthly sense for the person who is named to be the budget director of the United States not to come before the Budget Committee. What sense could that possibly make?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The time of the Senator from North Dakota has expired.

The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. MCCONNELL. Mr. President, I apologize to the Senator from Ohio. We are running out of time, and the distinguished senior Senator from Texas has an amendment she needs to be able to describe.

AMENDMENT NO. 4015 TO AMENDMENT NO. 3981

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Texas.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I call up amendment No. 4015.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Texas [Mrs. HUTCHISON] proposes an amendment numbered 4015.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

(Purpose: To implement responsible subcommittee reorganization in the Committee on Appropriations)

In section 402, strike the second sentence and insert the following: "The Committee on Appropriations shall reorganize into 13 subcommittees not later than 2 weeks after the convening of the 109th Congress."

AMENDMENT NO. 4042 TO AMENDMENT NO. 4015

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I call up a second-degree amendment No. 4042.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Senator from Texas [Mrs. HUTCHISON] proposes an amendment numbered 4042 to amendment No. 4015.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that reading of the amendment be dispensed with.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The amendment is as follows:

(Purpose: To implement responsible subcommittee reorganization in the Committee on Appropriations)

Strike "not later than 2 weeks" and insert "as soon as possible"

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent for adoption of the second-degree amendment.

Mr. REID. I object.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the second-degree amendment be agreed to.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, the amendment is agreed to.

The amendment (No. 4042) was agreed to.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, my amendment simply keeps what the Senate has said it wants, and that is an intelligence subcommittee on Appropriations, and it keeps the 13 subcommittees of Appropriations. It says the Appropriations Committee will organize into 13 subcommittees with the intelligence subcommittee as soon as possible after the convening of the 109th Congress.

All my amendment does is keep the Appropriations subcommittees at the same number, making sure there is one intelligence subcommittee, but it does not require the merging of Defense and Military Construction.

It may be that when the Appropriations Committee looks at all of the options for the making of 13 subcommittees, that that will happen, but I think the Appropriations Committee should be the one that makes the recommendations to the Senate. We do not have to rush to make this decision for the Appropriations Committee.

According to the CRS, eliminating a subcommittee through a measure on the Senate floor is unprecedented. In more than 200 years, the CRS says, the Senate has never eliminated a subcommittee through floor action without the committee bringing it to the floor. The Senate has created subcommittees, as with the Governmental Affairs Subcommittee on Investigations in 1952, but not eliminated subcommittees. Merging subcommittees to create room for the new one may be the right thing to do, but the floor is the wrong place to do it.

What is proposed today will set a precedent that could impact every committee by pulling the ability of the committee to organize itself and having that agreed to by the Senate. This is a precedent that should concern every committee. It should concern the majority and the minority. There is no reason to make this decision now.

Also, these changes must be made in conjunction with the House. The House Appropriations subcommittees and the Senate Appropriations subcommittees should match so that when we conference, we will have a finite subcommittee that deals with the same issues; otherwise, there could be many problems with the appropriations process that would complicate an already complicated process.

The House has not made any decisions about reorganizing itself on the Appropriations Committee. The wise thing for the Senate to do would be to create the new intelligence subcommittee of the Appropriations Committee, determine that there will be 13 subcommittees but require the Appropriations Committee to do the reorganization, after which the Senate would be asked to agree. That is all my amendment does.

Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There appears to be.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to speak for 2 minutes in opposition to the amendment offered by the Senator from Texas.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator has 6 minutes remaining.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I serve on the Appropriations Committee with the distinguished Senator from Texas. She certainly is one of the finest Senators here. But on this issue I disagree with her. In the underlying legislation before the Senate, there has been a consolidation of Defense appropriations and Military Construction. This certainly makes sense. The subject matter is related to the same players, same departments, military, same basis. It does not make sense to make the artificial divide for Construction. I have served as chairman of the Military Construction Subcommittee, and I enjoyed it, but I always wondered why it was a separate subcommittee.

It does, however, make sense to pull intelligence from defense and make it a separate subcommittee. That is what we have done. We have talked to experts, and we think this is the best way to do it. We should keep this plan intact. It is the right thing to do.

The legislation we now have before the Senate is a good package. I don't think it should be splintered with trying to have the Committee on Appropriations rearrange what we have done.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, how much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 2½ minutes remaining.

Mr. McCONNELL. I yield the remaining time that I have to the Senator from Ohio.

AMENDMENT NO. 4027

Mr. VOINOVICH. Mr. President, I would just like to emphasize again that the current situation is one that is working. Unless one can show that it is not working in terms of the authority or the jurisdiction of the Governmental Affairs Committee, I would argue, why change it.

Secondly, this amendment would then subject the appointees of the Director of the Office of Management and Budget, the Deputy Director, and other people to jurisdictions in two committees, which would make the appointment process longer than it is today in an area that is particularly important to the President. What he wants to do immediately is to get his director of budget on board.

Secondly, I think we need to point out that the budget process is not just the jurisdiction of the Budget Committee. Under this amendment, if I want to put a bill in, for example, to reform the budget process to 2-year budgets, to require that the budget include a presentation on the accrued liabilities of the United States and, for that matter, go back and look at the Budget Act of 1974, which should be updated, that bill would have to go to the Budget Committee. If the members of that committee were unhappy with that, if they like the process of 1-year budgets because of the fact that they like to take a bite out of the apple each year, that bill would be dead.

Under the current situation, if someone has an idea of improving the budget process that impacts not only the budget but the entire operation of Government, they can bring it to the Governmental Affairs Committee. We could handle that legislation, and then that legislation would have to be referred to the Budget Committee for their consideration. The fact is, this is too large a responsibility just to put it within the jurisdiction of the Budget Committee. I argue that it makes a lot of sense to leave the situation as it is unless somebody can tell me that it is not working.

I will say one other thing: Our Government's biggest problem today is management. Having jurisdiction of the Office of Management and Budget in Governmental Affairs has given this Senator a lot of leverage to get this administration to do some things that are important for the country.

I thank the Chair.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I would like the record to reflect that when I spoke regarding Senator VOINOVICH earlier, I said there were approximately 900 bills referred to the Governmental Operations Committee. I misspoke. It is 300. I want the record to reflect the proper number.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the first vote occur on the Nickles amendment, to be followed by a vote on the Hutchison amendment.

VOTE ON AMENDMENT NO. 4041

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I believe we need the yeas and nays on the Nickles amendment.

I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second? There is a sufficient second. All time has expired.

The question is on agreeing to the Nickles second-degree amendment No. 4041.

The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk called the roll.

Mr. McCONNELL. I announce that the Senator from Colorado (Mr. CAMPBELL), the Senator from Georgia (Mr. CHAMBLISS), the Senator from Texas (Mr. CORNYN), the Senator from Idaho (Mr. CRAIG), the Senator from South Carolina (Mr. GRAHAM), the Senator from Pennsylvania (Mr. SPECTER), and the Senator from New Hampshire (Mr. SUNUNU) are necessarily absent.

I further announce that, if present and voting, the Senator from Texas (Mr. CORNYN) would vote "yea."

The amendment (No. 4041) was agreed to.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, Senator HATCH and Senator LEAHY have a crime bill that has been agreed to on both sides. I ask unanimous consent that they be allowed to bring up that bill, with debate time limited to 1 minute on each side.

Ms. LANDRIEU. May we have order in the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. NICKLES. I will not object.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Kentucky.

Mr. McCONNELL. Also, just prior to that, I ask consent that Senator NICKLES have 1 minute to speak on the amendment just voted on.

Mr. REID. I am sorry, I couldn't hear that.

Mr. McCONNELL. One minute to speak on the amendment just voted on by Senator NICKLES, followed by 2 minutes equally divided by Senator HATCH and Senator LEAHY.

Mr. REID. I ask the Senator to modify his request to allow 1 minute on each side prior to voting on the Hutchison amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Oklahoma.

Mr. NICKLES. Mr. President, I thank our colleagues for the vote on the last amendment. I especially thank my colleague and friend, Senator CONRAD, for his eloquent debate on it, as well as for his support and cosponsorship of the amendment.

I think it is a good amendment. I think it helps the budget process. Also, I compliment my friend. It has been a pleasure to work with him on the Budget Committee. This was a good, positive budget change. I thank him for his leadership on this amendment.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that my reading of this procedural matter will not be counted against my 1 minute on the amendment.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

INNOCENCE PROTECTION ACT OF 2004

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate immediately proceed to the consideration of H.R. 5107, the DNA bill, which is at the desk; further, that the bill be read a third time and passed and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table; provided further, that when the Senate receives from the House a correcting enrollment resolution relating to H.R. 5107, the Senate proceed to its consideration and the resolution be agreed to and the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table. Finally, I ask unanimous consent that if the House does not adopt the correcting enrollment resolution by the end of this Congress, then the Senate action on H.R. 5107 be vitiated.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 5107) was read the third time and passed.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, this is the very important DNA bill which will help resolve the difficulties with over 400,000 rape kits in this country, some of which are 20 years old or older.

Mr. President, I would just like to compliment Debbie Smith and Kirk Bloodworth, who are two of the initiating people who have helped bring this about, but also all the people who worked so hard: Senator LEAHY, Senator BIDEN, Senator SPECTER, Senator FEINSTEIN, Senator DEWINE and, of course on the House side, Chairman SENSENBRENNER and Representative BILL DELAHUNT for their dogged determination, and to Senators KYL, SESSIONS, and CORNYN who did a really great job on this bill; also staff on both sides, in both Houses.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. KYL. Mr. President, as the primary drafter of Title I of H.R. 5107, I would like to make a few comments. After extensive consultation with my colleagues, broad bipartisan consensus was reached and the language in Title I was agreed to.

I would like to make it clear that it is not the intent of this bill to limit any laws in favor of crime victims that may currently exist, whether these laws are statutory, regulatory, or found in case law. I would like to turn to the bill itself and address the first section, (a)(1), the right of the crime victim to be reasonably protected. Of course the government cannot protect the crime victim in all circumstances. However, where reasonable, the crime victim should be provided accommodations such as a secure waiting area, away from the defendant before and after and during breaks in the proceedings. The right to protection also extends to require reasonable conditions of pre-trial and post-conviction relief that include protections for the victim's safety.

I would like to address the notice provisions of (a)(2). The notice provisions are important because if a victim fails to receive notice of a public proceeding in the criminal case at which the victim's right could otherwise have been exercised, that right has effectively been denied. Public court proceedings include both trial level and appellate level court proceedings. It does not make sense to enact victims' rights that are rendered useless because the victim never knew of the proceeding at which the right had to be asserted. Simply put, a failure to provide notice of proceedings at which a right can be asserted is equivalent to a violation of the right itself.

Equally important to this right to notice of public proceedings is the right to notice of the escape or release of the accused. This provision helps to protect crime victims by notifying them that the accused is out on the streets.

For these rights to notice to be effective, notice must be sufficiently given in advance of a proceeding to give the crime victim the opportunity to arrange his or her affairs in order to be able to attend that proceeding and any scheduling of proceedings should take into account the victim's schedule to facilitate effective notice.

Restrictions on public proceedings are in 28 CFR Sec. 50.9 and it is not the intent here today to alter the meaning of that provision.

Too often crime victims have been unable to exercise their rights because they were not informed of the proceedings. Pleas and sentencings have all too frequently occurred without the victim ever knowing that they were taking place. Victims are the persons who are directly harmed by the crime and they have a stake in the criminal process because of that harm. Their lives are significantly altered by the crime and they have to live with the consequences for the rest of their lives. To deny them the opportunity to know of and be present at proceedings is counter to the fundamental principles of this country. It is simply wrong. Moreover, victim safety requires that notice of the release or escape of an accused from custody be made in a timely manner to allow the victim to make informed choices about his or her own safety. This provision ensures that takes place.

I would like to turn to (a)(3), which provides that the crime victim has the right not to be excluded from any public proceedings. This language was drafted in a way to ensure that the government would not be responsible for paying for the victim's travel and lodging to a place where they could attend the proceedings.

In all other respects, this section is intended to grant victims the right to attend and be present throughout all public proceedings.

This right is limited in two respects. First, the right is limited to public proceedings, thus grand jury proceedings are excluded from the right. Second, the government or the defendant can request, and the court can order, judicial proceedings to be closed under existing laws. This provision is not intended to alter those laws or their procedures in any way. There may be organized crime cases or cases involving national security that require procedures that necessarily deny a crime victim the right not to be excluded that would otherwise be provided under this section. This is as it should be. National security matters and organized crime cases are especially challenging and there are times when there is a vital need for closed proceedings. In such cases, the proceedings are not intended to be interpreted as "public proceedings" under this bill. In this regard, it is not our intent to alter 28 CFR Sec. 50.9 in any respect.

Despite these limitations, this bill allows crime victims, in the vast majority of cases, to attend the hearings and trial of the case involving their victimization. This is so important because crime victims share an interest with the government in seeing that justice is done in a criminal case and this interest supports the idea that victims should not be excluded from public criminal proceedings, whether these are pre-trial, trial, or post-trial proceedings.

When "the court, after receiving clear and convincing evidence, determines that testimony by the victim would be materially altered if the victim heard other testimony at that proceeding," a victim may be excluded. The standards of "clear and convincing evidence" and "materially altered" are extremely high and intended to make exclusion of the victim quite rare, especially since (b) says that "before making a determination described in subsection (a)(3), the court shall make every effort to permit the fullest attendance possible by the victim and shall consider reasonable alternatives to the exclusion of the victim from the criminal proceeding." It should be stressed that (b) requires that "the reasons for any decision denying relief under this chapter shall be clearly stated on the record." A judge should explain in detail the precise reasons why relief is being denied.

This right of crime victims not to be excluded from the proceedings provides a foundation for (a)(4), which provides victims the right to reasonably be heard at any public proceeding involving release, plea, or sentencing. This provision is intended to allow crime victims to directly address the court in person. It is not necessary for the victim to obtain the permission of either party to do so. This right is a right independent of the government or the defendant that allows the victim to address the court. To the extent the victim has the right to independently address the court, the victim acts as an independent participant in the proceedings. When a victim invokes this right during plea and sentencing proceedings, it is intended that the he or she be allowed to provide all three types of victim impact: the character of the victim, the impact of the crime on the victim, the victims' family and the community, and sentencing recommendations. Of course, the victim may use a lawyer, at the victim's own expense, to assist in the exercise of this right. This bill does not provide victims with a right to counsel but recognizes that a victim may enlist a counsel on their own.

It is not the intent of the term "reasonably" in the phrase "to be reasonably heard" to provide any excuse for denying a victim the right to appear in person and directly address the court. Indeed, the very purpose of this section is to allow the victim to appear personally and directly address the court. This section would fail in its intent if courts determined that written, rather than oral communication, could generally satisfy this right. On the other hand, the term "reasonably" is meant to allow for alternative methods of communicating a victim's views to the court when the victim is unable to attend the proceedings. Such circumstances might arise, for example, if the victim is incarcerated on unrelated matters at the time of the proceedings or if a victim cannot afford to travel to a courthouse. In such cases, communication by the victim to the court is permitted by other reasonable means. In short, the victim of crime, or their counsel, should be able to provide any information, as well as their opinion, directly to the court concerning the release, plea, or sentencing of the accused. This bill intends for this right to be heard to be an independent right of the victim.

It is important that the "reasonably be heard" language not be an excuse for minimizing the victim's opportunity to be heard. Only if it is not practical for the victim to speak in person or if the victim wishes to be heard by the court in a different fashion should this provision mean anything other than an in-person right to be heard.

Of course, in providing victim information or opinion it is important that the victim be able to confer with the prosecutor concerning a variety of matters and proceedings. Under (a)(5), the victim has a reasonable right to confer with the attorney for the government in the case. This right is intended to be expansive. For example, the victim has the right to confer with the government concerning any critical stage or disposition of the case. The right, however, it is not limited to these examples. This right to confer does not give the crime victim any right to direct the prosecution. Prosecutors should consider it part of their profession to be available to consult with crime victims about concerns the victims may have which are pertinent to the case, case proceedings or dispositions. Under this provision, victims are able to confer with the government's attorney about proceedings after charging. I would note that the right to confer does impair the prosecutorial discretion of the Attorney General or any officer under his direction, as provided (d)(6).

I would like to turn now to restitution in (a)(6). This section provides the right to full and timely restitution as provided in law. We specifically intend to endorse the expansive definition of restitution given by Judge Cassell in U.S. v. Bedonie and U.S. v. Serawop in May 2004. This right, together with the other rights in the act to be heard and confer with the government's attorney in this act, means that existing restitution laws will be more effective.

I would like to move on to (a)(7), which provides crime victims with a right to proceedings free from unreasonable delay. This provision does not curtail the government's need for reasonable time to organize and prosecute its case. Nor is the provision intended to infringe on the defendant's due process right to prepare a defense. Too often, however, delays in criminal proceedings occur for the mere convenience of the parties and those delays reach beyond the time needed for defendant's due process or the government's need to prepare. The result of such delays is that victims cannot begin to put the criminal justice system behind them and they continue to be victimized. It is not right to hold crime victims under the stress and pressure of future court proceedings merely because it is convenient for the parties or the court.

This provision should be interpreted so that any decision to schedule, reschedule, or continue criminal cases should include victim input through the victim's assertion of the right to be free from unreasonable delay.

I would add that the delays in criminal proceedings are among the most chronic problems faced by victims. Whatever peace of mind a victim might achieve after a crime is too often inex-cusably postponed by unreasonable delays in the criminal case. A central reason for these rights is to force a change in a criminal justice culture which has failed to focus on the legitimate interests of crime victims, a new focus on limiting unreasonable delays in the criminal process to accommodate the victim is a positive start.

I would like to turn to (a)(8). The broad rights articulated in this section are meant to be rights themselves and are not intended to just be aspirational. One of these rights is the right to be treated with fairness. Of course, fairness includes the notion of due process. Too often victims of crime experience a secondary victimization at the hands of the criminal justice system. This provision is intended to direct government agencies and employees, whether they are in executive or judicial branches, to treat victims of crime with the respect they deserve and to afford them due process.

It is not the intent of this bill that its significance be whittled down or marginalized by the courts or the executive branch. This legislation is meant to correct, not continue, the legacy of the poor treatment of crime victims in the criminal process. This legislation is meant to ensure that cases like the McVeigh case, where victims of the Oklahoma City bombing were effectively denied the right to attend the trial and to avoid federal appeals courts from determining, as the Tenth Circuit Court of Appeals did, that victims had no standing to seek review of their right to attend the trial under the former victims' law that this bill replaces.

I would also like to comment on (b), which directs courts to ensure that the rights in this law be afforded and to record, on the record, any reason for denying relief of an assertion of a crime victim. This provision is critical because it is in the courts of this country that these rights will be asserted and it is the courts that will be responsible for enforcing them. Further, requiring a court to provide the reasons for denial of relief is necessary for effective appeal of such denial.

Turning briefly to (c), there are several important things to point out. First, this provision requires that the government inform the victim that the victim can seek the advice of the attorney, such as from the legal clinics for crime victims contemplated under this law, such as the law clinics at Arizona State University and those supported by the National Crime Victim Law Institute at the Law School at Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon. This is an important protection for crime victims because it ensures the independent and individual nature of their rights. Second, the notice section immediately following limits the right to notice of release where such notice may endanger the safety of the person being released. There are cases, particularly in domestic violence cases, where there is danger posed by an intimate partner if the intimate partner is released. Such circumstances are not the norm, even in domestic violence cases as a category of cases. This exception should not be relied upon as an excuse to avoid notifying most victims.

I would now like to address the enforcement provisions of the bill in (d). This provision allows a crime victim to enter the criminal trial court during proceedings involving the crime against the victim, to stand with other counsel in the well of the court, and assert the rights provided by this bill. This provision ensures that crime victims have standing to be heard in trial courts so that they are heard at the very moment when their rights are at stake and this, in turn, forces the criminal justice system to be responsive to a victim's rights in a timely way. Importantly, however, the bill does not allow the defendant in the case to assert any of the victim's rights to obtain relief. This prohibition prevents the individual accused of the crime from distorting a right intended for the benefit of the individual victim into a weapon against justice.

The provision allows the crime victim's representative and the attorney for the government to go into a criminal trial court and assert the crime victim's rights. The inclusions of representatives and the government's attorney in the provision are important for a number of reasons. First, allowing a representative to assert a crime victim's rights ensures that where a crime victim is unable to assert the rights on his or her own for any reason, including incapacity, incompetence, minority, or death, those rights are not lost. The representative for the crime victim can assert the rights. Second, a crime victim may choose to enlist a private attorney to represent him or her in the criminal case—this provision allows that attorney to enter an appearance on behalf of the victim in the criminal trial court and assert the victim's rights. The provision also recognizes that, at times, the government's attorney may be best situated to assert a crime victim's rights either because the crime victim is not available at a particular point in the trial or because, at times, the crime victim's interests coincide with those of the government and it makes sense for a single person to express those joined interests. Importantly, however, the provision does not mean that the government's attorney has the authority to compromise or co-opt a victim's right. Nor does the provision mean that by not asserting a victim's right the government's attorney has waived that right. The rights provided in this bill are personal to the individual crime victim and it is that crime victim that has the final word regarding which of the specific rights to assert and when. Waiver of any of the individual rights provided can only happen by the victim's affirmative waiver of that specific right.

In sum, without the ability to enforce the rights in the criminal trial and appellate courts of this country any rights afforded are, at best, rhetoric. We are far past the point where lip service to victims' rights is acceptable. The enforcement provisions of this bill ensure that never again are victim's rights provided in word but not in reality.

I want to turn to (d)(2) because it is an unfortunate reality that in today's world there are crimes that result in multiple victims. The reality of those situations is that a court may find that the sheer number of victims is so large that it is impracticable to accord each victim the rights in this bill. The bill allows that when the court makes that finding on the record the court must then fashion a procedure that still gives effect to the bill and yet takes into account the impracticability. For instance, in the Oklahoma City bombing case the number of victims was tremendous and attendance at any one proceeding by all of them was impracticable so the court fashioned a procedure that allowed victims to attend the proceedings by close circuit television. This is merely one example. Another may be to allow victims with a right to speak to be heard in writing or through other methods. Importantly, courts must seek to identify methods that fit the case before that to ensure that despite the high number of crime victims, the rights in this bill are given effect. It is a tragic reality that cases may involve multiple victims and yet that fact is not grounds for eviscerating the rights in this bill. Rather, that fact is grounds for the court to find an alternative procedure to give effect to this bill.

I now want to turn to another critical aspect of enforcement of victims' rights, (d)(3). This subsection provides that a crime victim who is denied any of his or her rights as a crime victim has standing to seek appellate review of that denial. Specifically, the provision allows a crime victim to apply for a writ of mandamus to the appropriate appellate court. The provision provides that court shall take the writ and shall order the relief necessary to protect the crime victim's right. This provision is critical for a couple of reasons. First, it gives the victim standing to appear before the appellate courts of this country and ask for review of a possible error below. Second, while mandamus is generally discretionary, this provision means that courts must review these cases. Appellate review of denials of victims' rights is just as important as the initial assertion of a victim's right. This provision ensures review and encourages courts to broadly defend the victims' rights.

Without the right to seek appellate review and a guarantee that the appellate court will hear the appeal and order relief, a victim is left to the mercy of the very trial court that may have erred. This country's appellate courts are designed to remedy errors of lower courts and this provision requires them to do so for victim's rights. For a victim's right to truly be honored, a victim must be able to assert the rights in trial courts, to then be able to have denials of those rights reviewed at the appellate level, and to have the appellate court take the appeal and order relief. By providing for all of this, this bill ensures that victims' rights will have meaning. It is the clear intent and expectation of Congress that the district and appellate courts will establish procedures that will allow for a prompt adjudication of any issues regarding the assertion of a victim's right, while giving meaning to the rights we establish.

I would like to turn our attention to (d)(4) because that also provides an enforcement mechanism. This section provides that in any appeal, regardless of the party initiating the appeal, the government can assert as error the district court's denial of a crime victim's right. This subsection is important for a couple of reasons. First, it allows the government to assert a victim's right on appeal even when it is the defendant who seeks appeal of his or her conviction. This ensures that victims' rights are protected throughout the criminal justice process and that they do not fall by the wayside during what can often be an extended appeal that the victim is not a party to.

I would like to turn to the next provision, (d)(5). This provision is not intended to prevent courts from vacating decisions in non-trial proceedings, such as proceedings involving release, delay, pleas, or sentencings, in which victims' rights were not protected, and ordering those proceedings to be redone.

It is important for victims' rights to be asserted and protected throughout the criminal justice process, and for courts to have the authority to redo proceedings such as release, delay, pleas, and sentencings, where victims' rights are abridged.

I want to turn to the definitions in the bill, contained in (e). There are a couple of key points to be made about the definitions. A "crime victim" is defined as a person directly and proximately harmed as a result of a federal offense or an offense in the District of Columbia. This is an intentionally broad definition because all victims of crime deserve to have their rights protected, whether or not they are the victim of the count charged. Additionally, crime victims may, for any number of reasons, want to employ an attorney to represent them in court. This definition of crime victim allows crime victims to do that. It also assures that when, for any reason, crime victims unable to assert rights on their own—those rights will still be protected.

Now I would like to turn to the portion of the bill concerning administrative compliance with victims' rights. The provisions of (f) are relatively self-explanatory, but it is important to point out that these procedures are completely separate from and in no way limit the victim's rights in the previous section.

I also would like to make it clear that it is the intention of the Congress that the money authorized in 1404D for the Director of the Office for Victims of Crimes “for the support of organizations that provide legal counsel and support services for victims in criminal cases for the enforcement of crime victims’ rights in Federal jurisdictions, and in States and tribal governments . . .” is intended to support the work of the National Crime Victim Law Institute at the Law School at Lewis and Clark College in Portland, Oregon, and to replicate across the nation the clinics that it is supporting, fashioned after the Crime Victims Legal Assistance Project housed at Arizona State University College of Law and run by Arizona Voice for Crime Victims. The Director of OVC should take care to make sure that these funds go into the support of these programs so that crime victims can receive free legal counsel to enforce their rights in our federal courts. Only in this way will be able to fully and fairly test whether statutes are enough to protect victims’ rights. There is no substitute for testing these rights in our courts to see if they have the power to change a culture that for too long has ignored the victim.

Let me comment briefly on the provision on reports. Under (a), the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts to report annually the number of times a right asserted in a criminal case is denied the relief requested, and the reasons therefore, as well as the number of times a mandamus action was brought and the result of that mandamus.

Such reporting is the only way we in the Congress and other interested parties can observe whether reforms we mandate are being carried out. No one doubts the difficulty of obtaining case-by-case information of this nature. Yes, this information is critical to understanding whether federal statutes really can effectively protect victim’s rights or whether a constitutional amendment is necessary. We are certain that affected executive and judicial agencies can work together to implement effective administrative tools to record and amass this data. We would certainly encourage the National Institute of Justice to support any needed research to get this system in place.

One final point. Throughout this Act reference is made to the “accused.” The intent is for this word to be used in the broadest sense to include both those charged and convicted so that the rights we establish apply throughout the criminal justice system.

TITLE IV

Mr. HATCH. Before we agree to send this bill to the House, there are a number of concerns raised with respect to the capital-counsel section of Title IV that I would like to address with my colleagues. I know that this title has been of particular concern to my friend from Texas, Senator CORNYN.

Mr. CORNYN. I thank the Senator. I do have a number of concerns about the Innocence Protection Act. Namely,

I am concerned that under this bill, states effectively are required to adhere to a Federal regulatory system, answering to the Department of Justice, for defense and prosecution representation in State capital cases. However, I have been encouraged by recent modifications to the bill that lead me to believe a greater balance has been struck between ensuring strong capital representation systems and supporting the prosecution and sentencing of violent criminals. Senator HATCH, is it your belief that such a balance has been struck?

Mr. HATCH. That is my belief. And let me first say that I appreciate the concerns of the Senator from Texas as well as those of Senators KYL and SESSIONS, each of whom have worked very hard on this important issue. You bring to the debate a wealth of experience in this area, having served as Attorney General of your home State of Texas and as a Judge, and you have worked tirelessly on this, and I thank you for it.

The recent modifications to the bill are a great improvement. The bill is the result of the hard work and dedication of many on both sides of the aisle. Most importantly, we have significantly reworked this bill so as to address the legitimate concerns you, Senators KYL and SESSIONS as well as others have raised.

Specifically, we made some changes to the capital representation section of the Innocence Protection Act. We worked with the House to add language similar to language in the amendment that you offered in the Judiciary Committee language that would require that a large majority of the funding in this area to go to the trial level, rather than to the appellate or habeas litigation. This shift in funding allocation is a further safeguard against your concerns that funds might go to particular advocacy groups because they typically become involved in these cases at the appellate level.

Mr. CORNYN. On this issue—the issue of capital representation, I note that there is a provision in place negotiated by Majority Leader DELAY and other members of the Texas delegation in the House designed to protect the capital representation system that is in place in Texas? Do I understand that correctly?

Mr. HATCH. Yes. Section 421(d)(1)(C) was added specifically to ensure that Texas, or any other State with a similarly structured system, would qualify as an “effective system” under the statute. This provision has been referred to as the “Texas carve-out” throughout debate over this bill. It is appropriate in light of the changes Texas enacted in order to improve its capital-representation system just 3 years ago.

Mr. CORNYN. I thank the Senator. I share the perspective that Texas’ system is preserved as a so-called “effective system” under the statute. And that is critically important. As you point out, in 2001, the Texas Legislature passed the Texas Fair Defense Act to overhaul Texas’ indigent criminal defense system. The legislation passed ensures prompt appointment of an attorney for indigent criminal defendants, provides guidelines on method of appointment for counsel, establishes minimum standards for appointed attorneys in capital cases, and provides both State resources and oversight of county’s indigent defense systems through a State Task Force on Indigent Defense. It is this system or any future version of it that specifically is intended to be protected by this language, is it not?

Mr. HATCH. That is absolutely my understanding.

Mr. CORNYN. So under the DeLay proviso, Texas will not have to change a thing in order to receive grants under this bill—it is automatically pre-qualified?

Mr. HATCH. Absolutely. In fact, it is my understanding that at least half a dozen other states also will automatically pre-qualify for funding under this proviso.

Mr. CORNYN. I thank the Senator. This so-called “Texas carve-out” is critical to my support for this bill. Without the carve-out, Texas and other States like it would not qualify for Federal grant funds, even though they already have an “effective system” for capital representation. And, without the carve-out, Texas and other States like it would have no incentive to apply for Federal grant funds because the Federal grant funds to be received would not exceed the State funds that would have to be spent to become eligible. On the other hand, because of the “carve-out,” Texas and other States like it can keep appointment power with locally-elected judges, maintain their own innovations designed to improve—not make impossible—the effective representation of capital defendants, and avoid the need for the creation of a new, needlessly expensive, centralized bureaucracy often times controlled by those who oppose the death penalty such as was the case with the former capital defense Resource Centers that were disbanded by Congress in the 1990’s.

Mr. HATCH. I would say that the “carve-out” is a compromise that is consistent with past Federal assistance to the States’ criminal justice systems, and it sets appropriate limits on the level of Federal involvement in the administration of the death penalty at the state level.

Mr. CORNYN. Thank you for your work on this, Mr. HATCH, and for helping to ensure that my home State of Texas qualifies as having an “effective system for providing competent legal representation” under the legislation.

I have two other questions for you. In the new postconviction testing remedy created by this legislation for Federal prisoners—at what apparently will be section 3600(g) the bill allows the court to order a new trial if a DNA test result, in light of all of the other evidence, establishes, and I quote, "by compelling evidence that a new trial would result in an acquittal." As you recall, the standard for granting new trials in what can sometimes be old cases was much debated during the Judiciary Committee's consideration of this bill. The Committee almost voted in favor of changing this standard of proof from "would result in acquittal" to "did not commit the crime," and some discussed a middle option of raising the standard from preponderance of the evidence to "clear and convincing evidence." Ultimately, we chose to defer addressing this issue until negotiations on a final package with the House of Representatives. And in the end, we chose neither of the standards discussed, but instead opted for elevating the standard of proof to "compelling evidence."

We discussed at the time why "compelling" would be the best term of art for setting a standard for reopening litigation of an issue. In particular, we looked to two cases that tell us what "compelling" means in this context—cases that give us confidence that we have set a high bar that will not allow the probably guilty to receive a new trial—and go free if a new trial proves impossible—and also will not allow defendants to seek new trials on the basis of evidence that they could have presented all along. As the Chairman of the Committee that reported this bill and the Senate companion bill's lead sponsor, I think that you can speak with some authority on this matter, and clarify for the record the thinking that went into the House and Senate's selection of the word "compelling." Would you do so?

Mr. HATCH. I would be pleased to do so. In choosing the term "compelling," we relied on previous interpretation of that term in cases such as United States v. Walser, a 1993 case out of the Eleventh Circuit. That court analyzed a previous jury's decision—and whether it disadvantaged the defendant—under a standard of "compelling prejudice." The court there made clear that it could not find "compelling prejudice" if "under all the circumstances of [the] particular case it is within the capacity of jurors" to reach the proper result—in the case of this bill, to find that the defendant committed the crime. If, in light of the DNA test, it would not be within the capacity of jurors to conclude that the defendant is guilty, a new trial must be granted under 3600(g). But if they could possibly find guilty, no new trial is allowed. As the Eleventh Circuit explained, under the "compelling" standard, if a decision is "within the jury's capacity"—if it is reasonably possible—then "though the task be difficult [for the hypothetical jury], there is no compelling prejudice"—or in our case, no compelling evidence requiring a new trial.

As the Walser case also explains, you look to the trial transcript to decide what constitutes "compelling" evidence. Obviously, it is the defendant's burden to produce this evidence by other means if there is no trial transcript. If the defendant pleaded guilty, and received the inevitable benefits that come with a plea agreement, he cannot later turn the lack of a record against the State. It remains the defendant's burden of both persuasion and production to show that it would not have been possible for the jury to have concluded that he is guilty. This is again implicit in the adoption of the term of art "compelling"—as Walser elaborates, under the "compelling" standard, "absent evidence to the contrary, we presume that the jury" could properly reach the result that it did.

The other case to which I believe that you referred is the Seventh Circuit's 1979 decision in NLRB v. Austin Development Center, which makes clear that previously available evidence is not "compelling" evidence. The relevant passage from that case for our purposes was that only "[t]he discovery of new evidence is a compelling circumstance justifying relitigation. The proffer of evidence not presented earlier, however, will not justify relitigation where it is not shown that the evidence was unavailable at the time of the prior proceeding." In other words, for our purposes, if the DNA evidence that a prisoner relies on is something that would have been available to him earlier, it does not qualify as "compelling" evidence justifying a new trial. If he failed to seek a test when he could have, he cannot later use that test result to argue for a new trial, once witnesses have died or become unavailable or had their memories fade, and other evidence has deteriorated and disappeared. To allow a new trial under these circumstances would be fundamentally unfair to society and its interest in the finality of criminal judgments. As some of my colleagues have noted, Federal Rule of Criminal Procedure specifically limits its liberal new-trial rule to new evidence discovered within 3 years. Implicit in that limit is the judgment that the same evidence cannot carry the same weight in a new trial motion if it is brought at a later time. By adopting the "compelling" standard in this bill, we make that same judgement, and we protect these same societal interests.

I hope that this conforms to your previous understanding of this provision and clarifies matters for the record, Senator. We have chosen a tough standard here—in fact, I believe tougher than all those that we have discussed previously. This is not a standard that will grant new trials to people who probably did it—and then allow them to walk free when prosecutors are unable to try them after the passage of time. I hope that you can have confidence in that, Senator.

Mr. CORNYN. It does conform to my previous understanding and I do have confidence in it, Senator. Thank you. I regret taking up the Senate's time on this busy day, but I do have one other question, and this pertains to the bill's changes to CODIS and NDIS, the DNA index systems. It is my understanding that this bill places no limits on what States can upload into CODIS—that is, into their own databases.

Mr. HATCH. That is correct.

Mr. CORNYN. I also would like to clarify which profiles states are required to have expunged from NDIS—the national-exchange database—as a condition of access. The bill allows States to upload anything that is collected "under applicable legal authorities"—that is, that States or local governments collect under their own laws or policies. An exception is made, however, for two categories—unindicted arrestees and elimination-only samples. Then later, the bill provides that States must seek expungement of samples if, and I quote, "the person has not been convicted of an offense of the basis of which that analysis was or could have been included in the index, and all charges for which the analysis was or could have been included in the index have been dismissed or resulted in acquittal."

It is my understanding that, just as what will now be U.S. Code subsection (d)(2)(A)(i) requires that a person's analysis be expunged if it was originally uploaded on the basis of a criminal conviction and that conviction is overturned, this new subsection (ii) will require the analysis of the acquitted arrestee (or one for whom charges have been dismissed) to be expunged—but only if the analysis originally was or could have been included because he was an arrestee.

Mr. HATCH. That is correct. The new limitation that you noted—the new subsection 14132(d)(2)(A)(ii) corresponds to the limited "unindicted arrestee" category in the new (a)(1)(C). It does not apply to DNA analyses uploaded under other "applicable legal authorities." Our intent was to provide States with maximum flexibility in exchanging DNA profile information through NDIS. The only exception that we made in this bill was for arrestees, who had DNA samples taken from them involuntarily, and who, because of those circumstances, we give the right to have those samples withdrawn from NDIS.

Mr. CORNYN. As you know, I am a strong believer in the power of DNA to solve crimes. I want to see the United States develop as broad and as powerful a DNA database as possible. The States have a strong interest in solving past crimes. I also believe that there is no reason to exclude DNA from CODIS simply because charges against an arrestee are dismissed or he is acquitted—fingerprints are kept in such cases, and there is no reason to treat DNA differently than fingerprints. The bill bars States from keeping an arrestee's DNA sample if charges are dropped or he is acquitted. There is no reason to do so. Experience shows that felony arrestees—even those who are not ultimately convicted—are a good population from which to predict other crimes. Excluding unindicted arrestees will simply prevent States from solving more crimes. I understand that legislative compromise has forced us to exclude arrestees—even those indicted—if charges against them are dropped. I am glad to see that your understanding of the States's otherwise broad authority conforms to my own understanding—that outside of the arrestee-sample context, States may still upload and exchange any DNA collected under State and local laws, policies, and practices on the NDIS database.

In expressing this view, I would like to emphasize that keeping DNA samples in CODIS and NDIS does not affect privacy—the analysis used has no medical predictive value. The analysis of DNA that is kept in CODIS is what is called “junk DNA”—it is impossible to determine anything medically sensitive from this DNA. For example, this DNA will not allow a tester to determine if the donor is susceptible to particular diseases. As the Justice Department noted in its official Views Letter on the predecessor to this bill, and I quote at length:

[T]here [are no] legitimate privacy concerns that require the retention or expansion of these [H.R. 3214] expungement provisions. The DNA identification system is already subject to strict privacy rules, which generally limit the use of DNA samples and DNA profiles in the system to law enforcement identification purposes. See 42 U.S.C. 14132(b)-(c). Moreover, the DNA profiles that are maintained in the national index relate to 13 DNA sites that do not control any traits or characteristics of individuals. Hence, the databased information cannot be used to discern, for example, anything about an individual's genetic illnesses, disorders, or dispositions. Rather, by design, the information the system retains in the databased DNA profiles is the equivalent of a “genetic fingerprint” that uniquely identifies an individual, but does not disclose other facts about him.

To those still concerned about some kind of civil liberties violation inherent in maintaining a DNA database, I would ask, what about Medicare and Medicaid?—they keep lots of medically sensitive information. Why should we trust those agencies, but not the FBI? Misuse of the information in CODIS and NDIS—if even possible—is prohibited by law. The Medicare and Medicaid system keep vast stores of medically sensitive information about people. If we are so afraid of CODIS and NDIS, what about Medicare?

And again—fingerprints are kept for all arrestees—should we now expunge those too? The FBI maintains a database of fingerprints of arrestees—without regard to whether the arrestee is later acquitted or convicted. As Justice notes in its Views Letter on this bill, “With respect to the proposed exclusion of DNA profiles of unindicted arrestees, it should be noted by way of comparison that there is no Federal policy that bars States from including fingerprints of arrestees in State and Federal law enforcement databases prior to indictment.” Since database DNA is no more sensitive than fingerprints, and we would expunge DNA under S. 1700, should we also start throwing out fingerprints?

I would also note that keeping as broad a database as possible will stop many violent predators much earlier. As the Justice Department also noted in its Views Letter, “There is no reason to have a . . . Federal policy mandating expungement for DNA information. If the person whose DNA it is does not commit other crimes, then the information simply remains in a secure database and there is no adverse effect on his life. But if he commits a murder, rape, or other serious crime, and DNA matching can identify him as the perpetrator, then it is good that the information was retained.”

Finally, on this point, I would like to highlight the British example: The British tried expunging arrestees' DNA and found that they ended up with embarrassing “improper” matches from perpetrators who weren't supposed to get caught. Now they take DNA from all suspects (not just arrestees) and have a 2,000,000 profile database. As a result, the British now get DNA matches from crime scenes in 40 percent of all cases, and had 58,176 “cold hits” from crime scenes in 2001–02.

According to a recent National Institutes of Justice-commissioned study titled “The Application of DNA Technology in England and Wales,” the U.K. tried expunging DNA profiles for arrestees who are not ultimately convicted and quickly realized that this was a mistake. According to the report:

While [a 1994 law] called for the expungement of profiles of individuals who were not ultimately convicted, periodic problems with the database administration ultimately led to a number of cases in which suspects were identified by samples which were retained in the system but should have been removed. This led to a number of court cases and a decision from the House of Lords addressing the legality of such convictions.

To address these public policy and legal issues, the House of Lords passed [a 2001 law] which . . . provides for the indefinite retention of DNA profiles on the [British database] even if suspects are not convicted.” . . . [The new law] allows for the collection and retention of biological samples and DNA profiles for anyone who becomes a suspect during the course of a police investigation.

As a result of these changes, the British now have 2,000,000 DNA profiles in their national database, they now get matches from 40 percent of all crime scenes with DNA, and they had 58,176 “cold hits” from crime scenes in 2001. Why wouldn't we want the same for our country?

Another NIJ-commission study, produced by Washington State University and titled the “National Forensic DNA Study Report,” notes that “the DNA database must have a strong pool of offenders for comparison. . . . the DNA database is a two-index system—a crime scene sample index, and an offender index. The effectiveness of either index is necessarily restricted by any limitation on the other index.” From the British experience, we know that a broad database is highly effective. It is time to replicate that experience here, before more preventable crimes are committed. I am glad that we have moved far in that direction—toward the British model—though we still have maintained the unfortunate anachronism of requiring arrestees' analyses to be expunged if charges against them are dropped.

Mr. HATCH. I agree with the Senator. I, too, am pleased that, with the exception of samples collected from arrestees who have charges dismissed or are acquitted, States and local governments can now upload and compare analyses collected under applicable legal authorities on the national database without running afoul of arbitrary expungement requirements.

Mr. SESSIONS. If the Chairman would permit, I also would like to pose a few questions, in order to clarify for the record some new language added to the bill. As the lead sponsor of the Senate legislation that became this bill, and Chairman of the committee that reported that bill, I believe that you have unique authority to clarify these matters.

The modification to the bill that was approved on the Senate floor today changes who can serve on the capital-counsel entity that selects and manages counsel for State capital cases in States that do not have a public defender program. The committee-passed version of the bill read that, to receive its portion of the funds for State capital counsel, a State that does not have a public defender system must place control of the appointment of defense counsel in “an entity established by statute or by the highest State court with jurisdiction in criminal cases, which is composed of individuals with demonstrated knowledge and expertise in capital representation.” The new version of the bill reads that the entity must be “composed of individuals with demonstrated knowledge and expertise in capital cases, except for individuals currently employed as prosecutors.”

Previously, the bill required that only defense—lawyers and maybe retired prosecutors, or anyone else who “represented” parties in capital cases—be appointed to manage the entity. With today's amendment, sitting trial and appellate judges can be appointed to manage the capital-counsel entity—as well as anyone else with experience with capital cases, including law professors or victims' advocates—but not current prosecutors. Is that your understanding of the new bill?

Mr. HATCH. Yes. Anyone with knowledge of capital cases—not just someone who has litigated capital cases—can now serve on the entity. Most importantly, this includes members of the bench. It could also include law professors with knowledge of capital cases, or, as you mentioned, even advocates for crime victims—if they have a demonstrated familiarity with the death penalty. The interests of victims too often are left out in our justice system—I am pleased to see that we have now changed this bill to ensure that someone who has experience in guiding crime victims through a capital trial would be eligible to sit at the table of this important new capital-counsel entity. I think that such an entity certainly could benefit from diverse perspectives on the criminal-justice system.

Mr. SESSIONS. But there is no requirement of such apportionment, is there? If a State chooses to design its capital counsel entity so that, for example, it is composed exclusively of trusted members of the bench, the State could do so, could it not?

Mr. HATCH. Absolutely. This a matter that is properly left up to the States, and we have so left it.

Mr. SESSIONS. I also do not understand this bill to preclude the State from allowing the entity to delegate its authority—for example, the State could have one statewide entity that then delegates its functions to particular judges in particular counties or districts. Is my understanding correct?

Mr. HATCH. That understanding is correct. As long as the person to whom authority is delegated would herself be eligible to serve on the entity, there is no reason to centralize all functions in one office. Nor is there any limit or requirement as to how many people can serve on the capital counsel entity. I know that in some of our discussions earlier this week, Senator KYL posed the example of a State that creates a panel of three judges—trial judges, appellate judges, or some combination thereof—and has that panel carry out the functions of the entity. With the modification to the bill made today, this would be permissible. The State could use 5 judges, or 12, or even 1, though I can't imagine that the latter would be practical, except in the case where authority is delegated in local areas.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Senator. I am pleased that your understanding of these aspects of the bill matches mine. One final point: I do not understand the bill to limit whom the State may vest with the authority to appoint the members of the capital-counsel entity. The entity's members could be appointed by the governor, the attorney general, the Supreme Court, or any other official designated by State law or supreme-court rule. Is that correct?

Mr. HATCH. Yes. There is no such restriction.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Chairman.

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I want to thank my friend from Utah. He and I have worked very hard, and, as he mentioned, we worked closely with Chairman SENSENBRENNER, Mr. DELAHUNT, and Mr. LAHOOD in the other body. Yesterday was an extremely busy day as we met over and over again, well into last evening and again early this morning, to make it possible.

I think this is also a day to rejoice on the part of courageous people like Debbie Smith and Kirk Bloodsworth. Debbie waited years to see this day, but she remained steadfast in her commitment to help other people. Kirk Bloodsworth faced an ordeal that nobody should have to face. That is why parts of this bill are named for each of them. I hope this achievement brings some kind of closure for them.

Mr. President, on February 1, 2000, I came to the floor to call attention to the growing national crisis in the administration of capital punishment. I noted that since the reinstatement of capital punishment in the 1970s, 85 people had been found innocent and released from death row. And I urged Senators on both sides of the aisle, both those who supported the death penalty and those who opposed it, to join in seeking ways to minimize the risk that innocent persons will be put to death. A few days later, I introduced the Innocence Protection Act of 2000.

That was more than 4 years ago. During that time, many more innocent people have been freed from death row—the total is now 117, according to the Death Penalty Information Center. During that time, the Republican Governor of Illinois commuted all the death sentences in his State to life in prison, having lost confidence in a system that exonerated more death row inmates than it executed. During that time, we learned about problems at the Houston crime lab so serious that the city's top police official called for a moratorium on executions of the inmates who were convicted based on evidence that the lab handled or analyzed. And during that time, the bipartisan, bicameral coalition supporting the Innocence Protection Act has continued to grow.

Earlier this week, the House of Representatives passed the Justice For All Act of 2004, a wide-ranging criminal justice package that includes the Innocence Protection Act. The House bill also includes the Debbie Smith Act and the DNA Sexual Assault Justice Act, which together authorize more than $1 billion over the next 5 years to eliminate the DNA backlog crisis in the Nation's crime labs and fund other DNA-related programs. Finally, the House bill includes crime victims' rights provisions that I sponsored with Senators FEINSTEIN and KYL, and which already passed the Senate earlier this year.

Today, at long last, the Senate is poised to pass the Justice For All Act and to send this important legislation to the President. I hope he will sign it, despite his Justice Department's continued efforts to kill this bill. The reforms it enacts will create a fairer system of justice, where the problems that have sent innocent people to death row are less likely to occur, where the American people can be more certain that violent criminals are caught and convicted instead of the innocent people who have been wrongly put behind bars for their crimes, and where victims and their families can be more certain of the accuracy, and finality, of the results.

This bill has been many years in the making, and there are many people to acknowledge and thank. Let me begin by thanking Kirk Bloodsworth, Debbie Smith, the Justice Project, and through them all the crime victims and the victims of a flawed criminal justice system who have made these changes possible. Without their commitment and dedication, these straightforward reforms simply would not have happened. Kirk and Debbie sat patiently, hour after hour, through our committee's work on this bill, and their presence was strong and eloquent testimony of the need for this legislation.

Part of this legislation is appropriately named for Kirk Bloodsworth. Kirk was a young man, just out of the Marines, when he was arrested, convicted, and sentenced to death for a heinous crime that he did not commit. DNA evidence ultimately freed him and identified the real killer. He became the first person in the United States to be freed from a death row crime through use of DNA evidence. The years he spent in prison were hard years, and he was treated horribly even after he was released. He could have become embittered by all he has endured. But instead, he has chosen to turn his experience into something constructive, to help others, and one way he has chosen to help is by being part of the effort to enact this bill. Kirk and his wife, Brenda, are remarkable people, and I thank them both. I am proud to have come to know them through our work together on this constructive cause.

I want to commend the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, Congressman JAMES SENSENBRENNER, who spearheaded this effort in the House. Chairman SENSENBRENNER deserves high praise for steering this bill through some very rough patches to final passage. We would not be where we are today without his leadership, tenacity, and steadfast commitment to getting this done.

I also want to thank my longtime colleagues in this endeavor, Representative BILL DELAHUNT of Massachusetts and Representative RAY LAHOOD of Illinois. They have worked tirelessly over many years to pass the Innocence Protection Act, and they deserve much of the credit for building the strong support for the bill in the House.

I also want to acknowledge Senator HATCH, the chairman of our Committee, with whom I have debated these issues for years and with whom I have cosponsored many measures over the last 10 years. Had he continued to oppose these efforts we could never have been successful. Over the last couple of weeks he has focused on this bill, and the Judiciary Committee reported the Advancing Justice Through DNA Technology Act under his leadership just a few weeks ago. I am grateful for his help in overcoming objections to the bill from his side of the aisle. I know how hard he has worked to do that.

Thanks, too, to the many Members on both sides of the aisle, in the Senate and in the House, who have supported this legislation over this long struggle for reform. Working together, we have finally begun to address the many problems facing our capital punishment system. Here in the Senate, Senator BIDEN has championed additional funding for rape kit testing. Senators KENNEDY, KOHL, FEINGOLD, and DURBIN have been longtime and steadfast proponents of sensible reform. Senators FEINSTEIN and SPECTER were strong supporters of the Innocence Protection Act in the 107th Congress, and have been constructive partners in the effort in this Congress. Senator GORDON SMITH and Senator COLLINS were early cosponsors of the Innocence Protection Act as well. Senator DEWINE was a lead sponsor of the Senate DNA bill, and has made many important contributions. I have spoken to the majority leader a number of times over the last year having learned of his interest in these matters and thank him for allowing the Senate to turn to this important matter even as we approach adjournment of this session.

Many people have been generous with their time and expertise and experience over the years. Steve Bright, Bryan Stevenson, George Kendall, Jim Liebman, Larry Yackle, Scott Wallace, and Kyl O'Dowd have offered useful and important suggestions on how to improve State indigent defense systems. Peter Neufeld and Barry Scheck have been invaluable resources on the intricacies of post-conviction DNA testing. Ron Weich has offered superb legal counsel to both Republican and Democratic Senators and their staffs as we have worked on this bill. Pat Griffin's masterful advice has also been invaluable.

I have already mentioned the Justice Project, a nonprofit organization dedicated to criminal justice reform, which has been a staunch supporter of this bill from the beginning. I particularly want to recognize the contributions of my good friend Bobby Muller, as well as John Terzano, Cheryl Feeley, Laura Burstein, Cynthia Thomet, and Peter Loge.

Finally, I want to thank several staff members of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees who worked tirelessly, some for years, to accomplish this goal. I commend the Chief Counsel to Chairman SENSENBRENNER, Phil Kiko. He was instrumental in keeping the process moving over the past year. His hard work, fairness and judgment helped fulfill his chairman's dogged determination to get this done and make these needed changes. Also on the chairman's staff, I acknowledge the efforts of Jay Apperson and Katy Crooks. I want to express my deep gratitude to Mark Agrast, former counsel for Representative DELAHUNT, and his successor, Christine Leonard.

In the Senate, I want to acknowledge several Judiciary Committee staff members who made immeasurable contributions during this long and challenging effort. On Chairman HATCH's staff, I want to thank Bruce Artim, Brett Tolman, and Michael Volkov, a former detailee, for investing so much of their time and expertise in helping us to arrive at this moment. My staff and I appreciate the contributions of Neil MacBride, Jonathan Meyer, and Louisa Terrell on Senator BIDEN's staff, David Hantman on Senator FEINSTEIN's staff, and Robert Steinbuch with Senator DEWINE.

On my own staff, I want to express my appreciation to an entire team of talented and dedicated attorneys and staff who have devoted themselves so long to this effort and to this commitment to justice. Julie Katzman, a senior counsel on my staff, has devoted innumerable hours over the past 4½ years to accomplishing this goal, and I want to extend my deeply felt gratitude to her. Tara Magner began as a law clerk, and later as my counsel has dedicated herself to this effort with superb results. Beryl Howell, my former general counsel, guided this effort for years, and Bruce Cohen, my Chief Counsel, guided all of their efforts. Tim Rieser, Luke Albee, David Carle, and more all supported and contributed to this extraordinary effort.

I also want personally to thank the Senate Legislative Counsel, in particular Bill Jensen and Matt McGhie, who labor in obscurity to produce the legislative text that is being constantly revised to reflect the understanding reached during this arduous process.

This bill is a rare example of bipartisan cooperation for a good cause. It reflects many years of work and intense negotiation. No one who has worked on this bill is entirely satisfied with everything in it, but that is what the legislative process is all about finding the substantive, meaningful, middle ground that a broad majority can support.

The Justice For All Act is the most significant step we have taken in many years to improve the quality of justice in this country. DNA is the miracle forensic tool of our lifetimes. It has the power to convict the guilty and to exonerate the innocent. And as DNA has become more and more available, it also has opened a window on the flaws of the death penalty process. This is a bill to put this powerful tool into greater use in our police departments and our courtrooms. It also takes a modest step toward addressing one of the most frequent causes of wrongful convictions in capital cases, the lack of adequate legal counsel. These reforms, to put it simply, will mean better, faster, fairer criminal justice.

I thank each one of my colleagues in both bodies who worked hard to resolve conflicts and congratulate them on this legislative achievement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Delaware.

Mr. BIDEN. Mr. President, I compliment the chairman and ranking member of the committee.

This bill was held up for a long while. Provisions were added to the bill, which I totally support, that will allow people who were wrongly accused of having committed crimes to be able to have DNA testing to prove their innocence.

I don't want anyone to misunderstand why this is so important. All of you should know so you can tell your constituents. In fact, we set up a provision in the crime bill whereby when there is a rape or a sexual assault, we have put a lot of money—you have put a lot of money over the years into providing for training of police, training forensic nurses and doctors to be able to take DNA samples.

There are over 800,000 so-called rape case kits sitting on shelves of the cities where you live and the States you represent. They have never been tested because of the cost of testing them. The bottom line is that an estimated 48 percent of outstanding rapes could be solved by just comparing the database that will come from testing these kits and the existing database in our State prison systems where DNA is already on the record. This will liberate thousands of women from the fear and concern that the man who raped them is out there and will be back again.

We have done a good thing today. You should let your people back home know. It is a big deal.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. TALENT). The question is on agreeing to the amendment No. 4027, as amended.

The amendment (No. 4027), as amended, was agreed to.

Mr. HATCH. I move to reconsider the vote, and I move to lay that motion on the table.

The motion to lay on the table was agreed to.

AMENDMENT NO. 4015

The PRESIDING OFFICER. There is 2 minutes equally divided prior to the vote on the Hutchison amendment.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. Mr. President, my amendment keeps the intent of the Senate. It creates an intelligence subcommittee on Appropriations. It keeps 13 subcommittees on Appropriations, but it allows the Appropriations Committee to do the reorganization within those parameters.

According to the Congressional Research Service, there has never been a subcommittee eliminated by the Senate without coming from a committee itself.

This would set a precedent that could affect committees for years to come. It is not right, and there is no reason to have to do it on the Senate floor today. We must consult with the House so that our Appropriations Committees match. Appropriations are complicated enough. Having Appropriations Committees that are different in the House from the Senate is not a wise decision, and we don't have to do it today.

I urge my colleagues to adopt my amendment which keeps the intelligence subcommittee, it keeps 13 subcommittees in Appropriations, and allows the Appropriations Committee to do its job in reorganizing around those parameters.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the 9/11 Commission is watching what we are doing. We have created an intelligence subcommittee on Appropriations. That was very difficult to do. But we did it. The consolidation of Defense appropriations and Military Construction makes sense. The subject matters are related, with the same players and same departments. It is military. It doesn't make sense to create an artificial divide different than this one.

The Appropriations Committee as it stands has all kinds of authority to organize within itself.

In short, we have done the work of the Senate. It is the right thing to do. It sets forth something that Governor Kean says makes sense.

I hope we will defeat this amendment and keep intact what we already have.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. All time has expired. The question is on agreeing to the pending amendment. The yeas and nays have been ordered, and the clerk will call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, does the Senator from Texas wish to have a roll-call vote?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The yeas and nays have been ordered.

Mrs. HUTCHISON. I am happy to vitiate the yeas and nays.

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that the yeas and nays be vitiated.

Mr. BUNNING. Mr. President, a roll-call vote has been ordered. I don't think that is permitted.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Since there was no response, the vote has not begun.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the yeas and nays be vitiated and there be a voice vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

The question is on agreeing to the pending amendment.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

At the moment, there is a not a sufficient second.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there a sufficient second?

There is a sufficient second.

The question is on agreeing to the amendment, and the clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk called the roll.

The Senator from New Hampshire.

TAXPAYER-TEACHER PROTECTION ACT OF 2004

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate now proceed to consideration of H.R. 5186, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the title of the bill.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

An act (H.R. 5186) to reduce certain special allowance payments and provide additional teacher loan forgiveness on Federal student loans.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, this bill deserves to pass, but it's only a down-payment on the real reform needed to close a flagrant loophole in the student loan program. The bill takes $285 million in excessive subsidies to banks and gives it to college students and new teachers in the form of increased forgiveness for student loans.

It is only a downpayment, however, because it does not close all of the notorious 9.5 percent student loan loophole, and because even this reform will expire after one year. The bill is silent on the full interest rate gouging that has taken place over the last 18 months—funds that the Secretary of Education should have reclaimed on his own, and still should after this bill passes.

Obviously, our Republican colleagues hope that this modest action will cool the public outcry that has erupted in the past month as the full extent of this shameful loophole has come to light.

For almost 25 years, the taxpayer has been guaranteeing banks a 9.5 percent rate of return on a specific type of student loans. In 1993, Congress acted to end the guarantee, but a loophole emerged that even the Government Accountability Office says the Bush administration has refused to shut down.

Today's bill still leaves 40 percent of the loophole wide open. In other words, our Republican colleagues can no longer stand the heat from the loophole, and so they're now sacrificing 60 percent of it, in the hope that their special interest friends in the student loan industry can still retain the other 40 percent.

Sadly, under this Republican bill, the abuse will continue. New loans will be made to new students that taxpayers will subsidize at a 9.5 percent interest rate. It's madness. We should be allowing older borrowers to refinance their student loans at today's market rates, instead of subsidizing big banks at the high interest rates of the 1980s. We should be helping students who are eligible for Pell Grants, instead of subsidizing big banks needlessly.

Republicans claim that some of this subsidy will go to student benefits. I say, it all should go to student benefits in whatever loan program a student participates. No one should be fooled. Half of the student loan loophole that this bill leaves wide open goes to for-profit corporations like Nelnet and Sallie Mae.

The 9.5 percent guarantee is still highway robbery for special interests. Our Republican colleagues reply that at least they're narrowing the highway from five lanes to two lanes. Banks like Nelnet and Sallie Mae can still drive right through, collecting outrageous profits at the expense of students and taxpayers.

I had hoped to offer an amendment to this bill that would close the 9.5 percent loan loophole completely and permanently. But the Republican Majority objects to that effort here and now. We will be back though on the first available vehicle to shut down this wasteful corporate subsidy once and for all.

It's long past time for President Bush and Republicans find the courage to stand up to their special interest friends, and do what's right for the Nation's students and taxpayers.

In most cases, lenders today receive a 3.6 percent rate of return on new student loans. But for the last 11 years, the Government—taxpayers—have been guaranteeing lenders a 9.5 percent rate of return on a certain group of otherwise non-descript student loans. A 9.5 percent rate of interest might have made sense years ago, but it doesn't today.

In 1993, Congress passed legislation intended to phase-out of existence the 9.5 percent bank guarantee. But two key loopholes have kept that subsidy alive and well. The legislation before the Senate closes one.

The first loophole—the one that isn't closed by this legislation—allows for what is called 9.5 percent loan “recycling.” A lender makes a loan to a student—“Student A.” Over the course of the next 10 to 25 years, the lender is repaid by Student A and the lender gets a subsidy payment guaranteeing a 9.5 percent rate of return.

Under the 1993 law, after one loan, there should be an end to that 9.5 percent guarantee. But lenders have been recycling Student A payments and the attached Government subsidy into a new loans issued to new students—“Student B”—and claiming a 9.5 percent guarantee on those loans as well. So, 9.5 loans haven't been phased out at all. They've being maintained. And the Department of Education has done nothing about it.

Worse, 18 months ago, lenders started growing the number of 9.5 percent loans through a process called “transferring.” A lender shifts a loan out of its tax-exempt bond estate into its taxable bond estate. When the loan shifts, the 9.5 percent guarantee shifts with it and the tax-exempt bond estate then has money available to it to issue new 9.5 percent loans.

As a result of “transferring,” 9.5 percent loan bank subsidy payments have more than doubled in the last 18 months. The Bush administration has refused to stop the process, despite Democrats' and GAO's urging.

A year ago, Senate Democrats proposed legislation to shut both loopholes down once and for all. The Senate Republicans did not act on that proposal, did not introduce their own legislation, and did not hold a single hearing. They asked no oversight questions of the Bush administration. In short, they did nothing.

Democrats requested a GAO investigation. We alerted non-partisan higher education policy experts. We requested an SEC investigation. Two months ago, we blew the whistle in the media on the new, explosive growth in the 9.5 loan subsidy. Finally, our Republican friends responded to the criticism with the legislation before us today.

But again, this bill doesn't get the job done. It leaves the “recycling” loophole open, and it lasts only one year. Now, this remains a live issue in the Appropriations Committee. I would hope we would follow the House's 413-13 vote lead in shutting down this loophole in its entirety. It's a change past due.

Mr. DODD. Mr. President, I would like to commend Senator GREGG for taking what I hope is one of many steps in closing what most, if not all of us agree, is an egregious loophole in current law relating to student loans.

In the 1980's, the Higher Education Act sought to attract more lenders to the student loan program by offering nonprofits a 9.5 percent rate on return on student loans in exchange for their participation in the program. At a time of high interest rates, it provided an assurance to nonprofits that they could make student loans and stay afloat economically. The 9.5 percent subsidy was an incentive to bring the nonprofit sector into the lending business, to offer students more options in choosing a lender. The subsidy made sense at the time.

In 1993, a time when interest rates were coming down, 9.5 percent amounted to a windfall for lenders. Congress rescinded the policy but grandfathered loans already made, assuming that the volume of these loans would decline as borrowers paid them off. That assumption turned out to be wrong.

Exploiting a loophole in current law, some lenders, including for-profits that have acquired nonprofits, have been rolling new loans into old accounts, sometimes for as little as a day, to qualify for the subsidy. That means that in today's market, some guaranteed a 9.5 percent profit on 3.4 percent student loans. The Federal Government is making up the 6.1 percent difference.

How egregious is this practice? From January 2004 to June 2004, one bank alone amassed over $3.2 billion in 9.5 percent loans by exploiting this loophole. The General Accounting Office GAO, has found that the overall volume of loans receiving a 9.5 percent return has increased to more than $17 billion this year from $11 billion in 1995. This is money that should be going to the student loan program and the Pell grant program, not bank profits.

In response to this discovery, the Department of Education has been asked to issue new rules clarifying that the practice in question is, in fact, not within the intent of current law. They have refused to do so. They claim that their hands are tied, that only Congress can close the current loophole. The GAO disagrees.

In a report issued September 21, the GAO states that the Department could use less formal guidance to clarify or alter its position on the practice, or publish an interim rule that would close the loophole until a formal rule-making process is complete. The GAO also suggests that the Department publish an emergency rule. This type of rule allows Federal agencies to skip the formal process if they believe it would be “impracticable, unnecessary or contrary to public interest.” The Department does not believe the current situation rises to that level. Clearly, it is against the public interest, and against the interest of the U.S. Treasury, to allow this practice to continue.

According to some, the payments in question could cost the U.S. Treasury nearly $1 billion by the end of this calendar year and at least $5 billion over the next 10 years. This is money that could be used to send kids to college.

Mr. President, in response to this crisis, Senator GREGG has proposed a bill to close the 9.5 percent loophole. There is just one problem with his bill. It does not close the loophole completely and it does not close the loophole permanently. The loophole should be completely and permanently closed.

I applaud Senator GREGG for taking this first step. Between enactment of the change and the time that it expires next year, his bill will achieve a $285 million savings for the student loan program. If we were to shut down the loophole completely, we would achieve a $400 million savings within the same time frame. That would amount to an additional $115 million for student financial aid.

In response to Senator GREGG's bill, Senator KENNEDY offered an amendment to close the loophole completely and permanently. This is something that my Democratic colleagues and I have been fighting to do since last October. Unfortunately, the amendment was not accepted.

Mr. President, the Pell grant maximum has remained flat for 3 years. Tuition is up. And all the while, the Federal government is giving away a $1 billion annual subsidy through 9.5 percent loans. The Federal Government is paying hundreds of million of dollars in unnecessary subsidies to student loan companies. The bill before us allows this practice to continue, even if it is to a lesser extent. I hope we will have an opportunity in the near future to take definitive action to correct this egregious short-coming in the law.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I support the limited effort before us today to close a loophole in Federal student loan policy that has cost taxpayers billions of dollars over the past decade.

In the 1980s, when there were fears that student loans would become scarce due to high interest rates, Congress provided lenders participating in the Federal Family Education Loan, FFEL, program a guaranteed minimum 9.5-percent return on student loans generated from tax-exempt bond funds. Congress did so to ensure that there would be lenders willing to make affordable loans for students.

In 1993, Congress sought to end the 9.5-percent guaranteed return on what had become a small subset of student loans due to a much lower national interest rate environment, the growth in availability of other private bank and government-subsidized student loans, and the creation of Federal direct loans.

In doing so, a grandfather clause was enacted for outstanding 9.5-percent return, tax-exempt bond generated student loan funds. Rather than end the 9.5-percent loans, this grandfather clause has worked as a loophole. Owners of 9.5-percent guaranteed loans continually recycle proceeds from tax-exempt bonds originally issued before 1993—creating in effect a revolving loan fund—and the Federal Government continues to guarantee a 9.5-percent rate of return on what is today approximately 1 out of every 20 student loans. Lenders of the remaining 19 out of 20 student loans receive a much lower guaranteed interest rate—less than 4 percent.

This overpayment has grown dramatically over the past few years, as this administration and Department of Education have failed to intervene and stop it. According to the Government Accountability Office, GAO, the overpayment cost taxpayers well over $600 million by the end of June 2004, up from $209 million in Fiscal Year 2001.

To finally close this loophole once and for all, I joined Senator Kennedy in introducing S. 1793, the College Quality, Affordability, and Diversity Improvement Act last October, which among many provisions to expand access to higher education, would eliminate the 9.5-percent giveaway. More recently, I cosponsored legislation introduced last week by Senator Murray—S. 2861, the Student Loan Abuse Prevention Act—which would also permanently fix the abuse of the 9.5-percent rate and redirect the estimated savings of $5 billion over 10 years to increase the maximum Pell grant for low-income students.

Regrettably, the bill before us today does not contain such a comprehensive and permanent fix. This more limited effort provides only a temporary 1-year solution and it continues to allow “re-cycling” of loans, as opposed to the bonds, by which the lender uses the income from current 9.5-percent guarantee. And, instead of using the more modest savings from this bill to boost grants for low-income students struggling to afford college, the savings will be used for a different but important cause—providing help to certain teachers through loan forgiveness.

Considering how long it has taken the majority to act on this situation, I am pleased we are taking this first, although, limited step. I will be working with my colleagues to fully close this costly loophole in the upcoming Higher Education Act reauthorization process and capture these savings for students. I thank Senators Kennedy and Murray and their staffs for their leadership and work on this matter.

Mrs. MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise today to discuss my ongoing work to protect taxpayers and help students by finally ending a special interest subsidy.

As my colleagues know, I have been working to close a loophole that allows some banks to issue new students loans at outrageously inflated rates. These subsidies were supposed to have ended more than ten years ago, but they continue today, and taxpayers are footing the bill.

Just last year, this wasteful subsidy cost taxpayers $1 billion. Imagine how many students we could have helped if that money went to Pell Grants instead of the special interests. I believe we should close this loophole—immediately and permanently—and use the savings to help more students afford a college education.

It is outrageous that taxpayers are paying 30 times what they should for these student loans. Interest rates haven't been at 9.5 percent in years, but new loans—at that inflated rate—are being written every day because of this loophole.

On September 15, in the Appropriations Committee, I offered an amendment to close the loophole. My amendment would have used those savings—about $370 million—to increase grants to college students. My amendment had the support of every Democrat on the Appropriations Committee, but unfortunately the chairman and every Republican opposed it. They said they wanted to deal with it later.

So Senator KENNEDY and I came here to the Senate floor and called on the Department of Education to take action, since our colleagues were not ready to act. Unfortunately, the Department of Education refused. As the Government Accountability Office noted, the Department could have closed this loophole with the stroke of a pen. Last week—seeing that neither the Republican Congress nor the administration—were willing to act, I introduced my own bill to permanently and fully close this loophole and help our students.

My bill is called the Student Loan Abuse Prevention Act S. 2861, and I thank Senators KENNEDY, MIKULSKI, DURBIN, REED, DODD, and CLINTON for cosponsoring it.

My bill would use all of the savings to increase Pell Grants for students. The day after I introduced my bill, Senator GREGG offered his own bill, which we are considering today. I am pleased that the Republican leaders have finally offered a proposal. I am disappointed, however, that their plan does not fully close the loophole, expires after 1 year, and will not help today's student afford college.

Let me say a word about each of those shortcomings. First, the GREGG bill does not fully close the loophole. This subsidy would still live on. My bill says that lenders cannot create new loans at 9.5 percent. No new subsidies—period. And that is important because in the past 2 years lenders have used tricks to extend these outrageous subsidiaries, and we need to put an end to it. But the Republican bill is not a real fix. It does not stop these gimmicks entirely. In many cases, lenders could keep writing new loans at 9.5 percent for decades. Under the Republican bill, the outrageous subsidy will live on. So the first problem with the Republican bill is that it does not fully close the loophole and will still overcharge taxpayers for this lender subsidy.

The second problem with the GREGG bill is that it expires after 1 year. My bill will stop the subsidy forever. The Republican bill would expire in a year. I want my colleagues to know that when we work on the Higher Education Act, I will again work for a permanent fix that protects taxpayers—not just for 1 year—but forever.

The third problem with the GREGG bill is that it does nothing to help students who are trying to pay for college today. While there are a lot of good uses for this money, I would also like to see those dollars go straight into the pockets of our students so they can pay for college.

So the GREGG bill before us has three big problems—it doesn't fully close the loophole, it expires after a year, and it doesn't help today's college student. But—after all the work it has taken to get the Republicans to finally address this—the GREGG bill is a step forward and one we should take while we can.

I believe that our students and taxpayers deserve better. They deserve a real fix that is permanent and that helps today's students. But, given the reluctance we have seen so far, given the votes against my amendment last month, and the Bush administration's refusal to act, we should pass this first step and stay on the job until it is done and done right.

And I remind my colleagues that we will revisit the Higher Education Act next year, and I will fight to close this loophole fully and permanently. From coast to coast, the price of college education is soaring and parents and students are struggling. I will continue to fight for policies that put students above special interests and that protect taxpayers from these wasteful subsidies.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read a third time and passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 5186) was read the third time and passed.

EXTENDING THE HIGHER EDUCATION ACT OF 1965

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

MAMMOGRAPHY QUALITY STANDARDS REAUTHORIZATION ACT OF 2004

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H.R. 4555, which was received from the House and is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the bill by title.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (H.R. 4555) to amend the Public Health Service Act to revise and extend provisions relating to mammography quality standards.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the bill.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I am pleased that today the Senate will pass the Mammography Quality Standards Reauthorization Act of 2004, H.R. 4555. It is fitting that Congress is reauthorizing the Mammography Quality Standards Act, MQSA, during Breast Cancer Awareness Month. This important bill is about saving lives. That is what the MQSA does. Accurate mammograms detect breast cancer early, so women can get treatment and be survivors.

Mammography is not perfect, but it is the best screening tool we have now. I authored MQSA 12 years ago to improve the quality of mammograms so that they are safe and accurate. Before MQSA became law, there was an uneven and conflicting patchwork of standards for mammography in this country. There were no national quality standards for personnel or equipment. Image quality of mammograms and patient exposure to radiation levels varied widely. The quality of mammography equipment was poor. Physicians and technologists were poorly trained. Inspections were lacking.

MQSA set Federal safety and quality assurance standards for mammography facilities for: personnel, including doctors who interpret mammograms; equipment; and operating procedures. By creating national standards, Congress helped make mammograms a more reliable tool for detecting breast cancer. In 1998, Congress improved MQSA by giving information on test results directly to the women being tested, so no woman falls through the cracks because she never learns about a suspicious finding on her mammogram.

Now Congress is renewing MQSA through 2007 and laying the foundation to improve it even more in the future. Next year, the Institute of Medicine, IOM, and the General Accountability Office, GAO, will release studies examining a number of issues relating to MQSA and mammography. These issues include ways to improve physicians' interpretations of mammograms, ways to ensure that sufficient numbers of adequately trained personnel are recruited and retained at all levels, and access to mammography. I look forward to receiving these IOM and GAO recommendations and considering them in the next MQSA reauthorization.

This legislation that the Senate passed today was passed by the House of Representatives earlier this week and now heads to the President for his signature. I acknowledge and thank Congressman Dingell for his longstanding leadership and work on MQSA, and appreciate the work of the House Energy and Commerce Committee on this issue. I thank Senators Gregg and Kennedy for working with me to make sure that the Senate made MQSA a priority in this Congress and that we reauthorized it this year. I also want to acknowledge Senator Ensign for his important work on MQSA. Senator Ensign joined me in introducing our MQSA reauthorization bill, S. 1879, that passed the Senate earlier this year.

I thank the Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation, American Cancer Society, National Alliance of Breast Cancer Organizations, American College of Radiology Association, Y-ME National Breast Cancer Organization, and the National Breast Cancer Coalition for their input and advice during this reauthorization of MQSA.

This year about 216,000 cases of breast cancer are expected to be diagnosed and over 40,000 women are expected to die of breast cancer in this country. MQSA saves lives. That is why it is so important that Congress is renewing and working to strengthen MQSA.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the bill be read a third time, passed, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and any statements relating to the bill be printed in the RECORD without intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The bill (H.R. 4555) was read the third time and passed.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, just to clarify, the bills we just passed are fairly significant pieces of legislation, the most significant of which is a bill which Senator KENNEDY and I and many people in this body have been working on.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from New Hampshire. He is right, we have just passed very important legislation, one of which is to reauthorize our mammogram quality standards. We have worked very hard on a bipartisan basis. I would like to thank him for his collegiality and cooperation. I see him smiling. Did I interrupt?

Mr. GREGG. I am happy to yield the floor to the Senator from Maryland.

Ms. MIKULSKI. It was a little chaotic. I wanted to be quickly complimentary.

Mr. GREGG. I appreciate that.

Ms. MIKULSKI. Literally, we are going to ensure the safety and security of our mammograms. I just finished the Race for the Cure in Baltimore. I did more of a "walk for the cure" this morning. But when you look at the survivors and you know what early detection from mammograms has meant, we really have done a good job.

I thank the Senator.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from New Hampshire.

Mr. GREGG. Mr. President, let me thank the Senator from Maryland for her generous comments and her hard work, especially on the mammogram bill which we just passed. I was trying to highlight one of these pieces of legislation which essentially saves the taxpayers from paying out a $100 million windfall to people who give loans to students. Those individuals were getting paid mostly by banks at 9.5 percent. This will roll that back to a reasonable interest rate of 4 percent. We will take those additional monies that have been saved and use them to waive the repayment requirements for teachers on their student loans for teachers who go into underserved areas and teach special needs kids. This is a very important event and something that needed to be done, or we would have ended up with a windfall to these lenders and these individuals who go out and teach in these tough schools on difficult subject matters would have ended up with large student loans.

This is a very positive step. I thank the Senator from Massachusetts for his efforts in this area as the ranking member of the committee, and I thank the entire committee for its cooperation and appreciate the attention of the Senate.

I yield the floor.

The amendment (No. 3981) was agreed to.

SECTION 101(B) AND 101(C)

Mr. REID. Mr. President, Section 101(b) contains the jurisdiction for the new Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee. Section 101(b)(1) refers to the new jurisdiction of the new committee. The rest of Section 101(b) and all of Section 101(c) describes the existing jurisdiction of the Governmental Affairs Committee and is not intended to make any changes to existing practice nor precedence regarding referrals on those issues with regard to other committees.

Mr. McCONNELL. I agree Section 101(b)(2) through Section 101(b)(13) and Section 101(c) makes no changes to the status quo regarding jurisdiction over those items.

AMENDMENT NO. 3981

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I appreciate the managers of the resolution adopting this amendment. It achieves the goals of an amendment filed by my distinguished colleague, the junior Senator from Texas, that I cosponsored. The language in the managers' amendment will make explicit that the shared jurisdiction over “government information” that is provided by rule 25 to the Judiciary Committee is not adversely affected by this resolution. I thank the Senator from Texas for his leadership on this matter and the managers for working with us to clarify the resolution.

Mr. McCONNELL. Mr. President, I said at the beginning of this debate that after reforming the executive branch's intelligence and homeland security agencies, we needed to put our own house in order. We can now say that after years of demanding that other institutions reorganize and improve their performance, we have demanded the same of ourselves. And we succeeded.

This is no small achievement for the Senate, the cooling saucer of American politics. We are very averse to change here.

We respect history in this institution. But today we avoided making the mistake of falling victim to it. Learning from our mistakes prior to 9/11, we have changed the way we do business. This is a great accomplishment.

We recognized the need to reform the way we conduct oversight over the most important issues of our day: intelligence and homeland security.

I want to thank my good friend, Senator REID. I have greatly enjoyed working with him, and have marveled at his prodigious talents in resolving particularly contentious conflicts.

We have accomplished this difficult task thanks in large part to his honest brokering and commitment to respecting the concerns of each and every Senator. He is fair-minded, and he is effective. I look forward to working with him more often.

Let me also take a minute to thank his capable staff. Rich Verma, Gregg Jaczko, and Gary Myrick, who worked on a truly bipartisan basis with my staff. Their expertise on these issues, and their patience with Harry and me, are truly commendable. They deserve a great deal of credit for managing the Working Group and cobbling together for us the many suggestions made by our Members.

I would also like to thank my staff: Kyle Simmons and Robert Karem. Both of these outstanding gentlemen were with me from the beginning of this process and we would not be at this point without them. I would also like to thank Mike Solo. He jumped right in to masterfully produce this product and also helped steer it to passage on the floor. Finally, my thanks to John Abegg and Brian Lewis for their counsel and able assistance.

I want to thank the members of the Congressional Oversight Working Group themselves for their many good ideas, and for their patience and willingness to work on a bipartisan basis to do something that is very difficult, but also very worthwhile.

Not every Senator will be happy with the result of the Senate working its will on this resolution.

Some Members will complain this reform goes too far. Others will complain it does not go far enough.

I believe we have struck an appropriate balance of reform that improves our ability to conduct oversight of intelligence and homeland security during a very serious time for our country.

On intelligence oversight, I am pleased the Senate not only accepted our suggested reforms of the Select Committee on Intelligence, but also improved upon them by agreeing to modify the sequential referral of defense-related intelligence legislation to the Armed Services Committee so the process is more cooperative.

The working group wanted to improve the structure of the Committee to allow Members more time to become experts and give them many tools to do their jobs. And we have done that.

Let me briefly summarize just a couple of our reforms:

Improved and enhanced the Intelligence Committee;

Included 9 recommendations of the 9/11 Commission;

Members now have a stronger Committee;

Without term limits, Members can better develop the expertise needed to conduct effective oversight;

Clarified jurisdictional lines and improves the coordination of military intelligence matters between the Armed Services and Intelligence Committees.

Appropriations jurisdiction over oversight is currently dispersed throughout multiple subcommittees. We have created an Intelligence Subcommittee of Appropriations to consolidate the roughly 80 percent of the intelligence budget that will come under the jurisdiction of the national intelligence director.

This subcommittee will help the Appropriations Committee to live up to its responsibility to exercise oversight over the national intelligence budget.

This legislation consolidates widely dispersed appropriations for non-military intelligence under a single Subcommittee.

Allows the National Intelligence Director to work with only one Subcommittee to approve his budget.

Improves intelligence oversight by creating two sets of eyes on the budget and activities of the assets under the National Intelligence Director.

Jurisdiction over the Department of Homeland Security was too dispersed. Roughly 25 Congressional Committees or Subcommittees claimed jurisdiction over Homeland Security yesterday. We have cut that number down significantly.

The Senate worked its will on this Resolution, and in the end it significantly consolidated jurisdiction over Homeland Security.

Some will think the Senate went too far. Others will think the Senate hasn't gone far enough.

We introduced a Resolution that dramatically consolidated jurisdiction in the new Committee. In an open process, the Senate worked its will and decided that the overlapping functions of certain agencies required exceptions.

While there have been some changes to our proposal, we have not let the perfect be the enemy of the good. We have taken great strides towards a level of consolidation many of us would have thought impossible only weeks ago.

This reform puts the Homeland Security Committee in charge of those who prepare to defend against terrorist attacks and those who respond to terrorist attacks. This is the most important work the Department does.

Protecting the Homeland is the core function of the Department, and the Homeland Security Committee will acquire jurisdiction over the core entities of the Department that do just that.

Among other programs, the Homeland Security Committee will acquire jurisdiction over the following Directorates:

Office of the Secretary—Responsible for integration of terrorist threat warning, preparedness, and response. This alone is a huge responsibility.

Undersecretary for Information Analysis and Infrastructure Protection.

Undersecretary for Science and Technology—Chemical, Biological, and Nuclear defense research; and Homeland Security technology development.

Undersecretary for Emergency Preparedness and Response—FEMA; National Domestic Preparedness Office; Integrated Hazard Information System; and Domestic Emergency Support Teams.

Undersecretary for Management.

We have consolidated all of this on top of the existing jurisdiction of the Government Reform Committee, including the Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations.

Mr. President, I believe the Senate has accomplished a great deal today. We have strengthened our Intelligence oversight, created a Homeland Security Committee under the new Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, and stood up a new Intelligence Appropriations Subcommittee.

I hope our Colleagues will pay attention to the reform we have enacted as they consider their Committee assignments for the 109th Congress. The American people will be better served by these reforms. And the Senate as a whole will benefit from their improved expertise and authorities over these critical policy matters.

We have no more important charge than keeping the American people safe, and today we have improved our ability to do just that.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, today the Senate adopted S. Res. 445, the Senate Intelligence and Homeland Security Oversight Reform resolution. This resolution will combine the oversight of most Department of Homeland Security functions and will provide jurisdiction over those functions to the Committee on Governmental Affairs, which will be renamed the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs.

I will vote in favor of S. Res. 445. This resolution will help advance the U.S. war on terror by consolidating and streamlining Senate oversight over the Department of Homeland Security. I'm confident that the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs will serve an important role in promoting the safety and security of the people of the United States.

As originally introduced, the resolution provided that the Committee on Homeland Security and governmental Affairs would not have jurisdiction over customs revenue functions. Instead, the drafters recognized that, going forward, it's important to keep the jurisdiction over customs revenue functions within the Finance Committee, the committee that has exercised jurisdiction over these issues for the past 188 years. Moreover, with the United States collecting over $23 billion annually in duties and trade related fees, the drafters realized that it's important that the U.S. customs agencies be able to perform their revenue functions efficiently. Retention of Finance Committee jurisdiction over these functions will greatly facilitate this objective.

Senator BAUCUS and I introduced an amendment during debate on S. Res. 445 that clarified the language concerning customs revenue functions contained in the managers' resolution. Specifically, our amendment stated that the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs will not have jurisdiction over the following functions performed by any employee of the Department of Homeland Security: any customs revenue function including any function provided for in section 415 of the Homeland Security Act of 2002; any commercial function or commercial operation of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection or the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, including matters related to trade facilitation and trade regulation; or any other function related to those that I just mentioned that was exercised by the U.S. Customs Service on the day before the effective date of the Homeland Security Act of 2002. In a colloquy between Senator BAUCUS and me on October 7, we more fully spelled out what is covered by our amendment and the reasons why our amendment was necessary.

The Grassley-Baucus amendment was needed to elucidate non-security functions of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection and the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement that necessarily should remain within the jurisdiction of the Finance Committee. Our amendment passed by voice vote on October 7.

A transfer of customs revenue and commercial functions to the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs would detract from that committee's main focus. Moreover, the removal of customs revenue and commercial functions from the jurisdiction of the Finance Committee would be disruptive to our efforts to advance a comprehensive international trade agenda for the United States. In adopting our amendment, the Senate wisely avoided both of these outcomes. agenda for the United States. In adopting our amendment, the Senate wisely avoided both of these outcomes.

With passage of our amendment, the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs will be better able to focus on its core objective, the protection of the United States from terrorist attacks. The staff of the new committee should be expected to be experts in the field of national security. They will work day-in and day-out to keep terrorists away from our shores and to protect Americans from attack. With their focus on national security concerns, it would be unrealistic to expect them to learn the technical details of our country's customs laws relating to revenue and commercial functions. The addition of customs revenue and commercial functions to their committee's agenda would only distract them from their central focus, national security. If that were to occur, Senate oversight of both the national security and international trade agendas of the United States would suffer.

Our amendment also recognizes that removal of customs revenue and commercial functions from the jurisdiction of the Finance Committee would be disruptive to U.S. businesses, and thus harmful to U.S. economic interests. The Finance Committee has a long history—of some 188 years—of exercising jurisdiction over tariffs and trade. This long history, and the technical expertise it has helped engender within the committee, provides the Finance Committee with an exceptional ability to provide sound oversight in the Congress over our government's customs revenue and commercial functions. Not surprisingly, the U.S. business community has developed strong confidence in the workings of this committee. Moreover, these same businessmen and women have doubts as to whether the committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs—with its focus on national security—would pay sufficient attention to trade compliance and revenue functions.

The U.S. business community acted, and quickly, this week upon hearing rumors of possible legislation to strip jurisdiction over customs revenue and commercial functions from the Finance Committee. Let me read to you excerpts from letters sent to me this week on this issue.

The National Retail Federation wrote that "NRF's members are deeply concerned that moving jurisdiction for duty collection process issues from the Finance Committee would serve to reduce U.S. interest in preserving trade revenues, and require members of those committees to spend a great deal of time on revenue issues that are not central to the Government Affairs Committee's main jurisdictional interests. Of equal importance, the Senators who have served on Finance have developed expertise in these complex revenue issues that many members of the Homeland Security and Government Affairs Committee do not possess and would have to develop."

In another letter, the National Customs Brokers & Forwarders Association of America stated that "protecting our borders is vital. As we take measures to enhance security at our borders, however, we must also carefully weigh the consequences to the flow of international trade. . . . The Senate Finance Committee possesses the knowledge and expertise necessary to provide effective oversight over Customs' business facilitation issues. For over 200 years, the Finance Committee has been involved in the details of customs processing and their role is significant in assuring that the Senate gives due consideration to the practical consequences of security measures."

The Business Coalition for Customs Modernization, which is composed of 24 major companies operating in the United States, voiced similar concerns. It wrote that "granting jurisdiction over the business facilitation functions of the Customs Service to the Committee on Homeland Security and Government Affairs—a committee concerned primarily with security—will lead inevitably to commercial considerations being discounted heavily in the name of security, without thought about the effects on America's consumers. That will hurt the U.S. economy and undermine our strength and standard of living in the long run."

As pointed out in these letters, as we move forward in enhancing our border security efforts, it is important to keep in mind that a large part of homeland security is economic security. And international trade is a critical component of our economic security. Exports alone accounted for 25 percent of U.S. economic growth from 1990-2000. Exports alone support an estimated 12 million jobs. Trade also promotes more competitive businesses—as well as more choices of goods and inputs at lower prices for U.S. consumers. If we impede trade, we impede our own economic growth and our own future well-being.

A concrete example can be found by looking at one sector of the economy immediately following the events of September 11. Just 36 hours after the attacks, Daimler-Chrysler announced that it would close one of its assembly plants because it could not get the parts it needed to continue operations from Canada. Similar circumstances caused Ford to lay idle five of its assembly plants—each producing an average of one million dollars worth of cars per hour—for a week.

Events like this make it clear that the United States must be at the forefront in developing the border technologies and enforcement, methodologies which will enable our economy to prosper and grow in the post September 11 world. We cannot afford to do any less. The Finance Committee has the experience and expertise to appropriately meet this challenge. And I'm pleased that the resolution we passed today acknowledges the unique role of the Committee.

Finally, it only makes practical sense for the Finance Committee to retain jurisdiction over customs revenue and commercial functions. Rule XXV of the Standing Rules of the Senate provides that the Finance Committee is the committee to which shall be referred all proposed legislation, messages, petitions, memorials, and all other matters relating to reciprocal trade agreements and tariffs. It also provides that the Finance Committee has jurisdiction over customs. The reason that the Finance Committee has jurisdiction over reciprocal trade agreements, tariffs, and customs is precisely because all of these trade issues are all interrelated. Trade agreements set tariff levels, and customs personnel administer the U.S. laws relating to these tariffs. Therefore, as long as the Finance Committee has jurisdiction over reciprocal trade agreements and tariffs, this committee almost by necessity must have jurisdiction over customs revenue and commercial functions.

For these reasons, I'm very pleased that the Senate voted this week for the Finance Committee to retain jurisdiction over customs revenue and commercial functions. In doing so, the Senate permitted the Committee on Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs to focus on its core objective of national security, and prevented a disruption to U.S. businesses that could result if such jurisdiction were removed from the Finance Committee. In addition, given the Finance Committee's jurisdiction over reciprocal trade agreements and tariffs, it only makes sense for this committee also to maintain its jurisdiction over customs revenue and commercial functions of the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection and the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement, even though these agencies are now housed in the Department of Homeland Security.

The resolution (S. Res. 445), as amended, was agreed to, as follows:

(The resolution will be printed in a future edition of the RECORD.)

(At the request of Mr. DASCHLE, the following statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD.)

• Mrs. BOXER. Mr. President, because of previous long-standing commitments in the State of California and an unexpected family illness, I was not able to be present to vote on the Senate Intelligence Reform Resolution.

Had I been present, I would have voted "yes."

Earlier this week, the Senate overwhelmingly passed legislation to implement recommendations of the 9/11 Commission in terms of reforming the intelligence structure of the executive branch and strengthening our efforts at homeland security. That was an important bill, and I hope we can quickly resolve differences with the House so that it can be sent to the President for his signature.

Equally important, however, is to implement intelligence reforms here in the Senate, as was also recommended by the 9/11 Commission.

This resolution strengthens the Senate Intelligence Committee, and it creates a new Intelligence Appropriations Subcommittee. In addition, the Government Affairs Committee will become the Homeland Security and Governmental Affairs Committee, and the Committee will have greater jurisdiction over the Department of Homeland Security.

All three of these steps will streamline operations in the Senate and make it easier for the Senate to conduct meaningful oversight of intelligence and homeland security. •

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HAGEL). The distinguished minority leader.

Mr. DASCHLE. Mr. President, I ask the Senator from West Virginia have 5 minutes prior to the next vote.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from West Virginia.

THE SABBATH

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I am not going to show any disrespect for the distinguished leader, majority leader, who is talking right now, so I will wait until he is finished.

I was saying, I think the distinguished majority leader for listening to what I am saying. I will be brief. I am not sure I will use 5 minutes.

Mr. President, in my office hangs the Ten Commandments. We have heard a lot about the Ten Commandments in recent years. I believe in the Ten Commandments. I believe we ought to respect those commandments, one of which says:

Remember the Sabbath Day, to keep it holy.

I am not saying I am a good man. My Bible says that no man is good. No man is good. But I think we ought to show some respect to those Christians in the body, and in our country, and many people who are not Christians, our Jewish friends, who believe in the Ten Commandments. As a matter of fact, the Ten Commandments originate, as we know, at the time when Moses went up on Mount Sinai and was given the tablets by God himself, by the Almighty himself. So we believe that.

I am a Christian. I may not be the best one around. I don't claim to be. But I do claim to be a Christian. I believe that way, and I believe that we ought to observe the Ten Commandments. I think that this body, as the greatest legislative body in the world, together with the other body, in particular should set an example of respecting the various religions that make up our Nation. That is why I take the floor today.

I think we are setting a bad example. I don't think we are showing proper respect to Christians in our country, and all over the world, for that matter, by publicly failing to observe that Commandment, that we keep the Sabbath Day holy and remember it.

I want to say I am protesting the fact that we are going to have a vote on tomorrow. I told my leadership I had hoped we wouldn't have votes on tomorrow. I also offered to say, Well, it is fine to have votes after sundown. The old Sabbath ran until sundown. Let's have any votes after sundown. If we have to have votes, let's have them after sundown. I asked my leaders to consider that. They did, and for various reasons they decided not to—that we had to have the vote.

I have to say as majority leader, when I was majority leader, I could have easily put this vote over to Monday simply by adjourning and not coming in tomorrow—which I would do, in this case. If there were an emergency, if something suddenly came up and it was a dire emergency, of course. You know the Bible says the ox may be in the ditch and we have to get it out of the ditch. But the ox is not in the ditch here. We have wasted a lot of time this year, and recently. We waste a lot of time. We are not in session when we could be in session. Then all of a sudden, here we are going to have this vote on Sunday. There are practicing Christians who like to go to church and want to observe this commandment.

So I say of course I will be in to vote. I have cast more rollcall votes than any other Senator in the history of the country. I guess I will not miss this one. But I am protesting. It could have been otherwise. It didn't have to be. It didn't have to happen tomorrow. We could have had it earlier. We jam these. We have a way around here in the Senate lately of jamming. The leadership on the other side—I have to say the Republicans are in control of the body—they have a way of jamming us. Maybe we are all at fault a little bit. But there is no reason why we should have to come in on a Sunday, on the Sabbath, and have rollcall votes. I protest it today. I hope it won't be done again after this year. I hope I will still be living and still be serving in the body.

I hope leadership will take this into consideration in the future and get our work done before the Sabbath comes and avoid having meetings on the Sabbath Day. It just isn't necessary. It is not a dire emergency. If it were, as I said, and the ox were in the ditch, I would say let us get it out and let us go in and vote. If it is important to the safety of the Nation, to the safety of the American people, or whatever, dire, we have to do it, of course. I think the Almighty would waive the Commandment as far as that is concerned. I understand we have duties, but I don't think it has to be done now.

I want to complain about the way we have done the business of the Senate—lagged along and dragged along and come in and have voting sessions on late Tuesday or Wednesday or Thursday, and we go out on Friday. We don't come in until Monday late. There are all kinds of reasons which I will bring up at another time perhaps and talk again about it.

I am not thinking at this point that we are going to be able to waive this unless the majority leader will be of a mind to put this vote over until Monday.

May I have 1 more minute, please.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. BYRD. Mr. President, I don't see why we can't have the vote today, or if not today, move it over until Monday. That could be done. The majority leader can easily do this, no question about it. I could do it when I was majority leader. I respect the majority leader, and I respect his doing whatever he has to do, but I am saying that a stitch in time would save nine.

As one Senator, I say that we should uphold the Commandments. I have always felt that side of the aisle and this side of the aisle are highly observant of the 10 Commandments and make a big to-do about religion in this country. Why don't we have a little religion here today and put this vote over from tomorrow and not come in on Sunday? Can't we do that?

I thank the Senators for allowing me to say these few words. I thank them. I will take my seat.

PROVIDING AGRICULTURAL DISASTER ASSISTANCE

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Under the previous order, the clerk will report Senate Resolution 454 by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A resolution (S. Res. 454) expressing the sense of the Senate that the 108th Congress should provide the necessary funds to make disaster assistance available for all customarily eligible agricultural producers as emergency spending and not funded by cuts in the farm bill.

Mr. DAYTON. Mr. President, I rise in support of the resolution by the Senator from Iowa, the ranking member on the Senate Agriculture Committee, and I wish to support his outrage to the rip-off of money from the Conservation Security Program to pay for Agriculture disaster aid.

The Conservation Security Program exists because of the heroic efforts of the Senator from Iowa, Senator HARKIN.

It was reported out of the Senate Agriculture Committee, on which I am proud to serve,

It passes the Senate, the House, and it was signed into law by the President in 2002.

The program is underway, and it is benefiting farmers in my State of Minnesota and elsewhere.

The bill the Senate passed back then also included disaster aid—but the House bill do not.

In Conference Committees, the House opposed disaster aid, the White House opposed disaster aid, so the final legislation contained no disaster aid.

It was a terrible hole in an otherwise excellent Bill, for its counter-cyclical program. As crop prices go up—price supports go down—farmers make more money from higher market prices and taxpayers save money.

Everyone wins except farmers who suffer disasters and lose most or all of their crops. They get no benefit from higher market prices because they have little or no product to sell.

Because of a cruel twist of fate, they watch their hard work amount to nothing—nothing except destitution and bankruptcy.

If there were ever a time when government should lend a helping hand, it's in the face of a natural disaster.

Disaster aid is all of us insuring every one of us.

Hurricane, tornado, flood drought, frost, heat wave, epidemic, who among us is not potentially vulnerable to a disaster?

And if we lose our home, business, or farm, and are left destitute by that disaster, and if we have paid our taxes for years to benefit others, shouldn't our fellow citizens extend a hand to help us back on our feet?

Not a hand out but a hand up, a hand back up to productivity, profitability and dignity.

The House of Representatives would not extend that helping hand to America's farmers. The White House would not extend that helping hand to America's farmers. So much for compassionate conservatism.

I guess that means you are very conservative with your compassion. It doesn't go very far. It goes mainly to those who don't need it. And there is little left for those who do.

This time a number of us in the Senate insisted upon disaster aid for our farmers who have suffered losses during the last 2 years.

A couple of weeks ago, the House sent over a $2 billion hurricane disaster aid bill. We were asked to pass it without debate. The President was traveling to Florida the next day. Just like that, $2 billion, with no questions asked, no offset.

I supported that aid. But I made it clear, as did my colleagues, that I would not support further disaster aid that did not include Minnesota's farmers.

Now we have that disaster aid. In part; it covers only 1 of the past 2 years.

So those farmers hit the hardest—those who had the exceptional misfortune to suffer natural disasters in both years—they will receive no help for 1 of those 2 years.

That is compassionate conservatism—those hurt the worst get only half the help. Unfortunately, that was the best we could do. But we certainly did not expect that disaster aid would be taken away from conservation security, robbing one farmer to help another.

Helping hurricane victims didn't come out of another program. Hurricane victims won't have to choose between one of two hurricanes.

This isn't right. It isn't just. And it's certainly not compassionate.

This offset is not only unfair, it is unnecessary. The 2002 farm bill has spent $16 billion less than originally designed, due to higher market prices.

The counter-cyclical program designed by Senator HARKIN has worked—$16 billion budgeted has not been expended. It will not be expended. But—we are told—OMB will not count those savings.

And once again, the Legislative Branch, which constitutionally has the right to appropriate—is toadying up to the Executive Branch.

As Senator BYRD has reminded us so eloquently, we serve with the Executive Branch; we don't serve under the Executive Branch.

I think the House and the White House are all too eager to gut another farm program and this is their excuse.

Well, we have an election upcoming and no that day America's Farmers should reject that excuse.

Mr. JOHNSON. Mr. President, disaster assistance has nearly always been designated as emergency spending, just like the President's supplemental request now, which he wants to designate as emergency spending. The Senate spoke clearly by approving our agricultural disaster aid amendment that treats agricultural disaster just like any other disaster, as emergency spending and not off-set by other programs.

The President's supplemental request calls for agricultural emergency disaster aid for farmers and ranchers, but only for those whose crops or livestock have been damaged by a hurricane or tropical storm. And as I said, he did not require that the assistance be off-set. If we are going to treat all farmers and ranchers the same, the disaster aid for them should make no difference if it is because of a drought in Texas, Colorado or South Dakota, or a flood in Ohio or Pennsylvania or West Virginia.

There is a huge disparity in matching up the disaster assistance spending, which will occur in fiscal year 2005, against the offset, which is spread across fiscal years 2006 through 2014. Because of this mismatch there would be a budget point of order against this conference report if it includes the offset from the farm bill as an offset for the farm bill. This is another reason why the disaster assistance should be designated emergency spending as it has been for many, many years—with only one exception, which was reversed not long afterward.

This budget problem is so significant that I would think, or at least hope, that the conferees and the leadership would be embarrassed to bring such an obvious budget gimmick to the floor. Let me explain further. The agricultural disaster package dollars will practically all be expended in fiscal 2005.

However, the offset that the House adopted does not kick in until fiscal 2006 according to CBO scoring. The offset would save $56 million in fiscal 2006, then the per-year savings would increase over the years, but the full offset would not be achieved until the end of fiscal 2014. Of course, I am not arguing for taking more out of the farm bill earlier. I am just saying that this entire idea of offsetting a disaster program that pays out in one year out of mandatory spending over the next 10 years is a charade. It will cannibalize money from the farm bill and dramatically damage the conservation title of the farm bill. It will reduce the farm bill baseline and damage our ability to write the next farm bill in a few years. And it is a precedent that ties the hands of the appropriations committee to respond to future disasters.

The point of the whole exercise? To come up with a budget gimmick that is not really even an offset and which raises a budget point of order. Again, the larger point here is that it makes no sense to require offsets for emergency disaster assistance legislation. A disaster is a disaster no matter where it is—and an emergency is an emergency, no matter where it is. We should simply recognize the wisdom and the necessity of funding agricultural disaster measures through the emergency spending designation—which is the overwhelming precedent over many years. Again, with only one exception we can find ever—in the past many decades in which we have responded to disaster losses.

American farmers and ranchers help keep food affordable in this country and also help to feed the world. They produce the food and fiber that is so vital to our economy while protecting our soil, helping to keep our waters clean, and reducing air pollution across the country. And, they are the basis for the strongest part of our Nation's economic engine—in fact, food and fiber comprise roughly 16 percent of our gross domestic product.

Farmers and ranchers did not ask for floods or frost or drought. Congress needs to respond to these natural disasters by providing assistance to those affected including the nation's farmers and ranchers to help restore financial stability in times of such losses, and since we have traditionally provided such assistance on an emergency basis without cutting programs to the class of those suffering—we should continue to do so as the Senate has already supported.

Mr. President, I am deeply concerned today at the manner in which the Congress, and more specifically conferees to the fiscal year 2005 Homeland Security Appropriations bill, have chosen to address disaster funding. Our agriculture producers in South Dakota and across America have waited a long time for substantive relief—relief that will enable our family farmers and agricultural communities to survive through hard times—and the majority leadership has chosen to provide emergency relief for hurricane victims while requiring farmers and ranchers on the Northern Plains to cannibalize an already underfunded conservation program in order to secure moderate drought assistance.

With respect to the Conservation Security Program, the CSP budget was funded at only 41 million dollars for Fiscal Year 2004. The severe funding limitations on the program allowed the Natural Resources Conservation Service to write only around 2,000 contracts, and limited watersheds were chosen, not one of which was in my home State of South Dakota. South Dakota has already been shortchanged because of decreased conservation dollars, and I would urge my colleagues to ensure CSP can operate as intended under the farm bill.

The disaster package that was attached to the Homeland Security funding bill had bipartisan support and was approved in the Senate by a voice vote. Given the enormous savings we have experienced with farm bill price support programs, totaling nearly $16 billion, we shouldn't be robbing Peter to pay Paul to provide any type of substantive relief. Farmers shouldn't have to pay any more, and they shouldn't have to choose between crucial environmental programs and substantive disaster relief.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask for the yeas and nays.

Whereas, agriculture has been the cornerstone of every civilization throughout history and remains the driving force behind the nation's economy;

Whereas, it is the nature of agriculture that farmers and ranchers will suffer production losses because of the vagaries of weather;

Whereas, Congress has responded to natural disasters by providing assistance to those affected including the nation's farmers and ranchers to help restore financial stability in times of such losses; and

Whereas, Congress has traditionally provided such assistance on an emergency basis without cutting programs to the class of those suffering.

AMERICAN JOBS CREATION ACT OF 2004—CONFERENCE REPORT—Resumed

Mr. REID. Mr. President, is the FSC bill now before the Senate?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Yes.

INTELLIGENCE REORGANIZATION

Mr. REID. Mr. President, the chairman of the committee is here and wishes to speak on that measure. We have a number of people on this side who have been waiting today to speak. They will not be able to speak until he finishes his statement, unless he decides not to give it immediately.

I am going to give a very brief statement on the measure we just completed, that Senator MCCONNELL and I worked on, a very short statement. Then with the permission of the manager of the bill, the chairman of the committee, I will go into a rollcall, so to speak, following your statement, who will speak on this side and who will speak on your side.

Mr. President, as I said earlier this week on more than one occasion, change is very difficult. Sometimes change is what we have to do. The events of 9/11 were very bad, and as a result of that, reluctantly, energetically, and enthusiastically, the 9/11 Commission was formed and they met for a year. They did wonderful work. But for the 9/11 Commission, we could not have done the reorganization of this body that we completed. As they found, our intelligence oversight was weak. Our homeland security oversight was fractionalized. We can and must do better for this institution and the country. The legislation just passed does that.

We have recommended four additional ways to strengthen the Select Committee on Intelligence, which is no longer a select committee; it is an "A" committee. We have also recommended the creation of an Appropriations subcommittee on intelligence. I thought we should have that as the last issue—the appropriations aspect of it. My friend, the Senator from Texas, offered an amendment that says there will be an intelligence subcommittee of Appropriations. But it is up to the Appropriations Committee as to whether they merge Military Construction and Defense or come up with something else. But there will be a freestanding intelligence subcommittee on appropriations which, as Governor Kean says, is in keeping with the spirit of the Commission's recommendations.

We have also consolidated homeland security oversight in the Governmental Affairs Committee. We have taken 10 committees' jurisdiction. From some, we took away five or six items. Significant things were taken from these committees. For example, from Environment and Public Works, my committee, we took FEMA, which is a very important part of what goes on in our country. That is the way it was through the 10 committees from which we took jurisdiction. We have consolidated homeland security oversight in the Governmental Affairs Committee.

We know there are some who think we did too much. We have had committee chairmen and ranking members really complain about what we did. They said: Why are you doing this? You are taking these things we have worked on for 105 years. What right do you have to do that and create this monstrous committee? But we felt it was the right thing to do—to bring together, the best we could, these homeland security functions. We did that.

There were others who thought we didn't go far enough. I say to them, they should have listened to the complaints and the admonitions we received from chairmen and ranking members and members of these committees. There can be no doubt that the new homeland security and governmental affairs committee will be one of the most powerful committees in the history of the Senate.

The committee will exercise its vast jurisdiction effectively under the leadership of Senators COLLINS and LIEBERMAN. They are disappointed; they wanted everything. But they got most everything. I am sure they will do a good job there. Remember, the Governmental Affairs Committee, before we started, was a pretty powerful committee. Now it is a committee that is a very powerful committee.

We would not have gotten here without the support of Senators FRIST and DASCHLE. I said at a press conference that Senator MCCONNELL and I just had, the next time Senator DASCHLE calls me and says, I have a little job for you, I am going to get a few more details about what that little job is before accepting it. I think Senator MCCONNELL feels the same way. This has been very hard. I have a few Members on my side, chairmen, who are upset at me. But we did the right thing. We did the right thing.

Anyway, I appreciate the support of the two leaders who formed a working group for this resolution. I express my appreciation to the members of my working group, my task force. They were so supportive and did such a good job in helping us get to where we are. I appreciate the feedback we got from members of our working group, and all Senators were committed to reforming the Senate.

Mr. President, I want to personally thank Senator MITCH MCCONNELL. It has been difficult for him and for me. But I said last night on the floor and I will say it again this afternoon—it is true that I certainly cannot understand totally the Presiding Officer's feelings because he has been in actual mortal combat, and the relationships formed there, I guess, are as close as any relationships could be. I didn't fight in the jungles in Vietnam as did the Presiding Officer. Senator MCCONNELL and I fought in the "jungles" of the Senate and, as a result of working as we did in the last almost month on this, we formed a very close friendship—something we didn't have before. I will always remember this time we spent, and I express publicly my admiration for the Senator from Kentucky for sticking with the program. It wasn't easy to do.

I have the greatest respect for his staff, Robert Karem, Kyle Simmons, Mike Solon, Brian Lewis, and John Abegg. They worked very hard. Two people on my staff worked very hard. Rich Verma worked so hard. He is a lawyer and we used his negotiation skills on many occasions. And then Gregg Jaczko, who has a Ph.D. in physics. We needed his scientific background. He understands the legislative process, and he has done an outstanding job. I hope everybody in the Senate feels good about the work he has done because he has been selected by Senator DASCHLE to be a member of the Federal Nuclear Regulatory Commission, the NRC. His nomination is pending in the Senate now. He did an outstanding job working with Robert, Kyle, Mike, Brian, and John.

I have thanked the members of the 9/11 Commission. I thank the families who were impacted by the attacks on our country. We would not be in the position we are today without their efforts. We have made our country safer as a result of what happened in the legislation that was marshaled and passed by Senators LIEBERMAN and COLLINS, and the work done by Senator MCCONNELL and myself is going to make our country safer. Serious times call for serious action. That is what we have done here. I appreciate very much my colleagues' support.

Following the statement of the Senator from Iowa, on our side of the aisle, I ask unanimous consent that Senator HARKIN be recognized for 5 minutes, Senator DORGAN for 20 minutes, Senator DAYTON for 10 minutes, Senator JACK REED for 30 minutes, and Senator LANDRIEU to follow for a time of 90 minutes.

Mr. President, Senator DEWINE is the Republican who is the only one who has come forward, other than Senator GRASSLEY. Because of the gentleman he is, he said he would be willing to wait until Senator REED finishes his statement. I appreciate that very much. Senator DEWINE wants to be recognized for up to 1 hour. Again, I ask unanimous consent that that be the case.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, reserving the right to object, is it the Senator's anticipation that we go back and forth?

Mr. REID. Yes. If there are people who come with relatively short statements who are on the majority side, we would fit those in between the statements. We want to make sure Senator DEWINE, who is being such a nice person, doesn't get jammed in the process. He, in fact, has agreed to let these others go before him. If a Republican comes over, we can do that.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, may I have an hour after Senator DEWINE?

Mr. REID. I ask unanimous consent that Senator KENNEDY be given up to 1 hour following Senator DEWINE.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Ms. MURKOWSKI). Is there objection? Without objection, it is so ordered.

The Senator from Iowa.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I am glad that we are finally getting up the FSC/ETI bill, the JOBS bill as it is sometimes referred to, because this bill will create jobs in manufacturing.

As everyone knows, the World Trade Organization has ruled that our Foreign Sales Corporation extraterritorial income legislation that has been on the books for quite a few years is an illegal export subsidy and has authorized up to $4 billion a year in sanctions against U.S. exports. These sanctions actually began way back in the month of March this year. They now are at 12 percent and they are going to increase 1 percent each month that we do not repeal the existing law. By November, they will be at 13 percent, and Senator FRIST rightly has called these "Euro taxes" on our exporters.

It has been a long road to what I hope will be final passage of this legislation. Both bodies passed bills to deal with the Euro taxes. Both bodies struggled to get this to conference. Nothing has been easy, but we are at last in the final stages.

Now that we are at the doorway of final passage, we cannot fritter away the opportunity to eliminate this tax put on our exports to Europe by the European Union.

American workers, especially those in the manufacturing sector, put in the work necessary to make the U.S. the most productive economy in the world. We Senators have to employ the same work ethic. We have to match our constituents' work productivity. We cannot delay on this matter any longer. We cannot leave the job site without finishing our work.

I will inform my colleagues of what happened during the conference this week. It was one of the most open and unusual conferences between the Senate Finance Committee and the Ways and Means Committee of the House that we have ever had. There were 18 House conferees and 23 Senate conferees. The conference chairman, Chairman THOMAS of the Ways and Means Committee, started the ball rolling with a discussion draft. The discussion draft reflected the core elements of both bills.

The main piece complied with our WTO obligation by repealing the Foreign Sales Corporation extraterritorial income regime. In its place, we provide a deduction for all manufacturers, big and small. That was a significant movement toward the Senate position.

In one move, Chairman THOMAS addressed the top Senate priority; that is, that all manufacturers receive the benefit of the deduction.

The next piece of the discussion draft included a package of international tax reforms that will make America's manufacturers yet more competitive. This package reflects the priorities of both the Senate and the House bill.

Finally, the discussion draft included identical and near identical provisions from both bills. Revenue neutrality was another important principle of the Senate bill, and I appreciate Chairman THOMAS's cooperation on this Senate priority. Indeed, it was the bipartisan Finance Committee staff that refined the offsets that made this bill viable in the first place.

After presentation of the discussion draft, each Member had an opportunity to put forth their priorities by filing amendments for the public conference. Finance Committee conferees recognized the similarity to the customs of the Senate Finance Committee markup, the way we have done it traditionally in the Senate Finance Committee. This process was very unusual for a conference. Normally, conferees go through a series of meetings and exchange of offers or some other elongated process.

I have been a member of the Finance Committee for nearly 20 years, and I can tell my colleagues that in nearly all cases, conferees debate the issues in private. Nearly all of the toughest decisions come down to private negotiations between the two chairmen. Those decisions are reached after conferee input.

In this conference, however, all discussions were aired publicly. Sometimes conferences take months. Sometimes they end without accomplishing anything before the adjournment of a Congress. We had neither option before us. We were in an unusual and sensitive situation because we are coming up now to adjournment of this Congress. Unusual situations require then unusual procedures. We had only a few days remaining to enact this measure. That is not much time, but we are here now before the Senate, and this bill has passed the House of Representatives already.

The bottom line is that we have to move this measure to the President of the United States. I am fully committed to getting this bill done before we leave for the elections.

I appreciate the House's willingness to open up this process and let transparency occur through the amendment process. I would also like to thank my Finance Committee conferees, particularly my friend and ranking member, Senator BAUCUS. We would not be here—in fact, we would not have even gotten this bill through the Senate without the bipartisan spirit of the Finance Committee members and Senator BAUCUS's efforts in that. That spirit remained in place as we took the final steps in the conference committee between the House and Senate.

Both the House and Senate agreed on the basic structure of the bill and on the policy. In addition to the major movement to the Senate on the structure of the manufacturing deduction and revenue neutrality, many Senate priorities have been addressed. An expanded renewable electricity reduction credit is included. This was a high priority for Senate conferees BINGAMAN, SMITH, DASCHLE, HATCH, BAUCUS, SNOWE, BREAUX, LINCOLN, CONRAD, BUNNING, and GREGG.

Chairman THOMAS recognized this as an important bipartisan mark and included section 450 in his mark even though it cost over $2 billion to accommodate the Senate on this issue, within the spirit of revenue neutrality.

We have a very good small business package as well included in the conference report. The bill before us extends small business expensing for another 2 years. The bill contains significant S corporation reforms. Even though the subchapter S corporation provisions were House provisions, they have historically been Senate priorities. We have probably the most comprehensive agricultural and rural community tax incentive package ever.

I thank Chairman THOMAS for including these Senate priorities in his mark. For everyone, there is a substantial overhaul of the fuel excise tax system, with a VEETC proposal, fuel fraud, and also biodiesel provisions.

These provisions will mean more highway money for more States. According to Federal statistics for the current fiscal year, 37 of 50 States will receive more highway money because of the VEETC proposals in this bill. There will still be more highway money for all States from provisions in this bill by shutting down fraud when people do not pay the fuel tax that is required under existing law. VEETC and fuel fraud provisions are estimated to put over $24 billion into the highway trust fund.

Now, I point out that this bill does not contain many special interest members' provisions. If my colleagues will recall, the JOBS bill passed the Senate 92 to 5. In part, the bill received such widespread support because many Member items were accommodated when this bill first went through the Senate. Literally dozens of narrow tax benefits were adopted in committee and also added on the floor. Those provisions also unnecessarily caused the bill to be defined as a special interest bill. Senator BAUCUS and I put out a staff analysis that showed only a small portion of the bill's revenue was absorbed by these individual Members' items. But that did not stop the criticism of those items, either by Members of the Congress or by the press writing about this bill, emphasizing things that were only a small part of the legislation.

The House bill also, however, contained Member items. They were fewer in number, but very significantly defined. Most of those items enjoyed some Senate support.

In addition to the press criticism, the President also made clear to me he would not support a bill that is heavily laden with so many of these narrow items.

Neither side got everything they wanted. For example, the House made a huge concession by giving up its rate cut for only C corporations. They had invested $15 billion for this in small C corporations, and another $64 billion for large C manufacturing corporations. They relented on this point in order to accommodate the Senate concerns about extending the manufacturing rate cut to all manufacturers, regardless of whether they were C corporations, S corporations, partnerships, or individuals.

We have heard harsh complaints about the conference bill from Senator LANDRIEU because the bill does not contain her reservist amendments. I would like to set the record straight on that point. The Senate voted in support of her amendment in conference. We approved it and presented it to the House for inclusion in the conference bill. The House rejected that amendment. The conference was open to the public. Everyone witnessed the vote. There were no back-room deals on the reservist amendment.

Finally, as a premise, let me note we knew the House would not accept as much in revenue offsets.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Indeed, the bill before us is smaller in size by more than $30 billion than the Senate-passed JOBS bill.

There has been some grumbling about how much the bill grew beyond the simple repeal of foreign sales corporations' extraterritorial income provisions. One of the reasons it grew is because the Finance Committee found sufficient offsets, most of which are loophole closers—loophole closers Senator KERRY spoke about in the debate, that he wanted to close. We did this to allow Members to have enough revenue to offset particular Senators' interests in this bill.

This is also true of Senator LANDRIEU's reservist amendment. Not only did we support it but we found a way to pay for it. We modified the foreign housing exclusion for high-income U.S. employees working overseas. Unfortunately, the House rejected that offset, and in turn the specific amendment.

I think the Senate is being distracted by too much emphasis upon particular specific Member priorities. I believe the core benefits of the bill should not be sacrificed to narrow items. The core benefits go to manufacturers. It is all about creating jobs in particular, particularly about creating jobs in manufacturing in America, where there has been some concern expressed in the Senate about outsourcing. So that is what this bill is all about. That is not to say we did not attempt to include a number of Members' issues from both sides of the aisle, and from both bodies of Congress. There was a balance that needed to be struck in order to get a compromise out of the conference committee. I committed to Chairman THOMAS that I would defend the mark as a whole. Chairman THOMAS made a similar commitment. That commitment enabled us to accommodate Member items that had broad support.

Let's finish the job this week before we leave. There is no excuse for allowing partisanship to hold up this bill. I will remind everyone, one more time, this bill passed the Senate Finance Committee on a bipartisan vote, 19 to 2. Only two Senators, both on my side of the aisle, not on the Democrats' side, voted against this bill. Both of those Senators, however, put their own special concerns aside for the greater good, and are supporting this conference report. This is a bipartisan bill that reflects everyone's concerns, both Republican and Democrat.

I will describe once again the history of this bill. The JOBS bill was a bipartisan bill from the ground up. The framework was laid by Senator BAUCUS when he was chairman of the Senate Finance Committee in the year 2002. In July 2002 we had a hearing to address the FSC/ETI controversy within the World Trade Organization. We have heard from a cross-section of industries that would be damaged by the repeal of the extraterritorial income laws we had on the books for the last few years. We also heard from U.S. companies that were clamoring for international tax reform, because our tax rules were hurting their competitiveness in foreign markets. Their foreign competitors were running circles around them because of our international tax rules.

During this hearing, Senator BOB GRAHAM of Florida and Senator HATCH expressed concerns about how our international tax laws were impairing the competitiveness of U.S. companies. After some discussion back there in the fall of 2002, we formed a blue ribbon commission to study this problem. We all decided that decisive action was more important than a commission. During that hearing, Chairman BAUCUS formed an international tax working group that was joined by Senator GRAHAM, Senator HATCH, and this Senator, and was open to any other Finance Committee Senator interested in participating.

The bipartisan Finance Committee working group developed a framework that formed the basis of the bill that is before us this very day. We directed our staff to engage in an exhaustive analysis of the many international reform proposals that have been offered. We sought to glean the very best ideas from as many sources as possible. Senator BAUCUS and I also formed a bipartisan bicameral working group, with the chairman and ranking member of the Ways and Means Committee, in an effort to find some common ground on dealing with the repeal of FSC/ETI. That effort did not go so well. But it did inspire Senator BAUCUS and this Senator to continue our Senate bipartisan development of a FSC/ETI repeal and international tax reform package.

We continued our efforts in cooperation with Senator HATCH and Senator GRAHAM and a few other members of the Finance Committee who wanted to do what was fair and right in complying with the World Trade Organization ruling. We continued our bipartisan efforts when I became chairman—again, in the year 2003. In July 2003 we held two hearings on the FSC/ETI and the international reform issues. One hearing focused on the effect of our tax policies on business competition within the United States and the other on international business competition. These two hearings led to the bipartisan Senate bill that passed earlier, 92 to 5.

Let me review what is in the bill before us, because most of it comes from our bipartisan Senate bill. The core part of the bill repeals the current FSC/ETI provisions that are in our current tax law and were ruled out of order by the World Trade Organization because they are contrary even to the laws of our own Congress.

FSC/ETI reduces the income tax on goods manufactured in the U.S. and exported overseas by as much as 3 to 8 rate points. That is, if a corporation's tax rate is 35 percent, the tax rate on export income is somewhere between 27 and 32 percent instead of that maximum of 35 percent.

It lowered the U.S. corporate rate on goods made in the United States and sold overseas to make us competitive because of the fact that the European Union and those countries do not export their value-added tax. The World Trade Organization has determined that the FSC/ETI is an impermissible export subsidy and has authorized the European Union to impose up to $4 billion a year of sanctions against U.S. exports until we get rid of FSC/ETI, which this bill does.

Those sanctions begin March 1. They are up as high as 12 percent right now. They can go up as high as 17 percent. They can even go higher than that if the European Union institutes longer phase-ins.

Our companies carry this burden because Congress has failed to act for 2 or 3 years. That is why we must pass this bill before we leave Washington for our campaigning.

This should be a very serious concern of all Members because the sanctions are hitting commodity products such as agricultural goods, timber and paper, as well as other manufactured products. Presently, about 89 percent of the FSC-ETI export benefits go to the manufacturing sector.

Repeal of FSC-ETI raises around $55 billion over 10 years. If that money is not sent back into the manufacturing sector, which this bill does, there will be a $50 billion tax increase on manufacturing. It is mathematically impossible for it doing anything else.

That is why the bill before us takes all $55 billion of the FSC-ETI repeal money and sends it back to the manufacturing sector in the form of a 3-point tax rate cut on manufacturing income; in other words, that corporate tax of 35 percent being reduced down to 32 percent.

This tax rate is for manufacturing in the United States. No company that manufacturers offshore will benefit from it. We start phasing in those cuts next year. The cuts apply to sole proprietors, partnerships, farmers, individuals, family businesses, multinational corporations, and foreign companies that set up manufacturing plants in the United States.

In total, this bill provides over $76 billion of tax relief to our U.S.-based manufacturing sector to promote factory hiring in the United States—$76 billion not lost to the Federal Treasury because it is offset.

This bill also contains another $7 billion for small businesses, local communities, inland shipping, and other local business concerns.

There has been chatter in the press about the short-line railroad provision benefiting big railroad companies. That is not true. Short lines are the small spurs that run off of the main railway systems and generally connect to local community businesses such as our grain elevators and our small factories. They connect them to the main rail arteries. They are often owned by small rail companies or local community businesses. This short-rail provision is vital to farming and rural communities across America, as well as secondary cities that do not have the benefit of massive public rail systems.

This bill also contains an agricultural and small business package which devotes $5 billion to our home communities.

As I said before, this is probably the most comprehensive agricultural and rural community tax incentive package ever passed by the Congress.

We also include international tax reforms, mostly in foreign tax credit areas, and most of which benefit the manufacturing sector.

The international tax reforms largely fix problems our domestic companies face with the complexities of the foreign tax credit. These reforms are necessary if we are to level the playing field for U.S. companies that compete with our trading partners, particularly those companies that are in countries that have value-added tax and they don't export that tax like we export our income tax as part of our cost of production.

You will hear arguments that the international reforms provide an incentive to move jobs offshore. Read the bill and you will find that is not true. We have carefully selected international reforms that do not provide offshore incentives.

Our bill also includes a House version of the Homeland Reinvestment Act which will temporarily reduce tax on foreign earnings that are brought into the United States for investment here at home instead of overseas. The Senate version of this provision is the work of Senators ENSIGN, BOXER, and SMITH, a bipartisan measure.

We included a provision that allows naval shipbuilders to use a method of accounting which results in more favorable income tax treatment.

There are enhanced depreciation provisions to help the ailing airline industry.

The bill also expands the new markets tax credit to high outmigration counties. These credits help economic development in rural counties that have lost over 10 percent of their population.

We have also included the Civil Rights Tax Fairness Act. We have a special dividend allocation rule which benefits farm cooperatives.

We have other farm provisions that give cattlemen tax-free treatment if they replace livestock because of drought, flood, or other weather-related conditions—things all beyond the control of the farmer.

We included a provision that allows payments under the National Health Service Corps loan repayment program to be exempt from tax. This is an important measure to enhance the delivery of medical services to rural areas that do not have the proper number of health practitioners.

The bill before us contains several energy provisions that were voted out of the Finance Committee that had been previously approved by the full Senate in the JOBS bill.

I have already spoken about VEETC, which is short for volumetric ethanol excise tax credit. This provision would add up to $14.2 billion of revenue to the highway trust fund over the 6-year life of the upcoming transportation bill now pending before Congress. This provision alone could create as many as 674,000 new jobs in America.

The energy tax package also includes a new incentive for the production of renewable biodiesel—biodiesel made from soybeans—and hence, mixed at a 20-percent mixture with petroleum diesel, clean burning, no sulfur in that 20 percent, as an example of being environmentally friendly.

Anyway, the biodiesel provision means jobs in our heartland. Renewable fuels have directly generated over 150,000 new jobs. In fact, in 2004 alone, this industry will add 22,000 new jobs.

The bill also includes a provision to accelerate the production of natural gas from Alaska and the construction of a natural gas pipeline from Alaska to the lower 48 States. According to our own Department of Labor's Bureau of Economic Analysis, construction of the Alaska natural gas pipeline would create nearly 400,000 jobs in construction, trucking, manufacturing, and other service sectors.

The bill provides all of this tax relief, nearly $140 billion worth, and yet is revenue neutral, meaning we reduce taxes over here, close corporate loopholes over here, raise a certain amount of money to make up for what is less taxation over here. It is revenue neutral—no additional money added, no additional dollars added to the national debt; not one dime to the Federal deficit.

The tax relief in this bill is paid for by extending Customs user fees, shutting down abusive corporate tax shelters, and attacking the abusive tax strategy used by Enron, which we unearthed during my Finance Committee Enron investigation.

Last October, the Finance Committee held hearings on the status of these abusive corporate tax shelter activities. During that hearing, we received anonymous testimony from a leasing industry executive describing how U.S. corporations are able to take tax deductions for the pair of sewer lines in the New York subway station.

Let me explain "anonymous." This meant the person was testifying before the committee. We knew who he was, but he was not identified to the public. But he knew what he was talking about. We have a situation where major corporations, through these abusive tax shelters, are claiming tax deductions on taxpayer-funded infrastructure, mostly by municipalities located both in the United States and overseas. Imagine our surprise on the Senate Finance Committee to learn that the U.S. taxpayer is subsidizing the cost of electric transmission lines in the Australian outback. No one believes that, but it showed up in our investigation.

I could go on with a lot of other examples, but the bill before the Senate ends this corporate tax shelter abuse.

It was shortly after the September 11, 2001, terrorist attacks that we saw the beginning of the exodus of U.S. companies moving their corporate headquarters to tax havens overseas, just setting up a shell corporation, basically just a mailbox, for the sole purpose of evading U.S. corporate taxes. It was the events of September 11, 2001, and the ensuing stock market plunge that provided companies with cost-efficient ways to get out of the United States. That is one thing, but to get out of the United States just to cheat on their taxes and leaving everything else in the United States—that is the problem.

Members may recall the video I played for some members in which a big four accounting firm partner said that U.S. companies were resistant to this scheme out of some post-September 11 sense of patriotism and national duty. This big four accounting firm partner said patriotism would have to take a back seat when they see their improved earnings per share. Isn't that a nice thing to be talking about within 2 or 3 months after losing 3,000 Americans in the terrorist attacks on New York City and the Pentagon?

In this bill before the Senate, patriotism is not taking a back seat. This bill includes measures to shut down this type of corporate expatriations that are there for the sole purpose of dashing from the country and stashing the cash, as opposed to those patriotic corporations that are staying in America and paying and playing here.

I am not pleased with the effective date that came out of the conference, but this bill does shut down for the future more of these corporate tax shelter abuses that we call inversions. They are done. In fact, this bill represents the most comprehensive attack on tax shelters since 1986.

There is a great deal of good in this bill. We can rescue the manufacturing sector. We can give companies less reason to outsource because the cost of capital—as one of the arguments for outsourcing—will be less if this bill passes.

We also end European Union sanctions. By passing this bill we can respond to the recent rise in gas prices through our encouragement of more renewable fuels, and we can shut down every known corporate tax shelter abuse.

It is time to pass what is a very important bill to aid our manufacturing sector, remove tariffs off our farmers' backs, create jobs for our workers, and to place the Senate back on its footing, to do its job, and move legislation that benefits the American working men and women.

I yield the floor and suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARKIN. I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. I understand there was an order, and I am allowed to speak for 5 minutes.

DISASTER ASSISTANCE

I take this time first to thank all the Senators who voted for S. 454, expressing the sense of the Senate that disaster assistance ought to be emergency spending and not taken as an offset out of any other program, especially the farm bill.

The vote was overwhelming, 71 to 14. Once again, as we have in the past, the Senate has spoken very loudly and clearly that when a disaster strikes, wherever it is, this is an emergency. It ought to be taken out of the whole pot of Government money rather than invading a program and taking money out it as an offset.

Again, I have the deepest sympathy for all the people who got hit by the hurricane in Florida and other States. They ought to be compensated. That is a true emergency. It is a disaster. But we have had disasters in other parts of the country. We have had floods, tornados, droughts, all kind of things. Just because it is not a big hurricane does not mean it is not just as devastating. It is. It makes no sense why we should have to then offset, take money out of existing farm programs, to pay for agricultural disaster assistance. But that is the position of President Bush and of the House leadership. We do not require offsets to respond to the hurricane disaster, and we should not do it for any other disaster.

Seventy-one Senators again spoke and said emergencies are emergencies. Disasters require emergency spending.

I have to point out that last night in the debate in St. Louis the President said he had fought for strong conservation provisions in the farm bill. I was there when the President signed the farm bill in May 2002, and he touted the conservation title and how much he supported it and that one of the main reasons he was signing it was because of the strong conservation title.

Yet today, his people, the President's own people from the White House and OMB, are up here telling the members of the House and Senators that in order to respond to the droughts, flooding, tornados and other disasters we have had around the country, that the disaster payments have to be taken out of the farm bill and that the place to take them is from conservation.

Yes, you heard me correctly. The President of the United States, who so loudly last night said he fought for a strong conservation title in the farm bill, today, his people are up here and saying to take money out of conservation to pay for agricultural disaster assistance.

I am sorry, can someone please join the dots for me? What is happening? The President is saying one thing, but his people are up here doing exactly the opposite. Does the President not know what his people are doing up here or have they not informed him or what is going on?

The farmers and ranchers of this country, as well as Americans who support conservation, ought to know that there is a provision soon coming before the Senate that will take money out of conservation to pay for disasters. It is wrong. Seventy-one Senators just spoke and said it is wrong. Yet the White House is insisting that disaster money has to be taken out of conservation.

The White House and the House insist on provisions that basically take money away with hand and give it back with the other and say to farmers and ranchers: You are better off. It is a cruel hoax for agricultural producers. Farmers who receive disaster payments should not suffer the loss of other farm bill benefits. Nor should our Nation's farmers as a whole, the majority of whom will not receive any disaster payments, be forced to bear the cost of disaster assistance by having farm bill benefits taken away to be transferred to a disaster program for only some farmers.

Why should the farmers in Pennsylvania have their conservation funding taken away from them to transfer to farmers in Nebraska or Wyoming or Colorado or Oklahoma or Texas or wherever the disaster may be. The White House did not say to do that for Florida's hurricane losses. They did not say to take money away from Alaska or Ohio or places like that to go to Florida. No, and they should not have. We should all pitch in as we have before, the whole country, to respond to the hurricane recovery. We pitch in because it is a disaster and emergency and so we fund it as an emergency, not by taking funding away from other vital programs. Yet for agricultural disaster assistance responding to droughts, or floods or other disasters, the White House and the House leadership are telling farmers and ranchers they will have to bear the cost of it by losing conservation funding from the farm bill.

I am sorry, it is not right and not fair. And 71 Senators said it is not.

Again, I ask the President: Please, Mr. President, you touted the conservation program.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator's time has expired.

Mr. HARKIN. I ask unanimous consent for just 30 more seconds.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, you touted the conservation program. Last night you said you fought for a strong conservation title in the farm bill. And now you are taking money out of conservation to pay for disasters. Please, Mr. President, I am telling you, get ahold of your people who are at OMB—your people. They work for you. Get them on the phone right now and tell them, this agricultural disaster money ought to come out of emergency assistance, just like you proposed for the hurricanes, and not out of farmers' own pockets.

I thank the Presiding Officer and yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Rhode Island.

Mr. REED. Madam President, I understand there is a unanimous consent agreement. I ask unanimous consent it be modified so I may be recognized now according to the time allocated under the unanimous consent agreement.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

HONORING OUR ARMED FORCES

Mr. REED. Madam President, as a preliminary point, let me say I had the privilege yesterday to go up to Walter Reed Army Hospital to visit soldiers who have been injured in action defending this country and also to visit the rehabilitation facilities there. And any time you go to Walter Reed, you are inspired by the courage, the selfless service, and the sacrifice of these outstanding young men and women. But I want to relay something I think is particularly appropriate but is not often said.

As I was leaving the room of an injured soldier from the 509th Parachute Infantry Regiment, his parents—his mother and father—were there, and his father stopped me and said: Senator, I want to make sure you know something. The people in this hospital are extraordinary. They have treated my son with extraordinary care. He is my child, but all the people I have known here in this hospital treat my son as if he was their child.

That is an extraordinary compliment to the men and women of Walter Reed, the Army Medical Corps, the doctors, the nurses, the technicians, the occupational therapists, the janitors, the clerks. And it is not just Walter Reed, it is Bethesda, it is the Air Force Health System.

I do not think we spend enough time thanking those valiant soldiers, sailors, and air men and women for what they do. And certainly those soldiers who have suffered and are being treated, rehabilitated, we owe them more than we can ever repay. We have to match their courage with wise and thoughtful policy.

OPERATIONAL DEPLOYMENT OF THE GROUND-BASED MISSILE SYSTEM

Madam President, I am going to spend a few moments talking about a policy which I do not consider to be the wisest and the most thoughtful, and that is the President's likely declaration, within a few days, of the operational deployment of the ground-based missile system. We have constructed a test bed in Alaska. We are trying to assemble a system that will work to protect this country. I think operational testing is in order. In fact, I would hope that the administration would actually follow the law more rigorously and provide for a scheme of operational testing. But that is not the case.

To declare this immature, technologically challenged system as deployed and operational today is a political judgment, not a military judgment. I think we should refrain from blatant political judgments when the security of the United States is in the balance.

Simply stated, this system is so immature and technologically challenged that they canceled the last test. And it defies me to understand how, after canceling the test, you can turn around and say: It will work. It is operational. It defies common sense. It defies logic. It is something I think, again, that simply is a political statement.

Now, intercept tests are the critical means by which a missile system, any military system that is technologically sophisticated, must be validated, must be tested. It is the only way we can truly assess whether a system will work, whether it meets a minimum criteria for deployment, to put it in the hands of American fighting forces.

The last intercept flight test of the system was conducted almost 2 years ago in December 2002. It was a failure.

Six days after the test failed, the President announced that the U.S. would deploy the missile defense system by the end of 2004. It is almost like watching a piece of military equipment crash and burn and then suddenly say it is operational. Again, it defies logic. It defies common sense.

Since the time of the last test failure in 2002, there have been seven other planned tests. They have all been canceled. Again, we are not able to test this system. How in good faith can we say it is operationally workable? The tests have been postponed, deferred. None of these tests have taken place.

None of the major components of the system, neither the new operational interceptor, nor the operational radar, nor the operational battle management system have ever been tested at all against a real test target. Yet the President will say, I assume in a few days, this system is capable of protecting the United States.

In addition to all these test delays and cancellations, the administration has essentially eliminated any effective oversight over the missile defense test program, avoiding standards and laws that have been on the books for at least 20 years.

Years of hard experience have shown that it is much more expensive to fix a problem with a military system after you have built and deployed it than it is to fix it before it is deployed. Because of this, more than 20 years ago, Congress passed laws which required all major defense systems to undergo a full set of realistic operational tests prior to spending large amounts of money on full production and deployment of the system. These tests were to be judged by an independent test authority called the Director of Operational Test and Evaluation. This law is still in effect today.

Thanks to this law, we have been able to avoid some of the mistakes we made in the 1970s and the 1980s, where we declared systems deployed and operational without adequate testing. These are high-profile systems, like the B-1 bomber, the Sergeant York gun, and the Bradley Fighting Vehicle. We were able to make certain corrections to the B-1 and the Bradley. They were eventually fixed at a cost of billions of dollars. The Sergeant York gun was unable to be fixed. That was canceled. But we wasted billions of dollars by deploying these systems prematurely.

If the missile system is truly as important as the administration thinks, then we should take the time to test this system to make sure it works instead of trying to convince people, by press release, that it does work.

The missile system has been exempted by the administration from the oversight of the independent Director of Operational Testing, and they have plunged ahead with full-rate production of the program with no independent testing at all. Incredibly, the administration has no plans to ever conduct realistic independent operational tests on this missile defense system. This avoids 20 years of law, practice, and indeed common sense. The politics of deploying a missile defense at any cost prior to the election has trumped any desire to make sure the system actually works and, if history is any guide, will likely result in the waste of a large amount of money to fix the system after it has been deployed.

If we can—and I think we should, indeed, with deliberate speed—deploy a system that is operationally effective, we should do that. But to take a system where the major components haven't even been tested and say it works is being intellectually dishonest and deceptive to the American people.

On August 18, Secretary Rumsfeld described the missile defense deployment as the "triumph of hope and vision over pessimism and skepticism." Actually it is a triumph of best wishes over reality. And hope is not a plan. We found that out in Iraq. Only a system that is rigorously tested, where improvements are made test by test by test, will get us to where we want to go and must be, a system that we are confident will work if it is called upon to defend the country.

Now this lack of testing is not a result of any lack of funds. The administration has lavished funding on this system. The budget request for fiscal year 2005 is $10.2 billion. It is the largest single-year budget request for any weapons program in the history of the United States. For perspective, the fiscal year 2005 budget request for missile defense is more than the Army's total research and development budget for this year. And we know we have an Army engaged in combat, in trying circumstances, that needs to develop new approaches, new sensors for the troops, new observation devices, new ways to deal with insurgencies in built-up areas, new ways to deter and defend against improvised explosive devices. Their budget is a fraction of the budget that is being lavished upon this system. It is twice the budget for the Bureau of Customs and Border Protection in the Department of Homeland Security, and it is nearly twice the Department's allocation for the Coast Guard—two times Coast Guard, two times Customs and Border Protection.

The ultimate costs of this system are unknown because the administration steadfastly refuses to provide to Congress any information on how much missile defense they want to buy and how much it will cost. Recent estimates by the Congressional Budget Office indicate the Bush administration's Missile Defense Program could exceed $100 billion. Nowhere is that $100 billion being factored into ongoing defense budgets as we move forward over the next 5 to 10 years, and it will have to come from somewhere. Again, we need a system, but we have to be honest about how much it will work and how we are going to pay for it. That honesty is not present today.

The other factor—and this is interesting—in contrast to the numbers that are being allocated for the Coast Guard and the Customs Service is that an intercontinental launch against the United States is probably less likely than other means of detonating a weapon of mass destruction in the United States. First of all, there are only two countries that currently have the capability: Russia and China. The Bush administration points—and I think rightfully so—with concern to North Korea. But that country has never successfully launched any missile capable of reaching the United States. Furthermore, North Korea has observed a self-imposed moratorium on long-range missile testing for 6 years since their last test failed in 1998.

But even if North Korea develops such a capacity, why would they launch a missile against the United States? Our early warning satellites will pick up the launch. It will tell us definitely and decisively where it is coming from, and we will retaliate swiftly and with devastating force that will likely destroy that regime. Why would they want to do that, particularly if they could attack us by other means, perhaps concealing a weapon of mass destruction in a container that comes to the United States since only a small percentage are opened?

Again, the budget for the Customs Service and the Border Protection Service is a fraction of what we are spending on this particular threat.

Now, that is not just my conceptual view. In December 2001, the U.S. intelligence community completed an assessment of the foreign ballistic missile threat to this country. The assessment was entitled “Foreign Missile Development and the Ballistic Missile Threat Through 2015.” Their conclusions:

[T]he intelligence community judges that U.S. territory is more likely to be attacked with [weapons of mass destruction] using nonmissile means, primarily because such means: Are less expensive than developing and producing ICBMs; can be covertly developed and employed; the source of the weapon could be masked in an attempt to evade retaliation; it probably would be more reliable than ICBMs that have not completed rigorous testing and validation programs; and probably would be much more accurate than emerging ICBMs over the next 15 years.

This is what the intelligence community said in 2001 looking forward to 2015. Yet since that time, the Bush administration has spent billions of dollars more on the development of this untested, unproven missile defense than it has on protection of our ports and borders where the real threats are likely to come from.

We should be very careful about making sure we take scarce dollars and apply them to the most likely threats. Some have said: Well, don't make those comparisons. We to have defend against every threat. Frankly, the simple contrast between the money we are spending on missile defense versus the Coast Guard and border patrol seems to be directly in contradiction to the intelligence community estimate of what the most likely threat would be. That is not wise policy.

There is also a huge opportunity cost for us. While we are lavishing money on this system, there are other programs—for example, the Department of Energy program called the Global Threat Reduction Initiative—which are not being adequately funded. This Department of Energy program is designed to help secure loose nuclear materials that are around the globe so that terrorists don't get their hands on them. And what is the most vital threat to the United States today? A terrorist group could obtain nuclear materials or a nuclear device, smuggle those materials into the United States, and attack us here. That is what the intelligence community assumes is the most likely threat. Yet we are not going to the source and securing and eliminating the nuclear material that is too abundant in the world.

There is another program that the administration is proposing, which is the airborne laser program, another part of this elaborate construct of missile defenses. The airborne lasers are designed to shoot down ballistic missiles in their first stage as they blast off and start going into space. This program has been plagued by problems throughout, problems which have delayed the program by a year, reduced the laser power by more than half, and have many wondering whether this program is doomed to fail.

By the way, using the same criteria of missile defense—i.e., test failures followed by numerous cancellations—I wonder why the administration doesn't declare the airborne laser operational. It works perhaps as well as our national missile defense.

During the same time the administration has been spending far less on security for our Nation's ports, it has been spending a great deal of money on the airborne laser. The Bush administration's fiscal year 2005 budget proposes a $50 million cut to the 2004 level of U.S. port security funding, the grant funding that we use to help our ports all across this country. Yet there they are still investing extraordinary amounts, almost a half a billion dollars, in the airborne laser. So while it is a risky, possibly doomed program, the money keeps flowing while we do not have adequate resources to protect our ports.

The other aspect of this dilemma is that the administration has never been able to open up this process to a transparent approach, where scientists can look at this data. Of course, we are going to protect the security and the proprietary information here, but they have been overly secretive. And the reason is obvious: it doesn't seem to work, and they don't want that information out as they are getting ready to declare it operational.

They also never really had the opportunity or the will to have realistic tests. All of these tests have been carefully scripted. All of these tests have relied upon nonrealistic scenarios. The incoming missile has a homing beacon on it to help guide the interceptor to it. They don't use realistic decoys, which any country attacking the United States, you would have to assume, would have decoys as well as a real warhead. And there is no element of surprise. A real enemy missile attack would not be scripted, would not have a convenient homing beacon on the target, would likely have realistic decoys and would be a surprise attack.

Frankly, if we had warning of the pending attack, we would take preemptive action immediately, take out the missile on the launch pad.

During the entire time of the Bush administration, there has been essentially no progress made toward the goal of realistic missile defense tests against realistic targets.

An effective missile defense is something we should all work for. But a missile defense that is based upon a press release and not tested is not an effective missile defense. Saying it is operational doesn't make it operational. What makes it operational is rigorous testing under realistic circumstances. This administration has never done that.

I believe we should proceed forward with all deliberate speed to develop and deploy a missile system. I don't think we should allow ourselves to make a political judgment and declare it operational by press release and not validation through testing.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio is recognized.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I rise this afternoon to discuss the FSC bill. Some may view this as a tax bill, and it is; some have called it the American Jobs Creation Act of 2004, and I think that is fair; I am sure it will do that.

But let me say to the Members of the Senate, my colleagues, what this bill could have been, what this bill should have been, and what it was when it left here, when we sent it to the conference committee. What it should have been, what it could have been, what it was was the most important public health bill to be considered by this Congress.

Before the FDA provision to regulate tobacco was stripped out by the conference committee, it was the most important public health bill to be considered by this Congress. It was the most important children's health bill to come before this Congress. Tragically, the conference committee stripped out the FDA provision that would have, for the first time, put the marketing of the sale of tobacco under the same terms and conditions as the sale of every other product in this country. In this bill, which has so many things in it, there just wasn't room, according to the conference committee, for this FDA provision.

This is a sad day for the Congress. This Senate voted on an amendment, 78 to 15, to include the tobacco buyout that helped tobacco farmers, which I supported and continue to support, coupled with, for the first time, having the tobacco controlled like every other product in this country and regulated by the Government. This bill we have in front of us represents a missed opportunity. It is a missed opportunity to help our children, our grandchildren, and the public health. Two thousand children a day in this country start smoking; 400,000 people a year die of tobacco-related diseases. Yet we failed in this bill; we turned our back on this historic opportunity.

I truly believe that in public life, as well as in life as individuals, we are judged not only by what we do, but also by what we fail to do. I think we ultimately are held accountable for what we don't do. So I intend to vote no on this bill. I intend to vote no on cloture because of the failure of the conferees to include this historic provision. We had the opportunity and missed the opportunity to close this loophole in the law, to deal with this anomaly in the law. Every product that comes on the market is regulated. When you walk in the supermarket today and you buy a product, every single product is regulated. The ingredients are on the package. If there is a claim that is made, that has to be substantiated. Every single product, except one, and that product is tobacco—cigarettes and smokeless tobacco; they are exempt. King tobacco is exempt in the law today. That is wrong.

This bill, as we sent it out of the Senate, in the wisdom of the Senate, would have changed that. Yet the conferees stripped out that provision. So we should vote no on cloture and on the conference report.

This was a historic opportunity that will not come again. The coupling of the tobacco buyout and the coupling of the FDA-controlled tobacco—we will not have the opportunity to do that again. This bill, in fact, contained the tobacco buyout. I support that. If this bill passes, the tobacco buyout will be done and we will no longer have the opportunity to couple these together. We will have lost that—let's be candid—political opportunity to put these two together. So we have lost that chance and that opportunity.

A yes vote on this conference report, a yes vote on cloture says it was OK to strip that out. A yes vote says it is OK to turn our backs on our kids once again on this issue. A yes vote says it is OK, the status quo is fine, and business as usual is fine.

How long are we going to tolerate this? How long are we going to say tobacco is different than every other product in this country? How long are we going to say tobacco should not be regulated? How long are we going to say when one goes in and buys products on the market, every other product is regulated, one knows what they are buying but not tobacco? Why should tobacco be different?

Some Members may say, I cannot vote against this bill; there is too much in it. It has too much for my State, too many good things.

There are a lot of good things in there. There are things for my home State of Ohio. There are some things in there that are not that good, but there are some good things in that bill, and I know that.

I have been in politics and Government for 30 years. I have been in the Senate for 10 years. I have cast a lot of votes. When people say, I cannot vote no, when people say I have to do it, I say this to them: I have been in politics for 30 years, and they do not have to do anything. There is nothing that compels anybody to vote any way on any bill. The longer one is doing this, I think the more they realize that.

So I say to my colleagues, they do not have to vote for this bill. They do not have to vote for cloture. There is nothing that compels them to. It is the wrong vote.

Sometimes one has to look at the big picture. Sometimes I think my colleagues have to stand back from what would appear to be the parochial interests and look at the big interests, but I would maintain that if they look at the interests of their State and look at the interests of the people of their State, not to mention the interests of the people of their country, they will come to the conclusion that voting no on the motion on cloture, no on this bill is the right thing to do.

Look at my home State of Ohio. Yes, there are good things in here for Ohio, but I will read to my colleagues the statistics from Ohio. I share them with my colleagues as an example of what their State is probably like as well.

Here are the statistics from the State of Ohio: 22.2 percent of high school students smoke; 12.8 percent of the male high school students use smokeless or spit tobacco. The number of kids under 18 who become new daily smokers each year is 36,800. The number of kids who are exposed—this is all just Ohio, now. The number of kids who are exposed to secondhand smoke at home, 919,000; packs of cigarettes bought or smoked by kids each year in Ohio, 36.3 million; adults in Ohio who smoke, 2,251,000. That is 26.6 percent.

How about deaths from smoking? Adults who die each year from their own smoking, that is 18,900 just in my home State of Ohio. Kids now under 18 and alive in Ohio who will ultimately, if they continue to smoke, die prematurely from smoking, 314,000. Adults, children, and babies who die each year from others' smoking, that is secondhand smoke, is estimated between 1,800 to 3,200.

If we do not care about people, what about dollars and cents? Well, annual health care costs in Ohio directly caused by smoking, $3.41 billion. That is "billion." Portions covered by the State Medicaid program, that is what you and I pay if you are a resident of Ohio, $1.11 billion, and it goes on. Smoking-caused productivity losses in Ohio, that is $4.14 billion; resident State and Federal tax burden from smoking-caused Government expenditures, that is $534 per household.

Those are the figures. I look at this vote and I try to balance the fact that there are some good things that might be in here for my State versus what we could have achieved, what we could have done, and it is a pretty easy choice.

The conference committee had no business scuttling the will of the Senate and throwing out the FDA provision. It was wrong. They should not have done that.

I ask unanimous consent to use a few items in my speech. I am looking at them right now. They are some packages of cigarettes, a macaroni and cheese carton, yogurt, as well as a Sports Illustrated Magazine.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DEWINE. I will explain a little bit to my colleagues what the bill we sent to the conference committee would have done, because I want to explain the gravity of this. I will talk a little bit about the nature of what the tobacco companies can do that nobody else can do.

I will start with macaroni and cheese. We all buy it. If one has kids, they buy it, anyway. We all know what it is. I ask my colleagues, when they go home tonight, to look at the carton of macaroni and cheese and read what is in it. I am not going to bother to read everything that is in it but it has everything. It has calories, salt; then there is a whole long list of enriched macaroni, durum wheat flour, citric acid, sodium phosphate. It goes on and on. The thing one has to do is have pretty good eyes. If one is my age, they have to hold it back a little bit to make sure they can read it well, but it is there, and it can be read. Everything one wants to know, and probably more; every health item in the world.

The same company makes Marlboros. Try to figure out what is in here. If you do not smoke, go buy one, anyway, and take a look at it, or pick it up if you do not want to support the tobacco companies. Take a look. There is nothing on here. There is a Surgeon General warning but there is not a whole lot on here. One cannot tell what is on here.

Do my colleagues know why? Tobacco is exempt. Nobody regulates them. Nobody requires them to list what is in here. The same company: One makes macaroni and cheese and one makes Marlboros. Why? Because it is not in the law. How long are we going to put up with this? It is wrong.

Now I will turn to the claims that cigarettes make. Marlboro Lights, well, that must mean something. I am sure it means something, but we do not know what it means. Yogurt, light yogurt. When you see light yogurt, it means something. When you turn it around, it says one-third fewer calories, and it better be one-third fewer calories. Definable, measurable; it means something. If it is on cigarettes, it doesn't mean anything. It may mean something. I don't know what it means. Again, no Government regulation. Cigarette companies are exempt. A loophole this law would have closed, now they stripped it out and it will not close it now. Tell me that is right. Explain that to the American taxpayer. Explain that to American citizens. Why? No explanation. There is no logic behind that.

How about the claims of cigarettes? "Premium Lights." Again we are back to the "lights." "All of the taste, less of the toxins." The average person who buys cigarettes probably thinks this means something. Maybe it does. Maybe it doesn't. We will never know. We will never know as long as this Congress continues to refuse to regulate the tobacco industry. We will never know. The American consumer will never know whether, when the cigarette companies put claims on here like "all of the taste, less of the toxins," that is really true or whether "less of the toxins" means anything. Most people would think it would. Maybe that is healthier or not as dangerous, but we don't know that and we never will know it until this Congress changes the status quo.

Here is another one. This is Eclipse, "20 Class A cigarettes," it says. Here is what it says on the back, and again who knows if this is true:

Scientific studies show that compared with other cigarettes, Eclipse may present less risk of cancer, bronchitis, and possibly emphysema, reduces secondhand smoke by 80 percent, leaves no lingering odor in hair or clothes.

That is important. Then, of course, they add:

All cigarettes present some health risk, including Eclipse.

That is nice of them to say. Again, how do we know the accuracy of this claim? But again the average consumer picks this up and feels a little better with this. There is nobody to test it, nobody to regulate it.

Some people say: MIKE DEWINE, adults ought to know no cigarette is safe. So buyer beware. Who cares?

I don't think that is the right attitude because I believe some adults do rely on less tar, less this, lighter, and scientific studies have shown that.

But what about kids? It is here that the cigarette companies reach the low point, absolutely the low point where nobody can defend them. I will challenge anybody to come to this floor and defend what they are doing. I have a whole bag of these. This is what they are doing. The cigarettes I am holding in front of me are not focused on a 57-year-old Camel smoker, I will guarantee. I don't see any 57-year-old Camel smokers smoking this stuff.

These are aimed at kids. Let me read it to you:

Camel Mandarin Mint:

A blend of menthol and citrus flavor.

This is Liquid Coconut Flavor, Liquid Zoo:

An exotic blend of coconut flavored tobacco for a sweet, fresh taste and aroma.

Camel Beach Breezer:

Sultry, smooth and swingin'.

Oh, this one, this is the old one, I guess; this is a

Camel Kauai Kolada:

Hawaiian hints of pineapple and coconut.

There we go. It goes on and on.

This is really exotic. This is Mocha Taboo:

Inviting and surprising, Mocha Taboo will entice you with its sweet indulgence, while leaving you with a refreshment that's unmistakably menthol.

And again, Liquid Zoo flavored cigarettes:

An exotic blend of coconut flavored tobacco for a sweet, fresh taste and aroma.

I invite my colleagues, if any Senator wants to, to come up later and actually smell these; it will not permeate the entire Chamber, but if you get close you can smell them. This is something kids would like. This is clearly targeted at kids, and this is what they are selling. Nothing stops them from selling this. This bill would at least stop them from selling this trash. It is not prohibition. But these products are designed for one reason and one reason only—to get kids hooked. It is an entry level drug. You entice them, you get them in, start them on this, and move them to something else. There is no other reason. When we vote for this conference report and condone what the conferees have done, we are saying it is OK to allow this to continue.

This is Sports Illustrated. Any kid in this country who likes sports—I have had a whole household full of them, and I still have one at home—reads Sports Illustrated. This is a new edition, "Smashing In St. Louis." Everybody reads Sports Illustrated. Why should kids be subjected to full-page ads in Sports Illustrated, full-page, color, inviting ads? There it is.

We have tolerated this for too long in this country. I had a Senator, when we were discussing this off the floor, tell me that he didn't trust the FDA. I have had people tell me that. I guess my reaction to that would be, do you trust the people who are trying to hook our kids with this stuff? Do you trust them? Do you want them to continue to try to hook our kids with this stuff? I hope not.

People would say it is too late, this bill is already done. I agree, this bill is done. But we should be sending a message and we should be saying we are not going to tolerate this Senate passing this bill, this FDA reform, sending it on to the House, and then having it stripped out of this conference report. It is too serious an issue. It is too important.

I am not the only one who feels that this is a public health vote of immense importance. I have a letter from the American Lung Association dated October 7. I would like to read it in part:

DEAR SENATOR DEWINE: How can the Congress give $10 billion to tobacco growers without requiring anyone to exit the tobacco farming business and fail to do anything for public health? This is unconscionable.

Over 440,000 people die prematurely from tobacco-related illness each year and two thousand children become addicted regular smokers every day. Nearly 90 percent of lung cancer and 80 to 90 percent of emphysema and chronic bronchitis are caused by tobacco use. Despite this deadly assault on lung health, tobacco products are the most unregulated consumer products on the market today....

Please implore your colleagues to change course and include the FDA oversight of tobacco in the FSC bill.

Tobacco companies continue to aggressively market their products to our children, cynically targeting "replacement smokers" for those who die or quit smoking. New flavored cigarettes including R.J. Reynolds' Camel Exotic Blends Kauai Koloda with "Hawaiian hints of pineapple and coconut" and Kool Caribbean Chill and Mocha Taboo are aimed at young people. The tobacco companies make health claims of "reduced carcinogens" or "less toxins" without any oversight of the veracity of the statements or their impact on health.

FDA regulation of tobacco would:

Ban flavored cigarettes.

Stop illegal sales of tobacco products to children and adolescents.

Require changes in tobacco products, such as the reduction or elimination of harmful chemicals, to make them less harmful or less addictive.

Restrict advertising and promotions that appeal to children and adolescents.

That was from the American Lung Association.

This is a letter from the American Thoracic Society:

DEAR SENATOR DEWINE: Congress is about to give the Big Tobacco the one thing they want, continued access to the most attractive market for their deadly products—our children. Don't let Big Tobacco continue to peddle their products to our children.

The best way to protect our nation's children from the continuing disease and addiction caused by Big Tobacco and their deadly products is by granting the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) the authority to regulate tobacco.

The bipartisan compromise reached in the Senate FSC bill would have granted the FDA the authority needed to regulate tobacco and reduce underage smoking throughout America. Unfortunately, during conference the supporters of Big Tobacco struck the one provision that would have given our children a fighting chance against the pervasive marketing power of tobacco companies.

If Congress fails to give FDA the authority to regulate tobacco, our children will pay the price. Children will pay the price through a lifetime of addiction to tobacco products. Children will pay through the diseases associated with tobacco addiction—lung disease, heart disease and cancer. Children will pay the price, literally, with their lives.

Here is another letter from the Ohio Children's Hospital Association:

DEAR SENATOR DEWINE: I write today to express the terrible disappointment felt among Ohio's children's hospitals that Congress has lost an opportunity to protect the health of America's children. This is a shameful waste of a rare opportunity to take the bold action needed to reduce a staggeringly dangerous health risk that hurts kids and increases the cost of health care.

Ohio has been working hard to reduce youth smoking, and children's hospitals have long been at the frontlines of this battle to protect our children from the devastating tool that tobacco exacts. But, for every step forward we take (youth smoking in Ohio is down recently), we face a barrage of new and cunning attempts by the tobacco industry to regain its foothold with Ohio's children. The tobacco industry is spending more than ever to market its products in ways that appeal to children. As a depressing example, we now face the prospect of candy-flavored cigarettes.

Across the country, every day 2,000 more children become regular smokers, one-third of whom will die prematurely as a result.

FDA regulation of tobacco products represents the best tool for combating the tobacco industry's reckless assault on our children's health. We need the FDA to have the authority to subject tobacco products to the same rigorous standards we impose on other consumer products, including ingredient disclosure, truthful packaging and advertising, and manufacturing controls.

Here is a letter from the American Heart Association:

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE U.S. SENATE: On behalf of the American Heart Association's 22.5 million volunteers and advocates, I write you to express our deep dismay over the Foreign Sales Corporation (FSC) conference vote that failed to grant the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) authority to regulate tobacco products. This represents a squandered opportunity to protect the public against dangerous tobacco products, a failure to protect our children from the marketing of tobacco products, and also the adoption of the wrong tobacco buyout plan. How can Congress explain such neglect for our nation's health?

Tobacco use is responsible for more than 440,000 deaths each year, with more than one in three from heart disease or stroke. Each day, 4,000 youth try their first cigarette and 2,000 become regular daily smokers. This FDA legislation offered our best chance to reverse that trend and reduce the senseless death and disease that results from tobacco use.

Finally, a letter from Campaign for Tobacco-Free Kids:

DEAR SENATOR DEWINE: We were profoundly disappointed by yesterday's decision by the House/Senate conference on the FSC legislation not to include provisions establishing FDA regulation of tobacco products. An historic opportunity to protect the Nation's children and the nation's health was lost.

Enacting FDA regulation of tobacco products is the single most important thing Congress could do to reduce cancer, heart disease, emphysema, chronic bronchitis and a host of other diseases. It is the single most important thing Congress could do to improve the health of our children and protect our children from unscrupulous marketing by an industry that produces a product that kills one out of two long-term users. Close to 90 percent of all tobacco users start as children. First and foremost, it is our children who were ignored and who are the big losers by the decision not to include FDA in the FSC/ETI legislation.

The tragedy is not only that an opportunity to prevent disease has slipped through our fingers, but also that literally hundreds of thousands, if not millions of kids, one addicted, eventually will die of these tobaccorelated diseases. And these deaths will be needless. They will occur because of the actions of the House/Senate Conferees who failed to include FDA in the original Conference draft and who voted not to add it to the final bill. Tobacco use is also a leading cause of premature birth. If Congress had given FDA authority over tobacco products, Congress could have dramatically reduced the number of children born prematurely with serious medical programs due to tobacco use.

Rarely does Congress have the opportunity to take an action that will improve the lives and well being of millions of Americans. This was such an opportunity. Tobacco companies market candy flavored cigarettes, promote their products in a myriad of ways that make them more appealing to children, hide the truth about the dangers of their products and fail to take even the most minimal steps to reduce the number of Americans who die from tobacco use. By the decision not to include the FDA provisions adopted overwhelmingly by the Senate in this bill, Congress is doing nothing to stop them.

Yesterday's vote by the FSA conference committee against FDA authority over tobacco is a big victory for the tobacco industry that will carry a heavy price in lives lost and kids addicted to tobacco. The Nation will also pay a price in growing cynicism about government when Congress appears willing to trade tax breaks for kid's lives. We urge all Senators and Members of Congress to oppose the FSC Conference Report until the FDA provisions are included.

In conclusion, I think if you gave the average American a list, maybe if you give them a quiz and you said here is a list of macaroni and cheese, peanut butter, granola bars, milk, cheese, cigarettes, bottled water, and asked them to check which one of these products the Government does not regulate, check which one of these products the maker of the product doesn't have to list the ingredients, which one of these products was not tested, which one of these products the maker of the product can put a claim on and not have to substantiate, which one will the average American pick?

You would think they would pick the one product that by design or if it is used as intended, admittedly we all know is dangerous to your health.

I don't think so. It defies common sense. No one in their right mind would pick that product. No one in their right mind, if we were starting all over again, would say, That is the product we are not going to regulate; we are not going to list the ingredients on that product; that is the worst product we are going to allow the manufacturer to make any claim they want—lighter, better, safer, whatever they want to say. Yet that is the status of the law today.

By approving this conference report and by saying, yes, we are going to move forward with it—that will be the vote tomorrow—we are acquiescing in that. We are saying it is OK to give up the opportunity we had, the best shot we have had in years to change the status quo and to say we are not going to tolerate this anymore; we are not going to put up with this anymore. The time is here to change that. It defies common sense.

There are historic votes in this Chamber. This is a historic vote. This is a historic time. This was a historic opportunity to make a difference and to change things.

I often think, as a public official and as an American, we do not want to be on the wrong side of history. We all have our own list of things that if we were here or if we were involved in this debate 10 years, 20 years ago, 50 years ago, 100 years ago we would not have wanted to be on a particular side. I don't want to be overly dramatic, but Members do not want to be on the wrong side of this debate. We may lose this time, but there will be a day when the American people rise up and say they have had enough, and this Congress hears it and this Congress takes votes to finally regulate this product, as we do every other product, and finally say we have had enough. We are going to make the tobacco companies list what is in the product, list the ingredients, come clean with the American people and say, This is what is in it, and hold them to the same standard we hold for a company that makes peanut butter, macaroni and cheese, a granola bar, a bottle of water or milk. They should not be above the law.

Someday that will happen. I say to my colleagues, that day will come. That day may not be this session of Congress, but it will come. People do want to be on the right side of history. We will regulate them. We will bring them into the mainstream.

This is a very dangerous product. We are not going to go to prohibition. That has not worked in this country. It did not work with alcohol, and it will not work with cigarettes. That is not what this debate is about. This debate is about common sense, about doing what is rational, about doing something that makes good common sense.

I conclude by urging my colleagues to vote no on this bill, to vote no on cloture, to send a message strongly and loudly that we have had enough, and it is time to bring tobacco into the mainstream of the law. No longer should they be outside the law. A "no" vote tomorrow is a vote for safety and the health of our kids. It is a vote for the safety and the health of the American people.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, the hour is late in the afternoon on a Saturday, and I know there are many different matters of interest, primarily sports taking place across this country at the universities and high schools across our Nation. Young people are out there, parents are out there, families are out there, but I hope there are some who had the good opportunity to listen to my friend and colleague from Ohio State who spoke so clearly and eloquently as to what the real challenge is for this institution, the Senate, in protecting the children of this Nation.

The Senator laid out the kind of persuasive and irrefutable case that helped gain 78 Members of the Senate who supported the DeWine-Kennedy proposal earlier this last month, but the amendment was dropped, as the Senator from Ohio pointed out, in the course of the consideration of the underlying legislation.

There are public leaders who are talking about children all over this country. They talk about children being our future. They are our future. As the Senator from Ohio points out, we have missed the golden opportunity to make an extraordinary difference in the lives of their children and families.

We hear a great deal, as we should, about family values. This legislation is as much a part of family values as we could have, to the extent that legislation is bound in family values. We know that basically family values start with parents, work through their children's relationship with each other and their parents, and their own common sense about their responsibilities as young people for themselves and for their families and for others. Family values involves caring about what happens not only to our children and our immediate families but also to children whose lives we can impact.

This legislation which was supported by the overwhelming majority of this Senate, could make such an extraordinary difference to children today, tomorrow, and to the future. As has been pointed out, we have missed that extraordinary opportunity.

For that reason and for other reasons which I will outline briefly in a few moments, I intend to vote no on the conference report and no on cloture.

This country has had a very full education about the dangers of smoking. I can remember the 1964 Surgeon General's report that talked about the dangers of smoking and youth. That was a wake-up call to parents all across this country. Then we had Surgeon General Koop, who was an extraordinary Surgeon General.

Last night the President of the United States was asked about any mistakes he might have made in public life, and we did not hear any. I freely admit one of the important mistakes I made was voting against Everett Koop to be Surgeon General because we saw through his life and through his commitment not only as the Surgeon General but afterwards, as well, that once he made that judgment that cigarettes were addictive and cancerous, he spent a great part of his life educating families all across this country. This Nation owes a great deal to his work and his commitment and his education to families.

That was a wake-up call for America. We went on through the period of the 1980s when we had Dr. Kessler, head of the FDA, who drafted the regulations which were circumvented by the tobacco industry, and put aside those regulations that were the result of hours and hours and hours and hours and weeks and weeks and weeks, and days and days and days and months and months and months of careful, scientific testimony, those for and against it.

Nonetheless, he came through with outstanding recommendations. We incorporated those recommendations as a point of reference to put them into effect because they have been tried and tested and they should have been put into effect to provide the protections for the young children of this country.

Then we had—I can remember, and I bet most families can remember—that extraordinary day when we had the presidents of all the important tobacco companies who testified in front of my friend and an extraordinary Congressman, HENRY WAXMAN, who all raised their hands and swore—swore—to the Lord on high that they, as the chief executives of the tobacco companies, did not believe cigarettes were addictive and did not believe they were dangerous to your health, in complete conflict with all the evidentiary science at that time.

Well, we heard so many of them recant that testimony later. It has all been part of a parade, a parade of distortion and misrepresentation by the tobacco companies and their representatives to not the older members of our society but to the children in our society in order to bring them in and start them smoking and get them on the path to addiction.

I have been fortunate to be the chairman of the Health Committee in the Senate. I am ranking member now. How many days, how many weeks, how many months of hearings we have had about the problems young people have with their addiction, their attachment to dangerous drugs. Cigarettes are right up there. As the science would say, they are as addictive as heroin and cocaine. That is the science. That is not just an opinion of the Senator from Massachusetts, that is the science. It is as addictive as cocaine and heroin, yet we allow that to take place.

Then we had the comprehensive legislation in 1998 to try to deal with a range of different tobacco issues. The basic core part of the DeWine-Kennedy legislation on FDA was here before the Senate essentially at that time for 6 weeks and no one contested its importance. Go back and read the record. No one really questioned that if we were going to have a comprehensive tobacco bill at that time that particular provision deserved at least support. There were no amendments on that, none. All these voices now: Oh, well, we can't have the FDA, absolutely not. We don't need more regulation—we did not have a single amendment on that, none; no amendments.

I had the good opportunity to effectively reintroduce that legislation with the majority leader, Senator FRIST, who did so much in the drafting of the original legislation, one of the important leaders in this body on health care policy. This provision is basically very mainstream, if that gives assurance to some people. It is a very mainstream proposal, but it does the job in terms of protection.

So we had this proposal that was considered in the Senate, and was accepted, that would make such an extraordinary difference. As I was mentioning, the very simple fact is, this product, which is so addictive, so dangerous to the children of this country, not only to the children themselves but also to their families, is something that we should have addressed.

But this administration and, quite frankly, the leadership on that Ways and Means Committee, our Republican leadership, said: Absolutely not. We are not going to tolerate it. We are not going to accept it. We will not let it happen. And it did not.

I pay respect to my colleagues on the other side of the aisle because the progress that we made has not been just a partisan effort. The good Senator from Ohio has been a leader. There have been many. The Senator from Oregon, Mr. SMITH; the Senator from Maine, OLYMPIA SNOWE; JOHN MCCAIN from Arizona; ORRIN HATCH from Utah; Senator CHAFEE from Rhode Island; and many others have been willing to stand on this issue. This has not been a Republican or Democratic issue. But this administration has made a different judgment than those good Republicans who supported this effort in here and also a number of them supported us in the conference.

There has to be responsibility. There should be some accountability around here somewhere. We are elected as officials. We make judgments, we make choices, and we ought to be held accountable for them. That was a decision that was made by the administration not to include it. If this administration said to include it, it would be in that bill tomorrow when we vote on it on the floor of the Senate. We had the support of some of the tobacco industries, with the Philip Morris industry.

Tomorrow, when the Senate addresses the underlying legislation, we are also going to voice vote and send back to the House of Representatives the DeWine-Kennedy FDA legislation. The Senate will pass that. We will send it back to the House. We have not given up hope.

Senator DEWINE and I have not given up hope that perhaps in some lameduck Congress, perhaps when the glare of the campaign in the last 4 weeks of the campaign—I would have thought it would have been a pretty good issue because people, parents, care about this, to indicate support for it. But, in any event, perhaps after the glare of the campaign is over, in a postcampaign time, when we meet, perhaps we can get a different reaction. So we take some hope and we want to give the assurance to those who have given us strong support that we are not giving up and we are not giving in.

Mr. President, I have a few letters that I will mention, and then there are a few final items I want to talk about. We have a detailed presentation on exactly what this legislation does. I want to make sure that is in this part of the RECORD. I ask unanimous consent that be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

I started smoking when I was 12 years old. My mother smoked, and my friends told me it would make me "cool." Since my mother was always at the hospital with my father, helping him while he was losing his battle against cancer, there was no one around to notice that I had begun smoking. That was in 1973. I smoked until Jan. 1, 1990, when I was 28 years old, and I have been smoke-free for almost 14 years. Quitting was probably the hardest thing I have ever done, but it was definitely the smartest. My mother smoked until she got diagnosed with lung cancer in 1994, which is also the year her only grandchild was born. They removed part of her lung, and since she believed she had "beat" the cancer, she began smoking again. Five years and five CT scans later, they found another tumor in her lung, this time inoperable and supposedly untreatable. The doctors gave her six to ten months to live. Knowing how short her time was, 1999 turned out to be an extremely painful year for all of us. Over the next four years, my mother suffered terribly, often unable to eat and using a stomach tube, constantly taking medication and losing lucidity, often too tired and too weak to be with her little granddaughter, whom she completely adored. We watched her waste away to 80 pounds, the cancer having invaded her bones, causing her to fall, taking away her independence, which she always valued highly. She died on April 21, 2003, the day after Easter, at only 67 years old. She was my best friend, and my daughter's, too. I miss our daily phone calls, and I will miss her warm, inviting presence this holiday season, as I do every single day. My 9 year-old daughter has seen what horror cigarettes can cause; I doubt that she will ever forget that cigarettes took her "Nonni" away from her, but she is coming to the age where social pressures will be on her to conform to the "crowd." I hope that she will be strong, and that there will be enough education in her school to help her to learn how to deal with people who try to coerce her into using this drug, among others. Thank you for allowing me to share my story.—Lorraine T., Ipswich MA, November 10, 2003.

My father never liked to dance much. Yet, as we stood hugging, watching my best friend dance with her father at her wedding, Dad promised to dance with me at my wedding.

At age 39, he had a stroke that left him paralyzed on his left side. He was able to regain most of the use of his limbs through years of hard work. Unfortunately, he wasn't able to quit his addiction to cigarettes.

One month before his 50th birthday, he died from a tobacco related heart attack. He didn't live to fulfill his promise to dance with me at my wedding.—Donna M., Melrose MA, January 12, 2004.

Today is like every other day I miss my mom so much. I look at my kids and realize "nanny" is not here to see how cute they have become. I am a only child and lost my mom 3 years ago to lung cancer. I can remember the moment the doctor told me she was going to die, and in the same breath she said "I truly believe what the tobacco companies are getting away with is criminal." I have from that day on not been able to understand why they are allowed to sell something that has killed so many, and is going to kill so many more. It is heartbreaking to see a young teen smoking. Sometimes I say something, yes they think I'm crazy. However there life to me is so precious. No I may not know them, but I wish they would listen. If they saw their mom or dad gasping for breath, if they saw their moms pelvic bones vividly sticking out would this change their minds and make them want to quit? I hope so, I don't want any more families to feel this pain and utter loneliness that I have had to endure. My children are the ones who get me through the bad days. They warm my heart taking away the sadness. I have taught them early on how bad and deadly tobacco is, and they also know that's why "nanny" is no longer here, and how much she loved them! Thank you.—Linda F., Middleboro MA, September 23, 2003.

In November 2002 we learned that my mother, Gloria, had stage four lung cancer. What started as pain in her hip and was explained away as arthritis pain was actually bone cancer—yes, it had already spread from her lungs before she knew she even had it. Mom had quit smoking what seems like a very long time ago . . . yet, it came back to haunt us.

She fought a fight I never knew she had in her. An agonizing fight that I hope her story will prevent someone—or many someones—from ever having to fight. She lost all of the weight she had struggled to lose most of her adult life. She lost her hair. She lost her appetite. She lost sleep. She lost her freedom—unable to get around without pain, unable to drive, often unable to be alone. There were so many things that she lost . . . too many to mention.

But, what she did not lose was her faith. And it was her faith that carried her through those long months.

Mom fought for a year. She fought to the end. She died last October with one regret. That she would not live to see her new Granddaughter.

Her Granddaughter was born 8 months and 23 days after Mom passed away. She is now 4 weeks old (today!) and it is my hope that she will never breathe someone's secondhand smoke. That she will never have a friend who takes up smoking. And that she will never have to watch someone she loves die from such a horrible, preventable thing as lung cancer. I will share Mom's picture with all of the children I know. I will show them her smiling face. . . . even at the end when she smiled because she knew that she was going to be going home soon. And I will tell them of how much she loved children. And how she never, never wants to hear that they have taken up smoking. I will tell them that the reason she is so thin in the picture is because she was sick. I will show them the pictures when she had lost most of her hair. I will tell them how much I miss her. And I will make them promise me—and Mom—that they will never, never smoke or be around anyone who is smoking. I LOVE YOU MOM!—Sarah Z., South Easton MA, October 4, 2004.

I have now been a smoker for over 8 years. I am only 24 years old. I already have a severe smokers cough that only gets worse with the cold weather. I live in New England. I sometimes read the side of the packs with the Surgeon Generals warnings. They say that smoking can cause babies to be low birth weight. Well two years ago I had a daughter. I did not smoke all the time when I was pregnant but I guess you still could have called me a smoker. My daughter was 8 pounds she was definitely not under-weight. Now don't get me wrong I am not saying this to be proud. Every time I look at her I wonder if I did any other damage to her. I am so ashamed of myself. Yet right now I am dying for a smoke. This is such an addiction I don't think that I will ever overcome it, I want to and God knows how I have tried. I want to be around when my daughter grows-up, to see her get married and to see any future grandchildren I might have. If I keep up this way I am not going to see any of it, it is so depressing.

Well the only thing I can say is that if there were stricter regulations when I was a minor I probably never would have started smoking. I know that sounds cliché but you can't miss something you never had . . . now I have had it and I cannot go without it. I feel like a junkie even though I am not. I will be scorned by the non-smoking community. I will be the pariah for the smokers. I only wish that I could quit.

I hope someone will not smoke once reading this . . . but then again I am only one person . . . barely able to make a difference. Maybe just once before it's too late. Just to quit for my little daughters sake . . . she does need to know . . . mommy cares what she thinks.—Tori H., South Boston MA, November 12, 2003.

(Mr. WARNER assumed the Chair.)

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, here is a letter from Lorraine T. from Ipswich, MA. I will include the whole letter, but I will just read parts of it:

The letters go on, and they make the case. If there are any who think this is a partisan issue, look at what the Bush administration's Department of Justice filed in the final proposed findings of fact of the United States in the tobacco litigation brought by the Federal Government against tobacco companies.

This is the current administration's finding, page 21: Cigarette smoking, particularly that begun by young people, continues to be the leading cause of preventable disease and premature mortality in the United States. For children and adolescents, one out of three will die of smoking-related disease. As part of a scheme to defraud, defendants have intentionally marketed cigarettes to youth under the legal smoking age and falsely denied that they have done so.

We could go on. I have their brief notes right here about what is happening. These are the statistics in terms of the young people who get started smoking. It begins early. When adults who are daily smokers began smoking: 89 percent by the age of 18; 62 percent by the age of 16; 37 percent by the age of 14; and 16 percent by the age of 12.

You can ask why. Well, just look at this chart. This is advertising in billions of dollars. These are billions of dollars of advertising and how this has gone up and has continued in 2003 and 2004. That is targeted, as these various ads demonstrate: Winston, three young people out in the surf with a surfboard. The sun is setting. Additive free. Naturally smooth. Leave the bull behind, just pick up a Winston.

This is from Elle magazine, all targeted toward young people: Camel, Turkish blends. And there you see the advertisement, all focused on the youth.

Here is Rolling Stone: Stir the senses, Salem. All to appeal to the young people.

And it has great success because, like any narcotic, you get them hooked at that age, and it is very difficult to stop.

My friend from Ohio mentioned the costs for the taxpayers as well. We are motivated because of our concern for the children and children's health and the family's health. But if that doesn't move you, just look at the annual cost in the United States: the Medicaid payments, $23 billion; $20 billion in Medicare payments; other Federal payments, $8 billion; smoking during pregnancy, $4 billion; total health cost, $75 billion. And if you add lost productivity to that, you are talking over $150 billion a year in direct costs to the American taxpayer.

This makes sense, obviously, and is the most important for the children so they aren't going to be addicted and their health is going to be protected. It is for the other members of the families as well so that those young people who are eventually going to be parents are going to be protected. But if that doesn't get you and the pocketbook issues don't get you, you can see that you are paying billions and billions of dollars.

These are the conclusions about the activities of tobacco companies even by this Justice Department.

This is why this is so important and an opportunity missed.

Let me conclude on this subject by referring to the letters of support we received from some groups:

Dear Senator KENNEDY, Congress has an historic opportunity to embrace responsible legislation that will help to reduce suffering and death caused by the tobacco. The House-Senate conferees should include the DeWine-Kennedy language. On July 15, the U.S. Senate took an unprecedented step towards granting the Food and Drug Administration effective authority. The Senate passed the DeWine amendment. The overwhelmingly bipartisan amendment linked the FDA with the tobacco buyout. Our organizations view this approach as critical to accomplishing our goal, securing FDA authority over tobacco products. Tobacco use kills more than 400,000 Americans each year. Across our Nation, more than $75 billion in health costs and, according to the Centers for Disease Control, tobacco use by pregnant women alone costs $400 million to $500 million. And every day another 2,000 children become regular smokers. A third will die prematurely as a result. Now we have an opportunity to do something about it. Yet tobacco products are virtually unregulated. For decades the tobacco companies have marketed to our children, deceived consumers about the harm their products caused, and failed to take any meaningful steps to make their products less harmful. The DeWine-Kennedy language would finally end the special protection enjoyed by the tobacco industry to protect our children and the Nation's health. This legislation meets the standards long established by the public health community for a strong FDA regulation bill that protects the public health. It would give the FDA the necessary tools and resources to effectively regulate the manufacture, marketing, labeling, distribution and sale of tobacco products.

Then it continues:

The public health community worked in good faith to achieve this much-needed bipartisan legislation that protects the public health and can be enacted in this session. We remain concerned that opponents of an effective FDA will seek to weaken the provision prior to final passage. Our organization will work. Please support.

Those include the American Academy of Family Physicians, American Academy of Nurse Practitioners, American Academy of Pediatrics, American College of Cardiology, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, American College of Physicians, American College of Preventive Medicine, American Heart Association, American Lung Association, the Medical Association, American Women's Medical Association, the Public Health Association, the School Health Association, the Children's Defense Fund, and the Campaign for Tobacco Free Kids.

I thank them in particular.

The FSC conference report that we are being asked to consider ignores fundamental issues that broad bipartisan majorities of the Senate have strongly supported. On vital matters concerning the protection of children's health, preserving the overtime rights of workers, and defending American jobs from outsourcing to foreign lands, the cynical actions of a few have blocked the will of the majority.

The House conferees were more interested in protecting big tobacco companies' profits than they were in protecting children. They would rather create tax incentives for multinational corporations to move millions of American jobs overseas than save millions of our kids from a lifetime of addiction and premature death.

We were not the ones who chose to link tobacco issues to this tax bill. That was a decision made by the House Republican leadership. But it is absolutely irresponsible to address a quota buyout for tobacco farmers, as this conference report does, while ignoring the urgent need for FDA authority to prevent cigarette companies from entrapping our kids. The conferees have left us no choice but to oppose passage of this conference report.

The importance to our children of authorizing the FDA to regulate tobacco products cannot be overstated. Smoking is the number one preventable cause of death in America. It kills well over 400,000 Americans each year, and nearly all of them started smoking as children. They are seduced by the tobacco companies before they are mature enough to recognize the enormous health risks of smoking, and become addicted while still teenagers.

We feel so strongly about this issue because FDA authority is the most important legislation Congress can pass to protect our children from the number one preventable cause of death in America—smoking. We cannot in good conscience allow the Federal agency most responsible for protecting the public health to remain powerless to deal with the enormous health risks of cigarettes.

The stakes are vast. Each day, 5,000 children try their first cigarette. Two thousand of them will become daily smokers, and nearly a thousand will die prematurely from tobacco-induced diseases. The fact is that more than 90 percent of adult smokers began smoking as teenagers.

Smoking can cause lifelong dreams to go up in smoke. Smoking can mean your hopes for an active life—of hikes with your children, and bike riding and long walks—are beyond your reach. You simply don't have the lung capacity and the stamina to do what you wish you could do. It can mean that your hope of enjoying your grandchildren and appreciating your retirement are gone, as you suffer from tobacco-induced disease and an early death. The most recent studies document the fact that smokers, on average, die 10 years earlier than non-smokers. That is what can happen to your lifestyle when you start smoking as a teenager.

How many addicted smokers today are glad to be smoking? How many Americans with smoking-induced lung cancer or emphysema are glad to be smokers? How many addicted smokers can look their children and grandchildren in the eyes and say they are proud to smoke cigarettes. How many wish they could easily put out that last cigarette, and never look back? I think we all know the answers to these questions. That is why this issue is so important.

The Senate amendment which passed with the support of 78 Members set forth a fair and balanced approach to FDA regulation. It created a new section in FDA jurisdiction for the regulation of tobacco products, with standards that allow for consideration of the unique issues raised by tobacco use. It was sensitive to the concerns of tobacco farmers, small businesses, and nicotine-dependent smokers. But, it clearly gave FDA the authority it needs in order to prevent youth smoking and to reduce addiction to this highly lethal product.

The Senate amendment also provided financial relief for hard-pressed tobacco farmers, much more generous relief than is contained in the conference report. It incorporated bipartisan legislation introduced by thirteen tobacco-state Senators led by Senator MCCONNELL, to buy back tobacco quota from farmers. It would have provided $12 billion to financially vulnerable tobacco farmers and tobacco communities. The money to fund the buyout would come from an assessment on tobacco companies. This proposal was a legitimate buyout plan designed by tobacco-state members for the benefit of their tobacco farming constituents. Instead, the House designed proposal in the conference report forces tobacco farmers to settle for more than $2 billion less than they would have received if the Senate proposal had been accepted. For example, it will pay North Carolina farmers $800 million less than the Senate amendment. It will pay Kentucky farmers $500 million less. That is a very substantial difference. For small farmers who actually tend the land themselves, it is a 25 percent cut in what they will receive. So in reality, the farmers are losers too. Only the tobacco companies who will pay billions less are winners.

The heart of the Senate amendment was the FDA provision—which would lead to fewer children starting to smoke, and to fewer adults suffering with tobacco-induced disease and now that provision is gone. Public health groups told us it was the most important legislation we could pass to deal with the nation's number one health hazard.

We must deal firmly with tobacco company marketing practices that target children and mislead the public. The Food and Drug Administration needs broad authority to regulate the sale, distribution, and advertising of cigarettes and smokeless tobacco. The tobacco industry currently spends over eleven billion dollars a year to promote its products. The amount has actually grown dramatically since the Master Settlement Agreement was signed.

Much of that money is spent in ways designed to tempt children to start smoking, before they are mature enough to appreciate the enormity of the health risk. The industry knows that 90 percent of smokers begin as children and are addicted by the time they reach adulthood.

Documents obtained from tobacco companies prove, in the companies' own words, the magnitude of the industry's efforts to trap children into dependency on their deadly product. Recent studies by the Institute of Medicine and the Centers for Disease Control show the substantial role of industry advertising in decisions by young people to use tobacco products.

If we are serious about reducing youth smoking, FDA must have the power to prevent industry advertising designed to appeal to children wherever it will be seen by children. The Senate-passed legislation would give FDA the ability to stop tobacco advertising which glamorizes smoking from appearing where it will be seen by significant numbers of children. It grants

FDA full authority to regulate tobacco advertising "consistent with and to the full extent permitted by the First Amendment."

FDA authority must also extend to the sale of tobacco products. Nearly every State makes it illegal to sell cigarettes to children under 18, but surveys show that those laws are rarely enforced and frequently violated. FDA must have the power to limit the sale of cigarettes to face-to-face transactions in which the age of the purchaser can be verified by identification. This means an end to self-service displays and vending machine sales, except in adult-only facilities. There must also be serious enforcement efforts with real penalties for those caught selling tobacco products to children. This is the only way to ensure that children under 18 are not able to buy cigarettes.

The FDA conducted the longest rulemaking proceeding in its history, studying which regulations would most effectively reduce the number of children who smoke. Seven hundred thousand public comments were received in the course of that rulemaking. At the conclusion of its proceeding, the Agency promulgated rules on the manner in which cigarettes are advertised and sold. Due to litigation, most of those regulations were never implemented. If we are serious about curbing youth smoking as much as possible, as soon as possible; it makes no sense to require FDA to reinvent the wheel by conducting a new multi-year rulemaking process on the same issues. The Senate legislation would give the youth access and advertising restrictions already developed by FDA the immediate force of law, as if they had been issued under the new statute.

The legislation also provides for stronger warnings on all cigarette and smokeless tobacco packages, and in all print advertisements. These warnings will be more explicit in their description of the medical problems which can result from tobacco use. The FDA is given the authority to change the text of these warning labels periodically, to keep their impact strong.

Nicotine in cigarettes is highly addictive. Medical experts say that it is as addictive as heroin or cocaine. Yet for decades, tobacco companies have vehemently denied the addictiveness of their products. No one can forget the parade of tobacco executives who testified under oath before Congress that smoking cigarettes is not addictive. Overwhelming evidence in industry documents obtained through the discovery process proves that the companies not only knew of this addictiveness for decades, but actually relied on it as the basis for their marketing strategy. As we now know, cigarette manufacturers chemically manipulated the nicotine in their products to make it even more addictive.

The tobacco industry has a long, dishonorable history of providing misleading information about the health consequences of smoking. These companies have repeatedly sought to characterize their products as far less hazardous than they are. They made minor innovations in product design seem far more significant for the health of the user than they actually were. It is essential that FDA have clear and unambiguous authority to prevent such misrepresentations in the future. The largest disinformation campaign in the history of the corporate world must end.

Given the addictiveness of tobacco products, it is essential that the FDA have the authority to effectively regulate them for the protection of the public health. Over 40 million Americans are currently addicted to cigarettes. No responsible public health official believes that cigarettes should be banned. A ban would leave forty million people without a way to satisfy their drug dependency. FDA should be able to take the necessary steps to help addicted smokers overcome their addiction, and to make the product less toxic for smokers who are unable or unwilling to stop. To do so, FDA must have the authority to reduce or remove hazardous ingredients from cigarettes, to the extent that it becomes scientifically feasible. The inherent risk in smoking should not be unnecessarily compounded.

Recent statements by several tobacco companies make clear that they plan to develop what they characterize as "reduced risk" cigarettes. The Senate legislation would require manufacturers to submit such "reduced risk" products to the FDA for analysis before they can be marketed. No health-related claims would be permitted until they have been verified to the FDA's satisfaction. These safeguards are essential to prevent deceptive industry marketing campaigns, which could lull the public into a false sense of health safety.

Tobacco use kills more Americans every year than AIDS, alcohol, car accidents, murders, suicides and fires combined. Nearly 90 percent of lung cancer cases, nearly 1 in 3 cancer deaths, and 1 in 5 deaths from heart disease are tobacco-related. Tobacco use results in $75 billion in annual health care costs and $157 billion in total cost. Unfortunately, smoking will remain the number one preventable cause of death in America until Congress is willing to do what it takes to bring this health crisis under control. Congress must vest FDA not only with the responsibility for regulating tobacco products, but with full authority to do the job effectively.

The Senate legislation would give the FDA the legal authority it needs—to reduce youth smoking by preventing tobacco advertising which targets children—to prevent the sale of tobacco products to minors—to help smokers overcome their addiction—to make tobacco products less toxic for those who continue to use them—and to prevent the tobacco industry from misleading the public about the dangers of smoking.

If the conference report is approved in its current form, we will have lost a golden opportunity to address this critical health issue. Congress will have put the well-being of our children last, behind a long parade of special interests clamoring for their tax breaks. It is not enough to just pay lip service to what is right for our children. You have got to be willing to fight for their health and their future. You have to make it a top priority.

While we are extremely disappointed that FDA authority over tobacco products is not in the conference report, this legislation will, I am confident, become law in the not too distant future. It is clearly an idea whose time has come. It passed the Senate on a strong bipartisan vote last summer. I am very pleased that the Senate has agreed to pass a freestanding FDA bill this weekend and send it to the House as a reaffirmation of our support. It is a powerful statement of this body's commitment to protecting the health of our children, and seeing this legislation through to enactment. The battle goes on, and we will prevail.

They have been spectacular spokespersons for children and children's health and we are indebted to that organization.

The list goes on. There are 68 March of Dimes organizations. Every organization in public health is behind this proposal.

Mr. President, I thank my good friend from Ohio. I join him in letting families know we are not going to let up, give up, or give in. This was a very reasonable measure, a reasonable response. As he has pointed out, it is the most important public health legislation this Congress, or any recent Congress up to the Congress of 7 years ago, when we passed the CHIP program, with the difference this would make in terms of children and children's health. We missed this opportunity. We are not giving up and we are not giving in. We want to let those who are opposed to us know we are coming at them and we are going to keep after this until we get the job done.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, another provision was included in the bill that passed the Senate and was dropped by the conference as well. We had the dropping of the FDA provisions—which I believe in and of itself is enough to oppose this legislation—but we also know there was another provision that related to how we were going to treat American workers that was dropped.

Since this legislation initially was drafted, in order to respond to the World Trade Organization which found some tax provisions worked in such a way as to violate various international agreements, it was about a $5 billion fix that was needed. Instead, we have a $140 billion solution for a $5 billion fix. Do you hear me? The rest of those are tax goodies for special interests. So since this was allegedly a jobs bill, we thought we would add an amendment to it. The principal sponsor was my friend and colleague Senator HARKIN, who provided such extraordinary leadership on this overtime issue. We added this provision that would effectively declare the proposal of the administration that dealt with denying workers overtime who worked more than 40 hours a week, that we would effectively vitiate the administration's proposal. Since the underlying legislation dealt with workers and the impact on manufacturing and jobs, this was a related matter.

It is useful to remind ourselves how often this institution has addressed the question of the proposal by this President in terms of overtime. We have voted three times in the Senate to reject the administration's proposal to deny overtime. We rejected it on September 10, 54-45; it was a bipartisan effort. On May 4, 52-47. Also on May 4, 99-0. So we acted on that and we added to it.

You can say, well, the House of Representatives has not faced this issue. Our answer to that is the House has faced this issue. They voted October 2, 2003, 221-203, effectively to vitiate the Bush overtime proposal. They voted September 9, 223-193. So that is two times in the House and three times in the Senate. We had it in the conference and, nonetheless, this administration said no.

The administration has said no to an increase in the minimum wage for 7 million Americans who are working at minimum wage. They said no to an extension of unemployment compensation for workers who paid into the unemployment compensation fund. And they have said no to eliminating the ban on the elimination of overtime.

I watched the debate, like many other Americans, last night, and I listened to one of the questions that my friend and colleague, the next President of the United States, answered in talking about the lost number of jobs. He indicated that under this administration they had lost 1.6 million jobs. Lo and behold, today, with all the fact-checkers all over the country, they said that is not right; JOHN KERRY should have said they only lost 800,000 jobs. Do you want to know why? The other 800,000 have been added in the public sector. I thought this administration was adding jobs in the private sector. They have failed in the private sector. They are trying to sharpshoot on that issue, and it doesn't go.

Let's look at where we are now in the last month with the administration's economy. They had announcements yesterday that 96,000 jobs had been created last month. It is interesting to note that a third of those jobs are temporary. What does that mean? Temporary jobs pay 40 percent, on average, less than regular jobs. Yes. What else? Temporary jobs don't give you benefits. Very few, if any, give you health insurance, let alone pensions. We have a third temporary jobs, and a third government jobs, and a third private jobs out of the 96,000. So it is not a good time in terms of the American economy.

I want to point this out again and come back to the issue of overtime. As I mentioned, we had passed those provisions in the House and in the Senate. Now the administration continues to want to implement them. Who are the people affected most by overtime? The people who are affected the most by overtime are interesting: Nurses are affected by overtime; nursery school teachers, the ones who are going to work with the children in nursery schools and programs in the Head Start Programs; clerical workers; computer programmers, et cetera. These are the ones. Nurses, of course, are first responders.

It is almost as though this administration doesn't understand how hard American families are working in the United States of America. This is an extraordinary chart. This chart demonstrates that Americans' work hours have increased more than in any other industrialized country from 1970 to 2002. It is effectively up 20 percent. The next nearest country is Canada, up 16, and Australia is up 3.2 percent.

Americans are working harder and harder, and they are having an enormous difficulty in keeping pace. They cannot even keep economic pace, in terms of what they have to buy. One of the few benefits, of course, is the question of overtime. What happens when you eliminate overtime? Let's remind the workers who are out there who may be watching; let's remind them of something they know all too well. If you have overtime protections, your chances of working more than 40 hours a week are only 19 percent. But if you don't have overtime protections, your chances of working more than 40 hours a week are 44 percent. That is for 40 hours a week. If it is 50 hours a week, your chances of working are three times more if you don't have the overtime protections than if you do.

Make no mistake on what this is about. This is about exploiting American workers, treating them on the cheap. That is what this is about.

Well, Senator KENNEDY, how can you say that? Let me give a couple of examples why we can say it.

When the Bush rule was in the making, the Department of Labor asked for comment on the proposed regulation. In looking through the records, this is what we find out: Here is when the rule to eliminate overtime was being considered. The administration solicited the views of a number of different groups and industries. Now we have the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies supports the section:

... of the proposed regulations that provides that claims adjusters, including those working for insurance companies, satisfy the FLSAs administrative exemption. . . .

That is from the National Association of Mutual Insurance, June 25, 2003.

On April 23, 2004:

Insurance claims adjusters generally meet the duties requirements for the administrative exemption, whether they work for an insurance company or the other type of company. . . .

There is the industry's interest. There is the administration's answer.

Here is another group that got exemption. Here is the overtime for funeral directors and embalmers:

[T]he National Funeral Directors' Association believes that funeral directors and embalmers who have successfully completed a course of study . . . licensed by the state in which they practice are professional employees.

Then we have:

Licensed funeral directors and embalmers . . .

It is almost the same direct language for industry after industry, right down the line. This was not an issue for simplification. This was looking out for special interests. And who is paying the piper? It is going to be the workers, working longer and harder for less.

As a result, this is what happens in this country:

In the last 3 years, we have seen 800,000 more children who are living in poverty. The total percent of those living in poverty in the United States has grown, but the number of children is 800,000 more living in poverty; 12 million children hungry or on the verge of hunger; 8 million Americans unemployed. Nearly 3 million have lost unemployment benefits since the Republicans ended the program. Seven million low-wage workers waiting 7 years for a minimum-wage increase. These are men and women of dignity. They work hard, play by the rules. They are primarily women. The income of low-income single mothers has gone down by three percent every year in the Bush economy.

There are 7 million who have been waiting for an increase in the minimum wage. Bush 1 supported an increase in the minimum wage. This did not use to be a partisan issue. It was so interesting in the course of this session, when I offered the increase in the minimum wage, when we had what they call the welfare reform proposal, the TANF proposal. What did the Republican leadership do? They pulled the bill so we could not even get a vote on it. Imagine that. They would not even let the Senate of the United States vote on it. I offered it again on the State Department reauthorization bill because the Republican leadership would not give us an opportunity to vote on the minimum wage. What did they do? They pulled that bill, too. They do not even let us get a vote in the Senate on the issue of increasing the minimum wage.

Sixty percent of those who receive the minimum wage are women. One-third of those have children. This is a civil rights issue, a children's issue, a fairness issue. Americans understand if someone is going to work 52 weeks of the year, 40 hours a week, they should not have to live in poverty. But do my colleagues think we have an opportunity to do something about it? No.

Still, we are taking away the—we have 4.3 million more Americans in poverty than when the President took office and we have 2.6 million fewer Americans who have a pension under Bush's watch.

On the issue of overtime, I will take a moment of the Senate's time to relate the concerns of one worker who will be affected by the new regulation. He says:

My name is Randy Flemming. I live in Haysville, KS—outside Wichita—and I work as an Engineering Technician in Boeing's Metrology Lab.

I'm also proud to say that I'm a military veteran. I served in the U.S. Air Force from August 1973 until February 1979.

I've worked for Boeing for 23 years. During that time, I've been able to build a good, solid life for my family and I've raised a son who now has a good career and children of his own. There are two things that helped make that possible.

First, the training I received in the Air Force made me qualified for a good civilian job. That was one of the main attractions when I enlisted as a young man back in Iowa. I think it's still one of the main reasons young people today decide to enlist. Military training opens up better job opportunities—and if you don't believe me, just look at the recruiting ads on TV.

The second thing is overtime pay. That's how I was able to give my son the college education that has opened doors for him. Some years, when the company was busy and I had those college bills to pay, overtime pay was probably 10 percent or more of my income. My daughter is next. Danielle is only 8, but we'll be counting on my overtime to help get her a college degree, too, when that time comes. For my family overtime pay has made all the difference.

That's where I'm coming from. Why did I come to Washington? I came to talk about an issue that is very important back home and to me personally as a working man, a family man and a veteran. The issue is overtime rights.

The changes that this administration is trying to make in the overtime regulations would break the government's bargain with the men and women in the military and would close down opportunities that working vets and their families thought that they could count on.

When I signed up back in 1973, the Air Force and I made a deal that I thought was fair. They got a good chunk of my time and I got training to help me build the rest of my life. There was no part of that deal that said I would have to give up my right to overtime pay.

This was the threat that was going to be under the initial regulations and rules by the Department of Labor that said the training in the military would count as professional training for the first time in the history, if you got the training in the military. Then they pulled those regulations back and they changed the language around. Interestingly, all they had to do was just say, for veterans it did not count. But the Department of Labor would not do that, and many of the veterans groups still feel that they are threatened by the existing rules and regulations.

And then he continues:

You've heard of the marriage penalty? Well, I think that what these new rules do is create a military penalty. If you got your training in the military, no matter what your white collar profession is, your employer can make you work as many hours as they want and not pay you a dime extra. If that's not bait and switch, I don't know what it is. . . .

I'm luckier than some other veterans because I have a union contract that will protect my rights for a while anyway. But we know the pressure will be on, because my employer is one that pushed for these new rules and they've been trying hard to get rid of our union.

And for all those who want to let these military penalty rules go through, I have a deal I'd like to propose. If you think it's okay for the government to renege on its deal, I think it should be your job to tell our military men and women in Iraq that when they come home, their service to their country will be used as a way to cut their overtime pay.

I am still very concerned about those provisions. The administration says it has addressed it. It did not address it the way the veterans want.

We should not be about cutting off overtime when we are having the economic challenges we are facing in this country today. It is the wrong economic policy. It is unfair and it was wrong for the administration to cut this out.

There is one final point I want to make on the proposal we have before us.

How much time do I have remaining?

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Massachusetts has 16½ minutes remaining.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, there is one other provision of this underlying conference report I want to address. A top worry of many Americans is that their jobs may be shipped overseas. We have heard for years about manufacturing jobs being sent to other countries. Today, millions of Americans with other types of jobs face that risk, too. Every day we hear new stories about jobs in health care, financial services, information technologies going overseas in this high-tech age.

Yet, the Bush administration says shipping jobs overseas is a good thing. It was in the President's own annual economic report:

When a good or service is produced more cheaply abroad, it makes more sense to import it than to make it or provide it domestically.

The President's chief economic adviser Gregory Mankiw has even said that shipping jobs to other countries is "probably a plus for the economy in the long run."

Treasury Secretary Snow has also defended corporations sending jobs overseas, saying they need to do what they need to do. He said anything that makes a company more competitive, including offshoring jobs, is good for corporate shareholders, it is good for their consumers, and it is good for their employees.

As recently as July, John Marburger, the President's science adviser, said that shipping jobs overseas is not necessarily a bad thing. American workers deserve better than this. They deserve better than to have their jobs exported with the President as the cheerleader in chief waving goodbye.

Shipping jobs overseas is a problem that is only going to grow. Experts project 3.4 million jobs, with total wages worth more than $150 billion, could be sent overseas in the next 11 years, including more than a half-million computer jobs and more than 600,000 business and management jobs. Lou Dobbs on CNN is keeping a running tally of companies that have sent jobs overseas. He is now at almost a thousand companies.

Many jobs that have already gone overseas have been in manufacturing. This is a loss that has taken a heavy toll on our economy. We have lost nearly 2.7 million manufacturing jobs since this Bush administration took office. It is a nationwide problem affecting almost every State in the Union. Forty-seven of the 50 States have lost manufacturing jobs under this President. For example, Ohio has lost 165,000 manufacturing jobs; Pennsylvania has lost 150,000 jobs; Massachusetts, my home State, has lost 84,000 jobs; Texas, the President's home State, has lost 170,000 manufacturing jobs.

The loss of these manufacturing jobs is especially serious because they pay good wages and benefits, and each manufacturing job creates close to three other jobs in other sectors of the economy.

As this chart indicates, for every 100 jobs in retail, they create 88 more jobs; for every 100 jobs in business services, they create 154 jobs; for every 100 jobs in manufacturing, 291.

The Bush administration wants to ignore this serious problem, too. They have suggested cooking the books to create the appearance of job growth in the manufacturing sector. They want to count flipping hamburgers and other fast food jobs as manufacturing jobs to make up for the loss of millions of manufacturing jobs under President Bush's watch.

Providing more tax breaks for multinational corporations is the wrong thing to do, and that is exactly what this bill does. For any of those Members who are interested in the particular details, they ought to just read Senator BOB GRAHAM's excellent presentation on this very point. He has addressed the Senate frequently on it, and has identified it.

I have not the time this afternoon to go into it, but I want to give assurance to the Members on this, that we are providing in this legislation tax breaks for multinational corporations. It is more than the loss of the $40 billion in tax revenue which has been added in this jobs bill that could be used for many better purposes that is troubling. What is most disturbing is the fact that many of these international provisions will actually encourage companies to shift even more American jobs to low-wage countries.

The international provisions should have been removed from the bill and the tax dollars saved should be used to increase the tax benefits for domestic manufacturing. It makes no sense to expand the value of the foreign tax credits which multinational corporations receive.

Under the legislation, these companies would pay even less in U.S. taxes on the profits they earn from their business abroad than they do today—$40 billion less. This will create further incentives for them to move jobs abroad, undermining the intent of the legislation.

From the perspective of preserving American jobs, one of the worst features of this corporate tax law is a special tax subsidy for multinationals known as deferral. If a U.S. company moves its operation abroad, it can defer paying U.S. taxes on the profits it makes overseas until the companies choose to send those profits back to America.

In essence, it allows the corporation to decide when it will pay the taxes it owes the U.S. Government. That is a luxury that companies making products and providing services here at home do not have. This is an enormous competitive advantage which the Tax Code gives to companies doing the wrong thing, eliminating American jobs, over companies doing the right thing, preserving the jobs in the United States. That feature alone ought to be enough to have Members of this body vote no at the time of the consideration of the conference report.

I appreciate the indulgence of the Chair. I will reserve the remainder of my time.

Mr. GRASSLEY, Mr. President. I make a few points regarding the FDA issue and the regulation of tobacco. I voted for the FDA provision in this bill. I voted in conference to include FDA regulation of tobacco. But the House refused to accept it.

I voted for this, despite the growing problems that are coming to light about the FDA falling down on its current responsibilities.

Just in the last few months, the FDA has come under investigation, including from my own committee, regarding the way its failed regarding drugs causing suicide in children.

And where was the FDA regarding the recent Vioxx catastrophe and how it causes heart attacks? Just yesterday, it was revealed by my Finance Committee that it looks like the FDA pressured employees to suppress negative findings regarding Vioxx.

And, in today's paper, we read about what looks like the FDA falling down on the job in regard to the Flu vaccine crisis.

So, I hope some around here aren't trying to mislead the American people into thinking that FDA regulation is some kind of panacea for smoking.

I heard one Senator from the other side say that we sided with the tobacco companies when the FDA provision failed. Well that's interesting.

That's surely what opponents would like you to think. But, there's a dirty little secret involved here. Or, at least it's a secret vis a vis the public.

The fact is, the tobacco companies are divided on whether there should be FDA regulation. In fact, the largest tobacco company actually supports FDA regulation, and has been lobbying heavily and pouring money into the effort to get it.

Why? Well, for one thing, a great deal of its business is overseas, and it will therefore be immune from FDA regulation. This will give it a competitive edge against its competitors. So, the tobacco companies, or at least the biggest one, is much more in favor of FDA regulation than against it.

Therefore, anybody trying to frame this as tobacco versus kids, or tobacco versus health groups, is just flatly misleading the public.

But, even for those of us who pushed for FDA oversight, our legs were cut right out from under us during the negotiations. And guess who cut the legs right out from under us? The leadership of the Democratic party cut the legs right out from under us. That's who.

The leader of the Democratic party, Senator KERRY, went down to North Carolina to talk to tobacco farmers. Guess what he said? He said he'd support a tobacco buyout with or without FDA regulation.

So, it looks to me like the senior Senator from Massachusetts didn't communicate very well with the junior Senator from Massachusetts—or vice-versa.

Moreover, we had the democratic Senate campaign chairman saying the same thing last week. He said he didn't need FDA regulation with a tobacco buyout.

And, he even had his candidate for the North Carolina Senate seat up here lobbying right over in the conference committee room to get this buyout through, with or without FDA. Can you believe that?

And, to add insult to injury to the Democratic Senators from Massachusetts, and Iowa, the Senate Democratic leader even signed the conference report.

So, obviously, when the House leadership knew the votes were there in the Senate for a buyout without FDA, they weren't about to agree to it in conference, and there's no way we could have successfully pushed it.

Now, what more does it take from their own leaders to undermine what the Democratic Senators from Iowa and Massachusetts wanted to do? Seems to me the need to get their own house in order before criticizing others.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Democratic whip.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, we still have a number of speakers. Under the order which we had set up, in which we would go back and forth with the majority and minority, it is now the majority's turn.

It is my understanding Senator STEVENS, the chairman of the Appropriations Committee, is on his way here to give a very short statement. I am wondering if that is, in fact, the case.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Utah is recognized.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I will change places with you so you can make the unanimous consent request.

As I understand it, Senator STEVENS has asked for 5 minutes to make a speech before I make mine.

Mr. REID. It is my understanding we are also ready to move to the Defense Authorization conference report.

Mr. HATCH. Then, as I also understand it, the order should be Senator WARNER to make his unanimous consent request, Senator STEVENS for 5 minutes, then I for whatever time I need, and then Senator LANDRIEU for whatever time she wanted.

Mr. REID. I thought it was going to be Senator WARNER for 5 minutes, Senator STEVENS for 5 minutes, and then Senator LANDRIEU for an hour and half.

Mr. HATCH. If we can do it the way I suggested, it would be very acceptable.

I ask unanimous consent that be the order.

Mr. REID. The order has already been established. As soon as we finish with Senator WARNER and Senator STEVENS, Senator HATCH will take the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. I thank the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HATCH). The Senator from Virginia.

RONALD W. REAGAN NATIONAL DEFENSE AUTHORIZATION ACT FOR FISCAL YEAR 2005—CONFERENCE REPORT

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I submit a report of the committee of conference on the bill (H.R. 4200) and ask for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read it.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

The Committee of Conference on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses on the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H.R. 4200), to authorize appropriations for fiscal year 2005 for military activities of the Department of Defense, for military construction, and for defense activities of the Department of Energy, to prescribe personnel strengths for such fiscal year for the Armed Forces, and for other purposes, having met, have agreed that the House recede from its disagreement to the amendment of the Senate, and agree to the same with an amendment, and the Senate agree to the same, signed by a majority of the conferees on the part of both Houses.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senate will proceed to the consideration of the conference report.

(The conference report is printed in the proceedings of the House in the RECORD for Friday, October 8, 2004.)

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, on behalf of the distinguished ranking member, Mr. LEVIN, and myself, I now ask unanimous consent that the conference report be adopted and the motion to reconsider be laid on the table, all with no intervening action or debate.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The conference report was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, this conference report represents the hard work of many, many individuals. I first thank my distinguished ranking member, Mr. LEVIN of Michigan, together with our subcommittee chairmen and all members of the committee. This was truly a bipartisan effort from start to finish. We achieved an extraordinary piece of legislation. I am proud to say, at the request of the chairman, myself, the bill is named the Ronald W. Reagan National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2005.

We do that in honor of our late President's extraordinary contributions to the men and women of the Armed Forces in his capacity as President and in his role as Commander in Chief at that time.

This conference report provides $420.6 billion for defense, an increase of $19.3 billion above the amount authorized by Congress last year. The report also authorizes an additional $25 billion for war-related costs in Iraq and Afghanistan.

I am proud to bring the conference report for the Ronald W. Reagan National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2005 before the Senate for final passage. I thank my ranking member and partner for these 26 years, the senior Senator from Michigan, CARL LEVIN, for his consistently constructive help and leadership in bringing this important legislation to the floor. I would also like to thank our subcommittee chairman and ranking members, and all committee members for their hard work on this conference report. I am pleased that this legislation report has the unanimous support of the members of the committee.

I also want to thank Chairman DUNCAN HUNTER and Congressman SKELTON for their leadership and teamwork in producing this conference agreement.

No committee succeeds without a dedicated, professional staff, and I believe our committee has one of the finest on Capitol Hill. I particularly want to recognize the efforts of the Committee Staff Director, Judy Ansley and the Democratic Staff Director, Rick DeBobs in bringing this process to a successful conclusion. They have led a great staff, all of whom deserve great credit and recognition. This dedicated professional staff worked very long hours and helped the members reach the agreements that are contained in the conference report before us. I ask that the names of all members of the committee staff be printed in the record following my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. Warner. As we consider this conference report, we remain a nation at war against terrorism around the world. There is no doubt that we will win this war because of the extraordinary Americans who volunteer to serve the cause of peace and freedom. All Americans are in their debt, and they and their families deserve our unwavering support. The legacy of President Ronald W. Reagan, to whom we and the Nation paid our last respects a few short months ago, is memorialized in this legislation. I can think of no better way to honor the service and sacrifice of the men and women of our Armed Forces and their families, than to provide them with the pay and benefits they so richly deserve, and to give them the equipment they need to carry out their critical missions on behalf of our Nation, as President Reagan fought so hard to do when he was President and their Commander-in-Chief.

This bill provides much needed benefits to those now serving in the Armed Forces—Reserve and Active Duty—as well as addressing long-standing needs of military retirees and veterans, and their families who served this Nation so well. There were many contentious issues to resolve—BRAC, Buy America, Tanker replacement, housing privatization and TRICARE for Reservists, among others. We did resolve them, however, and I am proud we have achieved our goal of concluding a conference which sends a strong message of support to our men and women in uniform.

As we stand here today hundreds of thousands of soldiers, sailors, airmen, and Marines, Active and Reserve, and countless civilians who support them, are serving bravely around the world from the Persian Gulf region and Afghanistan to Europe and North Korea. All Americans are justifiably proud of what the U.S. Armed Forces and their coalition partners have accomplished in the global war on terrorism. We are ever mindful that the defense of our homeland begins on the distant battlefields of the world.

We must pause and remember that military success is not achieved without significant sacrifice. No matter how well conducted, military victory does not come without sacrifice and loss. We extend our heartfelt sympathies to the families and loved ones of those who have lost their lives in these operations and in other military operations to make America and the world safer. We mourn their loss and resolve to forever remember their service. We give thanks to those who serve and have served their Nation with distinction throughout our history. We are blessed to have this new generation of great Americans, so committed to American traditions, values and ideals, carrying on the traditions of those who preceded them with such dedication and valor.

Without a doubt, the U.S. military is the most capable military force in the world today, a model of excellence, and the standard by which others are measured. The provisions in this conference report sustain and improve on that excellence.

This conference report continues the momentum of recent years in making real increases in defense spending—a 3.4 percent increase—to sustain readiness, enhance the quality of life of our military personnel and their families, modernize and transform the U.S. Armed Forces to meet current and future threats, and take care of our retirees and veterans. The conference report before us provides $420.6 billion for defense, an increase of $19.3 billion above the amount authorized by Congress last year. The conference report also authorizes an additional $25. billion for war-related costs in Afghanistan and Iraq.

There are many things contained in this conference report that are important and of which I am very proud, but I want to highlight just a few. First and foremost is the 3.5 percent pay raise for our men and women in uniform, and a new healthcare benefit for reservists who serve on extended active duty. Second, we have reached agreement on how to proceed in procuring new aerial refueling aircraft in a prudent manner, consistent with existing laws and regulations. Third, we have preserved the 2005 BRAC round—a much needed review of our basing infrastructure. This is critical for the efficiency and smart posturing of our Armed Forces to meet future challenges.

There are many other important initiatives, such as housing privatization, improved survivor benefits, funding for missile defense and other weapons systems. These important initiatives and authorities are contained in the conference report before you.

This conference report sends a clear signal to our citizens, and to nations around the world, that the United States is committed to a strong national defense. More important, this conference report sends a clear signal to our men and women in uniform, from the newest private to the most senior flag and general officer, that they have the support of the American people.

I thank my colleagues for their support of this conference report.

Mr. LEVIN. Mr. President, I am pleased to join the Chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and my good friend, Senator WARNER, in urging the adoption of the conference report on H.R. 4200, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2005. We began work on this bill with our mark-up in early May. Since that time, we have spent 5 weeks on the Senate floor and nearly 4 months in conference. This conference agreement would not have been possible without the strength and perseverance of Senator WARNER.

This conference report will promote the national defense, improve the quality of life of our men and women in uniform, and make the investments we need to meet the challenges of the 21st century. First and foremost, the bill before us continues the increases in compensation and quality of life that our service men and women and their families deserve as they face the hardships imposed by continuing military operations around the world.

Mr. President, we all know that our Armed Forces today are deployed in harms' way around the world. As we stand on the Senate floor today, more than 130,000 soldiers, sailors, airmen and marines are engaged in taking on an aggressive insurgency and winning the peace in Iraq, with tens of thousands more supporting the war effort from outside the country. At the same time, our military continues to bear the brunt of the continuing effort to stabilize and rebuild Afghanistan, keep the peace in Bosnia, Kosovo, and the Sinai, and contain the threat of North Korea—while also preparing to execute other missions in support of the national military strategy.

It has been clear to many of us for some time now that the Army and Marine Corps are simply stretched too thin, and that additional troops are badly needed to meet our worldwide commitments. I am pleased that this bill takes an important step toward that objective by increasing the active duty end strength of the Army by 20,000 and the active duty end strength of the Marine Corps by 3,000.

I am also pleased that the bill before us contains much of the amendment offered on the Senate floor by Senator DASCHLE and Senator GRAHAM to provide expanded TRICARE benefits for the National Guard and Reserve members who have made so many sacrifices and contributed so much to our nation over the last three years. In particular, the conference report would:

Make permanent the temporary authority for free TRICARE health care coverage for National Guard and Reserve members and their families up to 90 days before a mobilized service member reports for active duty and for 180 days after release from active duty; and Authorize a new TRICARE benefit for Guard and Reserve members and their families when the member is not on active duty.

Under this provision, National Guard and Reserve members who are mobilized would be authorized, upon release from active duty, to enroll in TRICARE Prime for 1 year for every 90 days spent on active duty. This is the least that we can do for these brave men and women.

The bill would take a number of other important steps to improve the lives of our men and women in uniform. For example, the bill would:

Authorize a 3.5 percent across-the-board pay raise for military personnel;

Authorize a permanent increase in the rate of special pay for duty subject to hostile fire or imminent danger;

Authorize a permanent increase in the rate of the family separation allowance;

Improve the Survivor Benefit Plan by eliminating the reduction in SBP benefits for surviving spouses over age 62, phased in over 3½ years;

Ensure fair treatment of our disabled veterans by repealing the phase-in of concurrent receipt of retired pay and VA disability pay to military retirees with service-connected disabilities rated as 100 percent; and Authorized a new program of educational assistance to members of the Selective Reserve, based on the GI Bill.

The bill would also directly address a number of specific problems and issues that have arisen in the course of our continuing operations in Iraq and Afghanistan.

First, the bill would provide our Armed Forces new flexibility to respond to changing circumstances on the ground by authorizing the use of up to $300 million for the Commanders' Emergency Response Program in Iraq and Afghanistan, under which commanders may use funds for small humanitarian and reconstruction projects; authorizing the use of up to $500 million for assistance to Iraq and Afghanistan military or security forces to enhance their ability to combat terrorism and support U.S. or coalition military operations in Iraq and Afghanistan; and authorizing the Special Operations Command to expend up to $25 million of existing funds to provide support to foreign forces, irregular forces, groups, or individuals, engaged in supporting or facilitating ongoing military operations by the United States special operations forces to combat terrorism; establishing a new rapid acquisition program to enable the Department of Defense to quickly acquire equipment needed by a combatant commander to eliminate deficiencies in equipment that have resulted in combat fatalities; and raising the thresholds for the use of streamlined acquisition procedures outside the United States in support of contingency operations.

Second, the bill contains important language from amendments offered by Senators DURBIN and LEAHY on the Senate floor, reaffirming the prohibition against subjecting any person in the custody or under the physical control of the United States to "torture or cruel, inhuman, or degrading treatment or punishment that is prohibited by the Constitution, laws, or treaties of the United States." These provisions send an important message to the world that the United States will not permit, condone, tolerate, or encourage the kind of behavior so graphically depicted in the photographs from Abu Ghraib prison in Iraq. We all know that the abuses that occurred at Abu Ghraib and elsewhere have undermined the hard work and sacrifices of our military and tarnished the image of our armed forces. The provisions included in the conference report reaffirm that we are a Nation of laws and send the message that Congress will not accept mixed messages or ambiguous statements on the fundamental issue of human rights and dignity.

The bill contains several other important provisions addressing ongoing operations in Iraq and Afghanistan. These include:

A provision originally written by Senator DODD, which authorizes reimbursement of service members and their families for purchases of body armor and other protective equipment at a time when the Department of Defense did not have sufficient protective gear in Iraq to protect our men and women in uniform; a provision addressing deficiencies in the oversight and management of contractors on the ground in Iraq, and requiring the issuance of specific guidance and regulations to enhance the safety of contractor employees and improve coordination between our armed forces and the contractors who are there to support their rebuilding efforts; and a provision reauthorizing and extending the CPA Inspector General to ensure that we have continuing oversight over fraud, waste and abuse in the expenditure of funds for the rebuilding of Iraq.

The conference report also includes a number of provisions that will help improve the management of the Department of Defense and other federal agencies. These include: the Collins-Levin amendment permitting federal employees to be heard, for the first time, in bid protests appealing the results of public-private competitions; a provision that would extend the authority for energy savings performance contracts for an additional 2 years, enabling federal agencies to save hundreds of millions of dollars through improved energy efficiency; a provision that should help resolve the controversy over the Air Force's proposed lease of tanker aircraft by prohibiting the Air Force from entering a lease and instead requiring the use of a traditional multi-year contract; a provision that would require the Department of Defense to develop and implement a business enterprise architecture to gain better control over its finances; and a provision directing the Secretary of Defense to develop policies and regulations to discourage other countries from imposing "offset agreements" in defense trade, and thereby undermining our defense industrial base.

Finally, I am pleased that the conference report contains a series of provisions that will establish a workers' compensation-like program for nuclear workers who have cancers and other occupational-related injuries. The program will be administered by the Department of Labor and establishes a compensation scheme for both employees and survivors. Covered employees would receive the compensation benefits, as well as medical benefits under the provisions. The total amount of compensation under the provision would be capped at $250,000. Also included are provisions that would extend to uranium miners the opportunity to seek this workers' compensation-like benefit. Employees can elect to apply for this benefit or they may choose to remain in their individual state's workers' compensation system.

Mr. President, this is a good conference report, but no conference report is perfect.

I strongly disagree with a provision in the bill that would attempt to transfer from the Department of Defense to the Treasury the responsibility to provide the funding for military health care. Programs do not become "free" just because they are moved outside the Defense budget. That is why this provision was strongly opposed by the chairman and ranking member of the Senate Budget Committee.

I am deeply disappointed that the House conferees refused to accept important Senate provisions addressing hate crimes. Acts of violence and bigotry based on factors like race, religion, national origin, gender, sexual orientation, or disability can undermine our nation's fabric by placing in question our continuing commitment to acceptance and diversity. The Kennedy-Smith hate crimes bill would address this problem head-on. The Senate has now passed the hate crimes bill on two separate occasions, and each time, the House has refused even to consider the provision on the merits.

I am equally disappointed that the House refused to include the Boxer amendment on abortion. Under the law as it stands today, Medicare funds may be used for abortions in cases of rape or incest, but Department of Defense funds may not. This kind of discrimination against women who put their lives on the line for their country is incomprehensible to me.

I am disappointed that, faced with a veto threat, we were able to get less than half of the provisions that we wanted to codify sound practices in public-private competition of work currently performed by government employees.

Finally, I am disappointed that this conference report includes a House provision reducing the authority of the base closure commission to address bases not recommended for closure or realignment by the Secretary of Defense.

Despite my concerns about these issues, I will vote for this bill because it contains so many other provisions that are so important for our national defense and for our men and women and uniform. At a time when our armed forces are under hostile fire in Iraq and Afghanistan, it is vitally important that we enact a defense authorization bill that provides the training and equipment that our military needs and the compensation and benefits that they deserve.

I would like to thank the chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senator WARNER, once again for the effective leadership that he provided in bringing this bill through conference and back to the Senate floor. Senator WARNER's inclusiveness and openness in the way he manages the Committee and the conference have resulted in a far better bill than we would otherwise have had.

I would also like to thank the minority members of our Committee for the able work that they have done in support of this bill throughout the past year, starting with hearings in the Spring, and continuing through markup, floor deliberation, and conference. We have a truly talented group of members, whose dedication to the national defense shows in their work.

I would be remiss if I did not also mention the work of our dedicated committee staff, on both sides of the aisle. It is the hard work of this staff—under the able leadership of Judy Ansley and Rick DeBobs—that has made this bill possible. Rick and Judy and the staff have been working literally around the clock for the last month to put this conference report, and I think that the Senate owes a debt of gratitude to every one of them.

On the Majority staff Judy Ansley, Chuck Alsup, June Borawski, Leah Brewer, Alison Brill, Jennifer Cave, David Cherington, Marie Dickenson, Regine Dubey, Andy Florell, Brian Green, Bill Greenwalt, Bruce Hock, Gary Howard, Jennifer Key, Greg Kiley, Tom MacKenzie, Elaine McCusker, Lucian Niemeyer, Stan O'Connor, Cindy Pearson, Paula Philbin, Ben Rubin, Lynn Rusten, Katie Sendak, Joe Sixeas, Rob Soofer, Diana Tabler, Dick Walsh, Bridget Ward, Nick West, and Kelley Wilson.

Mr. President, I urge my colleagues to join me in supporting this bill.

Mr. LUGAR. Mr. President, while I support Senate passage of H.R. 4200, the Ronald W. Reagan National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2005, and will not object to its passage, I am nevertheless concerned with language appearing in section 1225, "Bilateral Exchanges and Trade in Defense Articles and Defense Services Between the United States and the United Kingdom and Australia." My concerns are shared by the ranking Democratic member of the Foreign Relations Committee, Senator BIDEN.

We maintain an amicable and beneficial working relationship between the Foreign Relations and Armed Services Committees. In many years past, we opposed efforts by the Armed Services Committee to legislate on matters under our Committee's unique jurisdiction. Last June, we offered an amendment to the defense authorization bill because we understood that our own authorization bill would not proceed, and that the Senate Armed Services Committee supported all of the provisions we offered. We also sought to provide a response to certain provisions in the House defense authorization bill.

The Chairman of the Armed Services Committee, Senator WARNER, introduced Senate Amendment 3429 to S. 2400, the Senate version of the defense authorization bill, on June 7, 2004. This amendment was identical to language in our committee's bill that provided exceptions to the requirements in subsection (j) of section 38 of the Arms Export Control Act regarding the content of any bilateral agreement that would waive International Traffic in Arms Regulations—the ITAR, 22 CFR 120-130—export license requirements for transfers of defense items or defense services to the United Kingdom and Australia. This legislation would have, in the case of the agreement with the Government of Australia, excepted the agreement from section 38(j)(2)(A) and, in the case of the agreement with the Government of the United Kingdom, excepted that agreement from the requirements of section 38 (j)(1)(A)(ii), (2)(A)(i), and (2)(A)(ii). The administration supported that language, and so did Senator WARNER when he offered our language on his bill.

The issue of the ITAR exemption agreements is a complex and important topic and, unfortunately, has become a major irritant in our special relationship with the United Kingdom. Perhaps more unfortunately, the bill the Senate will pass today will include not our language but rather language that may be prejudicial to U.S. interests on several grounds.

First, the bill no longer provides the exceptions we sought. Enactment of this provision may therefore make any future efforts to obtain such statutory exceptions for these most important allies all the more difficult. The Senate will now have effectively endorsed the House position. This may well harm our bilateral relationship with the United Kingdom.

Second, the language of section 1225(b) states: "The Secretary of State shall ensure that any license application submitted for the export of defense articles or defense services to Australia or the United Kingdom is expeditiously processed by the Department of State, in consultation with the Department of Defense, without referral to any other Federal department or agency, except where the item is classified or exceptional circumstances apply." This language could do great harm to our government's ability to provide necessary and complete inter-agency review of munitions license applications. The phrase "without referral to any other Federal department or agency" is new law, and it far exceeds what wisdom would dictate. Under this language, the Departments of Justice and Homeland Security would not be allowed to review any case not involving classified defense items, unless it met an "exceptional circumstances" standard. The vast majority of defense exports to the United Kingdom and Australia that are governed under the ITAR are not classified items, and while the Foreign Relations Committee supports expeditious consideration of munitions license applications for these allies, we are concerned by provisions that could deny our government the ability to effectively staff and review license applications.

This concern is heightened by the fact that the provisions of section 1225 apply to all arms exports to the United Kingdom and Australia, irrespective of end-user. The bilateral agreements negotiated with the United Kingdom and Australia take a different approach. They afford relief from export license requirements for certain unclassified exports, rather than merely expedited processing, but they also are limited in their application of a waiver to a finite group of U.S.-approved end-users. That limit is a sensible accommodation of U.S. national security concerns, and it is difficult to understand why the National Defense Authorization Act conferees decided to ignore it.

I fully expect that the Foreign Relations Committee and the House International Relations Committee will revisit this issue next year in an effort to correct the failings of the measure that is now before us.

SECTION 133

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I would like to review with my colleague Section 133 of the Ronald W. Reagan National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2005. Under the leadership of Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman WARNER and Ranking Member LEVIN, Congress has agreed to amend Section 135 of the National Defense Authorization Act for fiscal year 2004 by expressly prohibiting the Air Force from using previously granted authority to acquire, through a lease or purchase, Boeing 767 aircraft for use as aerial refueling tankers.

This provision succeeds in accomplishing Chairman WARNER's primary objective, as he stated in this chamber on October 23, 2003, to put the tanker replacement program back into a traditional budget, procurement, and authorization track. In other words, the Air Force's program to modernize its tanker fleet must be subject to the aerial refueling analysis of alternatives, the aerial refueling portion of the Mobility Capabilities Study, a new aerial refueling validated capabilities document and operational requirements document in accordance with all applicable Chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Instructions, and the express approval of a Defense Acquisition Board in full accordance with Department of Defense regulations.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator from Arizona is correct. Section 133 specifically revokes the authority previously granted under Section 8159 of the Department of Defense Appropriations Act for Fiscal Year 2002, to the Air Force to lease aircraft for use as tankers. The conferees expressed their intent very strongly on this issue in eliminating all references to leasing aircraft throughout Section 135.

Mr. MCCAIN. I thank the Chairman for clarifying the intent of the legislation with respect to the prohibition on leasing tanker aircraft. Now, let's turn to what authority Section 133 grants with respect to purchase of tanker aircraft.

Mr. WARNER. Section 133 bars the Air Force from executing a contract for the multiyear purchase of aircraft specified under Section 8159, that is, general purpose Boeing 767 aircraft that would be modified as an aerial refueling aircraft. Section 8159 would have precluded full and open competition.

Mr. MCCAIN. The Chairman is correct. This means that, under Section 133, the Air Force may not acquire, either by lease or purchase, Boeing 767s without full and open competition. In other words, any program to acquire tankers must start from the beginning, as the Senator properly stated last year, on a traditional budget, procurement, and authorization track.

Mr. WARNER. The Senator from Arizona is correct. I thank him for that clarification.

Mr. MCCAIN. One last question. Have we obtained an opinion from the Congressional Budget Office as to how it would score the acquisition of tankers under Section 133?

Mr. WARNER. Yes, we have. The Congressional Budget Office would score this provision as a traditional procurement program which would expressly require the Air Force to pay for each tanker in the year it is purchased.

Mr. MCCAIN. I thank the Senator. I am grateful to the gentleman from Virginia for his leadership in this 3-year odyssey. I remind my colleagues that three out of the four defense committees that were required to approve the original proposal to lease 100 tankers, did so without so much as reading the contract for that $30 billion procurement proposal. It was the Senate Armed Services Committee that put the brakes on that costly and misguided misadventure. That having been said, the final chapter on the tanker lease program cannot be closed until those among Air Force leadership who engaged in misconduct are held accountable.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the Senator from Arizona for his steadfast leadership and vigilance on this critical issue. There could be no doubt as to the gentleman's sincerity in always protecting the interests of taxpayers and the warfighter.

Mr. KENNEDY. Mr. President, it is reprehensible that the GOP House leadership demanded the removal of the hate crimes provision from the Defense Authorization Act.

The provision had solid support in both the Senate and the House. Under the leadership of Senator WARNER and Senator GORDON SMITH, the Senate approved it as an amendment to the Defense Authorization bill in July by the nearly 2-to-1 bipartisan majority of 65 to 33. Eighteen Republicans joined all the Democrats in approving this measure. Last week, by a vote of 213 to 186, the House instructed its conferees to support this provision in the conference report on the bill.

The hate crimes provision is an essential response to a serious problem which continues to plague the nation. Since the September 11 attacks, we've had a shameful increase in the number of hate crimes committed in our country against Arabs and Muslims—murders, beatings, arson, attacks on mosques, shootings, and other assaults. In 2001, anti-Muslim incidents were the second highest-reported hate crimes based on religion—second only to anti-Jewish hate crimes.

Nevertheless, under current law, the Justice Department has to fight these vicious crimes with one hand tied behind its back. Outdated pre-9/11 restrictions limit Federal jurisdiction in hate crimes based on religion. Hate crimes based on sexual orientation are not even covered by the law. How can House Republican leaders say they're fighting a war on terrorism, when they're not prepared to fight it here at home?

Clearly, President Bush is worried about his right-wing base in the coming election, and the implication is obvious that the White House sent word to its Republican allies in the House—block the hate crimes provision, even if blocking it denies the clear will of the majority.

The carefully selected White House candidate for the Senate in Florida used the hate crimes issue to smear his opponent in the Republican primary in August. Former Congressman Bill McCollum, a respected law-and-order Republican, was smeared as "anti-family" and "the new darling of the homosexual extremists" and lost the primary—because he supported the hate crimes legislation. There is nothing "anti-family" or divisive about the hate crimes bill. It protects all victims of hate-motivated violence: citizens of all races, all religions, all sexual orientations. No one is left out.

Sadly, the despicable smear against Congressman McCollum in Florida is only one example of the vicious campaign tactics used by Republicans this year. In West Virginia and Arkansas, the Republican National Committee has sent out flyers suggesting that "liberals" want to ban the Bible. My colleague Senator ROBERT BYRD aptly described it as a "desperation tactic" and "an insult to the intelligence of voters" in his State.

In Oklahoma, the National Republican Senate Campaign is running a race-baiting advertisement on television attacking Democratic Senate candidate Brad Carson's record on immigration by showing images of Hispanic farm workers and African Americans receiving welfare dollars. We've seen such campaign appeals to racism and bigotry before in this country. Most of us hoped we would never see them again.

When President Bush condones outrageous tactics like these, how can he claim with a straight face that he's lived up to his campaign promise to be a uniter, not a divider?

The administration is wrong to have ordered its allies in the House to block our bipartisan hate crimes provision. However, this is not the end of our battle. We will be back again and again, and we will continue to bring this legislation up every opportunity we can until it is signed into law. It's heartening to know that we may soon have a President who will sign it—a President who is honestly committed to uniting, not dividing, the country.

Mr. BINGAMAN. Mr. President, I would like to congratulate the conferees on the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2005, for reforming the Energy Employee's Occupational Illness Act, EEOICPA, and ensuring that the Radiation Exposure Compensation Program, RECA, receives additional mandatory funding to pay the workers whose claims were originally subject to additional appropriations.

I view the reform of EEOICPA's subtitle D as particularly significant. From November 2003 through March 2004, the Energy and Natural Resources Committee held three hearings on this program. These hearings determined that the current program's subtitle D was not paying injured atomic workers. Subtitle D relied on the DOE to determine causation with a subsequent referral to State compensation systems. Typically these State compensations not only add additional delay to the process but they are adversarial in nature because insurers can contest the claim against a sick and dying worker. As a result of these three Senate hearings, there was a bipartisan effort by 20 Senators to move subtitle D from the Department of Energy to the Department of Labor, where EEOICPA's subtitle B is administered. The Department of Labor specializes in providing worker compensation, so it only seems reasonable to consolidate the program there. Originally, the Senate's proposed reform of subtitle D required the Department of Labor to adjudicate each claim according to the workers' respective State compensation standard. This compensation procedure, while insuring that the original intent of EEOICPA remained intact, was determined by the conferees to be too hard to administer. In my view, and it was stated in the March 2004 hearing, the proper course of action to pay these sick workers was to use a uniform standard funded from a mandatory account similar to subtitle B.

The conference report's version of EEOICPA's subtitle D takes the right approach. Instead of a compensation scheme tied to each State as in the Senate proposal, the conference report chooses a uniform payment schedule according to disability and lost wages, for both living and deceased persons. Most importantly, subtitle D is funded out of the subtitle B mandatory account so it does not end up like the RECA program in lacking the necessary compensation funds once a positive determination is made. I am also pleased that the language contains the ombudsman provision, even though it is only authorized for three years. The ombudsman will report to Congress on the transition from the Department of Energy to the Department of Labor, and whether the intent of the reform language is adhered to, which is the quick compensation of sick workers.

I would like to thank the many Senate staffers listed below who held together as a group for the past seven months; their names are found at the end of this statement. Through this strong bipartisan effort, more was accomplished than any by any single member. I hope this effort sets a tone for other endeavors that we pursue in Congress.

Again, my thanks to the Chairman and Ranking members of both the House and Senate Armed Services Committees for ensuring that these innocent atomic workers, who helped win the cold war, clean up its former nuclear sites, and continue to maintain our nuclear deterrent, are adequately compensated for the injuries they sustained working at DOE's nuclear facilities.

Mr. MCCAIN. Mr. President, I strongly support passage of the conference report on HR 4200, the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year 2005. This legislation funds over $420 billion for defense programs, which is a 3.4 percent increase or $20.9 billion above the amount authorized by Congress last year.

While I am pleased that we are able to act on this legislation prior to adjourning for the elections, I would be remiss if I did not mention that once again, the Defense Appropriations Act has been signed into law prior to final action on the Defense Authorization Act. The responsibilities of authorizers and appropriators are expected to be distinct. The Defense Authorization Act lays out the blueprint for the policies and funding levels for the Department of Defense and its programs. The role of the Appropriations Committee is to allocate funding based on policies provided by authorization bills. In reality however, the Appropriators' function, has expanded dramatically, and the Appropriations Committee now engages in significant policy decision making and micromanagement, largely usurping the role of the authorizing committees. I hope next year we will succeed in passing the authorization measure prior to the appropriations measure.

The men and women of our Nation's Armed Forces put their lives on the line every day to protect the very freedoms we Americans hold dear. It is our obligation to provide key quality of life benefits to the members of our military. Great strides will be made by this bill towards accomplishing that goal. For example, this Conference Report authorizes a 3.5 percent across-the-board pay raise for all military personnel. It repeals the requirement for military members to pay subsistence charges while hospitalized, and adds $7.8 million for expanded care and services at the Walter Reed Amputee Patient Care Center. Also, included in the conference report is a permanent increase in the rate of family separation allowance from $100 per month to $250 per month as well as a permanent increase in the rate of special pay for duty subject to hostile fire or imminent danger from $150 per month to $225 per month.

We continue to be increasingly reliant on the men and women of our Reserve forces and National Guard. In fact, around 40 percent of all the ground troops in Iraq and Afghanistan are composed of National Guard and Reserve forces as well as nearly all of the ground forces in Kosovo, Bosnia, and the Sinai. Many of these soldiers and sailors leave behind friends, families, and careers to defend our nation. Accordingly, it is the responsibility of policy makers to ensure we look after the needs of these patriots. Included in the conference report is the authorization for full medical and dental examinations and requisite inoculations when reservists mobilize and demobilize as well as a new requirement for pre-separation physical examinations for members of the reserve component. This provision is critical to maintain and, in some circumstances, increase the readiness of the total force.

In the Senate version of this legislation, we passed an important amendment to authorize an increase in the size of our Army by 20,000 and size of our Marine Corps by 3,000. I am very pleased this provision was included in the conference report. This increase is absolutely vital in our Army's ability to carry out its mission in the global war on terror. There is no shortage of evidence supporting an increase in Army endstrength. Recently, the Army pulled 3,600 troops out of South Korea to fill critical needs in Iraq. The Department of Defense should be able to move troops around as needed to address critical needs. However, in this case, we are sacrificing our readiness on the Korean peninsula because we do not have enough soldiers serving in the Army.

After returning home for a short period of time, soldiers and Marines are already making preparations for their second tour in Iraq or Afghanistan in as many years. This is not good for morale, this is not good for retention, this is not good for readiness, and this is not good for the soldier's families. Eventually, recruitment will be seriously affected by these trends.

Additionally, the Army recently announced a new stop-loss policy. While, I certainly recognize the Army's authority and necessity to issue stop loss orders, their issuance in this instance is yet another reason why we need to increase the size of the Army. For all the benefits in group cohesion that results from extended tours, the Army will be facing a serious crisis when it comes time for these soldiers to reenlist on their own accord. I am concerned about the effect that these stop-loss orders will have on the morale of our Army. While I still do not believe that we need a draft, we do need to increase the size of the Army to carry out important defense missions.

Once again, I am disappointed that the development of this legislation lent the opportunity for the annual buy America battle. In a similar fashion as last year, the Senate had to beat back a provision in the house version of the legislation that sought to protect parochial interests at the cost of our defense industry and American jobs. It seems as if every year, we fight the same fight in conference. I am pleased that once again, the Senate prevailed over the protectionist leanings in the House.

As I have stated countless times before, we need to provide American servicemen and women with the best equipment at the best price for the American taxpayer. By following this simple philosophy, we will protect both the men and women in uniform, as well as our domestic defense industry.

The international considerations of buy America provisions are immense. Isolationist, go-it-alone approaches have serious consequences on our relationship with our allies. Our country is threatened when we ignore our trade agreements. Currently, the U.S. enjoys a trade balance in defense exports of 6-to-1 in its favor with respect to Europe, and about 12-to-1 with respect to the rest of the world. We don't need protectionist measures to insulate our defense or aerospace industries. If we enact laws that isolate our domestic defense industry, our allies will retaliate and the ability to sell U.S. equipment as a means to greater interoperability with NATO and non-NATO allies would be seriously undercut. Critical international programs, such as the Joint Strike Fighter and missile defense, would likely be terminated as our allies reassess our defense cooperative trading relationship.

The Senate also successfully defeated an amendment during Senate consideration and again in conference aimed at crippling the upcoming BRAC round. BRAC has taken on a new significance in the war against terror. There has not been a time in recent memory when it has been more important not to waste money on non-essential expenditures. To continue to sustain an infrastructure that exceeds our strategic and tactical needs will make less funding available to the forces that we are relying on to destroy the international network of terrorism. I am once again pleased that the Senate put the good of the Department of Defense over parochial interests and protected the upcoming BRAC round.

The Department of Defense has come out with very fair and reasonable criteria used to select what bases are chosen for BRAC. I have every confidence the Secretary of Defense will carry out this round of BRAC in a just and consistent manner. Sooner or later surplus bases must be closed. Delaying or canceling BRAC would only make the process more difficult and painful than necessary. The sooner the issue is addressed, the greater will be the savings that will ultimately go toward defense modernization and better pay and benefits for our hard working service members.

I understand that some of my colleagues are concerned about the potential negative effects a base closure may have on their local economy. But let me point out that previous base closure rounds have had many success stories. For example, after England Air Force Base closed in 1992, Alexandria, LA, benefitted from the creation of over 1,400 jobs—nearly double the number of jobs lost. Across the U.S., about 60,000 new jobs have been created at closing military bases. At bases closed more than 2 years, nearly 75 percent of the civilian jobs have been replaced. This is not to say that base closures are easy for any community, but it does suggest that communities can and will continue to thrive.

Another issue of considerable diverse views during conference deliberations concerned the aerial refueling tanker lease program. I would be remiss if I did not take the opportunity to praise the leadership of Senate Armed Services Committee Chairman WARNER and Ranking Member LEVIN for their steadfast vigilance during the three-year odyssey on the Air Force's failed Boeing 767 tanker program. I remind my colleagues, again, that three out of the four defense committees that were required to approve the original proposal to lease 100 tankers, did so without so much as reading the contract for the $30 billion procurement proposal. It was the Senate Armed Services Committee and the Commerce, Science, and Transportation Committee that put the brakes on that costly and misguided misadventure. And lest one thought otherwise, the Boeing 767 tanker investigations in the Department of Justice, Department of Defense, Office of Inspector General and the U.S. Senate are continuing and expanding.

Under Section 133 of the National Defense Authorization Act for Fiscal Year

2005, the Air Force may not enter into a sole-source multiyear contract for the lease or purchase of Boeing 767s. Indeed, the Conference Report makes clear that, at the end of the day, the Air Force's plan to modernize or update its fleet must be subject to full and open competition and the traditional budget, procurement and authorization track. The conference report brings the Air Force's plan back to square one.

The bottom line here is this. The aerial refueling tanker provision in the defense authorization bill does much to inject much needed sunlight in a program that has largely been insulated from public scrutiny. In so doing, this provision, that was adopted, directs the Air Force to begin—anew from the beginning—in its program to modernize its tanker fleet. The Air Force will have to now fully consider the Congress's direction, prohibiting the retirement of KC-135E tanker aircraft, as a worthwhile alternative to updating tankers through KC-135E to R conversions. The tanker legislation in this bill ensures that any effort by the Air Force to modernize and replace its fleet of tankers is done responsibly. We should expect no less from the Air Force. That having been said, the final chapter on the failed tanker lease program cannot be closed until those among Air Force leadership who engaged in misconduct, are held accountable.

I also would like to thank the chairman and ranking member, as well as Senators DODD, DEWINE, and HOLLINGS for their assistance in reauthorizing the Assistance to Firefighters Grant Program through Fiscal Year 2009. This program uses a competitive, merit-based review process to give grants directly to local fire departments for equipment, training, and fire prevention programs. Our nation's firefighters must be prepared to respond to a myriad of threats, and this legislation will help ensure that they are adequately trained and equipped to meet them.

Mr. President, Americans are blessed with nearly limitless freedoms and liberties. In exchange for all our country gives to us, it does not demand much in return. Yet throughout our history, millions of people have volunteered to give back to their nation through military service. The selfless acts of courage and sacrifice made by the men and women in our armed services have elevated our nation to the greatness we enjoy today.

America is defined not by its power but by its ideals. One of the great strengths of the American public is the desire to serve a cause greater than our own self interest. All too often, our younger generations are accused of selfishness and an unwillingness to sacrifice. I disagree. I see generations of people yearning to serve and help their fellow citizens. Each year, thousands of our young Americans decide to dedicate a few years or even a full career to protecting the rights and liberties of others. They often do this with very real risks to their lives. They volunteer to do this not for profit, nor for self promotion, but out of a sense of duty, service, and patriotism.

I urge my colleagues to support this important legislation.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, I rise today to speak briefly on the fiscal year 2005 national Defense authorization conference report.

I acknowledge the leadership of the senior Senator from Virginia, Mr. JOHN WARNER, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, in bringing this bill to final passage. Of course, I must also recognize the ranking member, Senator CARL LEVIN. I had the privilege of working with them on the committee for several years and I can attest that each year they work together tirelessly to pass the Defense authorization bill because they understand how absolutely vital this legislation is to the effectiveness and well-being of our Armed Forces.

For that matter, I also recognize every Senator on the committee for their efforts because this conference report authorizes the equipment, the training, and the operational funds necessary to support our troops who are right now operating across the globe to make our Nation and the world more secure.

It also reflects the service and sacrifice of our troops by making a solid investment in their quality of life by increasing their pay and enhancing educational and health care opportunities for our active duty military members, our National Guard and Reserve troops and their family members. And that is only right, for today we are asking a great deal of our gallant young men and women as they guard our Nation at home and abroad and, of course, risk their lives every day to restore freedom and prosperity to the oppressed peoples of Iraq and Afghanistan.

This legislation also recognizes that we owe a continuing debt to those who have served honorably by continuing to work on full concurrent receipt for those with a service connected disability, the same benefit available to every other retired Federal employee, the ability to collect full retirement pay and disability entitlements without offsets. Last year we made great strides in addressing the disparity by which disabled military retirees have their pension benefits reduced, dollar for dollar, by the amount of disability benefits they receive from the Department of Veterans Affairs. And this bill goes even further by removing disabled retirees, who are rated as 100 percent disabled, from the 10-year phase-in period. Thanks to this bill, those retirees will be authorized for full concurrent receipt effective January 2005.

This bill also finally corrects an inequity to those who have doubly sacrificed for our Nation, survivors of those who served this Nation well and honorably. First, they sacrificed each day as their loved one defended our Nation and they again sacrificed when they laid their hero to rest. And how did we repay them, by reducing their survivor benefit payment by over 30 percent once they reached age 62.

In the first session of this Congress, I sponsored S. 451, along with 46 cosponsors, a bill to correct this inequity. My colleague, Senator LANDRIEU, sponsored a similar measure for the same reasons. This year we worked together during the debate to include an amendment that would provide survivors relief from this "widow's tax." I am very pleased to note that the conferees also recognized the unfairness of this reduction and approved a provision that will, over the next 3½ years, raise the percentage of the annuity available for survivors from 35 percent after age 62 back to the 55 percent they were collecting before their birthday.

This bill provides $420.6 billion for Defense programs in fiscal year 2005, an increase of $19.3 billion above the amount authorized by the Congress last year. In addition, the conferees authorized $25.0 billion for additional war-related costs for Operations Iraqi Freedom and Enduring Freedom, including more than $2 billion for force protection measures, including armor, munitions, communications and surveillance programs.

In particular, this bill also provides a little over $10 billion in an area that is critical to the security of the Nation, our shipbuilding capacity. It has become more and more apparent that as we engage the forces of terrorism around the world we have become increasingly dependent on the ability of our Navy to not only deliver troops and munitions to the fight, but to act as the sea base from which our forces can operate without restrictions virtually anywhere in the world.

Yet, as a former chair of the Seapower Subcommittee, I remain concerned about the Navy's shipbuilding program, particularly with respect to the surface combatant force. As part of the 2001 Quadrennial Defense Review, the Navy and DoD approved a plan for maintaining a 310-ship Navy including 116 surface combatants, cruisers, destroyers and frigates. By the end of fiscal year 2003, the Navy's surface combatant fleet had fallen to 106 ships and the Navy has notified Congress that by the end of fiscal year 2004, it was their intent to reduce the force of surface combatants to 103 ships.

Therefore, I am encouraged that this authorization provides $3.6 billion for the construction of three DDG-51 Arleigh-Burke class destroyers for it is these ships, along with cruisers and frigates, that provide protection to the carriers and amphibious ships deployed to the Persian Gulf and around the world to prosecute the war on terrorism. Moreover, it adds $100 million for the DDG in service modernization program to begin the insertion of advanced technologies that will dramatically reduce operation and support costs to the fleet and mitigate the risk of back-fitting these technologies on older ships. Above all, we must pursue every path necessary to provide technologies to our sailors that will ease their workload, enhance their training opportunities and increase the survivability of their ships.

However, this is the last planned funding for the DDG-51 acquisition program, and the next generation of surface combatants, the DD(X) and the Littoral Combat Ship, LCS, are being funded in the research and development accounts. Although this authorization provides $1.5 billion for the continued development of the DD(X), including an additional $84.4 million for the detailed design of the second DD(X) and $350 million for the continued development of the LCS in the RDT&E accounts, there is a looming gap in the shipbuilding and conversion, Navy account for surface combatants.

Without a focused effort on the part of the Navy to commit and invest in a robust surface combatant program, I am concerned not only about the ability of the Navy's surface combatant force to maintain current operating tempos but the continuing viability of our shipbuilding industrial base. Many have noted that in spite of Congress' efforts to stabilize the workload in our surface combatant shipyards, the Navy's changing construction profile is undermining those efforts.

I urge the Navy to heed the stated concerns of Congress, especially those of us with shipyards facing an uncertain future and do everything in their power to stabilize their shipbuilding accounts both in terms of budget and in schedule.

Importantly, this bill sets aside $66.5 billion in the research and development accounts to develop the advanced technologies our troops will use to maintain their technological superiority over their adversaries. Significantly, conferees authorized $11.2 billion for the critical science and technology programs which brings us close to the goal of setting aside 3 percent of the defense budget to invest in the "seed corn" of our future military capability.

Much of that S&T investment will be executed at universities and colleges throughout America. For example, the University of Maine system has been on the forefront of the development of advanced engineered wood structures and composites. The bill provides funds so the university can develop the advanced lightweight structures the Army needs to meet the requirement to establish forward operating bases for our expeditionary forces in the far-flung regions of the world.

In addition, this bill also authorizes continued research at the University of Maine into the structural reliability of fiber-reinforced polymers composites in ship assemblies that will help define and ultimately control the significant property variations found composite plates used in Navy ship construction.

I am deeply disappointed that the House provision to delay the 2005 BRAC round by 2 years was not maintained in this bill because I believe fervently that closing domestic bases at a time we are engaged in a global war is not in the best interests of our Nation.

During the Senate debate on the fiscal year 2005 authorization bill, I and my colleagues, Senators LOTT, DORGAN and FEINSTEIN offered an amendment that would have delayed the 2005 Base Realignment and Closing Process, BRAC, for 2 years in order to focus on a closing process for our overseas military installations because we believed that the Nation must reassess its current overseas force structure and adjust it to meet the threats of today. Unfortunately, our amendment was narrowly defeated by a vote of 47 to 49.

Since then, the President has announced a force restructuring that includes the closure of several overseas military facilities and a redeployment of troops and assets back to the United States. This is exactly the reason we offered our amendment and I continue to strongly believe that until our global defense posture is defined and our foreign basing requirements are thoroughly understood, closing our domestic bases is premature and ill-advised.

Finally, and most importantly, the bill continues our commitment to the men and women in the armed forces and their families through the enactment of several important pay and benefits provisions. First, it includes an across-the-board pay raise of 3.5 percent for all military personnel. It also contains a number of provisions that will directly aid the families of service members. For example, the bill removed the existing funding limitations on the military housing privatization authorities, which will allow the military services to continue to partner with the private sector to provide the highest quality housing for military members and their families in the shortest amount of time.

This authorization rightly recognizes that our Reservists and National Guard troops play an increasingly vital role in the war on terrorism, and extends to them expanded benefits in critical areas such as medical care and special pay rates. The bill approves permanent eligibility for up to 90 days of TRICARE coverage for Reserve members and their families prior to mobilization, and 180 days of transitional health benefits for Reserves, active duty members, and their families when the member separates from active duty service. It also authorizes a new program of educational assistance to members of the Selected Reserve, providing varying amounts of aid depending on the length of time they were mobilized.

Overall, this authorization provides the men and women of our armed forces with the equipment they need to accomplish their mission, the quality of life they have earned and security for their families. For these reasons, I support this legislation and urge my colleagues to pass this conference report unanimously because in a time when our Nation is facing unprecedented security challenges and dangers, we can do no less.

Ms. SNOWE. Mr. President, as chair of the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship, I express my views on the Conference Report for H.R. 4200, the fiscal year 2005 DOD Authorization Act. Defense authorization legislation typically contains a variety of provisions pertaining to government contracting, and these provisions have a significant impact on the ability of small firms to compete for Federal procurement dollars. Small businesses will find that this report contains both positive and negative provisions.

First, I express my deep disappointment with the decision of the Conference Committee to remove from the act the legislative language requiring consideration of small business interests by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy's advisory panel on reform of government contract laws, extending the panel's term, and specifically requiring the panel to report its findings to the Congressional small business committees. I originally proposed this language as Senate Amendment No. 3273. It was adopted unanimously by the Senate and codified in Section 805 of the DOD Authorization Act.

The work of this advisory panel, like its predecessor panels, is critical to the long-range direction of acquisition reforms. This panel, authorized by Section 1423 of the fiscal year 2004 National Defense Authorization Act, was to emphasize the study of commercial practices, performance-based contracting, the performance of acquisition functions across agency lines of responsibility, and the use of Governmentwide contracts. In making appointments to the panel, the administrator for Federal Procurement Policy was required to consult the agency heads as well as the House and Senate Armed Services Committees, Governmental Affairs Committee, and House Government Reform Committees. The panel's authorizing legislation required it to prepare a written report with recommendations and to submit this report to these named Committees along with the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Administrator, or OFPP.

Curiously, the panel's mandate was silent with regards to small business contracting, even though the Federal Government is committed by law to the goal of awarding 23 percent of all prime contracts to small businesses. My amendment, as adopted by the Senate, responded to this glaring omission by extending the panel's reporting period, requiring the panel to make recommendations on assuring small business participation in Government contracting, and directing the panel to submit its report to the House and Senate Small Business Committees.

Because of President Bush's strong support for small business contractors, the policies of Section 805 had solid backing from the administration. Over the summer, I wrote to the White House and requested that small businesses be represented both in the composition and in the work of this panel. In reply, OFPP Acting Administrator Robert Burton responded that, "Based on your suggestion, I will ensure that senior level representation from the Small Business Administration will serve on the panel. Moreover the Office of Federal Procurement Policy will request the panel to specifically address small business contracting and subcontracting issues."

Some recent changes to Federal procurement laws have had the effect of decreasing competition, accountability, and transparency in the procurement process while increasing the barriers to entry faced by small business contractors. Section 805 was designed to address this unfortunate trend, and I believe it should not have been removed.

I am particularly disappointed the conference report contradicts the public position of the administration that small business interests deserve consideration in formulating Federal procurement reforms by the Office of Federal Procurement Policy advisory panel. However, let me be clear: the Conference Committee's decision to remove Section 805 does not overrule the commitment of the OFPP administrator and does not prevent the Senate Small Business Committee from closely monitoring the work of the panel and holding in-depth oversight hearings on its report.

In addition, I find unfortunate the choice to permit exemption of the entire landscaping and pest control industries from the application of the Small Business Act. Adoption of this provision was not marked up by either the Senate Committee on Small Business and Entrepreneurship or the House Committee on Small Business.

I also regret the conference committee's decision not to authorize transitional counseling on federal procurement opportunities at the DOD and the Department of Veterans Affairs facilities. Our veterans, especially service-disabled veterans, deserve immediate assistance. However, I am encouraged that the Conference Committee directed the Comptroller General to conduct a study on this subject. I am also very pleased that HUBZone and service-disabled veteran-owned small businesses can now participate in the DOD Mentor-Protégé Program, preserved the parity between the small business reserve threshold and the simplified acquisition threshold in future threshold adjustments for inflation, limited the period of multi-year task order contracts to 10 years, protected small businesses engaged in the DOD satellite procurement against arbitrary changes, and refused to adopt changes to source selection criteria which may have favored large businesses over small contractors.

In conclusion, I again commend President Bush and Acting OFPP Administrator Burton for the administration's continued steadfast support of small business-friendly procurement policies. I look forward to continuing to work closely with the Office of Federal Procurement Policy.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I want to express my appreciation to Senators WARNER and LEVIN for their expert guidance for moving this huge piece of legislation through the Congress. This will now go to the President of the United States.

One of the provisions in this legislation is so important to me—more important to 40,000 100-percent disabled Americans. Those who are 100-percent disabled will receive the concurrent receipts immediately. We had a 10-year phaseout. That will no longer be the case.

That was not easy, but it is really wonderful because, first of all, those 40,000 are either disabled, unable to work at all and, frankly, the vast majority of them may not live 10 years to receive their benefits. This is so important that these most dedicated members of our armed services, who are 100-percent disabled, will receive these benefits immediately.

I appreciate very much the work of the chairman and ranking member, Senator LEVIN.

I also want to express my appreciation to Senator HARKIN. Senator HARKIN basically had a hold on the work we do around here, meaning he was going to slow everything up. Senator HARKIN is a veteran himself. He understands that this is not something which needs to be held up.

I want the RECORD to be spread with the appreciation of the four leaders for Senator HARKIN's cooperation in this matter to allow this bill to go to the President right now.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I join in that. Senator HARKIN was actually a Naval aviator. We have discussed that distinguished part of his career many times.

I thank the distinguished senior Senator from Nevada. He very quietly works on issues. I can remember a year ago we stood in this well when we weren't able to achieve that goal, the distinguished Senator from Nevada himself—I think Senator MCCAIN was very active and Senator LEVIN. We said: All right. This year we can't get it, but next year we will. Through the Senator's absolute resolute determination that was accomplished. He did it for a category of veterans who are well deserved of this recognition by the Congress and the American people for their services.

I thank the Senator.

TECHNICAL CORRECTION IN ENROLLMENT OF H.R. 4200

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I believe this has been cleared on both sides.

I ask unanimous consent that the Senate proceed to the immediate consideration of H. Con. Res. 514, which is at the desk.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will report the concurrent resolution by title.

The assistant legislative clerk read as follows:

A concurrent resolution (H. Con. Res. 514) directing the Clerk of the House of Representatives to make a technical correction in the enrollment of the bill H.R. 4200.

There being no objection, the Senate proceeded to consider the concurrent resolution.

Mr. WARNER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent the concurrent resolution be agreed to, the motion to reconsider be laid upon the table, and that any statements relating to the concurrent resolution be printed in the RECORD.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

The concurrent resolution (S. Con. Res. 514) was agreed to.

Mr. WARNER. I thank the distinguished Presiding Officer.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Alaska, chairman of the Appropriations Committee, is recognized.

Mr. STEVENS. I thank the Chair.

The House passed the military construction appropriations bill as well as the homeland security bill. No one voted against the bills. The first one was 374-0 and the second was 368-0.

Military construction contains $2.8 billion for the drought and $11.6 billion for disasters which includes the hurricanes. This bill affects all our States with farms that are suffering from the drought and it helps states like Florida and Alabama that were in the path of the hurricanes. FEMA will likely run out of money tonight, Saturday, October 9.

On October 1 FEMA had $836 million which included a $500 million carryover from FY 2004 and a $336 million apportionment under the continuing resolution. That means they get 51 days worth of cash since the CR takes us through November 20. But FEMA tells me that they burn through this money at approximately $65 million to $79 million a day. The balance in the disaster fund yesterday, Friday, October 8, was only $150 million. The fund runs dry tonight.

It is true they can re-apportion under the CR, which means they can transfer funds from other areas but it will have to be taken from places like our Federal air marshals, air cargo inspections, port security, and more.

On homeland, many believe we will be attacked before the election. There is a continuing resolution in affect until November 20 but getting this bill increases much of the effort we are making to protect the United States.

It also has new programs that cannot be started until we pass this bill. Some of the program I refer to are radiations detection, aviation security technology, border surveillance, additional detention and removal programs. Getting more screeners at airports is on hold. All first responder grant allocations would be put on hold.

The Coast Guard will not be able to re-engine the HH-65 helicopter for at least 6 months, causing the Coast Guard to continue to experience alarming rates of engine failures. At current funding levels, there are insufficient funds to support the Coast Guard's increased force presence in Iraq port security units, patrol boats, and security forces on oil rigs.

Cargo screening will remain only at current levels—we will forgo a tripling of cargo screening on passenger aircraft. Research and development of new technologies for cargo security will be delayed.

TSA will not hire replacement screeners to fill vacancies at airports, causing longer lines at airports, particularly around the holiday period. TSA will delay airport modifications to install explosive detection devices to screen for explosives in carry-on baggage as recommended by the 9/11 Commission.

The department will not be able to hire additional Federal air marshals, FAMS and, in fact, may have to lay off FAMS that they have on staff, up to 500.

This bill includes significant increases in the intelligence capabilities of the department. A continuing resolution will prevent that expansion from taking place leaving the nation at risk.

Under a continuing resolution the Transportation Security Administration has very little funding for rail and transit security. All of the additional funding available for inspectors, canine teams, research and other activities is in the fiscal year 2005 appropriation. None of the additional funding for letters of intent for airport security modifications will be available.

Seven hundred and ninety-two new Coast Guard personnel will not be hired to enforce maritime security plans.

It prevents interoperable communications and personal protective equipment from reaching rural and smaller communities.

Fire departments will remain critically understaffed without the implementation of the SAFER Act.

The biowatch program will not be expanded in major urban areas, affecting our ability to detect the release of biological agents in the air.

It stops the procurement of 250 additional radiation detection/inspection systems.

It delays procurement of border surveillance systems to monitor and defend U.S. borders.

It delays Container Security Initiative, CSI needed to stay on schedule to add up 22 more ports to existing 25.

It delays establishment of fugitive operation teams and hinders immigration enforcement—limiting detention and arrest operations of criminal alien fugitives and hindering our ability to keep jailed aliens from being released into our communities.

It delays staffing up for overseas operations to ensure no visas are granted to foreign visitors who pose a security risk.

It delays adding 750 beds to hold alien detainees, allowing 5,000 deportable aliens to stay in our communities.

It delays support to reduce the backlog in immigration prosecutions.

Delaying the bill delay this Nation's security. Delaying the bill delays help to those that are suffering from the after-effects of numerous hurricanes. Delaying the bill will delay much needed drought assistance.

Mr. President, I am here because the Military Construction appropriations bill, as well as Homeland Security appropriations bill, has passed the House. Both of them have passed the House. I know we are not supposed to talk about the vote over there, particularly about how many people voted. But I think we can say consistent with the rules that each one of these bills was passed unanimously with not one single opponent. Why? Because the Military Construction bill contains $2.8 billion to the drought program and $11.6 billion for the disasters, particularly those relating to the hurricanes in the Florida area.

This bill will affect all of the States that have farms that are suffering from drought. It certainly helps the Florida area and Alabama—particularly in the path of those hurricanes.

But the reason I have come to the floor now to talk to the Senate is I was reliably informed this afternoon that FEMA runs out of money tonight.

I want to say that again. I hope Senators will listen. FEMA runs out of money tonight. There will be no more payments made in Florida or Alabama. I am told people down there are living in tents. The temperature is rising. They are being given buckets of ice to try to keep cool. They have patients being moved from medical facilities. They are in temporary quarters.

This is probably the worst series of storms in the history of this country.

On October 1, FEMA had $836 million. That included a $500 million carryover from 2004, and they were allocated $336 million under the continuing resolution we passed that expires November 20.

As of tonight, that money is gone. This really is an emergency now.

We have been delayed for one reason or another as we tried to get these bills passed. There were riders offered on the bill in both Houses. We tried to work those out in conference. I know there are some people who are disturbed about some of the riders that weren't included. These were legislative riders that did not pertain to the bills themselves, and there are some that were accepted.

But we have to get this bill done and to the President as quickly as possible.

This covers everything you can think about in terms of the Homeland Security bill—Federal air marshals, air cargo inspections, port security.

As I said, we have a continuing resolution in effect until November 20. As far as the FEMA money, it is gone.

I think we have an absolute obligation to these people who are providing the security for this country to see to it that they get their money on time.

We were unable to get these bills done by the end of the fiscal year, which was September 30, because we had no budget resolution.

We have been working against all sorts of impediments in the appropriations process this year.

We have a number of things in this bill that are absolutely necessary.

We have funds for the Coast Guard, for instance. Many people don't realize the Coast Guard has a presence in Iraq. They have port security units and patrol boats. They have security forces near the oil rigs over there. They are part of our forces over there. They still also have this enormous problem in the United States. They need to increase money.

The continuing resolution continues all of these agencies at the level of money approved by Congress in 2003 for the 2004 period. This is the first quarter of 2005.

The money is for cargo screening. That level of demand has increased. We forego a tripling of cargo screening on passenger aircraft by virtue of the bill that was passed.

We have enormous demands now by the Transportation Security Agency to fill vacancies in airports. There will be longer lines at airports if we don't get this money out to them.

The Department also has the Federal air marshals. I am told that they may have to lay off up to 500 Federal air marshals because they are traveling under that continuing resolution. Their moneys are allocated on the basis of what we thought was necessary in the fall of 2003. This is money for 2005. It must start now.

Again, I don't understand why we can't vote tonight. The House took up these bills and passed them within 2 hours. Each one passed the House within 2 hours because they recognized the need for this money.

Now I am told we may not vote until Monday or Tuesday on these bills. I am sort of aggravated. These bills are necessary.

I would like to identify the people who are objecting to passage of these bills tonight. I hope they come to the floor and defend themselves.

I sat in the Chair and presided over the Senate this morning, and I heard the distinguished minority leader say we cannot leave until these bills pass. We cannot go into recess and go back for the election process until these bills are passed. That should be the bipartisan position of this Senate.

Forget these minute details about antagonism because some person's ego has been bruised because we have not done exactly what they want on these bills. We all have to be bigger than that.

It is time to pass these bills. These delays on this bill affect national security. There is no question that homeland security is the second line of defense now. Our first line of defense is protecting our perimeter. But we have national security as No. 1. We spent weeks on the Homeland Security bill. Now we are refusing to provide the money which we came to total agreement on which they need for next year. It is being delayed. I don't understand that at all.

I particularly don't understand why any Member in the Senate is opposing these bills when it was unanimously approved. Not one voice was raised against these bills in the other House. We represent the same constituents. On what basis does anyone want to oppose these bills, either for the hurricane, military construction, or Homeland Security? I am standing ready. Anyone who wants to debate them, I will be here all night. I want these bills passed. They have to pass. There is no reason why they should not pass.

I am pleased to explain any portion of these bills to any Member tonight, but I don't know why we can't come here and vote for these bills. Someone is objecting somewhere and I would like to find out who it is because I think the whole world—I hope someone is watching, anyway—will ask why. Why can't we do what the House did and approve the bills after such hard work we put in? As I said, it has been totally bipartisan. Not one word in the House from either party was raised against these bills.

I will be back.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The distinguished Senator from Utah.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I agree with the distinguished chairman of the Appropriations Committee. It is a catastrophic failure not to take care of these problems. I salute the chairman for making the statement he made and for the leadership he has provided in this Senate. We all know what a feisty, wonderful man he is. I hope we can get this resolved. I hope whoever has these objections will identify himself or herself and why they are making the objections.

I listened to the statement of the Senator from Massachusetts this afternoon, and to hear him you would think we are living in the most calamitous times in the history of the world, that our country is falling apart, that we are not employing people, that people are getting poorer, and nobody has a chance in our society anymore, all because George W. Bush became President of the United States. It is amazing to me how many comments are made by people who are in the business of politicizing these matters rather than talking sensibly about them.

Think about it, we lost over a million jobs shortly after September 11. Lost them. September 11 was the reason.

That was no fault of President Bush. That was the fault of the people who attacked our country. Over 1.9 million jobs have been created since August of 2003. We now have the lowest unemployment rate in the last 4 or 5 years, 5.4 percent. When I was chairman of the Labor Committee, if you could get unemployment below 6 percent, if you got it to 5.6 percent, you had full employment. When you count those who cannot work, those who don't need to work, and those who won't work, you basically had full employment. 5.4 percent is incredibly low by historical standards.

I might add that the Household Employment Survey shows 2.2 million jobs have been created, many more jobs than shown in the Payroll Survey. This is because the Household Survey counts the self-employed and the Payroll Survey does not. We have the highest rate of home ownership in history, which has been developed during this administration. I can go on and on. The fact of the matter is we can play politics with about everything in this overheated political campaign.

Since September 11, the employment rate peaked at 6.3 percent last year and has come down to 5.4 percent. The current 5.4 percent rate is well below the average rates of the 1970s, the 1980s, and the 1990s. Some have said the job growth has failed to keep up with population growth. That is simply not true. Since last June, total employment has increased by 2.2 million. The labor force has increased by 949,000. Unemployment has fallen by 1.2 million people.

In addition, we hear all the time how people are not making a good living. Let's be honest. In some respects we have priced ourselves out of the marketplace with some of the heavy-duty industries, and we know there are many reasons why that happens, and that goods and services are being produced elsewhere at a lower cost, and this benefits the consumers of America. The consumers of America then have more money and they will be spending more so we can create other businesses that will compete.

The fact of the matter is, I have listened to these complaints about the labor overtime regulations that the Secretary of Labor worked on. I happened to have chatted with her during that process and she was doing an absolutely wonderful job of trying to make sure we got more people eligible to receive overtime pay than ever before. But to listen to some on the other side, you would think the whole world was coming to an end and the fact is she has come up with very good regulations.

We could talk about these things all day, and I guess anyone can distort any statistical analysis. There is a lot of distortion that goes on in this Senate from time to time in these matters. Of course, we are in a heated Presidential election campaign and I have to say I make a certain allowance for that, but I hope the folks out there watching make an allowance for that as well, because we have a lot of heated rhetoric in the Senate that sometimes does not make sense.

I intend to speak about three different things today and I ask unanimous consent my respective remarks be placed in the appropriate context.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mrs. DOLE). Without objection, it is so ordered.

JUSTICE FOR ALL ACT

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I come to the Senate to discuss H.R. 5107, the Justice For All Act that the Senate adopted this morning. After days, months, and now years of hard-fought negotiations, we finally reached an agreement on one of the most significant bills that has come out of the 108th Congress.

Just days ago, the House passed H.R. 5107 by an overwhelming bipartisan vote of 393-14. I especially commend my friends and colleagues, chairman of the House Judiciary Committee JIM SENSENBRENNER from Wisconsin and Congressman Bill Delahunt of Massachusetts, for their leadership on this important bill. Nor could we have accomplished this matter without the cooperation and leadership of my friend from Vermont, Senator PATRICK LEAHY. As we know, the Senate adopted this bill this morning and we are pleased to send it to the President for his signature.

Our bill, the Justice for All Act, contains President Bush's DNA initiative. It also contains Senator LEAHY's Innocence Protection Act which has been modified by almost everyone on the committee, and Senators KYL and FEINSTEIN's victims' rights legislation. This is a groundbreaking crime bill, one of the most important in history, that will allow us to unleash the power of evidentiary DNA and help provide law enforcement the ability to find and punish the guilty, yet give us the comfort of more certainty in criminal prosecution.

Passage of the bill is extremely important to people such as Debbie Smith and Kirk Bloodsworth after whom individual parts of the bill are named. March 3, 1989, Debbie Smith—who I know very well—was the victim of a brutal rape in Williamsburg, Virginia. It took 6 long years to finally analyze Debbie Smith's rape kit. Debbie Smith's rapist was ultimately caught because of this, but it took far too long to catch him.

According to the U.S. Department of Justice, a woman is raped every 6 minutes in this country and many rapists commit this crime 8 to 10 times before they are caught, which means that at any given moment there are literally millions of rape survivors waiting to hear that their attacker has been apprehended.

Debbie Smith waited 6 agonizing years for justice to be served. It was not just waiting for justice to be served; it was agonizing because she was never sure when she walked out of her house or even within her house whether this brutal rapist would return. It was something that affected her all of those years. Thankfully, through the use of DNA evidence, this awful person was apprehended and slammed in jail, where he deserves to be.

Some women are not that fortunate. The Justice Department reports there are approximately 150,000 to 500,000 rape kits nationwide that have yet to be analyzed because law enforcement officials are short on both the funds and the skilled personnel necessary to process these rape kits and match the evidence collected to existing DNA samples of known criminals. Imagine how many rapists we would have caught by now had those up to 500,000 rape kits been analyzed. By the way, some of those are 20 years old. I have been fighting for this bill for years. It is so difficult to get it through, but today is the day it has gone through the Senate and has passed the House.

This bill makes a giant leap in the rape kit backlog and specifies when and how DNA tests should and should not be used. The President has often indicated his commitment to unlocking the power of DNA to solve these crimes. Today the Senate has joined the House in stepping up to follow through with the President's plan.

It cannot be said any better than in Debbie Smith's own words:

Each one of these stalled cases represents women's lives. Many women are paralyzed after an attack because their rapist is still out there, and you never know if he's going to come back.

Now, this bill will not take away the pain and anguish these victims have endured. It can, however, allow for health care professionals, law enforcement, and other first responders to assist victims by using the evidentiary power of DNA to apprehend and prosecute those responsible for these horrible crimes.

This bill was too important to be delayed any longer. As so many of my colleagues, I am well aware of the incomparable power of DNA testing to solve crimes, particularly sexual assault. This fact is reflected in newspaper headlines spread across the country each week. During the week of August 16 alone, the media reported that DNA evidence pinpointed a suspect in three rapes in Miami, FL, caused a man to be charged in a 20-year-old Missouri rape case, and proved critical in convicting a New York man accused of committing nine rapes over the course of a decade.

That is what DNA can do. If we had all these rape cases analyzed, we would be catching these rapists right and left and we would be protecting women all over this country from this type of violent, criminal activity in many cases. So I want to stand here and thank Debbie Smith from the bottom of my heart for her constant efforts to help us pass this bill. I have known her for a long time. We have flown together. She has appeared at our hearings. She is leading the fight throughout America, along with a number of other very courageous women. This has to be a very important day for her.

When this bill is finally signed into law by our President, who will sign it into law, it is going to be a big day for the Debbie Smiths of this world and, I might add, every woman in this world who is the potential target of these vicious rapists.

Also contained in this bill are provisions that will give us assurance that those whom we arrest and convict are indeed those who have committed the crime. Kirk Bloodsworth, a former marine with no criminal background whatsoever, was arrested in 1984 for the brutal rape and murder of 9-year-old Dawn Hamilton on Maryland's Eastern Shore. Kirk Bloodsworth maintained his innocence but was convicted and sentenced to death. After 9 years in prison, two of them on death row, Kirk Bloodsworth, an innocent man, was exonerated by post-conviction DNA testing. Last year, prosecutors matched the DNA evidence in the case to another man, who subsequently pleaded guilty to the crime, for which he was sentenced to death.

This is the power of DNA when it is used and analyzed properly. I want to stand here and thank Kirk Bloodsworth from the bottom of my heart for his efforts to improve and pass this bill. The bill will help to protect unintentional victims of the criminal justice system.

I think we all owe a debt of gratitude to Kirk Bloodsworth. One reason I have stayed around here all day, although there are no more votes, is to be able to stand on this floor and personally pay tribute to Debbie Smith and Kirk Bloodsworth. They deserve it. They have been with us throughout this process, and I have nothing but respect for both of them.

Moreover, this bill includes Senator KYL's and Senator FEINSTEIN's critical Crime Victims Act that ensures victims rights are protected in criminal prosecutions. This bill is truly justice for all.

It is an important bill, and they fought for this for years and years, and we helped them to get it out of committee. I am so grateful it was matched with the DNA bill, and we now have these two bills brought together in one bill that will do a great deal of good for our society.

Finally, let me say I am grateful for the hard work and determination of so many people to get such a vital bill passed.

I thank my cosponsors of this bill. First, let me thank my good friend from Vermont, Senator LEAHY, for his commitment and willingness to set aside politics in a very political year and work with me to get such a critical bill passed.

I also want to recognize and specifically thank Senator BIDEN, Senator

SPECTER, Senator FEINSTEIN, and Senator DEWINE for their calming voices of wisdom throughout the negotiations, our difficult committee markup, and in the final preparations to achieve a properly balanced bill. Without their unwavering support and counsel, this bill would not have occurred.

I also thank the chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, JIM SENBRENNER, and Representative DELAHUNT for their dogged determination on the House side in leading the House in passing this bill through the House on two occasions by overwhelming majorities.

I have worked side by side with Chairman SENBRENNER on many occasions. He is a true friend and he is a man of his word. I am pleased to have had the opportunity to work closely with Congressman DELAHUNT on this measure, and I can tell you, he is a man of honor and wisdom. I have enjoyed working with him. I will look forward to working with both of them again in the future.

I also want to make special mention that without the thorough consideration of this bill by Senators KYL, SESSIONS, and CORNYN, we would not be here today. Nearly two dozen changes were addressed and implemented at the insisting of these fine Senators, and this bill is a better bill because of it. And I have to admit, they have helped to improve the bill.

At times the process through the committee was a bit tension filled, but I commend Senators KYL, SESSIONS, and CORNYN for working to improve and refine this legislation. Some have unfairly criticized their efforts, but that is only because these critics apparently do not understand the committee process. I commend these colleagues and all of my colleagues for giving this bill the scrutiny it deserves.

Now, let me say that many have worked to make this bill a successful effort. We could not get much done around here if we did not have such an intelligent and dedicated staff. I want to thank those on my staff, including Reed O'Connor and Ted Lehman, for their commitment and dedication in getting this bill done. I especially want to single out Brett Tolman, a bright, young assistant U.S. attorney from Salt Lake City who is on assignment to the Judiciary Committee. We are fortunate to have him, and he has made a tremendous difference on this bill. Brett took the initiative for undertaking a lot of the analysis and negotiations that led to the final compromise language.

I am proud of him, and I think everybody else ought to be, too.

I want to thank Senator LEAHY's chief counsel Bruce Cohen and his lead counsel on this issue, Julie Katzman. Their efforts helped guide and drive this effort throughout and are greatly appreciated. We are also indebted to chief counsel Neil MacBride, Jon Meyer, and Louisa Terrell from Senator BIDEN's office. They continuously helped move the ball forward.

I give special thanks to Rob Steinbuch, a senior counsel in Senator DEWINE's Judiciary Committee office. Rob and Brett Tolman were key players on our side of the aisle in educating Members and staff about this bill and proposing creative solutions to problems that surfaced.

I also thank Joe Matal, William Smith, and Chip Roy, who ably represented the views of, respectively, Senators KYL, SESSIONS, and CORNYN.

On the House side, Phil Kiko, chief counsel for Chairman SENBRENNER, Jay Apperson, Katy Crooks, and Christine Leonard were instrumental in building the overwhelming support for this bill.

As well, I give special thanks to Matt McGhie and Bill Jensen from legislative counsel. On this type of bill it is critical to get the language exactly right, and they did so time and time again.

The list of contributors could go on and on because so many private and governmental organizations have also provided critical assistance.

Let me also say, while I had to get a little rough with the Justice Department—and I am still not over it—I am, nonetheless, grateful for their help in coming to compromises and getting this bill in acceptable form. I call upon Attorney General Ashcroft to urge the President to sign this good bill, and to do it quickly.

I thank the leadership, Majority Leader FRIST and Senator MCCONNELL, as well as Minority Leader DASCHLE and Senator REID for giving us floor time to get this done today.

Most of all, I am pleased to send to the President a bill that will make such a difference in the lives of victims of crime, including those wrongly accused or convicted of crimes across this country.

This bill passed 393 to 14 over in the House. We amended it in many ways to make it a far better bill because of the work of all of these people I have been chatting about. I have to say that it passed unanimously by the Senate today. This body sent that version back over to the House, and I am pleased to report that they took it up and passed it so that it may be sent to the President for his signature.

FSC/ETI

Madam President, I rise in strong support of the conference report for the American Jobs Creation Act. Before we leave, we have to pass this bill to protect domestic manufacturers, strengthen our economy, better help our U.S.-based multinational firms compete globally, and honor our trade obligations.

I congratulate the chairman and co-chairman of the conference, Congressman BILL THOMAS and Senator CHUCK GRASSLEY, for completing the bill this week.

Many thought the task would be difficult or impossible given the large differences in the two versions and the time constraints we in the conference faced. This could have taken many weeks—or even failed—yet they got it done.

The innovative conference process developed by the chairman and co-chairman made success possible. Conferencing a large and diverse pair of tax bills in the usual fashion could have taken many weeks and led to a likely failure to finish this bill before sine die adjournment of the 108th Congress. Again, I want to recognize the extraordinary achievement of this conference committee and thank its leaders and my fellow conferees for their hard and dedicated work.

Mr. President, this conference report represents what we hope will be the culmination of a very lengthy and fascinating issue that had its genesis decades ago but has festered into a growing problem over the past several years.

I will leave to others to go into detail about the long history of the export subsidies in our tax law that gave rise to this conference report, but the unusual nature of this bill and its difficulty in passing the Congress are reflections of the complexity of this issue.

The crux of the difficulty of the bill is that the rulings of the World Trade Organization on the trade-legality of our export tax subsidies put the Congress in a very tough position. In essence, we found ourselves needing to repeal these export subsidies, known as the Foreign Sales Corporation (FSC) provision and its replacement regime known as the Extraterritorial Income (ETI) exclusion.

By repealing these provisions, which we must do in order to honor our trade obligations, we effectively raise taxes by almost $6 billion per year on thousands of U.S. businesses that manufacture goods for export.

Leaving it at this, Mr. President, is simply unacceptable. Why should we have to convert a provision designed to help U.S. manufacturers compete in an ever-increasingly difficult global marketplace to a situation where they suffer a competitive disadvantage?

Yet, this is exactly the problem the Congress faces now that it is forced to repeal the export tax benefits.

When confronted with a similar problem in 2000 after the WTO ruled the FSC provision to be in violation of international trade rules, Congress passed the ETI in its place. With the ETI, we were able largely to replicate the benefits of the FSC regime, so that exporting taxpayers paid few if any extra taxes with the repeal of FSC. Unfortunately, the WTO subsequently ruled that the ETI provision also was an illegal trade subsidy that also must be repealed.

So, the conundrum facing the Congress with this situation was to find a way to enact other tax cut benefits for exporting manufacturers, to offset the increase from repealing ETI, without violating the WTO rules.

Unfortunately, Mr. President, this has proven impossible, so both the Senate and House bills attempted to find rough justice for business taxpayers by finding other ways to deliver tax benefits besides basing them on exports. Such attempts gave rise to the political and practical difficulties of this bill, including the fact that it took many months of hard effort to reach the point we are today.

For example, my own bill to address the FSC/ETI problem was S. 1475, the Promote Growth and Jobs in the USA Act, which I introduced in July 2003. This bill would have delivered rough justice tax relief in two ways.

First, it would simplify and rationalize the international tax rules that currently harm the ability of U.S. firms to compete globally, and second, it would provide incentives for companies to increase their ability to produce goods by acquiring new equipment and engaging in more research and development.

Other FSC/ETI solution bills were also introduced. On the same day I introduced S. 1475, Chairman THOMAS introduced H.R. 2896, the American Jobs Creation Act. The two bills were similar in many ways, and both included international tax reforms. The Thomas bill, however, included a number of other provisions designed to help U.S. businesses create jobs and better compete.

Another bill, introduced last year by Congressmen CRANE, RANGEL, and MANZULLO, offered a different direction still. This bill provided a deduction equal to 10 percent of a company's production activities.

In the Senate, Senators GRASSLEY and BAUCUS introduced a bill that included some of the best elements of all the other bills. Even though I preferred the solution set forth in my bill, I co-sponsored the Grassley-Baucus bill because it represents a solid and reasonable solution to the problem. This bill, as modified, became the legislation reported by the Finance Committee and passed by the Senate.

After a great deal of travail and adjustments, the House also passed a FSC/ETI bill, and it was quite similar in many respects to the first Thomas American Jobs Creation Act. These are the bills the conference committee had to combine into one.

Madam President, I know that you and your colleague, Congressman BURR, and others from North Carolina and South Carolina and all over the South have worked long and hard. Also, Senator MCCONNELL, Senator BUNNING and others from Kentucky have long worked to try to resolve these problems. I want to pay tribute to you folks for bringing this about. You deserve a lot of credit. Let's hope we can pass this bill.

I admit it is not everything that some wanted it to be, but it is certainly a step in the right direction, and it wouldn't have occurred except for the distinguished Senator from North Carolina, Mrs. DOLE, Congressman BURR, and others who have carried this ball very effectively up through this point.

I hope that we do not filibuster this bill. I hope nobody will filibuster this bill because it is a bill that just has to pass. If it does, much of the credit should go to the people I have just mentioned. There are others as well who should be mentioned. I don't mean to leave them out. But those in particular I know have been working assiduously on this for many years.

The result, as we know, is a bill that is far from perfect. Its enactment will result in a net tax increase for some exporting companies that now use the ETI provision, and in a net tax cut for many other U.S. manufacturing firms that may have not taken advantage of the ETI exclusion.

And while the bill includes many important other provisions, it leaves out some very important provisions that I advocated. For example, I am personally very disappointed that the House conferees voted against including my bill, the CLEAR ACT, in this conference report. This bill, which has passed the Senate at least three times and also has passed the House, would transform the auto industry by granting strong tax incentives for consumers who buy alternative fueled and advance technology vehicles, such as hybrid electric cars and, ultimately hydrogen cars.

From a broader point of view, most of my fellow Senate conferees and I would have liked to see the entire set of energy tax provisions from the Senate-passed bill included in the conference report. I believe it was a mistake to omit these important provisions.

I also very much regret that the House conferees refused to adopt my amendment to bolster our research tax credit. While it is true that the research credit was extended for a short time in the most recently passed tax bill dealing with individual tax cuts, that legislation left out an important element contained in the Senate FSC/ETI bill designed to improve the incentives this provisions gives for companies to engage in R&D activities.

Nevertheless, the conference report before us is worthy of our support, as we must honor our obligations under the World Trade Organization.

Of more immediate importance is the fact that the Europeans are levying an increasing level of trade sanctions against certain of our products exported to the EU. This is currently 12 percent and is growing by one percentage point per month. It is definitely having a very serious negative effect on certain U.S. industries and could amount to more than $4 billion in total cost, unnecessary cost to our country if this bill is not passed.

Moreover, the trade sanctions are authorized to continue to increase until next March, when they will have reached 17 percent. After this, the EU may authorize even more serious sanctions against us that would surely harm our economic growth.

If we do not succeed in passing this conference report before sine die adjournment of the 108th Congress, we must start the process all over again next year.

Would this result in a better bill? Perhaps. But that is far from certain. What is more likely is that the resolution to this issue would be delayed for many more months, giving the trade sanctions more time to damage our economy and harm U.S. businesses.

Let me take a few minutes to discuss some of the specific provisions that are in the conference report and why I we should enthusiastically support them and why I support them.

Overall, this conference report has a good balance to it.

In addition to the vital repeal of the ETI provision and the quite reasonable transition relief it provides for current ETI users, the bill offers significant provisions for both small businesses and large multinational firms.

Mixed in is a generous portion of important tax relief for business interests of all kinds.

Also included in the conference report is significant relief specifically for small businesses.

Foremost in this category are the five sections that would simplify and reform the taxation of S corporations.

These are changes I have long fought for and sought with several of my colleagues and I am gratified to see them included by the conference.

Other provisions important to the balance of this bill are those designed to simplify and improve the rules by which this Nation taxes international business transactions.

Quite simply, our outdated, international tax rules are appalling.

Whether large, medium or small, U.S. businesses that decide to expand their markets beyond the borders of the United States confront a set of tax rules that are mind-numbingly complex. Far worse, these rules often result in double taxation and leave our companies on the downside of a tilted playing board when compared with competitors based in most other industrialized nations.

The bill before us includes about two dozen provisions that will improve the tax law for U.S. companies that have expanded their markets overseas.

As a senator who has long been interested in seeing this type of reform enacted—in fact I have introduced bills to do this since the mid-1990s—this is a particularly gratifying day.

Some of my colleagues have incorrectly concluded that improving our rules on international taxation will give an incentive to U.S. companies to move their jobs overseas. This is unfortunate, Mr. President. Cross-border investing is not only a necessity of our modern world, it is usually beneficial to both nations. Most U.S. companies that invest in expansion into markets in other nations do so to compete effectively with other suppliers in those markets and here at home.

A fact of life of our modern economy is that our U.S.-based business enterprises face competition from all parts of the globe. It is unrealistic to think that an American business can simply focus on markets here at home and thrive. Instead, most of today's businesses must be mindful of both markets and material and labor supplies around the world if they are to stay in business very long.

While no one likes to see U.S. jobs move overseas, we should be more concerned about creating and maintaining in the U.S. the kind of environment that attracts businesses. Part of that environment is ensuring that our tax system does not drive businesses offshore to other nations that tax them in a more favorable fashion. This bill moves our tax system a big step in that direction, and I am pleased to see these changes finally reach the point where they are about to become law.

Let me turn to the tobacco issues associated with this conference report.

At the center of the tobacco buyout is the tobacco farmer. The tobacco price support and tobacco quota programs have helped to secure a reasonable living for many family farmers.

At the same time, breaking the nicotine dependency of U.S. citizens and especially children requires us to address the dependency of tobacco growers on the tobacco industry and on the government programs.

It will not be an easy transition for many tobacco growers, and Congress is strongly on record as supporting measures to help these families survive it.

This proposal does a good job of getting the Government out the farming business while making temporary assistance available to farmers as they adjust to the free market. And, there is no cost to the Government.

As far as the provision requiring the Food and Drug Administration to regulate tobacco, let me say that I fully support measures to end tobacco use in the United States.

I can think of few public health dangers worse than tobacco, and this is especially true for young people.

I have heard from many concerned parents and health advocates in Utah who point out the need to take action against the devastating health consequences of tobacco use.

In many aspects, the DeWine-Kennedy language was written to achieve that goal, and in that spirit I supported it in conference.

In fact, much of the bill is taken from a measure that I authored several years ago with Senator DIANNE FEINSTEIN.

That being said, I am concerned about some aspects of the way the bill was written, and especially the impact of this language on the resources of the FDA.

First, the Committee of jurisdiction, the HELP Committee, should have the opportunity to consider this legislation—allowing the FDA to regulate tobacco—before we vote. Having been the Chairman of that Committee for several years, I know full well the complexities of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Three hours of debate on the Senate floor was not enough time to consider legislation that made such dramatic changes to current law.

We also must be clear about the impact that such legislation would have on the FDA. Does it have adequate resources to regulate tobacco and still keep up with its other, extremely important responsibilities? I question whether it does. If we are not willing to give them the resources, then it is easy to see why that part of the request by Senators DeWine, Kennedy, myself, and others should be delayed until this matter is addressed.

While I recognize that user fees were included in the legislation, I am not convinced that those fees would have provided the FDA with sufficient resources to regulate tobacco. These concerns bear further examination.

They need committee hearings. They need to be examined thoroughly.

Finally, I want to touch on some of the revenue offsets included in the conference report.

I support the principle of keeping this revenue neutral, and I congratulate the conferees for doing so.

This was a particular sticky problem with the House Members, so I especially recognize their hard work in bowing to the Senate's demand that this bill be fully offset. I am very pleased to see that several revenue offset provisions that were in the Senate bill are not part of the conference report.

One of these is the codification of the economic substance doctrine. I believe enactment of this provision would have led to a great deal of unnecessary conflicts between taxpayers and the Internal Revenue Service and would have unfairly penalized companies for engaging in legitimate tax planning techniques.

One provision that did not make it into the conference report raises revenue in connection with the donation of used vehicles. This may appear to be a reasonable proviso, particularly in light of some of the alleged abuse surrounding the charitable donation of used vehicles. I am concerned about the impact of this change on charitable giving. A chilling effect on the donation of these used cars could leave many worthy charities short of vital funds needed to perform their valuable services to needy citizens in Utah and elsewhere. I would keep a watchful eye on the implementation of this change in the law to make sure it doesn't harm the charities. It may well be that we need to revisit this area of the law in the future.

I had one of my finest constituents call me last night—it may have been the night before, things have been moving so fast here—she said it would really hurt their kidney foundation partners, which have raised hundreds of thousands of dollars in donations of used vehicles. She recognizes we have to do it right so that the Government is protected and our tax system is not abused, but I would hate to see her not have these moneys coming in for that important foundation, and others as well.

In conclusion, the conference report before us represents a good bill that deserves our support. As I have indicated, the bill is far from perfect, but given the difficult political circumstances surrounding this bill, it is remarkable that we were able to bring to the Senate floor a product as good as it really is. I urge colleagues to support the conference agreement.

MEDICARE PRESCRIPTION DRUG COVERAGE

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, finally, I have to respond to the outrageous charges made by colleagues on the other side of the aisle regarding the Medicare statement I delivered on the Senate floor yesterday. I was disturbed by several remarks—especially that seniors have flatly rejected the Medicare prescription drug benefit. That may be the hope of some people on the other side, but that is not reality.

How is that even possible when the drug benefit doesn't even go into effect until January 1, 2006? That is pure, unmitigated bunk. I am offended that this argument is even being made on the floor of the Senate by my colleagues because it is absolutely not true. It is being made to scare our seniors. And that is wrong. How is that possible when many Medicare beneficiaries are participating in the Medicare drug discount card and have seen savings in their drug costs up to 20 percent per drug? What is being said is just not true. I don't see that as an outright rejection. My colleagues need to be careful about their charges, especially when they don't have facts to back them up.

I take issue with the assertion that our prescription drug law is only a drug law in name. What do they mean by that? Let me remind the Senator from Illinois that because of this new Medicare prescription drug law, 40 million Medicare beneficiaries will have drug coverage if they want it. They will have the choice. The bill provides generous subsidies to low-income Medicare beneficiaries, who today cannot afford to purchase drugs; today they don't have the help. They are talking like this bill does nothing—the bill which spends $400 billion-plus to improve Medicare for our seniors and the disabled.

Prior to enactment of the Medicare Modernization Act, these beneficiaries had to make tough choices between buying prescription drugs and putting gas in their cars or buying prescription drugs and putting food on the table or buying prescription drugs and paying their rent. Once a Medicare drug plan goes into effect on January 1, 2006, those Medicare beneficiaries will no longer have to worry about this matter that they have to worry about now. To scare our seniors into thinking these benefits are not going to be great for them—it is incomprehensible to me that anybody has the gall to make those kinds of claims.

Here is another point that needs to be raised regarding this matter: If there were any proposals that deserve to be recognized as offering a drug benefit in name only, it is the two Democratic plans of 2 years ago, which were supported by 50 and 45 Democrats respectively, including the Democrat leader and Senator KERRY, their candidate for President. My colleague, Senator GRASSLEY, described these plans a few days ago. Let me take a few minutes to recap.

The first Democratic plan had a drug benefit that lasted just 6 years; that was the end of it. Talk about offering a drug benefit in name only. The second plan didn't even offer a benefit to the vast majority of beneficiaries. Seventy percent of beneficiaries would not have received any basic coverage, and they are coming on the floor and saying this $400 billion-plus plan does nothing? Give me a break. A plan that shuts out the vast majority, 70 percent, of beneficiaries—how can you call that a drug benefit? Those were their plans.

Guess what those 70 percent got. You are not going to believe this. They got a 5-percent discount on their drugs in their plan. Once they spent $3,300 out of pocket, they could qualify for catastrophic coverage. That was their plan. And they are criticizing this plan, which was bipartisan, overwhelmingly passed?

Some have taken issue with the Medicare reform bill, saying that the “benefit” stops after an initial coverage amount. I remind my colleagues on the other side of the aisle that their basic benefit would have never even started for 70 percent of beneficiaries—for 70 percent. They would have been left out by their plan, and they are criticizing this plan? Talk about a donut hole. These beneficiaries didn't even get a donut.

The Congressional Budget Office estimated that 66 percent of beneficiaries would not even meet the $3,300 threshold. Again, for these folks, the only help they would get was a 5-percent discount. And they are criticizing our drug discount card where they are getting an average of 20 percent and in some cases even more?

I was also extremely disappointed by the arguments by the Senator from Illinois and the Senator from California against what some have termed the “non-interference” provision. As I outlined, this provision has been included in the most prominent Democrat initiatives, starting with the Clinton Health Security Act a decade ago. Despite that fact—and it was in their bills—here we are listening to arguments against this bill. Apparently, what was good in a Democratic administration is very bad in a Republican one. They ought to be shouting for joy that we are putting some of their provisions into this bill. The problem is, these were not their provisions; they were all of our provisions, those of us who worked in a bipartisan way.

What was good in a Democrat Senate is bad in a Republican Senate—during an election year especially. It is almost as if my colleagues were not listening to what I said the other day. The argument that there is no authority for the Federal Government to bargain with pharmaceutical companies is getting to be a tired, wornout, old argument. Again, I will repeat myself from yesterday. First, the Democrat-sponsored bill from 2000, introduced by the Senator from South Dakota and cosponsored by 33 Democrats, had a specific provision which stated the following:

In administering the prescription drug benefit program established under this part, the secretary may not [this is the Democrat language in their bill, which had almost every Democrat on it] (1) require a particular formulary or institute a price structure for benefits; (2) interfere in any way with negotiations between private entities and drug manufacturers or wholesalers; or (3) otherwise interfere with the competitive nature of providing a prescription drug benefit through private entities.

Again, this provision is from the bill introduced by Senator DASCHLE, which was cosponsored by 33 Democrats, including not only Senator KERRY, their candidate for President, but also Senators DURBIN and BOXER, who spoke against it on the floor yesterday. It takes time to do it correctly. CMS, the agency in charge of the Medicare program, needs time to implement the MMA regulations, accept bids from plans that wish to participate in the Medicare advantage programs, and, most important, it takes time to educate Medicare beneficiaries about the options that will be offered to them.

Let me remind all of my colleagues that even the Democrat proposals that have been considered in the past did not have the Medicare prescription drug programs go into effect immediately. So that is just a ludicrous charge.

In addition, I remind my colleagues that both the Democratic plans in consideration in December of 2002 didn't go into effect until 2005. I suspect that the authors of these plans recognized the same thing that we did, that it takes time to get a new, comprehensive drug program up and running. That is why the drug plan will not be available until January 1, 2006.

So, there is no subterfuge behind the 2006 date in the MMA. Moreover, at least the MMA offers immediate assistance through the drug card program. Their plans offered nothing until 2005, and then very little after that. And cost us a bundle more. They were not even well thought out, in my opinion.

I would also like to respond to the comments of my colleague from California comments about the Veterans Administration system and the deficiencies which I described yesterday morning. If my colleague from California is surprised at the Republicans not using the VA model then my only guess is she is even more surprised that her own party did not. No, they wanted to have private plans negotiate with drug companies, the same approach taken in the MMA, the Medicare reform bill.

The VA system was not a model for any Medicare prescription drug plans considered on the Senate floor, advanced by either Democrats or Republicans.

Finally, let me address the idea of importing cheap drugs from Canada. First, nobody has a greater desire than I do to make prescription drugs more affordable, particularly for our seniors and the disabled who depend so heavily upon pharmaceuticals for their quality of life. I co-authored the 1984 bill, the Hatch-Waxman Act, which in essence created the modern generic drug industry, brought generic drugs to the marketplace to become the force for competition and affordability that they are today. It has been called the most important consumer legislation in the last century by some. It has saved at least $10 billion every year since 1984. That law was written by a conservative Republican in the Senate, myself, and a liberal Democrat in the House, Congressman HENRY WAXMAN, because we were willing to put differences aside, get together and do what was right.

With regard to drug importation, my colleagues seem to forget that the MMA does include a provision to permit the importation of prescription drugs from Canada, once a program is in place that is approved and certified for, guess what, safety and cost by the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services.

That sounds logical to me. We want those drugs to be safe and we want to know that we can afford to implement this program.

The bill also calls for the Secretary to establish a 13-member task force that will study proposals to make reimportation safe and cost effective. HHS Secretary Tommy Thompson has indicated that the panel's recommendations will be completed by the end of this year.

Up to 80 percent of imported drugs coming through our ports today, are knockoffs, out-of-date drugs or placebos.

Can you imagine what could happen if drugs tainted by terrorists come into this country? Drugs filled with gradual poison, or even instant poison? Our nation must be concerned about these things because they impact the safety of our citizens.

We should not overlook the fact that the FDA has documented many cases of what appeared to be FDA approved imported drugs that were in fact contaminated or counterfeit, contained the wrong product or incorrect dose, or were accompanied by incorrect directions or had outlived their expiration date. These drugs would be at minimum ineffective and could actually be harmful or even fatal.

The FDA is also concerned with the safety of allowing companies which are not licensed by States to practice pharmacy to sell prescription drugs without any limitation on the amount or frequency of drug imports permitted for individuals. In addition, reimportation legislation as it is written would allow risky drugs that are currently available in the U.S. only under strict safety rules or controls, to be reimported in any amount or frequency to anyone, even those who are at high risk to be seriously injured by the medication.

The FDA underscored these concerns in the Judiciary Committee's hearings on reimportation last July. The Agency stressed that opening our tightly regulated closed system of prescription drug distribution will open the door counterfeit and otherwise adulterated and misbranded drugs being widely distributed to unwitting American public. Mr. William K. Hubbard, Associate Commissioner for Policy and Planning for the FDA testified at this hearing and I would like to take this opportunity to read some of his testimony to my colleagues.

FDA remains concerns about the public health implications of unapproved prescription drugs from entities seeking to profit by getting around U.S. legal standards for drug safety and effectiveness. Many drugs obtained from foreign sources that either purport to be or appear to be the same as U.S. approved prescription drugs are in fact of unknown quality. Consumers are exposed to a number of potential risks when they purchase drugs from foreign sources or from sources that are not operated by pharmacies properly licensed under State pharmacy laws.

Patients are also at greater risk because there is no certainty what they are getting when they purchase some of these drugs. Although some purchasers of drugs from foreign sources may receive genuine product, others may unknowingly buy counterfeit copies that contain only inert ingredients, legitimate drugs that have been outdated and have been diverted to unscrupulous or dangerous sellers, sub-potent or superpotent products that were improperly manufactured. Furthermore in the case of foreign based sources, if the consumer has an adverse drug reaction or any other problem, the consumer may have little or no recourse either because the operator of the pharmacy often is not known, or the physical location of the seller is unknown, or beyond the consumer's reach.

FDA has only limited ability to take action against these foreign operators.

These safety concerns are real. I strongly believe if we truly care about seniors and other patients who depend upon prescription drugs, we should not expose them to what currently amounts to pharmaceutical Russian roulette.

The FDA is working with some of my colleague on legislation that would give the FDA greater resources, limit the scope of imports, and provide greater power to the FDA to police imports. In recent comments, former Commissioner Mark McClellan, now head of CMS, has said these measures would give the agency the ability to assure the safety of prescription drugs imported from Canada.

In addition to these safety concerns, however, I am also concerned that reimported drugs pose a threat to the innovation that Americans and the rest of the world have come to expect from our pharmaceutical industry, the greatest industry in the world. Canada and other countries with lower drug prices generally import superior American products, but impose price controls to keep those costs down.

It may cost as much as $1 billion to produce a new drug, test it, win FDA approval, educate doctors, and make the drug available to patients. No pharmaceutical company can or would go through this immensely expensive process without a chance to recover some of those costs, which will not be possible if we impose, in America, however incorrectly, Canada's style of price controls.

But, wait, it not only costs $1 billion to create one of these drugs—6,000 experimentations that failed to finally arrive at a drug that is efficacious. And, in most cases, about three-quarters of the patent life is also consumed by that process. So the companies, to recoup that $1 billion and make a profit, they have maybe 5 years, in some cases, maybe less, to recoup their profits. That is the reason why drug prices are so high. These safety concerns are real and I strongly believe if we truly care about seniors and other patients who depend upon prescription drugs, we should not expose them to what currently amounts to pharmaceutical Russian roulette.

I do not believe that sacrificing the safety and future supply of our drugs by reimportation is the right answer to the high cost of prescription drugs.

I hope I have cleared up some of the misunderstandings that Medicare beneficiaries have about the MMA law. Again, we gain nothing by spreading untruths about the Medicare bill. I have been discouraged with some of the comments made by some of our colleagues who know better, or should know better. They need to review the bills that they cosponsored and wanted to pass on the Senate floor. In my opinion, those bills did not do nearly as much for seniors as the MMA. Frankly, those bills were more costly, and provided seniors with less benefits. The MMA law passed with bipartisan support in both Houses. The only thing that results from charges which have been made on this floor, is confusion of Medicare beneficiaries, the very people all of us are trying to help. I think that is regrettable.

It is astounding to me that some of our colleagues are scaring our seniors to death when we are spending $400-plus billion to provide them with better Medicare coverage. The MMA helps the truly poor so they don't have to worry about donut holes. In my opinion, the MMA is something all of us should support.

What gets me upset are some of the arguments being made on the floor that are not only erroneous but, I think, are misleading. I believe many are just being made for political purposes.

I think one Senator called my argument flimflam—yesterday. I defy anybody to refute the principles I have discussed here today and the remarks I have made here today. You can differ with them, you can disagree with them, but I don't think you can disagree with the facts.

It is time for all of us to start helping seniors by helping them to understand this bill so they can benefit from it. Deep down, I think one reason some oppose this bill so much is because it represents liberty and freedom in the case of the health savings accounts. HSAs was one of the most hard-fought provisions in the entire bill by the other side. I believe the opponents of the bill do not think the American people can save for their own health care. They don't trust the American people to save for their own health care. They believe the Government is the last answer to everything. They believe without the Federal Government telling them how to live, what to do, and what they can consume that they can't help themselves.

Can you imagine a young person who took advantage of that health savings account? That young person would have to assume the burden of paying for all of these Federal programs in health care. If that young person saved $1,000 a year tax free for his or her entire working life up to 56 or perhaps 70, because we are all living longer these days, that young person would have hundreds of thousands of dollars, if not a million, to take care of his or her own health care.

That is the way it ought to be. Isn't that the American way? Shouldn't we try to take care of ourselves first and then help others?

I believe the Federal Government should help those who cannot help themselves. Where I draw the line is I don't believe that the Federal Government should help those who could help themselves but won't. I think there is a difference between the two. But there is nobody more compassionate than I in helping those who truly need the help.

I wanted to set the record straight. I am disappointed in some of the remarks which have been made on the floor against the MMA. Some of those remarks have been overly excessive and I hope that type of rhetoric will be discontinued.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana has 90 minutes.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Madam President, I see my colleague from Alabama who has been waiting patiently, as I have, throughout the day to speak. He only wants to speak for 5 minutes. I yield 5 minutes of my time, and then I will reserve my right to speak for the 85 minutes remaining.

Thank you.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Alabama is recognized.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I thank the Senator from Louisiana for her courtesy. I will contain my time to 5 minutes and ask that I be notified at 4 minutes.

I wish to say while the distinguished chairman of the Judiciary Committee is here that he deserves great credit for the Justice For All Act. I had serious objections to some of the provisions in that bill in committee and objected to it, and thought we would never see the bill pass. I declared it at one point a bad bill. But Senator HATCH believed there was a problem with DNA analysis in America, and so did I. He believed there was a problem that could be improved with death penalty representation, and so did I. He worked with Senator LEAHY and Chairman SENSENBRENNER and Congressman DELAHUNT in the House, and others, and was able to deal with the problem in the legislation.

I am pleased we were able to see that bill cleared today. I think it is a bill that will be effective in dealing with the problems that we know exist in two of those areas.

Mr. HATCH. Madam President, if the Senator will yield, I thank the Senator for his comments. I thank him for his energetic good work on this bill. He and Senator CORNYN in particular helped to improve this bill, and we should all be proud of it.

I thank the Senator.

Mr. SESSIONS. I thank the Senator. One of the problems we had was that the legislation restricted States from putting the DNA of those arrested into the system. We offered an amendment in committee to fix that. That has been fixed now. States can put into the system DNA of people who have been arrested but not convicted. In reality, history teaches us that many people kill more than once. We watch those "Cold Case File" shows, and you see people are arrested and not convicted. Later on they are arrested when they commit the second, third, or fourth murder. That is too often a pattern, unfortunately.

The bill allows forensic science spending now for other analyses if there is no DNA backlog. DNA represents 5 percent of the forensic scientific analysis done in these criminal cases. It is a critical and wonderful tool, but it is not the only tool to be used. We have a little more flexibility in the bill than we did before.

I was concerned—and I think others were—that the money that would be spent for training people to try death penalty cases would be spent by a governmental entity that is responsible to the people, not being given directly to an unaccountable special interest group. They did this in States around the country that have an ideological opposition to the death penalty. For some of them, that is their No. 1 goal. We have had problems in the past when those organizations received money. The Congress ended that in 1996. I think that was a good decision. We fixed that in this bill.

There are some marvelous lawyers who dedicate themselves to representation of convicts or people charged with capital murder. I respect them. I respect people who do not agree with the death penalty. I have concluded it is an appropriate penalty, but regardless, it is the law of the majority of the States of this country, and good representation is required. We ought to do it in the right way.

We made progress. Historically, judges appoint lawyers in criminal cases. That would have put the original language, put the training and payment and selection of attorneys, in an outside entity's hands. The commission would be set up in the States that include judges, former prosecutors, not current prosecutors, and certainly defense lawyers to help select and train trial attorneys. It also says 75 percent of the money should be spent on training for the trial, which is the heart of the process.

The appeal follows afterward, and we need fair, good trials, so we will focus most of the money on getting a fair trial so the appeals are less important. They are less important when the trial is done right to begin with than if it is messed up. It provides training for prosecutors because prosecutors sometimes also fail to handle the cases correctly, and good training can help them conduct a fairer trial with fewer problems.

This is a bill I can support. I was pleased to be able to do so. I thank Senator DEWINE and others who helped make this bill possible.

I yield the floor.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Louisiana.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I appreciate the opportunity to speak for the next hour and a half, and, depending on whether other Senators want to speak later in the night and what the agreements are, I may want to speak even longer because the subject I want to speak about is extremely important to my constituents and to many constituents around the country.

I spent a couple of hours in the Senate yesterday speaking about the tax bill, the $137 billion tax relief bill the Senate and House have been negotiating now for 2 years. Not just the last few months, not just this Congress, but for 2 years the Congress has been putting together a tax relief bill because we basically were forced to put a bill together because of a decision made by the World Trade Organization, of which we belong and encourage, that said part of our Tax Code was not in order.

I am not on the Finance Committee. The Presiding Officer and I serve together on the Appropriations Committee. I am not a member of the Finance Committee. The Finance Committee, 2 years ago, began to put a bill together to address that situation. It was about a $50 billion problem. That is a lot of money.

What happens around here is every time we open the Tax Code, it is very tempting for everyone else to try to get in the bill because if you can get in the bill, you can get money out of the Treasury. You could ask for additional tax relief. You could correct something that you think was an injustice to your business, whether you are a big business or a small business, an international business or a domestic business. You could ask for all sorts of help.

What happened was this bill started out as a very specific $50 billion fix for something that most everyone—not everyone but most everyone, including myself—thought we should fix. It has turned into a $137 billion tax relief bill. That is the truth. That is very troublesome.

That is not even why I am speaking. There are things in this bill that are good and bad, and Senators have had all sorts of ideas and expressions of their opinion, including an eloquent speech about an important provision by the Presiding Officer for leaving out the regulations on tobacco, putting in the buyout provisions from the farmers but leaving out the companion regulation that was in the bill when it left the Senate.

Other Senators have come to the Senate today to speak about different issues. I come to the Senate not saying those are not important. But there is one issue in my mind and in the minds of many of my constituents in Louisiana and around the country that transcends all of these issues and which is in a total category by itself. It is an issue that doesn't have anything to do with corporations or business; it just has to do with fairness, justice, truth, loyalty, and honesty.

The truth is that in 2 years, putting this bill together that went from $50 billion to $75 billion to $100 billion to now $137 billion, we forgot one group of people. Just one group I think was forgotten. This is the bill, $137 billion—pages and pages of the bill. It is like two big phone books. Two years we put a bill together. Almost every kind of business one can think of is in this bill, from energy companies to chemical companies to farmers to hospitals, health insurance; good companies that deserve help—I am not saying they don't—and good tax provisions. But the one group that is left out—if you read the bill from the beginning to the end, read it upside down, backward, in any language, you will not find one group of people in the bill. I hate to say who that group is because the people in America do not believe we could do this. We left out our troops. We left out the men and women on the front line.

This is my problem. They are so far away in Iraq on the front line that we cannot see them or we will not see them or we do not want to hear them, maybe, because they are on the front line and they do not have time to be at the Capitol lobbying for themselves, and so we just left them out.

When the House Members or Senate Members come to the Senate and say they cannot understand why we are not rushing through on this bill and why some Senators are holding it up, I will tell them why. This Senator thinks it is a shame, unconscionable, to work for 2 years and put a $137 billion bill together that helps everyone—and you could argue for good, for bad—yet leave our troops out.

Some of us, including the Presiding Officer, Republicans and Democrats—had put in the bill when it was in the Senate a very small but important provision that only cost $2 billion of the $137 billion—just $2 billion for our troops. Our troops are taking 100 percent of the risk. Our troops are bearing 100 percent of the sacrifice. We only asked for less than 2 percent, and we got nothing.

So this Senator is going to stay on this floor for as many hours as I can to tell the truth about this, and perhaps these words will reach to somewhere or people will be inspired or encouraged to take the political actions necessary to make sure these troops do not get left out next time or before we finish.

Let me read you some of the e-mails I am getting because we put this up on our Web page, and I have been doing interviews since I found out about this Wednesday night, as many as I can. I am going to continue to speak and debate and talk to anybody who wants to interview me about it.

I know some of these e-mails get a little political, but I think it is OK for me to read them here. But these are e-mails. I am happy to have them in the RECORD. I am not going to read all the political ones. I am trying to pick a mix of them. But I would like to start with this one to show the potential of this issue:

As a Texas Republican voter, you inspired me, and now I will take a harder look at Democrats running for any office because I'm a retired military service member. I have pretty much believed the services were better represented by Republicans, and I voted that way. You showed me that my basic ideas may have been flawed, and I will now look wholeheartedly into that. Thank you for such a beautiful speech demanding that the military be represented in that bill. You really moved me and may have switched my party affiliation with that direct and memorable speech.

Mr. President, my office is being flooded with e-mails like this, but let me read you another one from a Democrat:

Dear Mary, I'm writing to tell you about how proud I am of work you did on the floor today. As I write, you continue to articulate a logical and, for most of us, a compelling argument as to why the National Guard and Reserve should be treated as first class citizens rather than second class citizens in the tax bill pending before the Senate. Well done. Can I convince you to move to North Carolina?

This is not about me. I am reading these not because I want people to know or because I want to brag about this issue. I want the Members of this body, and particularly the House leadership, the House Republican leadership, that took this out of the bill, I want them to know, Chairman THOMAS, Speaker HASTERT, and Congressman DELAY, how strongly Americans of all parties feel about what was done to our men and women in the armed services.

Let me be just very clear. The Republican leadership in this body supported this effort. I want to be very out front about that. The Republican leadership in this body, along with the Democratic leadership, supported this provision. And it went over to the House. Only in conference, at the direction of the Republican chairman, Chairman THOMAS, was it taken out.

Now let me say this: I am so tired of seeing our troops in the pictures, in the photographs, riding with us in parades, waving the flag, taking the pictures, but when it comes time to put them in the budget, to give them relief, to put them in the tax credits, they are nowhere to be found—only in political propaganda and pictures. And this Senator and my constituents have had enough.

I want to talk about why this is important. This picture is up here because I want to demonstrate that one thing in the bill—and I am not trying to pick on the ceiling fan importers. I am sure it is a very legitimate request. But we have a tax provision to give help to those companies that import fans from China. Meanwhile, our troops do not get in the bill.

Now, if anybody needed a fan, our troops need one because it is hot in Iraq. It is about 105 degrees. If there were any way for me to get some of these fans to them, I would put an amendment on the bill. But the fans are in. The troops are out.

Now, another reason this is important is because the Members who are on the Armed Services Committee and many Senators who have served in the military understand this. I served on the Armed Services Committee for a while. I was very proud to do it. And I plan, hopefully, one day to be on the Defense Subcommittee on Appropriations so I can continue to fight for them and to articulate some of these views.

But I am not sure the country understands how much we are relying on our Reserve forces. We have a total of about 1.6 million Active troops and we have 1.2 million Reserve troops. So it is about 60/40.

Now, in 1953, not that long ago, during the Berlin crisis, we only called up 148,000 Reserve troops. In the Cuban missile crisis, we called up approximately 14,000 Reserve troops. To fight in the Vietnam war, we only called up 37,000 Reserve troops. This comes to a total of 200,000. So for almost 35 years, we only called up 200,000 Reserve troops. So our Reserve was operating in a place where the men and women could sign up, go do their weekend work, get a pretty decent paycheck for that, get training, and serve their country.

These Guard and Reserve, some of them are retired Active military, but many of them are policemen and firemen and women who want to serve and are happy to be that citizen soldier, that part-time soldier. Their goals have not changed, but our country's needs have changed. We made the decision in the 1990s to say, to save taxpayer money, to make our forces better and stronger, we are going to rely more on our Reserve and less on our Active Duty, and we cut our Active strength, therefore relying more on our Guard and Reserve.

The only problem with that is we keep forgetting them. We send them to the front line, we deploy them year after year, and then we forget about them. We are not sending them the pay they need, the benefits they need, the equipment they need. I am wondering, what is going on?

In the Persian Gulf war we had to call up 238,000 Reserve troops. In Haiti, we called up 3,000 Reserve troops; in Bosnia, 29,000; Operation Southern Watch, 2,000; Kosovo, 6,000; and the war in Iraq, 410,000 Guard and Reserve—currently about 5,000 of them are from my State of Louisiana.

Just 2 weeks ago, I went to Leesville, LA, the proud home of Fort Polk, where many of our troops train. It is a joint training base. I was with my mayors and my Governor, and we saluted our troops. We prayed with our troops. We were with them. We sent them off. The 256th Infantry Brigade is getting deployed. This is affecting thousands of families around Louisiana. This is not just happening in Louisiana. This is happening in the State of the Senator from Ohio, in Chairman GRASSLEY's State of Iowa, in Texas and California. Thousands of families are being separated, husbands from wives, wives from husbands, fathers from children, to go fight on the front line.

So you can see the increase and the frequently that we have called them up, so you would think that if we are calling them up more, we would help them more. But we help them less. You would think that if we have a tax bill going through, this is the group of people who should be on the front page. But they are not on any page. They are not on the front page. They are not in the middle. They are not on the last page. They did not even write a note to say: Sorry we couldn't help you this time. Maybe we can help you next time. Not even a PS.

I have been proud to support tax relief since I have been here for 8 years.

I haven't supported all the tax relief packages, but I believe people deserve tax relief. I wish we could live in a world with no taxes. As soon as we figure out how to do that, that would make everybody happy. I am not sure how to do it, but I am sure somebody will think of an idea someday because we sure eliminate taxes right and left for everybody.

We have been spending the last 4 years providing tax relief, $2.1 trillion. This is direct tax relief, either special benefits, including military families and the earned-income tax credit, ideas like their combat pay or their severance pay would not be taxed. Tax benefits to our military basically amounted to $1.37 billion. Everybody else gets $2.1 trillion. But the guys and gals on the front line get $1.37 billion.

Someone will say: Surely, Senator, some of the $2.1 trillion will go to the military families. And, yes, that will happen. Middle-class families generally are in here, and our troops are also middle-class families. The Republican side will disagree with this, but what the Democratic side says is, since so much of this tax relief is targeted to families earning over $100- or $200,000, I would argue that very little of this money is going to get to military families. Why? Because most of these families only make $50,000. The average is $30,000 in the active lower ranks. Very few people in the military make over $150,000. So who are we helping? Not the guys fighting the war. Not the guys taking the bullets.

The reason I am particularly offended on behalf of the soldiers is that we can afford to help them. If we didn't have the money, if we just couldn't afford it, then I would go to them and say: Look, you all know more about sacrifice than anybody. It is in the code of the military. Sacrifice, it is what they do; it is what they are. So everybody has to sacrifice. But the fact is, not everybody is sacrificing because everybody else is not sacrificing anything. They are getting extra. And only the military is being asked to sacrifice, not just their life but their paychecks.

I guess what really is upsetting, as I learn more about this and as I read the materials that are sent out by our own Government, this is the "family readiness paradigm." It is www.defenselink.military, I think from the Pentagon. Secretary Rumsfeld is quoted and President George Bush on this chart. I want to quote what the President said:

The National Guard and Reserve are a vital part of America's national defense. [They] display values that are central to our nation: character, courage, and sacrifice, [and demonstrate] the highest form of citizenship. And while you may not be full-time soldiers, you are full-time patriots.

That is lovely. It is wonderful. Except these words are not backed up with actions because actions would have put the patriots in the bill and said: You deserve a portion of this tax cut because the Guard and Reserve that go to the front lines are taking a 41 percent pay cut, according to the Government Accountability Office study.

And why is that? Because the Guard and Reserve are citizen soldiers. They work in regular life as truck drivers and architects and doctors and nurses. They might make $60-, $70-, $100-, $150,000. But when they are activated and they go to the front line, they leave their civilian paycheck at home and they pick up their Army, Navy, or Marine paycheck. And it is only $30,000 or $35,000 or $40,000. Some of these families are taking a 50-percent pay cut.

So while they are on the front lines taking the bullets, their families are back home. I have a letter from one of the families in Louisiana that said: Thank you, Senator, for fighting for us. We live on a very modest and meager income. I have been pouring water in my children's cereal to make ends meet because the grocery bill is getting pretty high.

I have to go home and tell that lady in Hammond that we couldn't find $1 in the bill to help her with her grocery bill. This is particularly upsetting to me.

The chart says "Self-reliant families," I like that word "self-reliant." I think it is important for us to be self-reliant, to be strong, to not be overly dependent. I believe in self-sufficiency and economic independence and pulling yourself up by your bootstraps. But why is it that we have to put a chart up for our Guard and Reserve asking them to be self-reliant, when this bill doesn't represent self-reliance? This bill represents companies and individuals who came to the Government to ask for help and aid, not self-reliance.

But in the charts that we send out to these families as they wave their loved ones goodbye, we tell them: Forget about being in the bill. Here is your brochure that talks about self-reliance. And if you need help, call the outreach family readiness coordinator. Maybe we can help you organize your finances because we know your situation is tough.

That is wonderful, except what they really would need from us is a whole paycheck. I am not asking for a bonus for them. I am not asking for any special tax break. Just make their paycheck whole. Just keep their paycheck whole. The way we did that in the Senate FSC-ETI bill was by giving the employers in this country, the patriotic employers who are basically subsidizing their salaries by saying: Harry is leaving us tomorrow. We can't let his family have to live on $30,000 less.

So here is a small business. I can just see them now getting together in the coffee room: Harry has to go. Can we make it? Can we help him? Can we keep his pay going because he is going to be gone for a year?

That small business digs deep. Harry goes to the front line. They keep sending him a check—even though he is not at work for them, he is at work for us—and keeping that paycheck whole for that family.

And all of us in the Senate thought that was the right thing to do. These are patriotic businesses. Let's give them a tax credit, at least half, so those small businesses that are doing this could be rewarded. They could be recognized, voluntarily. They don't have to pay their active duty Guard and Reserve employees. But if they are doing it, they should get a 50-percent tax credit.

So, in essence, our amendment was creating a partnership between all the small businesses in America, patriotic businesses and large corporations that are keeping the front line going.

But Chairman THOMAS decided in his committee that this bill and the things in it represented a higher priority than keeping the paychecks whole for the men and women taking the bullets for us on the front line. I am still waiting to hear from Chairman THOMAS about why he thought that or what it is that I have missed. I haven't heard a thing.

I would like to read the letter I sent to the President. I put it in the RECORD yesterday. I will read the letter I sent to the President because I want to say again, as I said yesterday, I don't think the President of the United States knows about this. I think if he did, he wouldn't have let it happen. I want to read my letter again. I hope to get a response. I just sent it to him yesterday about 24 hours ago.

Mr. President:

I am writing to bring a grave injustice to your personal attention. During the Senate consideration of the FSC/ETI legislation, the Members of the Senate added a modest provision to assist our troops. GAO studies have concluded that 41 percent of our Guardsmen and Reservists called to serve their country on the front line must take a pay cut to do so. Fortunately, some companies around the country have stepped up to the plate and taken the patriotic step to make up the paygap of these brave men and women. The provisions that we added in the Senate would have provided a tax credit of up to 50 percent to cover the cost of these companies who make up the difference. In doing so, we hoped both to acknowledge the patriotism of the existing companies and at the same time encourage more employers to take this step.

Mr. President, no doubt that you have traveled the country and you have confronted the same stories I have from some of the military families struggling to make ends meet. We have had to ask an awful lot of our Guard and Reserve. They ask so little from us. So trying to take this worry off the minds of our men and women on the front lines seems to me to be the least that we could do. So it is with deep embarrassment for our Government that I must report that this very modest release for our troops was stripped from the conference report by Congressman Thomas and the leadership of the U.S. House.

While I am certain that representatives of your administration participated in this conference, I presume that you did not have personal knowledge of this decision to cut support for our military families. Regrettably, this decision has placed all of us in a very difficult position. While I endorse many aspects of this bill, I simply cannot support a measure that places so many lesser priorities ahead of our most important priority.

It goes on to say that I respectfully request that the President exert his significant influence to correct this at the earliest possible time. It could be by vetoing this bill and sending it back and telling us in a veto order to fix it, which has been done before and could be done. That is unlikely. It is very difficult to do, but I think these are difficult times. Or the President and the House leadership could admit they made a mistake and promise, in writing or in other ways, to include it in the next bill through here. This letter was signed by myself and Senator JAMES JEFFORDS from Vermont.

Many other Senators signed a letter to the conference. For the record, I want to make sure that people understand that Senators MURRAY, JOHNSON, CANTWELL, CORZINE, BOXER, KERRY, DURBIN, DODD, PRYOR, REID, LINCOLN, BOND, GRAHAM, DAYTON, and many others signed onto a letter to the conference committee when this bill was being decided. It is addressed to Senators GRASSLEY and BAUCUS, who are very supportive of this measure. It was also sent to Representative BILL THOMAS and Representative CHARLES RANGEL. I do know that CHARLES RANGEL, the Democratic ranking member of the Ways and Means Committee, supported this. It was a decision made by the House Republican leadership, and it was a bad decision. It is a decision that needs to be changed at the earliest possible time.

Mr. President, one other thing that is very disturbing to me and particularly hard or difficult to articulate is that I have met so many men and women in uniform. I have met so many men and women in uniform, and they trust us to represent them and to do our best by them. When they are on the front lines, they don't have time to have lobbyists here.

They have many Members of this Senate who have put in additional benefits—I see the chairman of the Appropriations Committee here, who has worked very hard for our men and women in uniform—and we have put in time and time again help for them. So we have tried to respond in the Senate. But they trust us to look out for them.

In this bill, when it left the Senate, this provision was in the bill. When it went to conference, it was taken out. Again, there are many other items that were not included. I understand that. I am not arguing that anything in this bill is not worth our attention, because some Member felt strongly about it or it would not have been in the bill. I am not arguing about what is in the bill. I am arguing about the one provision that I know about that was left out of the bill. It is not Senator LANDRIEU's provision; it is a provision for our Guard and Reserve, to keep their paychecks whole so they can save for their future, so they can send their children to college, so they can fight and keep their minds on the front line and not have to worry about the homefront. I am wondering why they were taken out.

Again, I feel obligated and very motivated to try to spend some time in the last days, as we wind down the session, to speak about a grave injustice. That injustice is that we have 1.2 million Guard and Reserve in our country, representing about 40 percent of our total force. They are fighting on the front line in Iraq, in Afghanistan, in places all over the globe. You can see on this chart that these are percentages of our Guard and Reserve that have been activated. Thirty-six percent of my Guard and Reserve—I think I have close to 12,000 Guard and Reserve units in Louisiana—are on the front lines. If you look at Washington State on the chart, it is 46 percent. Over here in Florida, it is 47 percent. You can see the States and the percentages of the Guard and Reserve.

Every one of these percentages represents thousands and thousands of families who are being called up to go to the front line. What could be more central to our security than the troops going to the front line? Why would this Congress, led by the House Republican leadership, spend 2 years putting together a tax relief bill and leave them out so that they have to take a pay cut while everybody else gets a bonus or they take a pay cut and everybody else gets extra financial help or everybody else gets their tax bill lowered, but they have to pay the same taxes, and they get not even a whole paycheck?

The Senator from Iowa came down earlier to the floor of the Senate and made a couple of comments about this conference. I just have to respond, and I know he is not here, but it will be in the RECORD. He will be here tomorrow, and we can talk face to face about this. I have the utmost respect for the Senator from Iowa, the chairman of the Finance Committee. It has been very difficult for him to put this bill together, I know. The ranking member from Montana has been very helpful in putting this bill together.

I do want to take issue with something the Senator from Iowa said. He said it has been a long road to what I hope will be a final passage of this legislation. American workers, especially those in the manufacturing sector, put in the work necessary to make the U.S. the most productive economy in the world. We Senators should employ the same work ethic. We have to match our constituents' work productivity. We cannot delay this matter any longer. We cannot leave the jobsite without finishing our work.

I understand we want to get this bill finished, but I think spending some time talking about the soldiers on the front line, who were left out, is something that is important to do so we can either get this fixed before the end of the time for this bill to have to be considered or we can cause the focus to be such that it can be fixed in the next tax bill that passes this body.

He goes on to say that in his opinion it was a very open conference. Now, that may be his opinion, but from what we understand from Members who were there, basically the House Republican leadership laid down their mark, and out of a $137 billion bill there was only $182 million worth of amendments that were changed from the Republican leadership written bill. So of $137 billion, only $182 million—only seven items of this entire bill, which could be on one page—were added or changed from the House mark. So the House leadership wrote the bill and they left the troops out.

In the conference, the seven items, it could have been any seven, but it was rural carriers, letter carriers, were added at a cost of $33 million. The SUV loophole was closed. The National Health Service Corps loan repayment was put in that added $72 million to the cost; small issue bonds; electric co-operatives; marginal stripper wells; and whatever the blue ribbon task force on tax reform was, it is no longer existing because it was taken out.

So out of $137 billion, there were seven items, for a total of $182 million, that were changed.

When the argument is made that it was a very open process and the Senate put in some things and the House put in some things and it was all open and everybody talked and everybody negotiated, it is not true. What is true is for 2 years in many meetings, in many hearings, in many speeches, over many hours, a bill was put together and time and time again in those meetings and on this floor and in the committee, letters were sent to the Republican House leadership, please do not forget the troops. But when the final print was done, when the bill was printed for distribution, they were left out.

I have stated until this issue is addressed, I am going to vote against this bill. I have not had one person in Louisiana call me and say: Senator, how could you possibly vote against my tax relief that is in this bill? Because the people in Louisiana are very patriotic and they do not think anyone should stand in the front of the line, except the troops. Time and time again, the people of Louisiana show their respect in real and significant ways to our troops. So while there are tax credits in here for the oil and gas industry and for shipbuilders and for fishermen, and many things that are important to my State—and I want them to know I support those industries—I also know and can say with confidence there is not an industry or a business or a person in my State that thinks they should be ahead of the Guard and the National Reserve, not one.

I promise that if anyone from Louisiana calls me to tell me they do think they should be ahead, I will be happy to admit I was wrong.

Our troops depend on us in many ways, and in the middle of a war when we are fighting one, as we are, with a lot of rancor and different views and different opinions, it is important when we can send our words of support that our actions match those words and that in every way we can tell our troops, because it has been a difficult time, we are in an election year, there are different opinions about the way this war is being prosecuted, but I would think at this time in particular we would want to send, by our action, not our words, real support for our troops.

What could we send more than a paycheck? When we do not take the opportunity to put the paycheck in this tax bill—and maybe people will come and say, Senator, we put all of the help for the Army and the Navy and the Reserve in the Defense bill,—let me say what will happen when we leave them out of this tax bill: We end up having to argue in the Defense appropriations bill whether we want to spend money for their helmets, their rifles, their covered Humvees or do we want to spend the money for their paychecks. Why are we making them choose between a helmet and a paycheck?

That is what happens when we just focus on the Defense appropriations bill and divvy up the money. It is not fair to them. It is not right. It is not what we should do. When we have a tax bill moving through that could provide obviously $2 billion of the $137 billion we are giving, we could have given them tax relief. If there was a health care bill coming through, which there has been, we could provide health care provisions out of the general health care bill for our troops. Then in the Defense bill, we do our best to allocate those moneys as fairly as we can.

So that is why I am particularly upset, because I have been in those discussions on the Appropriations Committee and I know how tough it is. Do we give a 10-percent pay increase or do we invest in operations and maintenance on the bases? There is never enough money to go around. For what our troops are doing for us and the times our country is in and the challenges we face, we should not make them have to make those choices when we obviously have other options.

Let me read a couple of other e-mails I have received from people who feel strongly about this, because I think it is important.

I am a retired Army Reservist who was activated and deployed to the Gulf during Desert Shield/Storm. Because the company where I had worked for 16 years at the time was going through financial difficulties the best they could do was to continue with my family health plan, and I really appreciated that especially in their predicament.

Now, think about this. This is a guy going to the front line and he is especially appreciative that his company has decided, out of their patriotism and generosity, to keep his family receiving health care. They are not making his paycheck whole and he is not even angry about it. That is how men and women in uniform are. They do not even want to ask for help because they believe in self-reliance. They believe in sacrifice. But they also believe in fairness and honesty. It is not fair to leave them out of the bill. They deserve more. They deserve our truthfulness, our honesty, our hard work and our fairness, and we let them down.

He goes on to write:

Other reservists serving with me but who came from stronger financial private or public work settings enjoyed all prior pay and perks; most soldiers found themselves somewhere in between those two positions.

So he is saying he went over there with very little. Some went over there with the ability of their employers to keep their pay whole, but most people fell in the middle, he says.

Your proposal about the Administration and Congress backing up the rhetoric with real money would benefit employers, employees and in the long run the services in their retention efforts.

I want to talk about retention.

I don't know how many times the generals have to come before us to speak about retention. I don't know how many times some of us on the Armed Services Committee have to come to this Chamber to say we are having a tough time recruiting for our armed services, not because we don't have brave men and women, not because they don't want to serve, but when the compensation and the pay packages get so out of line with what people can make in the civilian world, it puts a lot of pressure on them. Believe me, I have talked with these soldiers. With tears in their eyes, sometimes, they tell me: Senator if it were up to me I would go and you wouldn't have to pay me a thing. This isn't about me. But I can't bear having to watch my wife take a second job or not be able to be home with our two children because I'm away. Please tell them I am not asking for myself, I am asking for my spouse. I am asking for my children.

I want to speak for them. Could we not just keep their paycheck whole? A report last month let us know—I will supply it for the RECORD—that the Guard and Reserve, for maybe the first time in a long time, I don't know exactly the number of years, but for the first time in many years, fell short of its goal. It fell short by 5,000 in its recruitment.

You might understand why. It is not because Americans are not patriotic. It is because of this issue. It is about pay. It is about benefits. It is about whether our Government cares enough for the soldier to take care of their family when they are away. The soldiers would fight for nothing. They don't eat very well over there, and they don't care about it. But they do care about their families and their children back home. We should care as much as they do. We can help by keeping that paycheck whole, sending it home for our soldiers on the front line. But we did not do that when we put this bill together.

As I said, I am sorry to have to report to the President that is the case because I don't think he has any personal knowledge. Maybe he will have gotten the letter in the last 24 hours. He has been very busy. I know it is a very busy time. But I know somewhere in the White House they are reading that letter, and I am looking forward to them letting me know what they think about it. Do they think it was a good idea? Do they think we could fix it shortly in a different bill? Do they think we could find $2 billion to keep those paychecks whole?

Here's another e-mail—

Let me start by saying that I do not reside in your State but I still listened to you on C-SPAN and I loved it. Yes, the very people who we depend on for our national security cannot make ends meet. This is something many people do not understand, because they have never been affiliated with the military. Painful to note, billions of our tax dollars go to help overseas, but not for our troops' loved ones. I, along with the other girls, we get together for our weekly quilting group. And we opened up other people's eyes about this subject matter many months ago. I don't know that we can get them to vote any differently, but it sure felt good to hear you tell the truth.

I am not reading this for my own benefit. I am saying that there are many people around the country—one of the girls, probably an older woman, I would imagine—who quilts with a group of friends. They, evidently, talk about this. They know about military families. They are probably part of a group somewhere in this community that collects cans of food and other helps for the families at home. There is a great support network in this country.

Why can't the Government be part of the support group? I don't understand it. The Government has more money than everybody put together, and we can't find a half a billion? $250 million? We can't find a few thousand dollars in the tax bill? And we have Americans sitting around their kitchen tables collecting food for our troops on the front line?

In one way it is a wonderful thought. In another way it is awful to think about. I am happy Americans are supporting the troops. Our Government should do the same, and not just in the photographs, and not just in the pictures but in the budget.

I am going to have a lot more to say about this subject. Again, for people watching, as I wrap up and put us into a quorum call for the next little bit, I want to say again, the underlying bill is an important bill, and it needs to be passed. This Congress has worked on it for 2 years. There are many important provisions in this bill. But for the life of me I cannot understand how we have 150,000 troops in Iraq, why we left them out. About 40 percent of them are Reserve.

When they go to that front line they don't take a whole paycheck with them. We could have helped make it whole, but we chose other priorities. I don't know a higher priority than supporting our troops. Again, not just in the pictures, not just in the photographs, not just in the parades but in the budget, in our actions not just our words.

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I have received this letter from Tom Ridge, who is the Secretary of the Department of Homeland Security.

I ask unanimous consent that it be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. DEPARTMENT OF HOMELAND SECURITY,
Washington, DC, October 9, 2004.

Hon. TED STEVENS,
Chairman, Committee on Appropriations,
U.S. Senate, Washington, DC.

DEAR MR. CHAIRMAN: Earlier today the House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed the FY 2005 Homeland Security Appropriations Conference Report. I urge the Senate to pass the final legislation expeditiously, so that DHS can continue the important mission of securing the homeland.

While the Continuing Resolution currently enacted allows DHS to continue its operations in support of the existing security of our Homeland, we urgently need the additional spending authority and new initiatives contained in the Conference Report on the Department's FY 2005 Appropriation. During this increased period of risk, DHS must continue to improve capabilities in several critical areas including enhancing law enforcement, strengthening our borders, and improving transportation security. I remain concerned about operating under a lengthy Continuing Resolution. For example, under the Continuing Resolution, DHS would not have the funding to maintain the current on-board strength of the Federal Air Marshals; development and deployment work on the legislatively required 2005 deadlines for US Visit will be slowed; the Border Patrol will be unable to continue the critical work to upgrade and update the surveillance technology used on our land borders; and additional Detention and Removal programs and bed space will not be provided. Additionally, necessary program enhancements such as the Container Security Initiative, Radiation Portal Monitors, targeting systems, and critically needed aviation security technology are also on hold. Finally, FEMA's Disaster Relief Fund is in need of supplemental funding as soon as possible.

I appreciate the Senate's continued commitment and diligence in passing these critical pieces of legislation. If there is anything I or my staff can do to assist in expediting this process, please contact me or Under Secretary Janet Hale.

Sincerely,

TOM RIDGE,
Secretary.

UNANIMOUS-CONSENT AGREEMENT—S. 2845

Mr. STEVENS. Mr. President, I brought this to the Senate floor because, as I stated previously, I was informed that tonight the moneys for distribution in the hurricane area that FEMA supports will expire. We have to pass the MilCon bill and we have to pass the Homeland Security bill as rapidly as possible.

We do not have copies of the intelligence bill that was passed. All of us have had requests for it.

I ask unanimous consent that the intelligence reform bill, S. 2845, be printed as passed so we may distribute copies of that and so that the conference committee can have copies of that bill.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I don't see anyone wanting to speak. I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the Senator from Ohio, Senator DEWINE, be recognized for up to 12 minutes.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Reserving the right to object, only for the purposes of his statement, and then I would like to be recognized. Otherwise, I will object.

Mr. REID. Otherwise what?

Ms. LANDRIEU. I am going to object. Only to be recognized for the purposes of reading a statement, after which the Senator from Louisiana be recognized; otherwise, I will object.

Mr. REID. I will not agree to that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Is there objection?

Mr. DEWINE addressed the Chair.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I rise this evening to thank—

Ms. LANDRIEU. We are in a quorum call.

Mr. REID. There was an objection.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. We were out of a quorum call.

Ms. LANDRIEU. I note the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator from Ohio has the floor.

Ms. LANDRIEU. We were in a quorum call.

Mr. REID. There was a request for the Senator from Ohio to be recognized. The Senator from Louisiana asked that it be modified so she would be recognized afterwards. I said I wouldn't agree to that.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Senator is correct. But the Senator then yielded the floor. The Senator from Ohio sought recognition and had been recognized.

The Senator from Ohio.

(The remarks of Mr. DEWINE are printed in today's RECORD under "Morning Business.")

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I thank the Chair and yield the floor.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The assistant legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that I be allowed to speak for 12 minutes and that immediately after I speak Senator LANDRIEU be recognized.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

JUSTICE FOR ALL ACT

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, several hours ago, Senator HATCH came to the floor to discuss the DNA bill that we have been able to pass. I congratulate him for the fine work on that bill. A number of people have worked on that bill.

I became interested in this issue a number of years ago. I have been interested in the whole area of crime technology, frankly, going back to my work as county prosecuting attorney in Greene County, OH, many years ago.

In those days, we did not have DNA. We did not have a lot of the technology we have today. I have been able to watch over the years, as I know the current occupant of the chair has, the great development of technology which has revolutionized what we can do today in law enforcement to solve crime. It has been one of the things I have worked on since I have been in public office—first, my time in the State legislature, then in the House of Representatives, and when I was Lieutenant Governor of the State of Ohio, and now, in the last decade, in the Senate.

I specifically became interested in what turned out to be this bill we have been talking about today, the DNA bill, several years ago when I met with the BCI back in Ohio, which is our State lab and State bureau, and went out there to find out some of the things that needed to be done. I had a long discussion with them in London, OH, about the real problem we have in Ohio and the problem we have across this country.

It is a problem of what we call rape kits; where there is a rape victim, the police go in, they take evidence from that victim, and then many times, tragically, I have learned—I know my colleague who is in the chair understands this—these rape kits are stored, they are never processed, and that information never gets into any central database. There is a tremendous backlog of this across this country.

Because of this, to try to help clear up this backlog, I introduced S. 149, the Rape Kits and DNA Evidence Backlog Elimination Act of 2003. About the same time, roughly the same time, Senator BIDEN introduced a bill which had the same intent to deal with this problem. Chairman HATCH asked me later on to combine my bill with his and those of other Members to create the bill we have today. When he asked me to do that, I gladly agreed.

Today, we all proudly stand as co-sponsors of this bipartisan legislation. I know my colleague in the chair has worked on this legislation. I think it is a piece of legislation that all Americans can be proud of and that will help Americans be safer. The provisions of my original bill that are included in the legislation we passed today will protect innocent victims and will, in fact, put criminals behind bars. It will do both.

This bill includes my language to authorize over $1 billion to eliminate the backlog of over half a million rape kits that are sitting on the shelves of evidence lockers in police stations across this Nation.

Let me emphasize again that there are over half a million rape kits that have not been tested and therefore have not been put into a central database. How many of these rape kits contain evidence that would take a rapist off the streets? Well, we can't be sure, but we do know statistically that approximately one in eight of all kits currently tested in Ohio do, in fact, result in a match in our DNA database to a rapist. That is an unbelievable figure, one in eight will result in this statistical match.

In fact, approximately the same number will link the rape to another crime scene, giving our law enforcement officers one more piece of critical evidence that may, in fact, lead to the arrest of a criminal and the prevention of future crimes.

If you add these two figures together, you can see that nearly one in four of all rape kits tested will result in key evidence for law enforcement. That is a staggering statistic and demonstrates the power of modern technology when, in fact, it is used to fight crime.

This bill also includes my language that will expand the number of criminals that we put in our Federal DNA database. Very simply, this language will expand the current reporting requirement to include all Federal felons, not just a few specific felons as required under current law. Of course, the more information that goes into the DNA database, the more likely it becomes that we will match evidence from the crime scene to the DNA profile of the criminal in the database.

Additionally, this language will permit States to cross-reference DNA information from people under State indictment with the current Federal database. For example, if a criminal is arrested and indicted in New York, and the New York law enforcement officers enter the DNA information in their State database, this law permits New York to share this information with the Federal database so all participating States can access the information.

This means that a police officer could link DNA evidence from a crime in Ohio to an arrestee in New York. Again, by realizing the full potential of available technology, we will identify more criminals, prevent more crimes, and protect more innocent victims.

Finally, this bill includes my language that will extend the period of time in which law enforcement officers can utilize DNA evidence to solve crimes. Under current law, the statute of limitations for all Federal offenses starts when the crime is committed.

Under my language, if DNA evidence is found at the crime scene, the statute of limitations for most crimes does not start to run until the DNA evidence is matched to a criminal in the database. This means that criminals will not be able to escape justice merely because they were able to avoid capture for a specific period of time.

This bill also contains the Crime Victims Act for which I am an original co-sponsor. This act provides victims with the right to be heard and considered during Federal criminal prosecutions.

As I know everyone here agrees, we owe it to rape victims, crime victims in our society as a whole, to do all we can to apprehend violent criminals. This bill takes a significant step in that direction.

I thank Senator HATCH for his excellent leadership, being so steadfast in doggedly pursuing the agreement necessary in the Senate to pass this bill. Passage of this bill is a testament to his leadership as chairman of our committee. I also thank Senators LEAHY, BIDEN, and FEINSTEIN for working tirelessly to achieve this momentous outcome.

I thank Chairman SENSENBRENNER, as well as Representative DELAHUNT in the House for their outstanding leadership that resulted in a nearly unanimous vote of support by that body.

Our great Nation will be safer and our confidence in our standing judicial system will be reinforced as a result of this timely and much needed legislation.

I would also like to thank the many staff who worked on this bill. Specifically, I would like to recognize the Chief Counsels of the Senate and House Judiciary Committees for their commitment to get this bill done: Bruce Artim and Phil Kiko. I also thank Brett Tolman, who crafted a key compromise in the bill that allowed the parties to come together; Katy Crooks, who worked tirelessly to better this bill; Jay Apperson and Mark Agrast, who brought their outstanding wisdom to the process, Julie Katzman, Neil McBride, Jon Meyer, Christine Leonard, Louisa Terrell, Bruce Cohen, Tara Magner, David Brog, Ted Lehman and David Hantman for their strong knowledge of critical issues; and my exceptional legislative team that worked so very hard on this for me and the people of Ohio: Paul Palagyi, Peter Levitas, Robin Blackwell, Ann O'Donnell and my Crime Counsel Robert Steinbuch. And my former Crime Counsel Evelyn Fortier.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. HATCH). Under the previous order, the Senator from Louisiana is recognized.

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, under the previous order, I asked to be recognized after the remarks of Senator DEWINE. I really appreciate the leadership trying to work out our schedule. It has been a long couple of days. It is getting late into the night. I really appreciate everybody trying to work forward to getting some of these bills passed. But as I said, one of the most important bills that we have remaining to pass is a $137 billion tax relief bill.

There are many good provisions in this bill. There are many industries, large and small, in Louisiana that are going to be helped by it. I would have liked to have voted for the bill. There are energy tax breaks. There are shipping interests that are bolstered and supported in here, which means a lot of jobs to Louisiana. I would have wanted to vote for this bill.

I am not going to be able to vote for the bill, and won't vote for the bill unless we have some specific action on one provision—not the Landrieu provision, as some of the others have said, not an individual, personal Landrieu provision, but the provision for the Guard and Reserve, the men and women on the front line fighting for us whom every Republican and every Democrat in this body voted to support. Everyone, all of the Senators, from both parties, by unanimous vote, voted to send that provision over to the House to give modest tax relief to businesses, the small businesses and medium- and large-size businesses that are keeping those paychecks going to the front line.

We thought it was a good idea to take $2 billion of the $137 billion to provide some tax relief for those employers so that the Guard and Reserve that make up 40 percent of our armed services that are picking up more of the burden and are taking all the bullets on the front line, whether it is in Iraq or Afghanistan or somewhere else, so their paychecks could be made whole.

I want people to understand. The Senate of the United States felt strongly about that. But we sent the provision over. And when it got over to the House, it was summarily, unjustly, unconscionably cut out by the House Republican leadership. And it is a shame.

So over the course of the last few days, as we have tried to have debates about this bill in the morning and the afternoon and into the evening, I have spoken about this issue. The reason this poster is up is because it is a visual of what is in the bill and what is out of the bill. Ceiling fans are in the bill. Ceiling fans are really important in Louisiana. I know they are to the Senator from Nevada because we are from States that are very hot. We like air-conditioning, and we like ceiling fans. I am not picking on the ceiling fan industry. It is an important industry, and I am sure there is a good reason. I can't articulate what it is because it wasn't my provision. But someone could probably give a good explanation as to why the ceiling fan industry is getting a tax break.

But the Guard and Reserve, going to Iraq, taking the bullets, fighting on the front line, were left out of the bill, and ceiling fans are in the bill.

That is the truth. It is a shame. Many of us believe strongly that this injustice needs to be corrected.

I see the Senator from Iowa, Mr. HARKIN, has raised other issues that he feels very strongly about that were either not addressed appropriately or properly in either this bill or several others. I want my constituents to know, and I would like my colleagues to know, I do not want to make these schedules difficult. I do not. I understand the pressures that are on the Members of this body.

But I also understand the pressures that are on the families who have their father or mother or brother or sister or husband or wife on the front line. I understand the pressures of these families. So do many other colleagues in this Chamber. If we can do something to help them, then we should. Maybe we cannot get them in this bill. But I have had conversations with the good leadership on the Republican and Democratic side, who are working as we speak to find a way to help the Guard and Reserve so they are not left out of this $137 billion tax bill with over 509 items. But they are not an item, they are not a line, they are not a paragraph or diddly-squat in the bill. So we are talking about how we could possibly get them included in some other bill that might pass before we go home for the election.

I can promise you, in the elections that we are getting ready to have, Members of Congress, Members of the Senate, the President, and the challenger for the Presidency, our nominee, Senator KERRY—everybody is going to be taking pictures with the troops. I guess that is appropriate. But this Senator thinks that is enough of the pictures. Could we please put them in the budget?

I am not up for reelection this year, so this is not a campaign speech. The people in Louisiana have been supporting our troops. Our Guard and Reserve are the best in the Nation. Maybe a Senator would argue, but we have awards to prove it. We win awards. We are about the best—in the top 5 in the Nation. I know these men and women. They don't ask for much. They don't ask to be on the front of every tax break and giveaway. They are willing to sacrifice. But for Heaven's sake, we are going to pass a tax bill and give everybody in America $137 billion and leave them out? I don't think that is right. I don't think my colleagues think it is right or just.

I hope that sometime over the next 3 or 4 days that we are here—I know it is Saturday night. I have two small children. I had to make arrangements so I could be on the floor. I have a husband at home. I know everybody is going to go to church tomorrow, and people were at synagogue today and yesterday. I understand that. But I think we need to spend a little time talking about this issue. Why were they left out? How could we afford $137 billion and not afford a tax cut for them? Was it too complicated to figure out?

There are a lot of complicated things in here. It would make people's eyes twist if I explained how we were giving tax credits to foreign corporations so they could close down here and go to the Bahamas and open a post office box and get a tax check. There are more complicated things in here than saying to businesses in America: Thank you for being patriotic and for voluntarily sending that paycheck to the front line, closing the gap between what the reservists make as part of the Reserve and what they made for your company. We would like to honor that and give you a tax credit. You can pick up 50 percent of the burden, and the Government can pick up the other half.

Evidently, this is too much for us to pick up. It is not too much for me to stand here. I know the hour is getting late. The Senator from Iowa wants to speak. I just say again that I am going to get to the floor over the course of the next few days and I will speak about this issue. I thank the leadership for working in a cooperative manner to allow that to happen because I am still hopeful that we can fix this bill. Maybe the President will veto the bill when he finds out it is not in there. Maybe it could be fixed in a different way. Maybe another bill could be attached. I know if there is a way the leadership in this body wants to fix this, they could. I think the men and women on the front line deserve our best effort in that regard.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

TOBACCO REGULATION

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, first of all, I want to thank a number of people. I thank Senator DEWINE for his dynamic and great leadership on the issue of FDA regulation of tobacco products. He has been in the forefront of this fight for a long time. I thank him for his leadership, working again with Senator KENNEDY on this issue and so many others on both sides of the aisle to get that position established by the Senate, which we did, and that was that we would have a tobacco buyout but also FDA regulation of tobacco, finally. We spoke on that, but, of course, the House didn't go along, and we find ourselves now with this great big tax bill of around 630 pages we have on our desk. Guess what. No FDA regulation of tobacco.

I thank Senator DEWINE and I thank Senator LANDRIEU for her strong and dynamic leadership in being here on a Saturday night to continue to make the point about what happened to our guardsmen and reservists in the United States. It is unconscionable what the House and the President did on this issue. We ought to put the blame where it really lies; it is at the White House. That is where it lies. I might say the House, but they are just doing what the White House wants them to do. They are just a rubberstamp for the White House. It is the White House that called the shots on that one.

I thank Senator LANDRIEU for sticking up for our people in uniform, for those all over the country who have been shortchanged by this so-called tax bill.

Mr. President, I want to take some time here to speak about tobacco and how unconscionable it is that this bill does not have FDA regulation of tobacco included. Over the last several days, we have heard a great deal about the dangers of smoking and the devastation caused to millions of families every year. With the results of the conference report on Wednesday, I fear colleagues have not been listening to the details of the public health crisis our Nation faces regarding tobacco and smoking.

Let me repeat them loudly and clearly so Members understand what they are opposing and why we so urgently need FDA regulation of tobacco.

One, smoking kills more than 450,000 Americans every year.

Over the last 10 years, smoking has claimed more than 4.4 million lives.

Smoking is the leading cause of preventable death in this country.

Smoking causes heart disease, cancer, emphysema, and a host of other related illnesses.

Two-thousand kids start smoking every day, and, ultimately, one in three will die of smoking-related causes.

Smoking-related medical expenditures have indirect costs resulting from lost work activity.

There are 250 chemicals in tobacco smoke that are toxic or cause cancer in humans.

Tobacco use accounts for at least 30 percent of all cancer deaths.

Smoking causes nearly 87 percent of all lung cancers, which is the leading cause of cancer deaths.

Last year, nearly 70,000 women died from lung cancer in the United States. That is more deaths than from breast cancer and all gynecological cancers combined—70,000 women.

If these facts don't paint a stark picture of the urgency for FDA regulation of tobacco, I don't know what will. You know, when there is an outbreak of food poisoning in a local school, we move Heaven and Earth to find the source and take appropriate action to make sure our kids don't get sick again. But somehow, when it comes to protecting our kids from a known toxin—tobacco—we find our hands tied. Why? Well, it is because of big tobacco. There is too much at stake in terms of profit loss for tobacco companies to allow this regulation to go through. They have been fighting it for years.

I introduced the first-ever comprehensive bipartisan FDA regulation with, I might say, Senator BOB GRAHAM and former Senator John Chafee of Rhode Island.

That bill was introduced almost 6 years ago. I heard the same reasons then that I do now on how unnecessary FDA regulation is. Quite frankly, our bill went much further and was much tougher than this one. Creating a more sensible policy for tobacco has been a goal of mine for many years. It was in 1977, in my second term in the House of Representatives, over 21 years ago, that I first introduced legislation calling for repeal of the tax deductibility of tobacco advertising and marketing.

Unfortunately, victories in the tobacco wars for consumers and for our kids have come few and far between. Tobacco wins every time.

With the mounting evidence we have today about the absolute dangers of smoking, it is paramount we pass a comprehensive plan that would once and for all change how this Nation deals with tobacco and dramatically cut the number of our kids addicted to this deadly product.

That said, I am afraid the power of big tobacco has once again superseded the need to protect public health. The fact is we know now that 90 percent of current smokers became hooked on tobacco as kids. That should sound alarms that something needs to be done to stop this from happening, and to prevent senseless disease and death that is linked with this addiction. This is a drug addiction. Tobacco is a drug. It is addictive, just like methamphetamine, cocaine, and heroin. It is addictive and it kills you.

For too long, kids have been getting an unfiltered message from the tobacco industry: Smoking is cool. Smoking is harmless. Smoking is glamorous. Smoking is for active young people and will make you look more attractive.

Today, big tobacco companies spend more than $11.5 billion a year in advertising and marketing their products. Children are exposed to messages that are deliberately designed to attract a new generation to the smoking habit. The motivations are clear: Anything to make more money for big tobacco.

Now we hear from tobacco companies all the time that, oh, no, their advertising is to get people to shift brands, go from one brand to the other. Well, I will illustrate here very shortly that is not what they are up to.

Many think regulation is unwarranted after some of the restrictions that were agreed to as part of the master settlement agreement a few years ago. The good old MSA, the master settlement agreement. Yes, there are billboard restrictions and a few things such as that, but now we have much more sophisticated mechanisms.

Let me refresh some memories. Here is Joe Camel, a smooth character, Joe, flying his jet airplane with the afterburners going. He has a beautiful young woman looking over her shoulder, looking at Joe Camel with his Camel cigarette.

Who is this appealing to? Kids.

Now, there is another Joe Camel here. Here is Joe Camel, with Camel Lights, cool Joe. He has his red convertible and black T-shirt and Levi's, and Joe is cool. Joe Camel is a neat guy.

Well, we forced big tobacco to get rid of Joe. They did. We do not see Joe Camel any longer so we can take old Joe down. Joe Camel is gone. I want to refresh memories. I want to refresh memories, because there was a time—and I will repeat this, there was a time—a study was done that kids in America recognized Joe Camel more than they recognized Mickey Mouse. It is true. But we got rid of Joe Camel.

One might ask, what now do you need? I will show my colleagues why we need to have FDA regulation, because tobacco has gotten smart. They are now spending more than ever on predatory marketing since the MSA was agreed to. Big tobacco is spending 60 percent more on marketing than they were before the master settlement agreement.

Again, are they trying to get people to switch? Let us take a look. Here is Liquid Zoo. Now, I had a pack of those with me when we were in conference. I was one of the conferees arguing to keep the FDA regulation that we had in the Senate, and I had strawberry flavor. This was Liquid Zoo, strawberry flavor. When you smell it, why, you would swear you were in a strawberry patch. It smelled wonderful. It smelled like strawberries.

This is the tobacco. Liquid Zoo-flavored cigarettes are an exotic blend of strawberry-flavored tobaccos for a sweet, fresh taste and aroma.

Do they really think they are trying to get someone to switch from Marlboros or Winstons or Camels to that? That is going right to our kids. That is what this is about.

Then we have Kool Rapper here. We have another one. Here is the Kool Rapper. Here is a rapper. He is cool. He has his mike and he is spinning the disk or CD or whatever it is there, and everyone is dancing and that is called Kool Rapper.

Now, do my colleagues think they are trying to go after adults with that? Do my colleagues think they are trying to go after 40 and 50-year-old people to get them to switch from Marlboro or Winston or Camel to that? No. This is for kids. They are getting to young people. They are spending 60 percent more on marketing now than they did before the master settlement agreement, and we took away Joe Camel on billboards, but now they are spending 60 percent more and this is where it is going.

Because what do they know? They know 90 percent of all tobacco smokers today started when they were young. They get them hooked early.

I have another Kool Rapper here. This is just, again, special edition packs. Now, they do not any longer have the little coupons where you can get gear and all that kind of stuff. That is gone, but now they have special edition packs: Celebrate the sound track to the streets. It does not take a genius to figure out who they are targeting with that.

So big tobacco has found tricks and dodges to circumvent the law, and they have been very effective. From the birth of Joe Camel to the birth of Liquid Zoo and Kool Rapper, we have seen broken promises and bad faith again and again from big tobacco.

Giving the FDA the power it needs to end these false messages is exactly what is needed to stop big tobacco's exploitation of our kids. The only message our young kids should hear about tobacco is the truth: Smoking is a killer. It is a drug. It is addictive. It causes cancer. It causes emphysema. It causes a lot of other illnesses. That message needs to come through loudly and clearly. Since industry will not convey that message, we need strong FDA regulation to make it happen.

Instead, what do we do here now with this big tax bill we have? We allow big tobacco to further confuse kids when it comes to the actual safety of cigarettes.

This morning I got up and I had my Cheerios. I actually had a bowl of Cheerios this morning. Now, the bowl of Cheerios I ate this morning had to go through a multistep process set up by the Food and Drug Administration to earn its health claims that it is heart healthy and lowers cholesterol. It had to go through certain steps.

Somehow tobacco, a known health risk, does not have to go through any of those steps whatsoever. In fact, tobacco companies are free to add anything they want to their product without having to inform consumers or without any regard to the health effects of those additives.

For example, tobacco companies have added ammonia to their products. I do not know if my colleagues have ever smelled ammonia, but they get an idea of what it is like. They add ammonia to tobacco products on the ground that it improves "tobacco satisfaction." They add the ammonia in order to create a "free base" form of nicotine that creates the highly addictive quick delivery form of nicotine to the brain. It goes from your lungs to your brain in 8 to 10 seconds when they add ammonia. We know this. So tobacco companies add ammonia so that you get a bigger kick right away, in 8 to 10 seconds. Adding ammonia to cigarettes is analogous to what crack cocaine was to cocaine—it just gives you a faster high, it goes to your brain quicker. But guess what. The tobacco companies do not have to tell you that. They just tell you have a Kool Wrapper there. They don't have to tell you anything else.

The industry claims that many of its ingredients are benign flavoring agents like strawberry that are on the FDA GRAS list. That stands for Generally Recognized As Safe. The tobacco companies say we put these ingredients in and they are benign; however, those ingredients such as chocolate, licorice, and other flavors are not safe when they are combusted, and they often create toxic chemicals when they are inhaled by the smoker. So, yes, maybe licorice is safe to eat, but when you combust it, then it creates toxics that you inhale. The industry will not tell you that either.

No other industry in America is allowed to add ingredients to their products without first having them tested and approved by the Federal Drug Administration for safety. For example, Kraft Foods, a subsidiary of Altria Group along with Philip Morris, could not add ammonia to Kraft macaroni and cheese on the grounds that it improves cheese satisfaction for its customers. Why can't they add ammonia to macaroni and cheese? They can't add ammonia to macaroni and cheese because it is not on the FDA list of products that are generally recognized as safe. They can add ammonia to cigarettes; they can't add it to Kraft macaroni and cheese. The FDA has more authority to regulate macaroni and cheese than it does cigarettes. Imagine that.

I have this to show what I mean by that. Here is something called Omni cigarettes. Here is what it reads:

Omni is the first premium cigarette created to significantly reduce carcinogenic PAHs and nitrous amines, which are the major causes of lung cancer in smoking."

That is what they say.

Says who? The tobacco company says that. But we have no way of verifying that. They can make all the claims they want, like low tar, light, less carcinogenic, but we the public have no way to verify that because the Federal Food and Drug Administration has no authority to regulate tobacco or to go in and tell us what is in there or to make the tobacco companies verify what they say.

I have an Eclipse one here, too. Here is an Eclipse. This is interesting:

The best choice for smokers who worry about their health is to quit. Here is the next best choice. Are you ready for Eclipse? Get the facts.

I have the support of my wife..if I'm going to smoke, she'd prefer I smoke Eclipse.

A better way to smoke.

Talk about a warped message:

Omni, there is no better way to smoke.

A better way to smoke? There is a better way to get cancer. There is a better way to get emphysema. This cigarette will give it to you faster. They don't tell you that, but that is what is happening.

During debate in the conference committee, one of my colleagues on the House side mentioned that the Founding Fathers would be shocked if they knew that Congress was trying to regulate an industry that was in part responsible for the early prosperity of our country. It is more likely that they are rolling over in their graves at the fact that we have known for more than 30 years that tobacco kills and that we have not done one thing about it. They didn't know it in the 1700s. They didn't know, but we know now.

The Congress is now considering, one more time, giving immunity to big tobacco and turning a blind eye to their responsibility to protect our kids and the public health. That is what is not in this tax bill. There are tax breaks for all kinds of things. There are tax breaks in here for gamblers who come from foreign countries to gamble here. Imagine that, they need a tax break. There is a tax break in here for people who import ceiling fans from China.

Lord only knows what else is in this tax bill. No one has really read it. No one knows what all these numbers and staff mean. There is a tax break here and a tax gimmick there; a tax break here and a tax gimmick there.

When this bill was before the Senate, this Senate added a provision that did two things. It allowed for a buyout of tobacco farmers' quotas—which I have been in favor of for years, by the way. Coupled with that is FDA regulation of tobacco.

Again, as someone who sits on the Agriculture Committee and also on the HELP Committee, I have been involved in both sides. I have espoused for a long time that we have a tobacco buyout, that we buy out these quotas. Why should we do that? These quotas were put on 60 or 70 years ago. They have been built into the price of the land. I can't go back and undo that. It is a fact of life. Many farmers in tobacco growing States—some of them are small farmers. All they have is that quota. They don't have anything else. The land is really not worth that much. So it is like taking away their income base. So I have always said we need to buy these quotas out and get rid of this tobacco program for once and for all. On the HELP Committee side, I have also said, if we are going to do that, then we ought to have FDA jurisdiction over tobacco.

This debate went on and on for years, and final we agreed. I might say that Philip Morris was one of those who agreed with us. I commend them for that. So we got it through the Senate.

It goes to the House. Guess what the House did. The tobacco buyout that we passed in the Senate, the money that is going to go to those tobacco farmers did not come from the taxpayers. It came from the tobacco companies. Of course, the tobacco companies will pass that on to tobacco smokers, so the smokers were going to pay for the buyout of the quotas. That is as it should be. Why should the taxpayers pay for it? We agreed on that. Philip Morris agreed on that. We agreed that we would have FDA jurisdiction.

Here is what the House did. They broke that agreement. First of all, the House of Representatives, and I am sure with the approval of the Bush White House because they wouldn't have done it unless the White House agreed, they made the buyout of the quotas paid for by the taxpayers of the country. All of you who do not smoke, you are now going to pay to buy out those tobacco farmers. That is what was in the House bill, plus they took away the FDA jurisdiction over tobacco.

In the final analysis, they put back in the companies paying for the buyout, but they left out the FDA regulation of tobacco. So here we are. No FDA regulation. That is what is not in this FSC bill.

It was my understanding the purpose of this bill was to repeal an illegal export subsidy. Now it has morphed into a big special interest giveaway that will help everyone from restaurant owners to makers of bows and arrows, tackle boxes, sonar fishfinders, NASCAR track owners, Alaskan whalers, foreign gamblers, as I mentioned, who win at U.S. horse and dog tracks.

I want to repeat that.

In this bill, there are provisions to give tax breaks to foreign gamblers who win at U.S. horse and dog tracks. Those interests trump the 2,000 kids hooked on smoking every day by the big tobacco companies. Imagine that.

What are our priorities around here? What is the priority of the White House? I am telling you it could never have happened unless the President signed off on it.

You go out there, Mr. President. You have some more days before the election. Go out there and tell the American people how you pulled the rug from underneath FDA regulations of tobacco, how you sided with the big tobacco companies to get our kids hooked on tobacco every day—2,000 every day. Go out and look those mothers and fathers in the eye and tell them your priority is the big tobacco companies and not their kids.

Yes. This would never have been done if the White House had not OK'd taking FDA jurisdiction away. Shame on the White House.

We had the opportunity here to pass this legislation once and for all, and to stamp out youth smoking in this country and protect kids from joining the ranks of the 450,000 who die from smoking each year. The tobacco industry has been engaged in a systematic campaign of distortion and deceit to hook kids and hide the facts from the American people for far too long.

I met a fifth grader, Ted Stanton, from Des Moines, IA, a few months ago who reminded me how important regulation is. Ted won a statewide poster contest sponsored by the American Academy of Family Physicians for his efforts to raise awareness about smoking. He is a fifth grader. What happened was Ted has had to watch his dad struggle with the habit of smoking for years. He drew a poster. His poster is an attempt to warn kids about smoking.

Here is his poster and here is why he won the prize. "Invest in your future." He has the date 2054. "Pay to the order of big tobacco companies $73,000." That is $4 a pack every day times 50 years. In other words, you smoke a pack a day for 53 years and you will pay big tobacco companies $73,000.

I thought Ted Stanton, a fifth grader, really pointed it out. That is what you are doing when you start smoking. You are going to smoke for 50 years, if you are a teenager, a pack a day, $73,000.

We do have some kids like Ted and others who realize they are being targeted by big tobacco, but they are defenseless. What are we doing to help them? What we are doing is protecting big tobacco—the same guys who conspired years ago to hide the truth about tobacco and instead pushed their deadly products on our most valued treasure, our kids.

It is disgraceful that this body has not acted yet. It is disgraceful that we are getting half of the deal we had worked on for years, the tobacco buyout of the quotas. Guess what happened. The way they worked this tobacco quota buyout is you are going to buy out the quotas, but now tobacco will be growing cheaper. Now the tobacco companies will be able to buy tobacco cheaper than they had before, making more money, hooking more kids, without FDA authority.

The reason I say that is because when we passed the bill in the Senate, we had a provision that provided for a licensing program that would prohibit more and more people growing tobacco in this country. The House took that out. So we got the worst of all possible worlds—no FDA regulation, a buyout of the quotas, more people will be able to grow tobacco, and the tobacco companies will get it cheaper and make more money to hook our kids. What a deal. Yet we can take care of foreign gamblers who come to bet on horses. But we can't take care of our kids. Shame on us.

(Mr. HATCH assumed the Chair.)

I know the hour is getting late. I see the occupant of the Chair, someone for whom I have great respect, the Senator from Utah.

I will state publicly that the senior Senator from Utah has also been in the forefront of the fight against tobacco. He always has been. I compliment him for that. I know he feels as strongly about antismoking and stopping kids from smoking as I do, or as Senator DEWINE does, or Senator KENNEDY, or anybody else does. The Senator from Utah has been stalwart in his support for getting FDA regulation of tobacco. I thank him for that. I encourage him to keep up his leadership on that because we have not yet fired the last shot. We are going to be back.

I wish the President of the United States, using the bully pulpit of the White House, had come out in an address to the Nation and said we need FDA regulations for tobacco, we need to stop our kids from getting hooked, and call upon the House and the Senate and say he will not sign this bill, he will veto this bill unless we protect our kids.

Think of what would have happened if the President of the United States had said that. We would have a tax bill here, but we would have FDA regulation of tobacco in here. I am sorry the President missed a golden opportunity and thus we have missed a golden opportunity. Thus, tomorrow and the day after, and next month, and next month, and next year, thousands of kids every day might pick up a pack of Liquid Zoo, because it smells nice. It tastes like strawberries. They will say, There is no harm in that, plus it makes me look glamorous. That is what all the ads say.

Think about it. That is what is going to happen. Shame on us.

I yield the floor and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. HARKIN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. HARKIN. I see the occupant of the chair, and I know he wants to go home. But I said to the managers I can be interrupted when they are ready to wrap up. I want the occupant to know I am not holding him here.

I will talk about one other item that is not in this FSC bill that we got stiffed on. We passed it four times in the Senate and twice in the House. I am talking about overturning the regulations that this administration put out that will deny overtime rights to over 6 million people.

Again, just last week, in a replay of what happened a year ago, the Bush administration used the conference to kill my provision to stop the Department of Labor's new rule on overtime pay that if allowed to stand will strip 6 million people of their right to time and a half overtime.

The bill before the Senate today serves the simplest of purposes. This tax bill has everything in it for everyone, but what is not in it is protection for the workers of America, protection for those who make over $23,660 a year. Actually, for some below because of little gimmicks that can be used to deny them their right to overtime.

Again, this is simply a matter of fairness. People believe if they put in more than 40 hours of work a week, they are giving up premium time, time with their family. I had a woman who wrote me and said: Look, I go home from work and my second job starts. I go home, take care of my kids, I get dinner ready, help them with their homework, and then I have to do washing, and this and that. But my time with my family is my premium time. If I am asked to give up my premium time with my family to work on my job, I ought to get premium pay.

What the Bush administration has done is said: No, sorry, we will ask you to work overtime and we will not pay you one cent more.

Again, a little history. It has been sacrosanct since 1938, the Fair Labor Standards Act. If you work over 40 hours a week, you get time-and-a-half pay. It has been that way since 1938. We have modified it a little bit here, a little bit there, but every single time we have changed the Fair Labor Standards Act, we have enlarged the pool of people who get covered by time and a half. This is the first time where up to 6 million people will lose their right to overtime pay.

Now, some will say but they raised the base to $23,660. In other words, anyone who earns under that is automatically eligible for overtime. Quite frankly, most people working there are already eligible because they are not salaried, they are hourly workers. While that is fine, we should raise the base. The administration then went and took away overtime pay rights for anyone making over $23,660 a year. If you are making $23,661, you are in a separate category. Just barely over—well, that is poverty wages—and you still are not eligible for time and a half overtime.

I also say every time since 1938 when we have changed the Fair Labor Standards Act, it has come to Congress. We go through the committees, the committees have hearings, we bring in witnesses, they draft a bill, it is debated in the Senate, and it finally goes to the President. That is the way it ought to be. That is transparent; it is open; everyone gets their say. We can debate it and amend it. We, the elected representatives of the people, get to debate and amend it—a strange concept, I guess, to this administration.

What this administration did 1½ years ago, sort of in the stealth of night without having one public hearing, they promulgated these new rules on overtime.

Some might say: Well, they have had hearings since then. Yes, thanks a lot, after the horse is out of the barn and they closed the door. Fine. But that is not the way it should have been.

So now we have a situation where they finalize the rules on August 23. We have never really debated or amended that in the Senate. I have on four different occasions in the Senate offered amendments to overturn those rules, to go back to square one, to start over. Let's do it the right way. We have passed them here, but the administration says no every time.

I watched the debate last night, and I heard the President talking about domestic policies and jobs and economic growth. And I thought, wait a minute, he even talked about overtime. He said people are working overtime. I heard him say it last night. I thought, they are working overtime, but what the administration wants to do is take away their overtime pay.

That is exactly what is happening. We have facts. We have the data. People are now being denied time and a half overtime for working over 40 hours a week because they are being "reclassified." Guess who is getting hit first. Women. Why do I say that? Many women raise families, start later in life, and start at lower income jobs. Many of these are salaried positions.

Because they are on a salary, they will be reclassified. As they get reclassified, they will be exempt from the overtime laws. If overtime is free to the employer, it will be overused.

This chart shows a study by the Center for Women's Work at Rutgers University. The chart shows those who are eligible for overtime, in the green, are protected; the red are not protected. Those protected by overtime work are about 20 percent of workers working 40 hours a week. If they are protected, chances are 20 percent of these people work over 40 hours a week. If they are not protected by overtime, 44 percent of these people work over 40 hours a week—twice as many. So now we will take away this protection from this 20 percent. Then they will be working overtime, and they will not get paid for it.

Right now, if they are covered by overtime protection, only 5 percent work over 50 hours a week. If they are not covered by overtime, 15 percent, three times as many people not covered by overtime laws work over 50 hours a week.

That says it right there. If the employer does not have to pay you time and a half, work them more, and they will not hire any new workers.

It is interesting to note—the occupant of the chair will find this interesting—in 1933, 5 years before the Fair Labor Standards Act was signed into law, the Senate voted 53 to 30 to set a cap on the number of hours in a workweek. Was the cap 50 hours? Was it 40 hours? No, it was 30 hours. Imagine in 1933, this Senate, in this Chamber, voted 53 to 30 to say that the workweek would be 30 hours. You could not pass 60 hours here now. Imagine that. In 1933, this Senate voted 53 to 30 to set a 30-hour workweek. Amazing. The compromise was reached 5 years later at 40 hours a week, and that is what it has been ever since.

Again, we know what the intent of this proposed rule is. The intent of this proposed rule is to allow employers to work employees longer than 40 hours a week and not have to pay them time and a half. And we have a final rule on that, a final rule. These are going to be low- to middle-income workers. They are not organized. They do not have a strong voice. So the administration feels they can run roughshod over their rights.

For the life of me, I cannot understand this. People work hard. Many families are working two jobs where the husband and wife are both working, trying to make ends meet, trying to save a little money to put away for the kid's college education, maybe to buy a better house, move up the ladder a little bit. For those who work overtime, 25 percent of their income comes from overtime.

I see the managers are here to wrap up. I will just conclude by saying that, again, just as it is a shame and a shame on us that we do not have FDA control of tobacco, shame on us also, and shame on this administration, for taking away the overtime rights of 6 million people in this country.

With that, I yield the floor.

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I express my strong support for the conference report to accompany the American Jobs Creation Act. In order to protect our domestic manufacturers, strengthen our economy, better help U.S.-based multinational firms compete globally, and honor our trade obligations, the Senate must pass this critically important and overdue legislation before recessing for the elections.

I wish to start by congratulating the chairman of the conference committee on this bill, Congressman BILL THOMAS, and the cochairman, Senator CHUCK GRASSLEY, for their leadership and exceptional cooperation in finishing the conference on this bill in time to bring it to the House and Senate floor this week. Many thought completion of this task would be difficult or impossible, given the large differences in the Senate and House versions and the time constraints the conference committee faced.

The innovative conference process developed by the chairman and cochairman made success possible. Conferencing a large and diverse pair of tax bills in the usual fashion could have taken many weeks and led to a likely failure to finish this bill before sine die adjournment of the 108th Congress. Again, I recognize the extraordinary achievement of this conference committee and thank its leaders and my fellow conferees for their hard and dedicated work.

This conference report represents what we hope will be the culmination of a very lengthy and fascinating issue that had its genesis decades ago but has festered into a growing problem over the past several years.

I will leave to others to go into detail about the long history of the export subsidies in our tax law that gave rise to this conference report, but the unusual nature of this bill and its difficulty in passing the Congress are reflections of the complexity of this issue.

The crux of the difficulty of the bill is that the rulings of the World Trade Organization on the trade-legality of our export tax subsidies put the Congress in a very tough position. In essence, we found ourselves needing to repeal these export subsidies, known as the Foreign Sales Corporation, FSC, provision and its replacement regime known as the Extraterritorial Income, ETI, exclusion.

By repealing these provisions, which we must do in order to honor our trade obligations, we effectively raise taxes by almost $6 billion per year on thousands of U.S. businesses that manufacture goods for export.

Leaving it at this is simply unacceptable. Why should we have to convert a provision designed to help U.S. manufacturers compete in an ever-increasingly difficult global marketplace to a situation where they suffer a competitive disadvantage?

Yet, this is exactly the problem the Congress faces now that it is forced to repeal the export tax benefits.

When confronted with a similar problem in 2000 after the WTO ruled the FSC provision to be in violation of international trade rules, Congress passed the ETI in its place. With the ETI, we were able largely to replicate the benefits of the FSC regime, so that exporting taxpayers paid few if any extra taxes with the repeal of FSC. Unfortunately, the WTO subsequently ruled that the ETI provision also was an illegal trade subsidy that also must be repealed.

So, the conundrum facing the Congress with this situation was to find a way to enact other tax cut benefits for exporting manufacturers, to offset the increase from repealing ETI, without violating the WTO rules.

Unfortunately, this has proven impossible, so both the Senate and House bills attempted to find rough justice for business taxpayers by finding other ways to deliver tax benefits besides basing them on exports. Such attempts gave rise to the political and practical difficulties of this bill, including the fact that it took many months of hard effort to reach the point we are today.

For example, my own bill to address the FSC/ETI problem was S. 1475, the Promote Growth and Jobs in the USA Act, which I introduced in July 2003. This bill would have delivered rough justice tax relief in two ways.

First, it would simplify and rationalize the international tax rules that currently harm the ability of U.S. firms to compete globally, and second, it would provide incentives for companies to increase their ability to produce goods by acquiring new equipment and engaging in more research and development.

Other FSC/ETI solution bills were also introduced. On the same day I introduced S. 1475, Chairman THOMAS introduced H.R. 2896, the American Jobs Creation Act. The two bills were similar in many ways, and both included international tax reforms. The Thomas bill, however, included a number of other provisions designed to help U.S. businesses create jobs and better compete.

Another bill, introduced last year by Congressmen CRANE, RANGEL, and MANZULLO, offered a different direction still. This bill provided a deduction equal to 10 percent of a company's production activities.

In the Senate, Senators GRASSLEY and BAUCUS introduced a bill that included some of the best elements of all the other bills. Even though I preferred the solution set forth in my bill, I co-sponsored the Grassley-Baucus bill because it represents a solid and reasonable solution to the problem. This bill, as modified, became the legislation reported by the Finance Committee and passed by the Senate.

After a great deal of travail and adjustments, the House also passed a FSC/ETI bill, and it was quite similar in many respects to the first Thomas American Jobs Creation Act. These are the bills the conference committee had to combine into one.

The result, as we all know, is a bill that is far from perfect. Its enactment will result in a net tax increase for some exporting companies that now use the ETI provision, and in a net tax cut for many other U.S. manufacturing firms that may have not taken advantage of the ETI exclusion.

And while the bill includes many important other provisions, it leaves out some very important provisions that the Senate conferees agreed with me should be in there. Unfortunately, the House conferees disagreed and they were omitted from the final product.

For example, I am personally very disappointed that the House conferees voted against including the CLEAR ACT in this conference report. This bill, which has passed the Senate at least three times and also has passed the House, would transform our auto industry by granting strong tax incentives for consumers who buy alternative fueled and advance technology vehicles, such as hybrid electric cars.

Moreover, it would move us to a more responsible age of cleaner air and less fuel dependency on the Middle East by simultaneously breaking down the three barriers that keep our nation from adopting the already-existing technology to help us meet these goals—the higher cost of such vehicles, the higher cost of alternative fuel, and the lack of a refueling infrastructure.

From a broader point of view, most of my fellow Senate conferees and I would have liked to see the entire set of energy tax provisions from the Senate-passed bill included in the conference report. It was a mistake to omit these important provisions.

I also very much regret that the House conferees refused to adopt the amendment I offered, accepted by the Senate conferees, which would have bolstered our research tax credit. While it is true that the research credit was extended for a short time in the most recently passed tax bill dealing with individual tax cuts, that legislation left out an important element that was contained in the Senate FSC/ETI bill designed to improve the incentives this provision gives for companies to engage in R&D activities.

Nevertheless, the conference report is worthy of our support. As I mentioned, as a nation we must honor the obligations under the World Trade Organization. Of more immediate importance is the fact that the Europeans are levying an increasing level of trade sanctions against certain of our products exported to the E. U. This level is currently at 12 percent and is growing by one percentage point per month and is definitely having a very serious negative effect on certain U.S. industries.

Moreover, the trade sanctions are authorized to continue to increase until next March, when they will have reached 17 percent. After this, the E. U. may authorize even more serious sanctions against us that would surely harm our economic growth.

As all of my colleagues well know, if we do not succeed in passing this conference report before sine die adjournment of the 108th Congress, we must start the process all over again next year.

Will this result in a better bill?

Perhaps, but such an outcome is far from certain. What is more likely is that the resolution to this issue would be delayed for many more months, giving the trade sanctions more time to damage our economy and harm U.S. businesses.

Now, I take a few minutes to discuss some of the specific provisions that did make it into the conference report and why I believe my colleagues should enthusiastically support them.

First, let me express my satisfaction that this conference report has a good balance to it. In addition to the vital repeal of the ETI provision and the quite reasonable transition relief it provides for current ETI users, the bill offers significant provisions for both small businesses and large multinational firms. Mixed in is a generous portion of important tax relief for business interests of all kinds.

Central among these relief provisions is the manufacturing deduction. This provision is designed to lower the tax burden of any business entity that engages in production activities in the United States. I am happy to see that the Senate provision allowing this deduction to be taken by unincorporated businesses was retained in conference.

Also included in the conference report is a significant section of relief designed specifically for small businesses. Foremost in this category are the five sections that would simplify and reform the taxation of S corporations. These are changes I have long sought. Along with my colleagues, Senators BREAUX, SMITH, and LINCOLN, we have attempted to get these and other S corporation improvements passed for several years now. I am gratified to see them included in the conference report.

Other provisions that are very important to the balance of this bill are those designed to simplify and improve the rules by which this Nation taxes international business transactions. Quite simply, the current state of our international tax rules is appalling. This part of our Tax Code generally dates back to the early 1960s, and was designed for a different world from the one in which we live now.

U.S. businesses, whether large, medium, or smaller, that decide to expand their markets beyond the borders of the United States confront a set of tax rules that are not only mind-numbingly complex, but far worse result in double taxation and often leave them on the down side of a tilted playing board when compared with competitors based in most other industrialized nations.

Our rules governing the foreign tax credit, for example, which are designed to eliminate the double taxation of income, often are ineffective, some blatantly so. A provision added to the Internal Revenue Code in 1986 reduces the foreign tax credit by 10 percent to the extent it reduces the alternative minimum tax. There is little or no justification for this double taxation that I can see, and this conference report repeals this unfair provision.

The bill includes about two dozen provisions that will help improve the tax law for our companies that have expanded their markets overseas. I have long been interested in getting this type of reform passed by the Congress, having introduced bills to do this since the mid-1990s. It is gratifying to finally see this long overdue relief come to pass.

Some of my colleagues have incorrectly concluded that improving our rules on international taxation will give an incentive to U.S. companies to move their jobs overseas. This is unfortunate. Cross-border investing is not only a necessity of our modern world, it is usually beneficial to both nations. Most U.S. companies that invest in expansion into markets in other nations do so to compete effectively with other suppliers in those markets and here at home.

A fact of life of our modern economy is that our U.S.-based business enterprises face competition from all parts of the globe. It is unrealistic to think that an American business can simply focus on markets here at home and thrive. Instead, most of today's businesses must be mindful of both markets and material and labor supplies around the world if they are to stay in business very long.

While no one likes to see U.S. jobs move overseas, we should be more concerned about creating and maintaining in the United States the kind of environment that attracts businesses. Part of that environment is ensuring that our tax system does not drive businesses offshore to other nations that tax them in a more favorable fashion. This bill moves our tax system a big step in that direction, and I am pleased to see these changes finally reach the point where they are about to become law.

I now say a few words about the issues regarding tobacco associated with this conference report. I have not forgotten that at the center of the tobacco buyout is the tobacco farmer. I understand that the tobacco price support and tobacco quota programs have helped to secure a reasonable living for many family farmers.

I have also come to the understanding that breaking the dependency of U.S. citizens and especially children on nicotine requires us to address the dependency of tobacco growers on the tobacco industry and on the government programs. It will not be an easy transition for many tobacco growers, and we need to help these families to survive it.

Contrary to the belief of some, the United States Department of Agriculture, USDA, does not provide a direct subsidy to tobacco growers. However, the USDA does maintain artificially high prices for tobacco leaf by managing the loan, or-price support, program for tobacco growers which serves to maintain artificially high prices for tobacco and cigarettes in this country.

The USDA also manages the tobacco quota system to keep down the amount of tobacco grown each year. This, again, keeps the price of tobacco and cigarettes high. All direct and administrative costs for these two programs are reimbursed to the USDA by tobacco farmers and their trade association. There is no net cost to the government as a result of the tobacco program. In fact, smokers carry most of the burden of the tobacco program through higher costs for the tobacco products they purchase.

Shifting tobacco farming away from tight government management toward the free market has risks for our farmers. This proposal does a good job of getting the government out of the farming business while making temporary assistance available to farmers as they adjust to the free market. And, it is at no cost to our government.

As far as the provision requiring the Food and Drug Administration to regulate tobacco, let me say that I fully support measures to end tobacco use in the United States.

I can think of few public health dangers worse than tobacco, and this is especially true for young people.

I have heard from many concerned parents and health advocates in Utah who point out the need to stop the devastating health consequences of tobacco use.

In many aspects, the DeWine/Kennedy language was written to achieve that goal, and in that spirit I supported it in conference. In fact, much of the bill is taken from a measure that I authored several years ago with Senator DIANNE FEINSTEIN.

That being said, I am concerned about some aspects of the way the bill was written, and especially the impact of this language on the resources of the Food and Drug Administration.

First, the Committee of jurisdiction, the HELP Committee, should have the opportunity to consider this legislation before it is brought to the full Senate for a vote the next time. Having been the chairman of that committee for several years, I know full well the complexities of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act. Three hours of debate on the Senate floor was not enough time to consider legislation that made such dramatic changes to current law.

I also want to make sure that we in the Congress are clear about the impact that such legislation would have on the Food and Drug Administration and whether or not the FDA has adequate resources to regulate tobacco, and, in addition, keep up with its other, extremely important responsibilities, such as the approval of drugs, medical devices, and protecting our food supply.

While I understand that user fees were included in the legislation, I am not convinced that those user fees would have provided the FDA with sufficient resources to regulate tobacco. I am someone who has fought to provide FDA with adequate resources and have led the fight on unifying the FDA campus. I do not want anything to jeopardize the progress we have made in those areas so before we consider similar legislation again. I believe it is imperative to work closely with the FDA to find out exactly how much money is necessary for the agency to regulate tobacco, and whether or not the agency is capable of overseeing the regulation of tobacco.

Again, let me make one thing perfectly clear—I believe that tobacco should be regulated, however, it needs to be a well-thought-out process. Therefore, allowing the proper committees of jurisdiction to review and consider the legislation and consultation with the FDA must take place before similar legislation is voted upon by the full Senate and House of Representatives before we consider another measure.

Finally, I want to touch on some of the revenue offsets included in the conference report. I want to make it clear that I support the principle of keeping this bill revenue neutral, and I congratulate the conferees for doing so. This was a particularly sticky problem with the House Members, so I especially recognize their hard work in bowing to the Senate's demands that this bill be fully offset.

I am very pleased to see that several revenue offset provisions that were in the Senate bill are not part of the conference report. One of these is the codification of the economic substance doctrine. I believe enactment of this provision would have led to a great deal of unnecessary conflicts between taxpayers and the Internal Revenue Service, and would have unfairly penalized companies for engaging in legitimate tax planning techniques.

One provision that did make it into the conference report raises revenue in connection with the donation of used vehicles. In essence, the provision requires that taxpayers wait to take a deduction for the donation of a used vehicle until the donee charity has sold the item in an auction. Then, the deduction is limited to the actual purchase price.

While this may appear to be a reasonable requirement, particularly in light of some of the alleged abuse surrounding the charitable donation of used vehicles, I am concerned that these changes will result in far fewer used vehicles being donated to charities. Some charities, such as the National Kidney Foundation of Utah, rely heavily on such donation programs for a great deal of their funding. A chilling effect on the donation of these used cars could leave many worthy charities short of vital funds needed to perform their invaluable services to needy citizens in Utah and elsewhere.

I will keep a watchful eye over the implementation of this change in the law, to make certain it does not harm the charities that have relied on donated vehicles for funding. While I agree that we should preclude any real abuse of the law, I do not think we should create a burdensome new requirement that would discourage charitable giving. It may well be that we need to revisit this area of the law in the future.

In conclusion, the conference report before us represents a good bill that deserves our support.

As I have tried to indicate in these remarks, the bill is far from perfect. But given the very difficult political and other circumstances surrounding the issues this bill addresses, it is remarkable we were able to bring to the Senate floor a product that is as good as it is. I urge my colleagues to support the conference agreement.

SECTION 422

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I would like to ask if the Chairman of the Committee on Finance would entertain additional questions regarding the American Jobs Creation Act of 2004.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I would be glad to take questions from the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. SMITH. I ask for additional clarification regarding the conferees' intent with respect to the rule in section 422 of the American Jobs Creation Act of 2004 that disallows deductions for expenses "properly allocated and apportioned to the deductible portion." I would ask for clarification of the type of expenses that may be "properly allocated and apportioned". Would it be reasonable to say that properly allocable and apportioned expenses would not include general and administrative costs not directly related to generating the income being repatriated and such indirect expenses as research and development costs, interest, state and local income taxes, sales and marketing costs, depreciation, and amortization.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Yes, your understanding is correct. I would add that directly related expenses would include, but is not limited to, stewardship costs and directly related legal and accounting fees.

Mr. SMITH. Thank you Mr. Chairman. Under the conference report's provision on the temporary dividends received deduction, the amount that may be brought back to the United States may be determined by the reference to the "applicable financial statement". In general, this term looks to the most recently certified financial statement filed on or before June 30, 2003. In the case of a taxpayer that subsequently re-filed or restated its pre-July 1, 2003 certified financial statement, it is not clear how this would be determined. Is it the legislative intent to lock in the earnings permanently reinvested amount from the most recent pre-June 30, 2003 financial statement, which had been certified, regardless of any subsequent restatement?

Mr. GRASSLEY. The applicable financial statement is the most recent statement that had been certified, and filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission if required, on or before June 30, 2003. However, in the event of a subsequent restatement of a financial statement that had been certified, and filed if required, on or before June 30, 2003, if the subsequent restatement contains a lower permanently reinvested amount, then the lower amount shall apply.

Mr. SMITH. I thank the chairman for this clarification.

IRS

Mr. SANTORUM. Mr. President, I read with great interest an exchange of letters in the House between my colleague from Pennsylvania, Mr. ENGLISH and the chairman of the Committee on Ways and Means, regarding regulations issued by the Internal Revenue Service under section 263(g) of the Internal Revenue Code in the context of the Conference Report on H.R. 4520.

The issue raised in their discussion relates to the IRS decision in regulations published on January 17, 2001, to expand its authority under that section. Without at this point questioning the IRS interpretation of the law, the colloquy notes that the IRS has in some case imposed its new interpretation retroactively. The colloquy urges the Department of Treasury to take the position that the new interpretation should be applied only on a prospective basis.

I rise to agree with my friends in the House. Our practice in Congress is to give taxpayers notice when we intend to change the law in ways that could affect ongoing transactions that were undertaken in reliance on the law as it existed. Certainly Treasury can and should follow the same rules.

I hope the Treasury Department will take note and act accordingly.

BUSINESS AIRCRAFT

Mr. BROWNBAC. I want to thank the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Finance, as well as the chairman of the Ways & Means Committee, Mr. THOMAS, and all the conferees on H.R. 4520, for retaining the provision allowing business aircraft purchased this year to qualify for bonus depreciation if the aircraft is delivered and placed in service in 2005.

This provision is important to the hard-working Kansans who build these aircraft. Provisions such as this will help to further bolster our rebounding economy with respect to expensive and complicated equipment like business aircraft. Without bonus depreciation, there is a risk of a shortage of orders for delivery next year with a resulting impact on employment.

It would have been better if this legislation had been enacted earlier this year, but, even now, this provision will allow manufacturers several extra weeks to take orders for delivery by the end of 2005. That should help to ensure that there will be planes to build in 2005.

I ask the chairman a technical question on the effective date of this provision.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I thank the Senator from Kansas for his kind words, and would be happy to respond.

Mr. BROWNBAC. The effective date of the placed-in-service-extension, section 336 of the conference report, states that the amendments "shall take effect as if included in the amendments made by section 101 of the Job Creation and Worker Assistance Act of 2002." I believe that this means only that, if a purchaser orders a plane for delivery in 2005, the limitations on the amount of the deposit, time for construction and purchase price must be met. It does not mean that taxpayers who did not or will not take delivery and place the aircraft in service after December 31, 2004, would retroactively be subjected to these limitations. The limitations apply only if a taxpayer wishes to take advantage of the extended placed-in service period. Does the Chairman agree with this interpretation?

Mr. GRASSLEY. The Senator is correct. The new provision is not intended to apply to aircraft placed in service before January 1, 2005 and does not limit or deny bonus depreciation for aircraft or any other asset that would qualify under the general rules. I would refer the senator to page 30 of the Conference Report. On that page, the conferees clearly state that this provision "will modify the treatment only of property placed in service during calendar year 2005."

Mr. BROWNBAC. I ask the chairman for a further clarification. Section 336 of the conference report includes amendment of clause (iv) of Internal Revenue Code section 168(k)(2)(A) to apply the additional year to place an asset in service to assets described in subparagraphs (B) and (C). Subparagraph (B) of the Code applies to certain property having longer production periods. Section 336 of the bill adds subparagraph (C). I would like to be sure that, by using the word "and", the conferees did not intend that a business aircraft would have to be described in both the existing subparagraph (B) and the new subparagraph (C) in order to qualify for the additional year to place the aircraft in service. As the chairman knows, the standards for qualification are substantially different under the two subparagraphs.

Mr. GRASSLEY. I agree that the drafting is not as clear as it might have been. However, it is very clear from all the legislative history that, by adding the new subparagraph, we intended to add a new class of property, business aircraft, to those assets which qualify for the additional year to be placed in service. We did not intend that aircraft which qualify under subparagraph (C) must also qualify under subparagraph (B).

Mr. BROWNBACK. I would like to ask the chairman to address one final point. As the chairman knows, an amendment added to the Senate bill during floor debate temporarily reversed a Tax Court decision, affirmed by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals, concerning the limitation of business deductions for personal entertainment use of a business aircraft. This provision was drastically expanded and made permanent in the conference report. I am very concerned that this provision will have a substantial negative impact on the sales of new aircraft because, much of the business deduction for a new aircraft in its first few years is depreciation. In the same bill that Congress extends the period to place an aircraft in service and still qualify for bonus depreciation, Congress also reverses current law and limits depreciation and other business deductions, even when an employee has income imputed to him for any personal use of the aircraft.

I can understand that the facts of the tax court case that was intended to be reversed involved a high percentage of nonbusiness use. However, it would seem to me that some sort of de minimis amount of personal travel treated as taxable compensation should be allowed without reducing otherwise applicable business deductions. I can also understand limiting deductions for incremental operating costs incurred for a personal flight, but the aircraft depreciates whether it is in the air or on the ground. I do not see the rationale for this extraordinary provision in the conference agreement far beyond the scope of the original Senate provision. The section which the conference report amends concerns entertainment facilities such as hunting and fishing lodges which have no other use than for business or personal entertainment. An aircraft is purchased by a business because they have a business need to be served. It is not the same thing as a hunting lodge. It is difficult for me to believe that, if a court addressed the specific question of whether a business aircraft were an "entertainment facility" under present law, that it would rule against the taxpayer.

I hope that the chairman would be willing to consider a de minimis rule or other modification to limit the scope of this limitation in future tax legislation to allow occasional personal use without limiting otherwise deductible business expense deductions relating to the ownership and use of a business aircraft.

Mr. GRASSLEY: I appreciate the Senator's concerns and will keep them in mind in the future, although I would not anticipate repeal of the full provision included in this conference report.

SECTION 422

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I ask if the chairman of the Committee on Finance would entertain additional questions regarding the American Jobs Creation Act of 2004.

Mr. GRASSLEY. Mr. President, I would be glad to take a question from the Senator from Oregon.

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I have a question about how to interpret one of the rules contained in section 422 of the conference agreement for the American Jobs Creation Act. Would the chairman please clarify what the rule that disallows deductions for expenses "properly allocated and apportioned to the deductible portion" of the dividend is intended to cover?

Mr. GRASSLEY. I thank the Senator from Oregon for his question. The rule and the statement of managers contain some ambiguity as to which deductions are disallowed. The intent of the rule is to disallow only deductions for expenses that relate directly to generating the dividend income in question.

Mr. SMITH. I thank the chairman.

Mr. MCCONNELL. The tobacco buyout is very important to Kentucky, and it is also important that the provisions of the buyout included in the conference report are interpreted and implemented properly. The conference report provides financial assistance for producers in return for the termination of tobacco marketing quotas and related price support. For kinds of tobacco other than fluecured and bured tobacco, the payments to producers will reflect "the basic tobacco farm acreage allotment for the 2002 marketing year established by the secretary for quota tobacco produced on the farm."

My understanding is that for this calculation, the secretary will take into account non-disaster transfer of allotments that were made for the 2002 marketing year. As the Chairman of the Agriculture Committee, is that correct?

Mr. COCHRAN. Yes. For producer payments, such transfers for these crops will be taken into account as they are for the other tobaccos. The payments will be based on the actual amount available on the farm after those transfers.

Mr. MCCONNELL. I thank the Chairman of the Agriculture Committee for clarifying this point for me on this important aspect of the conference report.

Mr. LAUTENBERG. Mr. President, I rise to discuss the FSC/ETI conference report. What the Republican Leadership did to this bill in conference is downright shameful.

In July, I supported an amendment Senators DEWINE and KENNEDY offered to this bill that combined a tobacco buyout with a provision giving the Food and Drug Administration regulatory authority over tobacco.

The Senate passed the FDA amendment by a vote of 78-15. That is a strong show of support.

But something strange happened in conference. The FDA portion disappeared. So in this conference report we have the buyout, but not FDA authority over tobacco products. That is unacceptable.

It is nothing more than a sweetheart deal for tobacco companies. They get cheaper tobacco and continue to avoid FDA regulation.

I have a long history of working on tobacco control. As a former smoker, this is a personal issue to me. And the more I learn about that menace the happier I am for myself and my loved ones.

I have worked hard in the Senate to protect Americans—especially children—from the deadly effects of cigarettes and other tobacco products.

In 1987, long before tobacco control became a mainstream issue, I worked with then Congressman DURBIN to author the law banning smoking on airplanes. That law brought about a sea change in our society's attitudes about smoking.

Once non-smokers could experience a smoke-free environment—in this instance, the cabin of an airplane—they began to demand it.

I also wrote the law banning smoking in all federally-funded places that serve children. And I have long supported FDA jurisdiction over this deadly addiction.

I am deeply disappointed that the Republican leadership is putting politics ahead of the health of our children by opposing FDA authority over tobacco.

Make no mistake: tobacco addiction is still a huge problem in America. Tobacco continues to be the number one cause of preventable death and disease in our Nation. Each year, tobacco claims an estimated 440,000 lives prematurely here in the United States.

According to the Centers for Disease Control, if current tobacco use patterns continue in the United States, over five million children alive today will die prematurely from a smoking-related disease. That is because nearly 4,000 young people try cigarettes for the first time each and every day—a statistic I find mind-boggling.

In addition to the terrible human costs, there are massive economic costs to our Nation. It is estimated that direct medical expenditures attributed to smoking now total more than 75 billion dollars per year.

Despite all of this, the FDA has not been able to take actions to reduce tobacco's harm on society.

A pro-tobacco Congressman recently said:

Tobacco faces enough federal regulation.

But that is a joke. Cigarettes are essentially unregulated. When you go in a grocery store, the only consumable product you can't find a listing of the ingredients for is what's in cigarettes.

The Republican leadership is throwing away an historic opportunity to give the FDA the legal authority it needs to protect the public's health.

Today, we have worthless health warnings on cigarettes, no control over what tobacco companies claim about the relative health effects of their products, no authority to curtail marketing tobacco to kids, and no ability to order the industry to remove especially hazardous ingredients.

The bottom line is: FDA authority will protect kids and save lives.

The 1998 legal settlement between the States and the tobacco companies prohibited the companies from taking "any action, directly or indirectly, to target youth . . . in the advertising, promotion or marketing of tobacco products."

But the tobacco companies are ignoring these promises.

Since the settlement, the tobacco companies have actually increased their marketing expenditures by 66 percent. According to the Federal Trade Commission, the tobacco industry spends more than $11.2 billion per year—over $30.7 million a day—marketing its deadly products just in the United States alone, often targeting youth.

For example, in 2002, Brown & Williamson unveiled a new marketing promotion for their Kool brand of cigarettes called Kool Mixx. This advertising campaign was designed with one simple goal: target young African-Americans and addict them to nicotine.

The "Kool Mixx" campaign included new cigarette packages with images of young DJs and dancers:

It is an outrageous attempt to addict youth.

Brown & Williamson doesn't even bother to be subtle when it comes to targeting African-American youth in this campaign.

The press release from Brown & Williamson announcing the campaign contained almost comical sentences revealing their racial targeting.

This is what the company's press release said:

Kool understands the vibrant urban world of the trendsetting, multicultural smoker.

It goes on to say:

Kool keeps it real and remains linked to the latest urban trends.

This campaign to addict young African-Americans to cigarettes doesn't stop at product packaging and slick ads. Kool is sponsoring a nationwide "DJ Competition" in cities such as New York, Atlanta, Washington, St. Louis, and Chicago.

It seems that "Kool Mixx" is the new "Joe Camel" for minority teenagers.

This overt racial targeting of youth shows that the tobacco industry has not really changed its ways since its settlement with the State attorneys general.

The big tobacco companies have reverted back to the same atrocious behavior we all saw before they promised they would become good "corporate citizens."

Here is something even more outrageous difficult as that is to believe: one of the tobacco industry's new tactics is the introduction of candy-flavored cigarettes and other sweet-flavored tobacco products.

R.J. Reynolds—the same company that once marketed cigarettes to kids with the infamous cartoon character, Joe Camel has launched a series of flavored cigarettes.

One flavor is a pineapple and coconut cigarette called "Kauai Kolada"; another is a citrus-flavored cigarette called "Twista Lime."

These names sound more like bubble gum flavors than deadly cigarettes—which is the point.

These new marketing techniques aimed at kids are especially troubling, given that over 550,000 children will become regular smokers this year alone.

FDA regulation is critical for many reasons. One reason—as we see with these candy-flavored cigarettes—is to keep kids away from these deadly products. Another reason we need FDA regulation is to make sure that preventable dangers in cigarettes are removed.

There are thousands of products for sale in America that people consume, but tobacco products are the only ones—the only ones—which don't have their ingredients disclosed.

That is amazing when you consider that cigarettes are by far the most deadly product you can buy in a grocery store.

Right now, the FDA can regulate a box of macaroni and cheese, but not a pack of cigarettes. If you wanted to know the ingredients of macaroni and cheese, they're listed on the package. But for cigarettes, there is no information whatsoever on the ingredients, toxins, chemicals, etc. It makes no sense.

When a smoker lights a cigarette, the burning ingredients create other chemicals. Some of these are carcinogenic. But tobacco manufacturers are not required by law to disclose the ingredients of their products to the public, including the toxic and cancer-causing ingredients.

A Surgeon General's report in 1989 reported that cigarettes contain 43 known carcinogens.

I wonder how many smokers realize that one of these chemicals is arsenic. I bet most smokers don't know that.

It boils down to this: by stripping out the FDA regulatory authority over tobacco products, we are failing our children. We are putting their health in jeopardy.

This conference report provides billions of dollars to tobacco farmers and boosts tobacco industry profits, but it does absolutely nothing nothing to reduce tobacco's terrible human and economic toll.

I don't know how any Member of this body who is truly concerned about children's health can, in good conscience, support this bill without the FDA provision.

We had a deal; everyone knew it; the tobacco buyout in exchange for FDA regulation. The Republican leadership broke that deal.

I urge my colleagues to oppose this conference report until we give the FDA the authority it needs to regulate tobacco as it does other products.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, it has been a long day, and I thank those Senators who have been here, and especially the presiders who we have had throughout the evening. We now have two appropriations conference reports at the desk ready for consideration. They are military construction appropriations and the homeland security appropriations, obviously two enormously important pieces of legislation, especially given the disaster relief package that is part of the military construction legislation.

It had been my hope to act on these as quickly as possible. I understand there are objections to these and that we will need to file cloture motions to bring these to a vote. I understand there is an issue relating to the military construction bill, but I am unaware of any issue with the appropriations bill relating to homeland security.

Homeland security clearly has important resources that address just what the title says; that is, the safety and security of the American people. I believe the American people, indeed, deserve that we act on this bill in a timely way and in an expeditious way, but it looks like we are being stopped from doing so.

I will file the cloture motions on both of these measures, but I would ask my colleagues on the other side of the aisle who are objecting to proceeding to please consider their objections overnight and allow us to proceed. I urge them, do not force a cloture vote on the homeland security bill, which addresses the security and safety of the American people. I ask that they consider allowing us to vitiate this cloture and move forward tomorrow.

HONORING OUR ARMED FORCES

ARMY SPECIALIST ALLEN JEFFREY "A J." VANDAYBURG

Mr. DEWINE. Mr. President, I rise this evening to say thank you to the men and women serving in our Armed Forces. Too often, we don't take the time to show our appreciation and tell them what their service means to us. They are there for us each day, dedicated to protecting all that we hold dear. They are there for us, making our world more secure. They are there for us, making our world a better place—a safer place. They are there for us, protecting our freedom.

That freedom, though, as we know so well, does not come without a price. It does not come without sacrifice. As General Douglas MacArthur once said:

The soldier, above all other men, is required to perform the highest act of religious teaching—sacrifice. . . . The soldier who is called upon to offer and to give his life for his country is the noblest development of mankind.

This evening, I rise to honor a Mansfield, OH, serviceman who selflessly gave his life while saving those of his comrades. Army SP Allen Jeffrey Vandayburg—"A.J." to his family and friends—earned the Bronze Star Medal with Valor for his final act of bravery—an act that ultimately saved the lives of the men and women serving with him.

On April 9, 2004, in Barez, Iraq, A.J. and other members of the Army's 1st Infantry Division—the "Big Red One"—found themselves in the middle of a fierce firefight with Iraqi insurgents. A.J. was manning the gunner position of his Bradley fighting vehicle when his unit was fired upon. According to an official Army report, A.J. fought valiantly, drawing enemy fire to himself. The report detailed the following:

Vandayburg's unparalleled reflexes allowed him to destroy an [enemy] who was attempting to fire a rocket propelled grenade within 50 meters of his vehicle. Vandayburg had to swivel the entire turret, acquire the target, and destroy the enemy before the rocket-propelled grenade could be fired.

A.J. prevented that grenade from hitting his convoy. He saved many lives that day—an act that ultimately took his own life. His valiant efforts prompted the insurgents to focus their fire on his vehicle. A.J. was killed in the onslaught. He was just 20 years old.

A.J. was truly a great soldier—a courageous young man who put the safety of others above his own. We will never be able to repay A.J. for what he has done, and we will never be able to honor him the way he truly deserves. We can, however, remember this American hero as he was—as a strong, independent young man who did a great deal of good in this world.

In his all too brief 20 years, A.J. touched many lives. His mother, Chantil, fondly recalls that "everybody loved him." It was his smile; it was hard to stay mad at him." A.J.'s father, Allen, remembers that he was the kind of kid who could walk into a room and just light it up.

A.J. loved his family very much. In the summers, A.J. always looked forward to their family vacation to Myrtle Beach, SC. A.J. loved kids. Family friend, Kim Loveland, recalled that she would pay A.J. to watch her children, only to have him turn around and use the money to buy the kids candy.

A.J. went to Mansfield High School, where he played golf and baseball. He was known as a "good guy" who had a lot of good friends. After graduation in 2001, A.J. enlisted in the Army. He would eventually serve in Kosovo, Germany, Kuwait, and Iraq. Allen and Chantil Vandayburg treasure the picture they have of their son with children in Kosovo. Allen likes to call A.J. "a warrior who also had a soft side."

A.J. was a lot like his father. Allen is a 25-year veteran of the Mansfield Police Department. A.J. learned from his dad the value of public service and how to trust your comrades—lessons he would bring with him overseas. A.J.'s parents knew that their son believed in what he was doing in Iraq. A.J. e-mailed them as often as he could and would tell them not to worry—that he trusted his fellow soldiers and knew they would look out for him. In his final battle, it was A.J. who paid the ultimate sacrifice for his comrades and for Iraqis he did not know.

A friend of A.J.'s, Nathan Pival, who is serving in Afghanistan, posted the following message on a Web site honoring A.J.:

A.J.—I found out what happened to you my first week in Afghanistan. To say the least, I felt like a piece of me died, too. I mean, who would have thought that you and me would end up in the Army after high school? I know you didn't find out I was in the service until you tried to call my cell when I was in Basic, but I want you to know that you were the person that helped to convince me that the military would help me out. It has helped me. . . . You are a hero, and you did the right thing, and that is what matters. I believe in a higher purpose, so I know I will see you again some day, but I'm still pretty upset that I am going to have to wait so long to tell my Army stories to my buddy who motivated me to join. If it wasn't for you, I'd probably . . . be going nowhere. I'm sorry I couldn't be there for you man. See you again someday.

A.J.'s family found solace in the final act of devotion from one brother to another. Though he described it as "the hardest thing I've ever had to do,"

A.J.'s brother Chris, a Marine, crossed military branches to escort his brother's body from Dover Air Force Base to their home in Mansfield.

Hundreds of people came to support the Vandayburg family at A.J.'s memorial service. Hundreds more lined the funeral route. The outpouring of support was a truly moving display. At the memorial service, Reverend David Root spoke to the standing-room-only crowd. He said:

[A.J.] was special and that is why you are all here. He chose to take the tough road. He knew the risks. . . . He changed the history of this country.

A.J. Vandayburg was indeed special. He will be remembered always for his bravery, compassion, and sacrifice. He will be remembered as a hero.

I close my remarks with the heartfelt words of A.J.'s 11-year-old sister, Taylor. Her words speak volumes about A.J., her hero—and A.J., her big brother:

Bubby, you are my biggest hero, and I will always love you, but that does not mean I am still not mad at you for leaving, 'cause I am. But, I will always and forever love you. I miss you so much. You are loved and missed so much by me, Mom, Dad, and Chris. . . . You are my hero and my bubby and I love you so much. I am not saying goodbye because you are not gone. You are still with me, and you are the biggest and bravest soldier I know and I know God has a plan for you, but I had one for you to be right here beside me. You still are. I love you so much.

ABUSE OF FOREIGN DETAINEES

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, as we near the end of this session, I am disappointed to report that Congress seems content to let the issue of foreign prisoner abuse linger without effective congressional oversight. Some have argued that continuing to investigate this matter will drag it out, and have the effect of preventing us from putting the scandal behind us. I disagree. We have to uncover the full truth in order to ensure that such abuses are not repeated. I am sorry to report that each week brings new allegations that reveal how much we still do not know.

Last week, I spoke on this floor about a recent Los Angeles Times article that raised troubling new allegations about the abuse of Afghan detainees in Gardez, including the death of one detainee that was never reported up the chain of command. The article revealed what appears to be a complete disregard for established Army procedure among certain units in Afghanistan.

I sent a letter to Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld on October 1, 2004, asking him several questions about the allegations raised in the news article. I asked Secretary Rumsfeld to explain how the special forces base at Gardez was allegedly allowed to operate with no recordkeeping requirements or standing operating procedures—an allegation that was corroborated by a U.S. Army investigator in Afghanistan. I asked whether any official policy allowed special forces units to suspend normal recordkeeping requirements while operating in Afghanistan or Iraq. I asked if there is an official policy to allow special forces units to detain prisoners in local Afghan jails or other undisclosed facilities. I asked Secretary Rumsfeld for a prompt response and hope that he delivers one soon.

Even without the answers to these questions, we now know that senior officials in the White House, the Justice Department, and the Pentagon set in motion a systematic effort to minimize, distort, and even ignore our international agreements on torture and the treatment of prisoners. I am dismayed to report that some Members of Congress are now attempting to make it much easier for the administration to circumvent our treaty obligations. The 9/11 Recommendations Implementation Act, H.R. 10, was recently introduced by the House Republican leadership. Sections 3032 and 3033 of that bill would make it official U.S. policy to exclude certain non-citizens from the protection of the Convention Against Torture, a treaty to which the United States is a party. To enact such language after the abuses that took place at Abu Ghraib and other locations would further undermine the once distinguished reputation of the United States as a world leader on human rights.

Reports of the administration's support of these provisions are conflicting. Last week, Speaker HASTERT's office claimed that the Justice Department "wants and supports" the provisions. The Justice Department declined to offer an official endorsement of sections 3032 and 3033, but claimed that it favored any "provisions that will better secure our borders and protect the American people from terrorists." In an attempt to reconcile these statements, Senator KENNEDY and I sent Attorney General Ashcroft a letter on October 1 urging him to repudiate the Department's support for these sections. We were pleased to learn this week that the White House went on record in opposition to the provisions, but we still await a reply from the Attorney General definitively stating the position of the Department of Justice.

Next Friday, October 15, is the deadline imposed by a Federal judge for the administration to turn over or identify all documents relating to the treatment of prisoners held by the United States at military bases and other detention facilities overseas. In his order, Judge Hellerstein stated: "No one is above the law: not the executive, not the Congress, not the judiciary." I could not agree more. Unfortunately, this administration has continually ignored my requests for these documents—I will not be surprised if it refuses to comply with this court order. I would note that the original Freedom of Information Act request for these documents was submitted in October 2003, a year ago. Any embarrassment their release may cause now—less than 3 weeks before the Presidential election—is due to the administration's own stonewalling.

As the 108th Congress comes to a close, many questions about the prison abuse scandal will undoubtedly remain unanswered. Several Pentagon investigations are now complete, but none of them paint a complete and unbiased assessment of the prisoner abuse scandal. This Senate, and in particular the Judiciary Committee and Governmental Affairs Committee, failed to fulfill its oversight responsibilities. I have said many times there needs to be a thorough, independent investigation of the actions of those involved, from the people who committed abuses, to the officials who set these policies in motion. Perhaps in the new year, with a new Congress, the administration in power will be ready to seek the full truth about this scandal and begin the process of restoring honor to our nation.

I ask unanimous consent that the letters to Secretary Rumsfeld and Attorney General Ashcroft, both dated October 1, 2004, be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC, October 1, 2004.

HON. DONALD RUMSFELD,
Secretary of Defense,
Washington, DC.

DEAR SECRETARY RUMSFELD: As you know, I am deeply troubled by the revelations of abuse of prisoners in U.S. custody overseas. I have closely monitored the numerous ongoing and completed investigations instigated by the Pentagon, but remain skeptical that these investigations will uncover the full truth. Each of these probes is limited in scope or authority and, therefore, none will comprehensively investigate the abuse of detainees. Each week brings new allegations that reveal how much we still do not know.

I am particularly disturbed by a story published in the Los Angeles Times on September 21, 2004. This article raises troubling new allegations about the abuse of Afghan detainees in Gardez, but also reveals what appears to be a complete disregard for established Army procedure among certain units in Afghanistan. According to the news report, based in part on a report written by Afghan prosecutors for the Afghan Attorney General, U.S. Army Special Forces arrested eight Afghan soldiers in March 2003 at the request of the provincial governor. The prosecutors' report and an internal memorandum prepared by a United Nations delegation both allege American mistreatment of the detainees including repeated beatings, immersion in cold water, electric shocks, being hung upside down, and having toenails torn off. One detainee, Jamal Naseer, reportedly died as a result of the torture. The U.S. Army Criminal Investigation Command (CID) recently opened a criminal probe into Naseer's death.

This incident is very troubling, but it points to a much larger problem. CID received a tip about Naseer's death earlier this year, but stated that it could not investigate the matter due to a lack of information. Christopher Coffey, an Army detective based at Bagram air base, told the L.A. Times: "We're trying to figure out who was running the base. We don't know what unit was there. There are no records. The reporting system is broke across the board. Units are transferred in and out. There are no SOPs [standard operating procedures] . . . and each unit acts differently."

Apparently, because these units failed to follow Army procedure, Naseer's death was never reported up the chain of command. Yet, Lt. Gen. Mikolashek's report on detainee operations inspection, released in July of this year, conclusively stated that the team "that visited Iraq and Afghanistan discovered no incidents of abuse that had not been reported through command channels; all incidents were already under investigation." We now know that this statement cannot be accurate. What we do not know is whether and how many other deaths, let alone cases of abuse, may have gone unreported.

I also have new questions about the Defense Department's involvement in the "ghost detainee" matter. The Fay-Jones report revealed that the ghost detainee problem in Iraq was far more pervasive than the Defense Department had previously acknowledged, but that report placed much of the blame on the CIA. The L.A. Times story, however, accuses U.S. Special Forces commanders in Afghanistan of using local jails to hide prisoners off of the official roles.

In order to better understand the situation in Afghanistan, and the role of the Department in monitoring the actions of forces on the ground, I ask that you respond to the following questions by October 8, 2004.

1. Please explain how the Special Forces base at Gardez was allowed to operate with no recordkeeping requirements or Standing Operating Procedures (SOPs).

2. Did any official policy allow Special Forces units to suspend normal recordkeeping requirements or chain of command reporting while operating in Afghanistan or Iraq?

3. Did any official policy allow Special Forces units to detain prisoners in local Afghan jails, or in any other undisclosed facilities?

4. Mr. Coffey's quote above suggests that an unknown number of detention centers have operated or are now operating in Afghanistan with total impunity. In light of the allegations raised in the L.A. Times story, what actions is the Pentagon taking to investigate the situation and resolve the problems?

5. In the absence of recordkeeping and SOPs, do you agree that none of the ongoing or completed Pentagon investigations can claim to have uncovered all allegations of abuse?

6. Are any other government entities, such as the CIA or other intelligence agencies, involved in the operation of these detention centers or in the treatment or interrogation of prisoners? If so, please describe the agencies and their role. If the answer to this or any other question contained in this letter is classified, please submit your answer in classified form and make it available to appropriately cleared staff.

As stated above, I request that you answer these questions by October 8, 2004. Thank you for your prompt attention to this matter.

Sincerely,

PATRICK LEAHY,
Ranking Member.

U.S. SENATE,
COMMITTEE ON THE JUDICIARY,
Washington, DC, October 1, 2004,

Hon. John D. Ashcroft,
Attorney General, Department of Justice,
Washington, DC.

DEAR ATTORNEY GENERAL ASHCROFT: We write to express our deep concern about the report in yesterday's Washington Post that the Department supports the "rendition" of detainees to nations where they are likely to be tortured.

The United States is a party to the Convention Against Torture, which provides that "No State Party shall expel, return or extradite a person to another State where there are substantial grounds for believing he would be in danger of being subjected to torture." Since 9/11, there have been numerous reports that detainees in the custody of U.S. military or intelligence officials have been transferred for interrogation to governments known to torture prisoners. According to such reports, detainees who refuse to cooperate with U.S. interrogators have been "rendered" to foreign intelligence services in Saudi Arabia, Jordan, Morocco, Syria, and other countries that practice torture. One report stated that Deputy Attorney General Thompson approved the rendition to Syria of a Canadian citizen, who was confined in a small dark cell for a year and beaten on his palms, wrists, and back with an electric cable. Syrian officials later released him, telling reporters they found no link to Al Qaeda.

Until now, Administration officials have denied any involvement in this practice. At a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing on May 11, Undersecretary of Defense for Intelligence Stephen Cambone testified that "to the best of [his] knowledge" the Administration was fully complying with all legal requirements and that all reports of U.S. officials engaging in the practice of rendition were false.

Yesterday's report, however, states that the Department is urging House Republicans to include provisions in the 9/11 intelligence reform legislation authorizing the practice of renditions. Sections 3032 and 3033 of the bill, H.R. 10, would require the Secretary of Homeland Security to issue new regulations to exclude certain non-citizens from the protection of the Convention Against Torture. The changes would increase the burden of proof on any person being deported or rendered to establish "by clear and convincing evidence that he or she would be tortured," and would deny the jurisdiction of courts to review the new regulations or claims brought under the Convention Against Torture by aliens at ports of entry.

These changes would violate longstanding U.S. law and policy, undermine basic humanitarian and human rights standards, expose U.S. soldiers and citizens traveling abroad to greater danger, and further weaken America's standing in the world.

Yet the spokesman for House Speaker Hastert is quoted in the report as saying that the Department "really wants and supports" these provisions. Department spokesman Mark Corallo was also quoted as saying, "We can't comment on any specific provision, but we support those provisions that will better secure our borders and protect the American people from terrorists."

No Department official should express support, either openly or behind the scenes, for provisions that so clearly violate fundamental human rights. Torture defies our laws and stains our ideals. The abuses at Abu Ghraib prison have been a major setback in the war on terrorism. An essential part of winning that war and protecting the country for the future is respect for the ideals that America stands for at home and throughout the world.

The Department has already undermined those ideals by issuing legal memoranda attempting to weaken the definition of torture and eliminate restraints imposed by U.S. laws and international treaties on the conduct of Executive Branch officials. We urge you to repudiate immediately and without qualification the Department's support for sections 3032 and 3033 in the House legislation, and to put an immediate halt to any Administration involvement in the illegal practice of rendition.

Sincerely,

EDWARD M. KENNEDY,
U.S. Senator.
PATRICK LEAHY,
Ranking Member.

MEDICARE MODERNIZATION ACT

Mr. HATCH. Mr. President, I have to respond to the outrageous charges made by my colleagues on the other side of the aisle regarding the Medicare statement I delivered yesterday.

I was disturbed by several remarks, especially that seniors have flatly rejected the Medicare prescription drug benefit. How is that even possible when the drug benefit doesn't even go into effect until January 1, 2006?

How is that possible when many Medicare beneficiaries are participating in the Medicare Drug Discount Card and have seen savings in their drug costs up to 20 percent per drug? I do not see that as an outright rejection at all.

My colleagues need to be careful about their charges, especially when they do not have the facts to back them up. I also take issue with my colleague's assertion that our prescription drug law is only a drug law in name. What does he mean by that?

Let me remind the Senator from Illinois that because of this new Medicare prescription drug law, 40 million Medicare beneficiaries will have drug coverage if they want it. The bill provides generous subsidies to low-income Medicare beneficiaries who, today, cannot afford to purchase drugs.

Prior to enactment of the Medicare Modernization Act, these beneficiaries had to make tough choices between buying their prescription drugs and putting gas in their cars. Or buying prescription drugs or putting food on the table. Or buying prescription drugs or paying their rent. Once the Medicare prescription drug plan goes into effect on January 1, 2006, those Medicare beneficiaries will no longer have to worry. And another point that needs to be raised regarding this matter—if there were any proposals that deserve to be recognized as offering a drug benefit in name only, it's the two Democratic plans of two years ago—plans supported by 50 and 45 Democrats respectively, including the Democratic Leader and Senator KERRY.

My colleague, Senator GRASSLEY, described those plans a few days ago, but let me take a few minutes to recap. The first Democratic plan had a drug benefit that lasted just six years. Talk about offering a drug benefit in name only.

The second plan didn't even offer a benefit to the vast majority of beneficiaries. Seventy percent of beneficiaries would not have received any basic coverage. A plan that shuts out the vast majority of beneficiaries—how can you call that a drug benefit? Guess what those 70 percent got.

You are not going to believe this—a five percent discount on their drugs. Once they spent $3,300 out of pocket, they could qualify for catastrophic coverage.

Some have taken issue with the MMA, saying that the “benefit” stops after an initial coverage amount. I would like to remind my colleagues on the other side of the aisle that their basic benefit would have never even started for 70 percent of beneficiaries! Talk about a doughnut hole; these beneficiaries didn’t even get a doughnut!

The Congressional Budget Office estimated that 66 percent of beneficiaries wouldn’t meet the $3,330 threshold—again, for these folks, the only help they would get was a five percent discount! A five percent discount!

I was also extremely disappointed by the arguments made by the Senator from Illinois and the Senator from California against what some have termed the “non-interference” provision. As I outlined, this provision has been included in the most prominent Democrat initiatives, starting with the Clintons’ Health Security Act over a decade ago. Despite that fact, here we are again listening to arguments against it. Apparently, what was good in a Democratic administration is bad in a Republican one.

And what was good in a Democratic Senate is bad in a Republican Senate during an election year. It is almost as if my colleagues were not listening to what I said. The argument that there is no authority for the federal government to bargain with the pharmaceutical companies is getting to be a tired argument. Again, let me repeat myself from yesterday.

First, the Democrat-sponsored bill from 2000, introduced by Senator Tom Daschle and supported and cosponsored by 33 Senate Democrats, had a specific provision which stated the following:

In administering the prescription drug benefit program established under this part, the Secretary may not (1) require a particular formulary or institute a price structure for benefits; (2) interfere in any way with negotiations between private entities and drug manufacturers, or wholesalers; or (3) otherwise interfere with the competitive nature of providing a prescription drug benefit through private entities.

Again, this provision is from S. 2541, the Medicare Expansion for Needed Drugs, a bill that was introduced by Senator DASCHLE and cosponsored by 33 Democrats, including not only Senator KERRY but also Senator DURBIN and Senator BOXER who spoke against it on the floor yesterday.

Now, it is every Senator’s right to change his or her mind, but you would think we would hear some discussion about the basis for this flip-flop. Instead, there is much dialogue about the so-called “evil” pharmaceutical companies, and virtually no admission that many Democrats, many prominent Democrats, have been on record in favor of the provision they now castigate.

And what is even more outrageous is the fact that they are the ones who first came up with the concept.

When I hear my colleague from California talk about how the Medicare drug law does not do much for seniors, let me just remind my colleagues on both sides of the aisle that she is sadly mistaken.

On the contrary, the Medicare prescription law improves health care coverage for Medicare beneficiaries by first, giving them the option to have prescription drug coverage, something that they do not have today and something Medicare beneficiaries have wanted for close to 40 years!

In addition, the MMA provides beneficiaries new preventive health benefits including a first-time, Welcome to Medicare Physical Examination, cardiovascular and diabetes screening and improved payments for mammography.

It also provided rural health care providers with increased reimbursement so they may continue to provide Medicare beneficiaries living in rural areas with quality health care. I don’t know about California or Illinois, but that is most welcome in Utah!

It also provides beneficiaries with a choice in coverage. Seniors will be able to choose the drug benefit that best suits their needs, rather than be forced in a one-size fits all government plan which is what many of my colleagues on the other side of the aisle support.

Another important provision in the bill helps all Americans by offering them Health Savings Accounts, HSAs. HSAs are tax-advantaged savings accounts which may be used to pay for medical benefits. The inclusion of these new accounts is a significant part of the Medicare law.

Allowing individuals to take charge of their own savings for future health care expenses is an important and necessary change in the direction of our health care policy, and is one that I support strongly.

Another point raised by my colleague from California is the doughnut hole. I think she called the doughnut hole a “benefit shutdown.” I agree that the MMA law is not perfect and, yes, this is an area I wish we could have improved upon. But calling it a “benefit shutdown” is not only wrong, it is deceptive.

The reason it is wrong to call the doughnut hole a “benefit shutdown” is that it would not affect the majority of seniors, and since our first responsibility is to take care of the very poor beneficiaries, that is entirely fitting. In fact, the Congressional Budget Office told us that only one-quarter of Medicare beneficiaries will have spending that actually reaches the non-coverage window of the doughnut hole.

Finally, let me remind my colleague from California that the Medicare prescription drug amendment the Democrats brought to the floor in 2002 sunsetted the Medicare prescription drug program. My good friend from Iowa, Senator GRASSLEY, the Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee was talking about this irony the other day on the floor.

Let me recap what Senator GRASSLEY said.

When we were considering the Medicare Tripartisan bill on the Senate floor on 2002, the first Graham-Kennedy Medicare proposal was not permanent. Let me read the language from their proposal:

“No obligations shall be incurred, no amounts shall be appropriated and no amounts expended, for the expenses incurred for providing coverage of outpatient drugs after December 31, 2010.”

Isn’t that just remarkable? And they are calling the MMA a drug plan in name only? Who are they trying to kid?

The fact that the Graham-Kennedy proposal offered a drug benefit that ended 6 years after it started is unbelievable. But they sunsetted the benefit to hide the true cost of their proposal.

At the time, the Congressional Budget Office said it would cost over $100 billion each year to extend the Graham-Kennedy drug benefit past the sunset—$100 billion a year without a plan to pay for this enormous cost!

And the argument made about the MMA not going into effect until after the election is just more election year political jabber. That is a ridiculous charge, one that does not even warrant a response. But I will respond to it by saying that it takes time to put together a benefit that will cover over 40 million Americans.

It takes time to do it correctly. The agency in charge of the Medicare program needs time to implement the MMA regulations, accept bids from plans that wish to participate in the Medicare Advantage programs and, most important, it takes time to educate Medicare beneficiaries about the options that will be offered to them.

And let me remind all of you that even the Democrat proposals that have been considered in the past did not have the Medicare prescription drug programs go into effect immediately, so that is just a ludicrous charge.

In addition, I will remind my colleagues that both the Democratic plans under consideration in the summer of 2002 didn’t go into effect until 2005 because they recognized the same thing we did—that it will take some time to get a new program like this up and running.

And so, there’s no subterfuge behind the 2006 date in the MMA. Moreover, at least the MMA offers immediate assistance through the drug card program. Their plans offered nothing until 2005 and then very little after that!

I would also like to respond to my colleague from California’s comments about the Veterans Administration system and the deficiencies of which I described this yesterday morning. If she’s surprised at the Republicans for not using the VA model, then my only guess is that she’s even more surprised that her own party didn’t.

No—they wanted to have private plans negotiate with drug companies—the same approach taken in the MMA. The VA system was not a model for any Medicare prescription drug plans considered on the Senate floor.

Finally, let me address the idea of importing cheap drugs from Canada.

First, nobody has a greater desire than I to make prescription drugs more affordable, particularly for our seniors and the disabled, who depend so heavily upon pharmaceuticals for their quality of life. I co-authored the 1984 bill which, in essence, brought generic drugs to the marketplace to become the force for competition and affordability that they are today.

My colleagues seem to forget that the MMA does include a provision to permit the importation of prescription drugs from Canada once a program is in place that is approved and certified for safety and cost by the Secretary of the Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). The law also calls for the Secretary to establish a 13-member task force that will study proposals to make re-importation safe and cost effective.

HHS Secretary Tommy Thompson has stated he is hopeful the panel's study will be completed by the end of this year. We shouldn't overlook the fact that the FDA has documented many cases of what appeared to be FDA-approved imported drugs that in fact were contaminated or counterfeit, contained the wrong product or incorrect dose, were accompanied by inadequate directions, or had outlived their expiration date.

These drugs would be at a minimum ineffective, and could actually be harmful or fatal.

The FDA is also concerned with the safety of allowing companies which are not licensed by states to practice pharmacy to sell prescription drugs without any limitation on the amount or frequency of drug imports permitted for individuals.

In addition, reimportation legislation as it is written would allow risky drugs that are currently available in the U.S. only under strict safety controls to be reimported at any amount or frequency to anyone—even those who are at high risk to be seriously injured by the medication.

The FDA underscored these concerns in the Judiciary Committee's hearing on drug importation last July. The agency stressed that opening our tightly regulated, closed system of prescription drug distribution will open the door to counterfeit and otherwise adulterated or misbranded drugs being widely distributed to an unwitting American public.

Mr. William K. Hubbard, the Associate Commissioner for Policy and Planning for the FDA testified before the Senate Judiciary Committee on this important matter. I would like to take this opportunity to read some of his testimony to my colleagues:

FDA remains concerned about the public health implications of unapproved prescription drugs from entities seeking to profit by getting around U.S. legal standards for drug safety and effectiveness. Many drugs obtained from foreign sources that either purport to be or appear to be the same as U.S. approved prescription drugs are, in fact, of unknown quality. Consumers are exposed to a number of potential risks when they purchase drugs from foreign sources or from sources that are not operated by pharmacies properly licensed under state pharmacy laws.

Patients also are at greater risk because there is no certainty about what they are getting when they purchase some of these drugs. Although some purchasers of drugs from foreign sources may receive genuine product, others may unknowingly buy counterfeit copies that contain only inert ingredients, legitimate drugs that are outdated and have been diverted to unscrupulous resellers, or dangerous sub-potent or super-potent products that were improperly manufactured. Furthermore, in the case of foreign-based sources, if a consumer has an adverse drug reaction or any other problem, the consumer may have little or no recourse either because the operator of the pharmacy often is not known, or the physical location of the seller is unknown or beyond the consumer's reach. FDA has only limited ability to take action against these foreign operators.

These safety concerns are real, and I strongly believe that if we truly care about seniors and other patients who depend upon prescription drugs, we should not expose them to what currently amounts to pharmaceutical Russian roulette.

Now the FDA is working with some of my colleagues on legislation that would give the FDA greater resources, limit the scope of imports, and provide greater power to the FDA to police imports. In recent public comments, former Commissioner Mark McClellan has said these measures would give the agency the ability to assure the safety of prescription drugs imported by Canada.

In addition to these safety concerns, however, I am also concerned that re-imported drugs pose a threat to the innovation Americans—and the rest of the world—have come to expect from our pharmaceutical industry. Canada and other countries with lower drug prices generally import superior American products, but impose price controls to keep costs down.

However, it can cost as much as $1 billion to produce a new drug, test it, win FDA approval, educate doctors, and make the drug available to patients. No pharmaceutical company could go through this immensely expensive process without a chance to recover some of its costs, which will not be possible if we impose in America—however indirectly—Canadian-style price controls. I do not believe that sacrificing the safety and future supply of our drugs by reimportation is the right answer to the high cost of prescription drugs.

I hope that I have cleared up any misunderstandings that Medicare beneficiaries have about the MMA law. Again, we gain nothing by spreading mistruths about the Medicare bill.

The only thing that results from those types of charges is confusion of Medicare beneficiaries—the very people who all of us are trying to help. And that is regrettable.

ANTISEMITISM

Mr. SMITH. Mr. President, I speak about antisemitism, an ancient pestilence that has torn at the fabric of society for too long. Specifically, I have become concerned with the dissemination of antisemitic attitudes through political cartoons.

Last month, on the eve of Rosh Hashanah, I stood in this chamber along with a bipartisan group of my colleagues to speak about the cancerous effect that antisemitism continues to have on humanity. As I stated then, it is of the highest priority for our Nation to stand up against this venomous invective and bigotry directed at the Jewish people.

It is an unfortunate reality that some newspapers in the Arab world blatantly promote antisemitism. For my remarks, I had prepared several posters of cartoons that appeared in Arabic-language newspapers to illustrate to my colleagues their insidious nature, but in the end, I found them too unsettling to display.

What I find disconcerting, however, is the fact that this sentiment is creeping into political cartoons both in Europe as well as here in the United States. Newspapers across the country and the world have published cartoons that have gone beyond reasonable differences of opinion and expanded into the realm of antisemitism.

For example, I have seen a cartoon of a man lying on the ground, bleeding and clutching a small Palestinian flag. Impaled in his back is a large American flag with its stars arranged to form the Star of David. This graphic image, insinuating that an Israeli-controlled America has killed the state of Palestine, is appalling.

In Italy, the Newspaper La Stampa ran a cartoon depicting an Israeli tank rumbling toward a baby Jesus, who is crying "Surely they don't want to kill me again?!" This is not a criticism of policy or leadership. This is nothing other than an antisemitic attack thinly veiled as political parody.

In the Greek Newspaper Ethnos, a cartoon appeared showing two Israeli soldiers stabbing captive Arabs. One of the Israeli soldiers is depicted as saying to the other "Don't feel guilty, brother. We were not in Auschwitz and Dachau to suffer but to learn!" How can that be construed as anything other than bigotry? This kind of hatred is simply unacceptable, and I urge my colleagues in the Senate, as well as leaders across the world, to make every effort to end this terrible plague of hatred.

RELATIONS WITH KYRGYZSTAN

Ms. LANDRIEU. Mr. President, I make special note of the visit to the United States by the distinguished

President of the Republic of Kyrgyzstan, Askar Akaev. President Akaev was in the our country for the opening of the session of the United Nations and also traveled to Utah to discuss the reforms taking place in his country and to talk about the efforts his nation is taking in the war on terrorism. Today we face a global war against terror, a war we cannot win alone. It is in that spirit that we should recognize and support democracies worldwide, particularly those burgeoning democracies for which freedom is a new concept. The Republic of Kyrgyzstan, is just such an example.

A small country of 5 million in Central Asia, the Kyrgyz Republic has been one of the most progressive countries in the region, especially amongst the countries which once made up the former Soviet Union. Plagued by an inflation rate of 88% in the year 1994, Kyrgyzstan under the leadership of President Akaev was successful in carrying out a number of market reforms, which allowed it to lower that inflation rate to 15 percent in just three years.

President, Askar Akaev was first elected in October of 1990 and is internationally recognized for his promotion of science, human rights and democracy world wide. He has received many International Awards, including the Grand Cross of the Order of Liberty and Unity from the Association for Unity Latin America in 1995, the Prize of Javaharlal Neru's International Foundation for Unity also in 1995, the Prize of Crans Montana World Forum in 1996 and the North American-Kyrgyz Business Councils International Leadership Award in 1997. More recently, however, President Akaev's wife and first lady, Mairam Akaeva was awarded an honorary doctorate by Utah Valley State College during a trip to the United States late last month. She is also internationally known for her efforts with women and children, spreading the value of education, which is highly regarded in the Kyrgyz Republic, which enjoys a literacy rate of 98 percent.

I thank President Akaev's commitment to the war on terrorism and express our gratitude for providing a military base for our troops in his country. There are a number of companies with operations in the region that have helped supply our troops with what they need to prevail.

As we continue to search for allies in this critical region of the world, it is important to commend those who are trying and slowly succeeding with new found freedoms and economic opportunities.

BULLETPROOF VEST PARTNERSHIP GRANT PROGRAM

Mr. LEAHY. Mr. President, I am pleased that late last night the House of Representatives passed H.R. 2714 with the Leahy-Hatch amendment to reauthorize the highly successful Department of Justice Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Program. I thank the Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, Senator HATCH, for joining me on this amendment. This bipartisan legislation now goes to the president for his signature into law.

Our amendment contains the same legislative language as the Campbell-Leahy-Hatch Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act of 2003, S. 764. The Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act passed the Senate by unanimous consent on July 15, 2003, and has been awaiting consideration by the House of Representatives since then.

This measure marks the third time that I have had the privilege of teaming with my friend and colleague Senator CAMPBELL to work on the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Program. We authored the Bulletproof Vest Grant Partnership Act of 1998, which responded to the tragic Carl Drega shootout in 1997 on the Vermont-New Hampshire border, in which two State troopers who did not have bulletproof vests were killed. The federal officers who responded to the scenes of the shooting spree were equipped with life-saving body armor, but the state and local law enforcement officers lacked protective vests because of the cost.

Two years later, we successfully passed the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act of 2000, and now we will go 3-for-3 this time around. Senator CAMPBELL brings to our effort invaluable experience in this area and during his time in the Senate he has been a leader in the area of law enforcement. As a former deputy sheriff, he knows the dangers law enforcement officers face when out on patrol. I am pleased that we have been joined in this effort by 12 other Senate cosponsors, including Senator HATCH.

Our bipartisan legislation will save the lives of law enforcement officers across the country by providing more help to state and local law enforcement agencies to purchase body armor. Since its inception in 1999, this highly successful Department of Justice program has provided law enforcement officers in 16,000 jurisdictions nationwide with nearly 350,000 new bulletproof vests. In Vermont, 60 municipalities have been fortunate to receive funding for the purchase of 1,905 vests.

The Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Act of 2003 will further the success of the Bulletproof Vest Partnership Grant Program by re-authorizing the program through fiscal year 2007. Our legislation would continue the Federal-State partnership by authorizing up to $50 million per year for matching grants to state and local law enforcement agencies and Indian tribes at the Department of Justice to buy body armor.

We know that body armor saves lives, but the cost has put these vests out of the reach of many of the officers who need them. This program makes it more affordable for police departments of all sizes. Few things mean more to me than when I meet Vermont police officers and they tell me that the protective vests they wear were made possible because of this program. This is the least we should do for the officers on the front lines who put themselves in danger for us every day. I want to make sure that every police officer who needs a bulletproof vest gets one.

S. 2972. A bill to amend the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 to permanently increase the maximum annual contribution allowed to be made to Coverdell education savings accounts, and to provide for a deduction for contributions to education savings accounts; to the Committee on Finance.

Ms. CANTWELL. Mr. President, I rise today to talk about increasing educational opportunities by improving a tax-free way to save for college. A college education is invaluable in today's workforce, requiring new skills and a post-secondary education to stay competitive in our global economy. That's why I am introducing two pieces of legislation that will help make paying for college easier:

The Education Savings for Students Act and College Savings Act both expand current Coverdell education savings accounts by permanently increasing the annual contribution amount to $5,000.

The College Savings Act would allow families to deduct from income the amount they contribute to their education savings account. The Education Savings Act keeps the current conditions under Coverdells that investment earnings grow tax-free and withdrawals from their account are tax-exempt when their child goes to school, but permanently increases the minimum annual contribution from $2,000 to $5,000.

Both bills provide a financial incentive to put away money for college where parents have the ability to save now through deductible contributions or bank on projected savings through tax-deferred earnings and withdrawals.

It's incredible how fast kids grow. One day they're in kindergarten, and the next day they're packing up and leaving for college. What's even more incredible is that higher education costs grow just as fast as they do.

I understand that parents have a lot to worry about, especially when their children are young. But with rising college costs, parents must also be concerned about how to pay for their child's college education. Mounting tuition costs and prices for books and materials, plus room and board have made colleges and universities less affordable for most families.

College is expensive. There are many parents whose children have aimed to go to college, but soon discover they can't afford it because of rising costs.

In 2002, the National Center for Public Policy and Higher Education reported national trends which—if remain unaddressed—will have adverse consequences for expanding students' opportunities to pursue a higher education and future career.

This report found that over the last two decades, the cost of attending two- and four-year public and private colleges have not only grown more rapidly than inflation, but faster than family incomes, increasing the share of family income that is needed to pay for tuition and other college expenses. From 1991 through 2001, tuition at four-year public colleges and universities rose faster than family income in 41 states, including my home State of Washington.

The Washington State Higher Education Coordinating Board reports that, over the last ten years, tuition and fees have far outpaced family income, increasing 89 percent compared to 51 percent in per capita personal income in my state. In comparison, the cost of most consumer goods increased an average of 20 percent during the same time. And, per capita personal income in Washington increased 51 percent during this period.

As a result, more students and families at all income levels are borrowing more money than ever before to pay for college. In 1981, loans accounted for 45 percent and grants for 52 percent of federal student financial aid. In 2000, loans represented 58 percent of Federal student financial aid, and grants represented 41 percent.

Unfortunately, the steepest increases in college and university tuition have been imposed during times of greatest economic hardship. Just in the past three years, our economy has experienced a loss of 1.8 million private sector jobs and 2.7 million manufacturing jobs. It is my priority that we prepare our workers for the jobs of today and the careers of the future. If we want to maintain our economic competitiveness, we need to make college more affordable. We must keep up with the demand for skilled workers across all sectors of the economy.

In February, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported that six of the ten fastest-growing occupations in the U.S. economy require an associate's degree or bachelor's degree, and that all ten of these careers will require some type of skills training. By 2010, 40 percent of all job growth will require some form of post-secondary education.

Workers with a college degree make 75 percent more than those without. A college education pays tremendous dividends—not just to individuals, but also to their entire communities. On average, a one-year increase in a metropolitan area's educational level raises wages by three to five percent.

Affordability is key to expanding opportunities to go to college. Let's face it, we're not all going to pay for college by winning the lottery. Saving for college early and often will help lift the pressures off of parents who are feeling the financial squeeze of increased tuition and fees.

For these families, Coverdell Education Savings plans provide a needed relief for the middle class. The purpose of education savings plans are to increase saving by increasing net returns. Today, parents can put up to $2,000 a year into a Coverdell Education Savings account. The actual contribution is not tax deductible, but all earnings in this account are free from taxes when they are withdrawn to pay for school.

However, the current $2,000 annual limit on Coverdell contributions will be repealed in 2010 unless Congress acts to extend it. If we don't extend the contribution level, the maximum contribution will drop to $500.

While the current tax benefit makes it easier to save for college, the Education Savings Act would increase the annual contributions from $2,000 to $5,000 and making this change permanent ensures greater savings for families. By increasing the amount parents can put aside for their children's college savings, middle-income parents will be able to more easily save for their child's college education.

Say for example, parents start saving when their child turns eight years old. If they put away just $100.00 a month—at an interest rate of savings of four percent—by the time their kid turns 18, their account would have earned more than $12,400 in interest. Parents will save over $3,100 in taxes when that child is old enough to go to school.

In addition to projected savings, parents also have the option to save now. The College Savings Act would offer families the ability to deduct their contributions each year—

Both of these bills, the College Savings Act and the Education Savings Act are financial incentives for people to save by allowing families to deduct the amount they contribute and take tax-free earnings when their child is ready to go to school, would further lessen the financial burden that parents bear by saving money early and often.

Permanently expanding the Coverdell maximum contribution from its current threshold of $2,000 to $5,000 a year and allowing this contribution to be tax deductible is a common-sense savings vehicle that keeps future college costs from spinning out of control. Increasing contribution caps will make school more affordable at a time when a college education and advanced job training is becoming more and more important for economic success.

By Mr. CORZINE (for himself, Mrs. BOXER, Mrs. MURRAY, Mr. SCHUMER, Mr. LAUTENBERG, and Mr. LEAHY):

S. 2973. A bill to clarify the applicability of State law to national banks, and for other purposes; to the Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs.

Mr. CORZINE. Mr. President, I rise today to introduce legislation along with Senators BOXER, MURRAY, SCHUMER, LAUTENBERG, and LEAHY the Preservation of Federalism in Banking Act, to clarify the relationship between state consumer protection laws and national banks.

This legislation responds to a sweeping new rule issued by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the agency that regulates national banks. The OCC's new rule gives the agency unprecedented authority to pre-empt State laws, thereby shielding national banks and their non-bank and State-chartered bank affiliates from many important consumer protections. It also potentially limits the ability of States to enforce many related laws. The most important immediate consequence of the OCC rule has been the preemption of State anti-predatory lending laws.

I feel strongly about the need to address predatory lending, which can trap people in endless cycles of debt and escalating fees. Many States, such as my own state of New Jersey, have enacted tough laws to deal with the problem. Unfortunately, the OCC's ruling substantially undermines these laws by regulatory fiat. That will leave many consumers unprotected, and it shifts too many responsibilities to a single agency here in Washington that is not equipped to handle them. After all, according to its own website, the OCC "does not have the mandate to engage in consumer advocacy".

Although the OCC has a long and successful record of regulating for safety and soundness, it has little experience dealing with abusive local practices, such as predatory lending. Believe it or not, the OCC actually is proposing to handle all consumer complaints through a single 22-person call center in Houston. This is totally unrealistic. Each year, State officials receive thousands of related complaints, which usually are very local in nature. These officials are at the forefront of the enforcement effort, identifying and combating new practices as they arise. The OCC's system simply could not fill this role without major changes.

The OCC rule also raises concerns about regulatory charter competition, the viability of a broad range of state laws, and the ability of consumers and state officials to seek remedies in court.

The OCC rule has provoked strong opposition from governors, attorneys general, banking supervisors, and many consumer advocacy groups, not to mention the public. The OCC received over 2,600 letters in response to its rules, and more than 90 percent opposed them.

The Preservation of Federalism in Banking Act is a limited and reasonable response to the OCC rule. The bill will clarify the state consumer protection laws with which banks and their affiliates must comply. It also will protect financial institutions from overreaching state laws that seek to directly regulate the core activities of national banks.

While the OCC has long had the statutory responsibility to regulate the activities of national banks, it has never denied the ability of states to protect their citizens. The OCC historically has used its authority under the National Bank Act in a reasonable way to shield national banks from state banking laws that intrude on the OCC's congressionally-granted powers. While we should continue to support the appropriate use of the agency's authority, it is important that we immediately intervene to reverse the OCC's regulatory overreach and prevent the agency from preempting all state consumer protection laws and state authority to enforce related laws.

I ask unanimous consent that the text of the legislation be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the bill was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Mr. SPECTER. Mr. President, I have sought recognition to comment on a substitute amendment I propose to make to S. 2485, the “Veterans Health Programs Improvements Act of 2004,” as part of my request that the bill, as so amended, be approved by the Senate. The underlying bill, S. 2485, was reported by the Senate Committee on Veterans’ Affairs on July 20, 2004, and is explained in detail in Senate Report 108-358. My comments at this time are limited to explaining how the proposed substitute amendment, which reflects a bipartisan agreement between Senate and House Veterans’ Affairs Committees on veterans’ medical benefits-related issues, differs from the provisions of S. 2485, as reported.

The House has approved a number of bills—H.R. 1318, H.R. 4231, H.R. 4248, H.R. 4317, H.R. 4608, H.R. 4768, and H.R. 4836—that overlap with provisions drawn from various Senate bills that are contained in S. 2485, as reported. The language of the substitute amendment, in some cases, fine tunes language to harmonize these overlapping provisions without significant or substantive modification. Further, the substitute amendment adds provisions that are drawn from House-approved bills that had not been considered by the Senate. Among those provisions are measures which will assist the Department of Veterans Affairs—VA—and State veterans homes in procuring needed nursing services; provisions which authorize VA major medical facility leases and grant programs to assist providers of services to homeless veterans; and measures requiring VA reports on historic properties and medical waste management activities. Also included are VA facility “naming” provisions which, in addition to a measure already approved by the Veterans’ Committee, would name VA facilities in Amarillo, TX; Peoria, IL; Lufkin, TX; and Sunnyside, Queens, NY. All of these additional provisions, and all clarifications and modifications to language contained in the reported bill, are outlined in the “Explanatory Statement” which I will append to this statement.

Each of the additions to S. 2485 that have resulted from negotiations with our colleagues in the House are all useful and productive. The bill as it would be modified by the managers’ amendment, then, merits the Senate’s approval.

I yield the floor and ask unanimous consent that the Explanatory Statement be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the material was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT ON S. 2485, AS AMENDED

S. 2485, as amended, (hereinafter, the “Compromise Agreement”) reflects a negotiated agreement reached by the House of Representatives and Senate Committees on Veterans’ Affairs concerning provisions from a number of bills considered by the House and the Senate during the 108th Congress. SEC. 402—AUTHORIZATION OF APPROPRIATIONS

Current Law

Section 8104(a)(2) of title 38, United States Code, prohibits VA from obligating or expending more than $600,000 per year for a lease unless that lease has been specifically authorized by law.

House Bill

Section 101 of H.R. 4768 authorized $24,420,000 to carry out major medical facility leases.

Senate Bill

The Senate Bill contains no comparable provision.

Compromise Agreement

Section 402 of the Compromise Agreement follows the House language.

SEC. 403—AUTHORITY FOR LONG-TERM LEASE IN DENVER, COLORADO

Current Law

Section 8104(a)(2) of title 38, United States Code, prohibits VA from obligating or expending more than $600,000 per year for a lease unless that lease has been specifically authorized by law.

House Bill

Section 101 of H.R. 4768 authorizes VA to enter into a long-term lease of up to 75 years for land to construct a new VA Medical Facility on the Fitzsimons Campus of the University of Colorado, Aurora, Colorado.

Senate Bill

The Senate Bill contains no comparable provision.

Compromise Agreement

Section 403 of the Compromise Agreement follows the House language. The authority provided in this section is permissive and intended by the Committees to foster good-faith negotiations between the partners to this agreement. In the event that the Secretary of Veterans Affairs determines the terms or conditions of the lease not to be in the best interest of the United States, the Secretary should propose an alternative strategy to Congress.

Subtitle B—Facilities Management

SEC. 411—DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS CAPITAL ASSET FUND

Current Law

Under current law, the Secretary is authorized to dispose of property administered by VA and retain the proceeds from such a disposal, but only if: (1) the property is considered excess to the needs of VA; (2) there is no use for it in providing services to homeless veterans; and (3) the property is valued at less than $50,000 or, in cases where it is valued at more than $50,000, the disposal was proposed in the most recent budget submitted to Congress by the President. In the event property is so transferred, all proceeds must be deposited into the Nursing Home Revolving Fund. Funds in the Nursing Home Revolving Fund may only be used for the construction, acquisition, or alteration of nursing home facilities.

House Bill

Section 102 of the H.R. 4768 would amend chapter 81 of title 38, United States Code, to add a new section 8118 to provide the Secretary with new authority to transfer by sale, exchange or lease unneeded real property currently in VA's portfolio. It would establish a new "Capital Asset Fund" to finance actions taken to facilitate the transferring of real property, including demolition, environmental restoration, maintenance and repair, and historic preservation and administrative expenses. Section 102 would also establish "fair market value" as the basis for property transfers. Further, it would require the Secretary to include in each year's budget submission to Congress a report of both the uses of the Capital Asset Fund and descriptive information on each completed, pending and planned property disposal. Finally, Section 102 would repeal the Nursing Home Revolving Fund in section 8116 of title 38, United States Code.

All of the authorities extended to the Secretary, as outlined above, would be contingent upon the Secretary certifying that VA facilities maintain long-term care capacity as required by section 1710B(b) of title 38, United States Code.

Senate Bill

Section 101 of S. 2485, as reported, would authorize VA for 5 years to dispose of excess real property by sale, transfer or exchange to a Federal agency, a State or political subdivision of a State, or to any public or private entity. Such transfers would not be subject to restrictions currently in force. Further, the Committee bill would allow VA to retain the proceeds generated by such disposals of property in a new Capital Asset Fund rather than the Nursing Home Revolving Fund. Funds in the new account could be used to perform non-recurring maintenance, develop construction proposals, or dispose of other VA property.

Compromise Agreement

The Compromise Agreement follows the House language except that the contingencies upon which the House authorization rested are no longer included. Instead, the Compromise Agreement makes the transfer of funds from, and elimination of, the Nursing Home Revolving Fund contingent on the Secretary certifying that VA facilities maintain long-term care capacity as required by section 1710B(b) of title 38, United States Code. All other authorities would take effect immediately.

SEC. 412—ANNUAL REPORT TO CONGRESS ON INVENTORY OF DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS HISTORIC PROPERTY

Current Law

No similar provision exists under current law.

House Bill

Section 103 of H.R. 4768 would require VA to establish a national inventory of historic VA properties and would require reports to Congress over several years on the status of such properties.

Senate Bill

The Senate Bill contains no comparable provision.

Compromise Agreement

The Compromise Agreement follows the House language.

SEC. 413—AUTHORITY TO ACQUIRE AND TRANSFER REAL PROPERTY FOR USE FOR HOMELESS VETERANS

Section 8103 of title 38, United States Code, authorizes the Secretary to acquire such land as is necessary for the purpose of providing medical services.

House Bill

The House Bills contains no comparable provision.

Senate Bill

The Senate Bill contains no comparable provision.

Compromise Agreement

The Compromise Agreement permits the Secretary to acquire land, in the District of Columbia, suitable for providing services to homeless veterans if the Secretary has identified a homeless assistance provider that is prepared to acquire the property from the Secretary promptly following the acquisition of the land by the Secretary.

SEC. 414—LIMITATION ON IMPLEMENTATION OF MISSION CHANGES FOR SPECIFIED VETERANS HEALTH ADMINISTRATION FACILITIES

Current Law

Section 401 of Public Law 108-193, the "Veterans Health Care Authorities Extension and Improvement Act of 2003," requires VA to notify Congress of facility closings proposed under the Capital Asset Realignment for Enhanced Services initiative, and prohibits such closings from occurring until the lapse of 60 days following the notification or 30 days of continuous session of Congress, whichever is longer.

House Bill

The House Bills contains no comparable provision.

Senate Bill

Section 104 of S. 2485, as reported, would prohibit the Secretary from implementing a mission change for a medical facility (other than a mission change prescribed by the Secretary in his Capital Asset Realignment for Enhanced Services initiative Final Report) until 90 days after the date on which the Secretary submits to the Committees on Veterans' Affairs written notice of the mission change.

Compromise Agreement

Section 414 of the Compromise Agreement prohibits the Secretary from implementing a mission change until the lapse of 60 days following notification or 30 days of continuous session of Congress, whichever is longer, at VA Medical Centers in the following locations: Boston, Massachusetts; New York City, New York; Big Springs, Texas; Dublin, Georgia; Montgomery, Alabama; Louisville, Kentucky; Muscogee (including the outpatient clinic in Tulsa), Oklahoma; Poplar Bluff, Missouri; Ft. Wayne, Indiana; Waco, Texas; Walla Walla, Washington.

SEC. 415—AUTHORITY TO USE PROJECT FUNDS TO CONSTRUCT OR RELOCATE SURFACE PARKING INCIDENTAL TO A CONSTRUCTION OR NON-RECURRING MAINTENANCE PROJECT

Current Law

Under current law, all money spent for the construction of VA parking lots must be derived from the Parking Revolving Fund which receives all of its deposits from fees charged for parking. VA may not spend "construction" funds on parking lots because those funds are not drawn from the Parking Revolving Fund.

House Bill

Section 104 of H.R. 4768 would authorize the use of funds in a construction or capital account for the relocation of a surface parking facility if the relocation is necessitated by a construction or non-recurring maintenance project.

Senate Bill

Section 103 of S. 2485, as reported, would authorize the use of funds in a construction or capital account for the relocation of a surface parking facility if the relocation is necessitated by a construction or non-recurring maintenance project.

Compromise Agreement

Section 415 of the Compromise Agreement follows the language of the House and Senate Bills.

SEC. 416—INAPPLICABILITY OF LIMITATION ON USE OF ADVANCE PLANNING FUNDS TO AUTHORIZED MAJOR MEDICAL FACILITY PROJECTS

Current Law

Under current law, VA may not spent more than $500,000 from its Advanced Planning Fund for the development of a construction proposal unless it notifies Congress of its intention to do so and waits for a period of 30 days.

House Bill

Section 105 of H.R. 4768 would provide more flexibility to VA by eliminating the "notice and wait" provision if the project VA is planning has already been authorized by law.

Senate Bill

Section 105 of S. 2485, as reported, also would eliminate the "notice and wait" provision if the project VA is planning has already been authorized by law.

Compromise Agreement

Section 416 of the Compromise Agreement follows the language of the House and Senate Bills.

SEC. 417—ENHANCEMENT TO ENHANCE-USE LEASE AUTHORITY

Current Law

Under current law, VA is authorized to lease real property administered by VA to non-Federal entities in cases where VA determines that such a lease will advance the mission of VA and enhance the use of the property. In making the determination to enter into such an "enhanced-use lease", VA may only consider the needs of the Veterans Health Administration as outlined in business plans set forth by the Under Secretary for Health. Further, Section 8166 of title 38, United States Code, provides the Secretary permissive authority to disregard State and local laws relating to building codes, permits or inspections that would regulate or restrict construction, alternation, repair, remodeling or improvement of VA property associated with an enhanced-use lease under section 8162 of title 38, United States Code.

House Bill

Section 106 of H.R. 4758 would add to existing exemptions from State and local laws for enhanced-use leases any land-use laws.

Senate Bill

Section 102 of S. 2485, as reported, would allow VA, as part of making a determination to enter into an enhanced-use lease, to consider the needs of the Veterans Benefits Administration or the National Cemetery Administration, as outlined in business plans developed by the respective Under Secretaries of those Administrations.

Compromise Agreement

Section 417 of the Compromise Agreement includes the language from the House Bill.

SEC. 418—FIRST OPTION FOR COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY ON DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS MEDICAL CENTER, LOUISVILLE, KENTUCKY

Current Law

Under current law, VA generally may not transfer any property to a State unless VA receives compensation equal to the fair market value of the property and the transfer, as proposed, is described in the VA budget for the fiscal year within which the proposed transfer will take place. However, VA may transfer property to a State for use as a State nursing home or domiciliary.

House Bill

The House Bills contains no comparable provision.

Senate Bill

Section 131 of S. 2485, as reported, would require VA for one year, if it determines that it will convey, lease, or otherwise dispose of all or part of the Louisville VA Medical Center, to negotiate for the conveyance, lease, or other disposal of the Medical Center to the Commonwealth of Kentucky for its use to provide services for veterans or for other purposes. The bill would not relieve the Commonwealth from the burden of paying fair market value for the land.

MEASURE PLACED ON THE CALENDAR—S. 2949

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I understand there is a bill at the desk due for its second reading.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will read the bill for the second time.

The legislative clerk read as follows:

A bill (S. 2949) to amend the Low-Income Home Energy Assistance Act of 1981 to reauthorize the Act, and for other purposes.

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I object to further proceedings on the measure at this time in order to place the bill on the calendar under the provisions of rule XIV.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Objection is heard. The bill will be placed on the calendar.

ORDERS FOR SUNDAY, OCTOBER 10, 2004

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that when the Senate completes its business today, it adjourn until 10:30 a.m. on Sunday, October 10. I further ask that following the prayer and the pledge, the morning hour be deemed to have expired, the Journal of the proceedings be approved to date, the time for the two leaders be reserved, and the Senate resume consideration of the conference report to accompany H.R. 4520, the FSC/ETI JOBS bill; provided that the time until 1 p.m. be equally divided between the two managers, with the exception of 20 minutes under the control of Senator BYRD, who will speak as in morning business.

Mr. REID. Mr. President, if I could ask the majority leader to modify his request to the Chair and include therein that Senators GRASSLEY and BAUCUS would be recognized from 12:30 to 1 o'clock, and Senator BYRD from 12:10 to 12:30, Senator LANDRIEU from 11:40 to 12:10, and that the remaining time be allocated to the minority, with Senator HARKIN for 5 minutes, Senator KENNEDY for 5 minutes, and Senator DORGAN for 5 minutes.

Mr. FRIST. Yes. And provided further that if cloture is invoked, Senator LANDRIEU be recognized immediately following the vote to speak for up to 1 hour.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

PROGRAM

Mr. FRIST. Mr. President, tomorrow the Senate will resume consideration, in an unusual session on Sunday, of the FSC/ETI JOBS conference report. Under the previous order, we will vote at 1 p.m. on cloture of the FSC bill. I hope cloture is invoked and that we could then reach an agreement for a time certain for passage.

In addition, moments ago I filed cloture on two appropriations matters: Military Construction and Homeland Security. Both are very important bills. It was necessary to file cloture because of the obstruction that has played out over the last 2 days from the other side of the aisle. The votes will likely occur on Monday.

We have those three remaining issues prior to our adjournment. When we complete action on the FSC/ETI bill and the two appropriations bills, then we will have concluded our work that was set out by the Democratic leader and myself days ago; we will be finished.

It has been a tough several days, with a very unusual session today, a full day on Saturday, with votes. Because of these cloture votes, which have certain time limits, we are really forced to come back tomorrow in order to complete our business. It looks like we will be going into the holiday on Monday as well, which is mutually agreed upon between both sides of the aisle in order to complete our business. The bills before us, such as Homeland Security, we need to get through this body. A lot of people watching are wondering, why in the world can't the Senate move more quickly? I hope we can do so.

Right now, we will stay on course and we will enter tomorrow with the schedule that we have outlined, and I think we can make continued progress and complete our work, hopefully, Monday morning. We will continue to consider other legislative or executive items that can be cleared as we go forward.

Again, I thank Members for their participation over the course of yesterday, today, and tomorrow. This is all vitally important work. That is why we were here all day today and well into the evening tonight, and that is why we will be here tomorrow morning in this very unusual session.

I understand that the Chair has an announcement.
